The report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction is made public, and it shows that, during the year, there have been added to the permanent school fund $73,000. The fund now amounts to considerably over $8,000,000. The aggregate enrollment of scholars shows an increase of 14,000. The Superintendent makes a strong argument for a Compulsory Education law, and also indorses in emphatic terms the County Superintendency system. The report is voluminous, embracing reports from every County Superintendent in the State. The condition of the common school fund is given as follows:

Total collected from counties	$682,789 04
State's interest paid	117,143 80
Delinquent counties estimated to pay	7,500 00
Balance in Treasury at last apportionment	6,365 04
Excess of estimates	15,297 81
Total collected	$829,915 09
Deduct excess of Elkhart county	642 05
Amount ready for apportionment	$829,273 04
Amount apportioned	826,449 67
Balance in Treasury	$ 2,823 37

WHEN you see a big, pudgy, dropsical-looking fellow, with a flabby, colorless countenance—a fellow who looks as though he had been manufactured out of the curd of an ass' milk, or who reminds you of an exaggerated chestnut worm—you don't feel any more like accepting his opinion as to the "survival of the fittest" than you do like shaking hands with him.—Brooklyn Argus.

CHRISTMAS FLOWERS.

The snow has been sifting and whirling,
  In feathery flakes through the air,
Till window and archway and house-top
  Its pristine purity share.

The trees that but yesterday lifted
  Their gaunt arms up to the sky,
Stand under a crowning of brilliants
  A king were too poor to buy.

The birds that so lately made music
  Through woodland and orchard and grass,
Where blossoms are gayer and brighter
  Mid the bowers of sun-land now rove.

The flowers whose proud beauty enriched us,
  Their sweet faces hid long ago,
And await the winter night coming,
  Asleep down under the snow.

All the glowing and radiant splendor
  Of summer has passed from our gaze,
And barren and bleak as the mountains,
  Are the somber and comfortless days.

But even the while we are grieving
  Over joys that [illegible] birth,
There cometh the beautiful story
  Of a Christ-child to gladden the earth.

And we feel that all children are dearer,
  For the babe whose star rose in the East,
And give thanks for our own precious blossoms
  That brighten each dear Christmas feast.

For no lily or rose of the garden
  Can compare with the faces that glow
Afresh from the kingdom of heaven,
  Bearing gladness wherever they go.

And a row of fair heads by the fireside
  Are flowers no earth frost can chill,
Blooming brightly through summer or winter,
  All hearts with their sweetness to thrill.

Humorous.

VOICES of the night—Cats.

OLD Grumpy's Definition.—Perpetual motion—A lady's tongue.

BEWARE of the man with half-shut eyes. He's not dreaming.

WHEN I tell him he hates flattery, he says he does, being then most flattered.

THE brave man wishes to die at his post and be remembered for faithful work.

A TENNESSEE funeral was delayed for half an hour to allow a horse trade. Business before pleasure was the motto.

How dreary seems each hour,
  As it slowly, slowly goes,
To the man who sits in anguish
  With a boil upon his nose!

WHEN we see a man begging his tobacco, we feel like reminding him of the old adage, that "Beggars must not be chew-sers."

A YOUNG lady asked a bookseller's clerk if he had "Festus." "No," he answered, "but I'm afraid a boil is coming on the back of my neck."

THE Ithaca Journal is not the best authority on sporting matters. It states that the original "home stretch" is the stretch across the maternal knee.

JUST think, if you swear off using tobacco and wearing clothes after the 1st of January, you can save $5 per week at least, and $5 per week for 1,000 years is $260,000!

OF course, a woman doesn't want her plants to freeze, but still one can't blame a man for raising a row when he hops out of bed in the morning and finds a geranium plant in each trowsers leg.

HAIR-DEALERS, who buy in the French provinces the abundant tresses of the countrywomen, pursue a traffic that is something dangerous. Recently, a countryman, whose wife had sold her hair, caught the buyer and shaved his head.

"Now, George, before you go and play, are you quite sure you know the lesson Prof. Borax gave you to learn?" "Oh, yes, mamma." "Well, now, what causes heat without light?" "Pickles!"

HE blushed a fiery red;
  Her heart went pit-a-pat;
She gently hung her head
  And looked down at the mat.
He trembled in his speech;
  He rose from where he sat,
And shouted with a screech,
  "You're sitting on my hat!"

A GENTLE, husbandless creature in Illinois writes to a lawyer who advertised that he would provide companions for unmarried persons: "My Dear Mr. ——: This is to certify that I am a widow with thirteen children born; have had three husbands, each of which died in peace in his own way. I have a small farm, and would take another husband yet, if I could find a young one; no old, bull-headed sardine need apply—he will not be taken in. Ten dollars will be given to you to produce the man."

A PLEASING incident is told to us by a clergyman who has just returned from a health trip. He relates how a baggage-man on a far Western railroad was so impelled by force of habit that he began to knock and kick and jam the trunk of an elephant, a menagerie company having the beast on a flat car. The force of habit was also strong, and the heap of blood and bones beside the track demonstrated that for once in a railroad encounter the trunk had the best of it. As above remarked, this incident comes from the lips of a clergyman lately returned from a Western trip taken for his health.

Comments on a Black Eye.

When a man is splitting wood and a stick flies up and blacks his eye, he must prepare himself to endure all the taunts and jeers which the world would inflict on a pirate. Social standing counts for nothing, and dignity cannot be made a mantle of. The other day when a compositor on this paper took up his little ax and broke a stick in two, and one end flew into his eye, he knew that he must either remain in the house for two weeks or go out and face the world's sneers. He decided to face the sneers, and during one short half day he noted down the following expressions:

"It's all right; of course it was a stick of wood—oh, yes!"

"Been fighting again, eh?"

"Well, who knocked you down this time?"

"Oh, I've had the same thing all my eye, and I always laid it to a stick of wood!"

"Ha! ha! The policeman struck hard, didn't he?"

"Of course it was a stick of wood—ye—he—he—he!"

Then there were people who pointed him out as the abductor of Charlie Ross, and people who thought he was one of the Gad's Hill robbers, and over fifty respectable men asked him why he didn't get the other one blacked, so as to have a matched pair.—Detroit Free Press.

ARE WE?

BY ETHEL LYNN.

Are we kind enough to "old folks!"
  Are we tender, every day?
Will we think so, that to-morrow
  That is not so far away?

When the trailing of their garments
  Trips our own impatient feet,
Do we chide them that they linger,
  On Life's down ward sloping street?

When they fail our speech to answer,
  Do we call them rudely back
From youth's dreamland where they linger,
  To the rough and dusty track.

For the Real groweth dream-like,
  And the Dream-like real grows,
When the show is well-nigh ended,
  And the drama nears its close.

They are list'ning to the echoes
  Of the feet that come no more,
For the children's voices, calling
  Through Time's barred and bolted door.

For the summons may be near them,
  That is softly drawing nigh;
Do we never call them roughly
  From the far land, you and I?

When the eye-light groweth dimmer,
  And the smoke of battle o'er
Still beclouds the crystal mirror,
  Left to light Life's latest score.

Do we lend our clearer vision,
  Patiently, they needs to meet,
Weary twilight hours beguiling,
  Counting loving service sweet.

Let us be truly kinder
  Life may bring us friendships new,
But the heads so white beside us,
  They, alas, are all too few

Newer loves may meet us, may be,
  Coming with to-morrows dawn.
But they cannot fill the places
  Of the "old folks" dead and gone.

The following questions have been propounded:—

1. What would do with a pupil who stutters?

2. In a school where none of the pupils have ever studied grammar, is it advisable to spend a certan amount of time each day in giving oral language lessons?

Stuttering is not caused by the absence or defect of any organ of speech but is a nervous derangement, or else the person could not speak at all.

The several organs do not play in their normal succession, and consequently interfere with each other in convulsive impulses and improper adjustments as may be noticed in the quivering motion of the mouth and the straining of the throat.

In general, in such cases, some particular organ is more developed and consequently more completely under the control of the person, which makes an irregular rapid movement.

With this view of the matter it will be seen that the only remedial means that can be employed are, to study carefully the articulation difficult letter to practice their pronunciation repeatedly and slowly, and to speak only when the chest is well filled with air After these, pass to small words being careful to note down classes of words in which the person finds difficulty and pronounce only such words as can be pronounced without much difficulty.

Then take for a lesson other words more difficult to articulate, and pursue a process of training and repitition until the words can be spoken at any time with readiness.

Thus the power of habit will overcome the seeming natural defects and gradually every part of the vocal organs may be made to play in ready and harmonious action in the utterance of any word.

In answer to the second question, we reply emphatically yes

In taking up the study of geography we first start with the door-yard a field or a farm. In the study History we begin with the childs own experience. And this seems to be the only normal method; then why not take up Grammar in the same way?

Experience.

[Communicated.]

We want teachers who do their work more thoroughly; teachers who do not attempt to pass over so much but who complete that over which they do pass.

Too many teachers measure their work by the amount which they pass over in the text book, instead of what the pupil learns. The bad effects of this are visible in almost every school we enter. In many schools we find classes in arithmetic which pass over a certain amount winter after winter, becoming scarcely any better. Why is this? Simply because they are permitted to go too fast in the outset, and pass over many things which they do not comprehend. In almost every lesson there are things which must be understood before the next lesson can be comprehended. By passing over the lessons carelessly each succeeding one becomes more difficult than the previous, until at last, the pupils become so puzzled and discouraged that they give up in despair, and during the latter part of the term they learn nothing. The result is, that what they have endeavored to learn is so tumbleed together and disarranged in their minds that by the next winter they have forgotten all and must go over the same thing again.

How much better would it be to go over less having it so understood and classified in the mind that they would not forgot it but at each succeeding term may begin where they left off.

The worst effect of this is, that it gives the pupils a habit of carelessness in the prepartion of their lessins which it is almost impossible to overcome; and when a teacher who would do right takes the school, he finds that he cannot overcome the careless habits which his predecessor has fastened up on the pupils.

Teachers, be thorough; proceed step by step, and each lesson will be easier than the previous one, rather than more difficult.

At first the progress may seem slow, but you will find at the end of the term, that you have really passed over more than if you had hastened at the out set.

In rearing the structure of a child's education, do not try to put in a "stone here and there" from top to bottom leaving your successor to fill crevices; if you do your sturcture will fall, and in the end you will only have a heap of rubbish. The top stones can not be placed until the lower ones are in their places to support them.

Then commence at the bottom and build firmly what you do build, although it be but a thin layer, your successor commencong where you left off can build another layer, and the structure will rise surely and stand firmly.

PRICES REDUCED

—AT THE—

FRUIT HOUSE.

We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. If times are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combined. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; no secret in it, simply purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumers.

Just take Teas, for instance: we save our consumers on that article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the importer.

We save the profit of the jobber, 10 per cent, of the speculator, which is 15 per cent, of the wholesale grocer, [illegible] All these profits our customers have the profit of.

We still keep up the reduction of 15 per cent.

Just Published in a Sealed Envelope. Price 6 cts

A LECTURE on the nature, treatment and radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhœa, introduced by self abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility and fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c—by Robt J. Culverwell, M. D. author of the 'Green Book,' &c.

The world renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of self abuse may be cured without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radical.

☞ This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands. Sent, under seal, in a plain envelope to any address, on receipt of 6 cents, or two postage stamps. Address

His Time for Fiddling.

A Bible canvasser called into a house on Main street yesterday to see if he couldn't sell a book. A small lame girl opened the door in answer to his knock, and just as he entered a man sitting on the edge of a forlorn-looking bed raised a fiddle to his shoulder and commence scraping out a tune.

"Have you a Bible in the house asked the canvasser as he crossed the room?"

"Nary Bible," answered the man; "and—

Old Dan Tucker
Drempt a dream!"

"Or a hym-book?" continued the canvasser.

"No—nary, and—

If you love me Molley, darling,
Let your answer be a kiss."

"I am agent for the sale of this Bible said the canvasser, taking the volume out of his satchel.

"Couldn't buy one cover, and—
Oh darkeys how my heart grows weary
Sighing for the old folks at home"

"I can sell you the book for a small amount down and the balance in weekly payments.

"Bibuls are all right, but I've got a sore foot and—

'Twas a calm still night
And the moon's pale light."

"If you do not care to read the book yourself you should not refuse your child permission," remarked the canvasser.

"And the old woman's up-stairs, sick with fever, and—

They took her off to Georgia
To toil her life away."

"But it seems hard to think that you are permitting yourself and family to live in ignorence of religons—"

"Bibuls is all right, and I'd encourage'em if times wasn't so blasted—

Ha! ha! ha! you and me—
Little brown jug, don't I love thee"

"I have a smaller addition like this You can have that by paying fifty cents down and twenty-five cents a week untill paid up."

"No use, stranger," replied the man "there hain't nothing to do, money is tight, and—

I've wondered this wide world all over."

"I wish you would cease that fiddling and singing, for a moment and let me talk to you," said the agent.

"Bibuls is all right, you is all right, and—

Oh! this world is sad and dreary
Everywhere I roam!"

"Won't you stop for just one moment?"

"I'd like to oblige, but now's my reg'lar time for fiddling and singing, and—

"Up in a balloon boys,
Up in a balloon."

"Then I can't sell you a Bible?"

"Don't look as if you could, for—
I've wondered through the villag Tom
I've sat beneath the tree."

And the canvasser left the house in despair.

Mark Twain's Eulogy of the Fair Sex.

The Washington Correspondents, Club held its anniversary on Saturday night, Mr. Clements, better known as Mark Twain, responded to the toast. "Woman the pride of the professions, and the jewel of ours." He said:

Mr. President: I do not know why I should have been singled out to receive the greatest distinction of the evening—for so the office of replying to the toast of woman has been regarded in every age. [Applause.] I do not know why I have received this distinction, unless it be that I am a trifle less homely than the other members of the club But be this as it may, Mr. President I am proud of my position and you could not have chosen any one who would have excepted it more gladly, or labored with a heartier good will to do the subject justice than I. Because sir, I love the sex. [Laughter I love all the Woman, sir, irrespective of age or color. [Laughter.]

Human intelligence cannot estimate what we owe to woman, sir. She sews on our buttons [laughter], she mends our clothes [laughter] she ropes us in at the church fairs—she confides in us, she tells us whatever she can find out, about the little private affairs of the neighbors—she gives us good advice, and plenty of it—she gives us a piece of her mind, sometimes—and sometimes all of it—she sooths our acting brows—she bears our children. In all relations of life, sir it is but just and a greatful tribute to woman to say of her that she is a brick. [Great laughter.]

Wheresoever you place woman, sir in whatsoever position or estate—she is an orniment to the place she occupies, and a treasure to the world. [Here Mr. Twain paused looked inquiringly at the hearers, and remarked that the applause should come in at this point It came in. Mr. Twain resumed his eulogy.] Look at the noble names of history! Look at the Cleopatra! Look at Desdemona! Look at Florence Nightingale! Look at Joan of Arc! Look at Lucretia Borgia!—[Disapprpcation expressed. "Well, said Mr. Twain, scratching his head, doubtfully, suppose we let Lucretia slide."] Look at Joyce Heth! Look at Mother Eve! I repeat sir look at the illustrious name of history! Look at the Widow Machree! Look at Lucy Stone! Look at Elizabeth Cady Stanton! Look at George Fransis Twin! [Great laughter.] And, sir I say with bowed head and deepest veneration, look at the mother of Washington! She raised a boy that could not lie—could not lie! [Applause But he never had any chance! It might have been different with him if he had belonged to a newspaper correspondents' club. [Laughter, groans hisses, cries of "put him out." Mark looked around placidly upon his exited audience, and resumed;]

I repeat, sir that in whatsoever position you place a woman she is an ornament to society, and a treasure to the world. As a sweetheart she has few equals and no superors—[laughter]—as a cousin she is convenient, as a wealthy grandmother, with an incurable distemper, she is precious, as a wet nurse she has no equal among men! [Laughter.]

What sir, would the people of this earth be without woman? They would be scarce, sir. Then let this cheriser her—let us protect her—let us give her our support, our encouragement, our symphathy—our selves if we get a chance. [Laughter.]

But jesting aside Mr. President, woman is lovable, gracious, kind hearted, beautiful—worthy of all respect, of all esteem, of all deferences. Not any here will refuse to drink her health right cordially, for each and every one of us has personally known, and loved and horored the very best one of them all—his own mother.

HE vs SHE.

She enters the room carefully, locks the door, closes the blinds. Before she turns down the light, she looks under the bed to see that no burglar is there. Stands before the glass, and, with nimble fingers, sundry waist-strings, buttons, and straps are loosened, and lo! what a collapse, like Low's big balloon. She stands like Saturn, the centre of rings. Then they lie up on the carpet, partly covereed by the linen under-fixing, with no more expression in them than there is in the floor beneath the carpet.

Sits she now upon the edge to the snowy bed and begins the unlacing of griters, and the disrobing of those fair swelling limbs of the stocking. The pretty little foot is carefully perched upon the knee, down drops the gaiter, off comes the elastic, and her thumb, inserted at the top of the stocking, pushes it down—down over the heel, and the cotton rests beside the prunella So with the other foot, only involving a slight change of position. There is a smile that peers out from the blushes of her sweet face, now as standing there before the glass, she places upon her head the night-cap, and with a quick twist of her fingers, ties the bewitching bow. Then the night gown is thrown over the frilled chemise, concealing the heaving boson and the shoulders in the linen folds. Then counterpane and sheet thrown back, the gas turned out, and the little form presses the yielding couch, and the angle goes off to the world of dreams.

He comes into the room, shuts the door with a slam, turns the key with a snap, growls at a chair which happens to be in the way, pulls off his boots and throws them in the corner, jerks his socks from his feet, drops his pantaloons on the floor, lets them lie there, gets out of his coat and vest by a quick, vendictive sort of twist of his arms and body, unpins and unbuttons his colar, throws it carelessly at, rather than on the table, travels to the window in his shirt extremity to let down the curtain, as if he didn't care a cuss whether the entire population of the street behind his anatomy or not, then puts out the light, and bounces into bed like a great calf jumping into a pile of hay, curls himself up his knees nearly touching his nose, lies so a moment or two, turns on his back, stretches his limbs out, swear at the tucking in of the bed clothes grunts, gets over on the other side, and is—asleep. Then isn't there a difference in style?

A Poacher's Prayre.—Jamie Hamilton, a note poacher at Crawfordjohn was asked by a woman to pray for an old woman who was lying at the point of death "I cannot pray." "But ye maundo't, Jamie." Weel, if I maun do't, I maun do't, but I haena muckle to say." Being placed beside the dying woman.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Delivered to the Legislature January 8, 1875.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

During the two years since the last meeting of the Legislature, the people of Indiana have been blessed in a special degree with general health and bountiful harvests, and I again invoke the continuance of a kind Providence over them.

REVENUES AND APPROPRIATIONS.

The assessed value of the taxable property of the State in [illegible] an increase of more than [illegible] since 1872. That increase in the assessment was attributable in part to the increase of values in the State; but it was largely caused by the operation of the revenue act passed at the special session of the last Legislature. That act required that taxable property should be assessed at its value, "estimated at the fair price it would bring at a fair, voluntary sale." Prior laws had required assessments to be made upon cash values, but long administrative construction and usage had allowed a much lower valuation. By the exercise of a diligent supervision the Auditor of State was able to advance the valuation in the spirit as well as in accordance with the letter of the law. The appraisement at the fair value fixes a plain rule, which is easily understood and which excludes all discretion, defeats favoritism and partiality, and promotes equality and justice toward all. The law also constituted the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of State, and Treasurer of State a board of equalization, with power to assess the property and stock of corporations, including railroad companies. With care and great labor the board sought to make the valuations so that the assessments should be just to the people and fair toward the railroads. The action of the board increased the assessment of railroad property in the State from about $11,000,0.0 in 1872 to nearly $40,000,000 in 1874.

There are two hundred and sixty-five thousand persons in the State who are subject to a personal or poll tax of fifty cents each. The assessments of property, amounting to nearly $955,000,000, and the personal or poll tax, constitute our important sources of revenue. In estimating what may be realized at any proposed rate of levy, experience has shown that a deduction must be made of twenty per cent. for delinquencies. When you shall have decided what appropriation, of the public moneys you will make for each of the next two years it will be of easy calculation what tax levy must be made to supply the State Treasury. A low levy must be preceded by economy in the appropriations. This I urge respectfully, but very earnestly.

The appropriations must be sufficient to enable each department of the State government to exercise its functions without hindrance or delay. Thus far there is no question or discretion. So, also, the common schools, the benevolent institutions, and the public safety must be sufficiently provided for. But the expenditures for these purposes should be made with rigid economy and with a view to substantial and permanent benefits. Will you allow me to suggest that it would be appreciated by the people should your reforms commence with a reduction in legislative expenditures. It would be an assurance to them which would promote public confidence and give your proceedings an additional moral weight. At the session of 1871, the miscellaneous expenditures exceeded the pay of the members; and at the last special and regular sessions that class of expenditures was still greater, being about $960 per day, though it did not exceed the pay of the members, which had been increased for the regular session. I suggest the propriety of a revision of the act of Dec. 23, 1872, which prescribes the number and classification of your employes, with a view to a further reduction.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

There was in the treasury March 1, 1873	$169,633 90
From that day until the close of the year ending Oct. 31, 1873, there was received for State purposes from all sources	438,191 14
During the year ending Oct. 31, 1874, there was received for State purposes	893,691 97

During the last session of the Legislature it became apparent that the revenue would be inadequate to meet the ordinary expenses of the State. Provision had also to be made for the one hundred and ninety-one old bonds, as required by the act of Dec. 12, 1872. In that condition of the finances, the act of March 10, 1873, was passed, authorizing the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State to make temporary loans to meet the appropriations. Pursuant to that act, temporary loans were made as follows:

At 8 per cent., due March 12, 1875	$208,000 00
At 7 per cent., due April 15, 1876	510,000 00
At 6 per cent., due Dec. 1, 1876	200,000 00
Total revenue for State purposes received during the two years ending Oct. 31, 1874, including temporary loans and the amount in the treasury March 1, 1873	2,410,917 01

During the same period there was received on account of benevolent institutions, $68,584.69. This sum was realized from the labor of the inmates and from individuals and counties pursuant to law.

At the close of the year ending Oct. 31, 1874, there was in the treasury $244,203.78. The payments from the treasury during the two years ending Oct. 31, 1874, for revenue refunded, for ordinary expenditures, and for the benevolent institutions, amounted to $1,544,216.48.

By the act of December 12, 1872, the Governor, Attorney-General, Secretary of State, and Treasurer of State were authorized to "take up and redeem" one hundred and ninety-one old bonds issued by authority of the State prior to the year 1841, which had not been surrendered under the adjustment made by the State with her creditors. Pursuant to that act ninety-seven of the bonds, with their coupons, have been surrendered and paid, amounting to $495,487.30. Ninety-four are yet outstanding, a part not having become due, and the residue not having been presented for payment.

For a more particular description of the bonds and coupons which have been paid, I refer you to the detailed lists thereof, which accompany the reports of the Auditor of State for the years 1873 and 1874.

For a statement of the receipts and expenditures on account of the college saline, bank tax, surplus revenue, and miscellaneous funds, I refer you to the same reports.

STATE DEBT.

The State is indebted as follows:

Five per cent. certificate, State stock	$26,469 99
Two and one-half per cent. certificates, State stock	3,285 13
War loan bonds, six per cent., due 1881	139,000 00
Temporary loan made under act of March 10, 1873, which I have before mentioned more in detail	910,000 00
Ninety-four old bonds required to be paid by the act of Dec. 12, 1872	94,000 00
Total	$4,172,755 12

The accumulated interest upon the ninety-four old bonds should be added, but I have no means of ascertaining the amount, but the same will not be large.

The indebtedness of the State to the school fund is evidenced by five non-negotiable bonds, at six per cent., and amounts to $3,904,783.21. That is known as the domestic debt.

COMMON SCHOOLS.

The permanent school fund of the State is guarded by the provision of the Constitution, which declares that it shall be perpetual—that it may be increased, but shall never be diminished—and that the income thereof shall be inviolably appropriated to the support of common schools and to no other purpose whatever.

The fund is made up as follows:

1st. The amount which the State owes it, and which is evidenced by her non-negotiable bonds bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent	$3,904,783 21
Additions from fines and other sources	87,197 94
Amount held in the counties, and loaned by the Auditors on mortgage security at 8 per cent., and for the preservation of which the Constitution makes the counties liable	2,341,367 19
2d. Congressional township fund, being the proceeds of the sales of the school sections	2,226,778 88
Estimated value of 19,455 acres of unsold school lands	105,293 40
Total permanent fund	$8,711,318 60

The interest realized upon the general fund above mentioned is annually apportioned among the counties according to the enumeration of school children; but the interest upon the Congressional township fund is not so apportioned. It belongs to the Congressional townships, because the grant of the sixteenth section in each township was made by the act of Congress providing for the organization of the State government, to the "inhabitants of the township for the use of schools."

During the year 1873 the fund was increased, including the proceeds of a portion of the lands, but not including the portion of the sinking fund which was distributed, $64,945.96, and during the year 1874 it was increased from the same sources $78,792.11.

The revenue realized during the year ending Nov. 15, 1874, to be used in the support of schools, was as follows:

Interest on permanent fund	$407,839 19
Derived from school tax	1,015,153 44
Unclaimed witness fees and other sources	72,904 94
Total	$1,495,897 57
To this sum is to be added the interest on the Congressional township fund	172,200 89
And the amount received from local taxation	551,705 74

Six thousand two hundred and sixty-five dollars and four cents was not distributed, but remains in the treasury. There has been received and distributed during the year for the support of schools, $2,211,328.13.

The enumeration of 1874 of children between the ages of six and twenty-one years, shows the number of 654,364; the number enrolled in the schools is 489,044; and the average attendance upon the schools has been 311,272. Twelve thousand six hundred and fifty-five teachers have been employed.

The reports of the County Superintendents show a general and rapid improvement in almost every respect affecting the efficiency of the schools. The houses and grounds, fixtures and apparatus are being improved and made more attractive and convenient, and greater skill and success in the art of teaching and governing the children are being promoted. The township and county institutes are increasing the efficiency of our school system. Improvement is the natural result of professional association in the institutes. The opinions, practice, and experience of the teachers are brought under examination, and into comparison. The art of teaching is improved and the profession of the teacher, as it should be, is ennobled and dignified. I ask your attention to the carefully prepared report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. You will find the views expressed and the information given important for your careful consideration in your relation to the schools of the State.

There is no subject to which I could call your attention in respect to which your responsibility is greater than any measure materially affecting the success and influence of the schools. Your responsibility and mine are too great to allow any important action upon hastily-formed or ill-digested opinions. The guiding sentiment should be economy in expenditure and efficiency in the system. Neither should be sacrificed to the other. The school fund is sacred to a cause of the highest importance, and its waste or extravagant use would be a crime against society. All extra compensation and discretionary allowances should be prohibited. If upon careful consideration and the test of experience you find that the distinguished man who was the late Superintendent of Public Instruction, and whose recent death the country mourns, made a mistake in respect to the machinery of our system, you will correct the mistake, but in your examination you will find the great weight of his opinion in the scales.

He was an economist, a friend of the people, and the able champion of common school education.

As representatives of the people we have occasion to be proud of the high character which our educational system maintains, and the people will approve the sentiment if you give it expression in legislation that, in respect to the cause of common-school education, we will take no step backward.

THE STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

By the act of March 5, 1873, $15,000 per annum of the school revenue was permanently set apart as the Normal School fund, and appropriated to the support of the Normal School. The Board of Trustees have contracted an obligation of $13,290 to provide for suitably heating the building. They ask that you will appropriate funds for its payment. The improvement was important to the institution, and I recommend that the appropriation be made. I think the school has been under good management, and that its success has been equal to the expectation that induced its establishment. In entering the institution the students assume an obligation to make a return for the advantages which they enjoy by teaching in the common schools. They have thus far been faithful to that duty. The object of the school is to cultivate teachers in the art and science of their profession. The beneficial results are already being felt over the State. The trained teachers influence and improve others with whom they come in contact in the schools and in the teachers' institutes. That influence will be gradually increasing as the graduating classes grow larger.

As an important auxiliary to our common schools it merits your fostering care. Your attention is called to the report of the Board of Trustees and of the President of the Faculty, which give a clear and full statement of the condition and management of the institution, the condition of its finances, and the reason for the recommendations made by the board.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

During the collegiate years, from June 28, 1872, to June 28, 1874, the State University has received the following revenues:

Endowment fund	$13,500 00
Under the act March 8, 1867	16,000 00
Appropriated Feb. 6, 1873	22,500 00
Appropriated March 10, 1873	24,000 00
Appropriated March 10, 1873, for building	20,000 00
Appropriated Dec. 14, 1872, deficiency	8,000 00
From counties, interest on lands sold	2,120 09
From other sources	3,457 62
Amount in Treasury June 28, 1872	222 75
Total	$109,800 46

Of this sum $90,500 was appropriated and paid from the State Treasury.

During the same period, the expenditures were $109,518 21, of which $40,473.46 was for the addition to the college buildings; and $7,541.16 was for the Owen and Ward cabinets, and $4,800 on the expenses of the medical department; and $4,780 in payment upon loans; and $1,665 for additions to the library, making $58,806, and leaving $49,807, the expenses of the institution for two years, independent of the medical department, or $24,903 per annum.

The number of students in attendance in 1874 was 371. Of these 108 were connected with the medical department in this city, which department cost the University nothing beyond the $4,800 which I have mentioned. The entire number of students in the literary and law departments, including 120 in the preparatory and select course, is 266. The expense of maintaining the institution is at the rate of $93.62 for each student.

The course of study has been so arranged as to promote the convenience and success of students passing from the high schools into the University. That is an improvement which will make the University of much greater advantage to the common and high schools of the State.

For a description of the new college building and a statement of its uses, and for a statement of the mode in which the institution is conducted, I refer you to the President's report.

THE PURDUE UNIVERSITY.

By the act of Congress of July 2, 1862, the State of Indiana became entitled to land scrip equal to 30,000 acres for each of her Senators and Representatives in Congress, for the support and maintenance of a college, the leading object of which should be the teaching of such "branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts." The college was located in Tippecanoe county, near the city of Lafayette, and on the west bank of the Wabash. In consideration of a large donation made to the college by John Purdue, Esq., the Legislature gave it the name and style of "The Purdue University." The land scrip was sold and the proceeds invested by the Treasurer of the University in United States six per cent. bonds. He has also invested the accumulating interest. He now holds three hundred bonds and $4,690.42 in currency. The Treasurer's report shows that in 1867 the fund was of the value in currency of $212,238.50, and that it is now of the value of $356,502.92, showing an increase of $144,264.42. That constitutes the permanent fund, the proceeds of which only can be used in support of the university, and the State is liable for its loss or diminution. By the act of March 6, 1865, the Treasurer is chosen by the Board of Trustees, and is required to give bond in a sum not less than $200,000, with sureties to be approved by the board. Because of the State's guaranty of the fund the Treasurer's bond should be required in a sum equal to the fund, including its accumulations, and subject, also, to the approval of the Governor.

For a statement of the improvements and expenditures that have been made, I refer you to the Treasurer's report. The buildings are substantial, and the improvement of the surrounding grounds and the farm have been tastefully and economically made. A. C. Shortridge, Esq., a man of ability and good acquirements, and for many years Superintendent of the Schools of Indianapolis, was chosen President. The professors and teachers were chosen after careful investigation of their qualifications for their respective positions. The university was opened for the reception of students on the 16th of last September. Forty-six students were admitted. Some were rejected because they lacked preparatory education.

For a full statement of the course of study, and the proposed management of the university, I refer you to the President's report.

I have taken much interest in this institution and have given to its management all the attention I could bestow. Good faith and policy require that it be made successful, and to accomplish the beneficent purpose of the grant. In the language of the grant it is intended to "promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life." It is the people's university, and I commend it to your watchful and fostering care.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

The executive service of the State properly connected with the office of the Secretary of State has been administered with fidelity and ability by that officer. In the discharge of my duties, I have received valuable assistance from him. His reports give a full and interesting statement of the transactions of his office.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE.

The Attorney General's report gives a statement of the transactions of his office, and of the sums collected by him during the two years ending Nov. 6, 1874, and payments made into the State Treasury, and into the treasuries of the counties. He adjusted claims against the United States amounting to $182,786.78. Of that sum $52 869.41 was retained in the United States Treasury for prior overpayments. His entire collections were $299,884.70.

THE SOLDIERS' ORPHANS' HOME.

The Soldiers' Home was located in Rush county, near the town of Knightstown, and for several years was the home for the disabled soldiers of Indiana. When the United States had made ample provision for them, it was converted into an asylum for the orphan children of deceased soldiers, and became known as the Soldiers' Orphans' Home. The children are provided for and educated, and on the 31st day of October, 1874, they numbered 290. The expenditure from the State Treasury during the year ending Oct. 31, 1873, was $33,977.98, and for the year ending Oct. 31, 1874, was $35,308.36.

THE INSTITUTE FOR THE BLIND.

The Institute for the Blind is "an educational establishment having for its object the moral, intellectual, and physical training of the blind of both sexes." Pupils are received between the ages of nine and twenty-one years, who are of sound mind and good moral character. Their boarding and instruction are without charge, but if clothing is furnished to the indigent the Institute is reimbursed by the counties. During the year ending Oct. 31, 1874, 113 pupils were in attendance, and during that year the expenditures were $38,235.55, and during the year previous $38,674.29.

For a full statement of the management and condition of the institute, I refer you to the carefully prepared reports of the Board of Trustees and of the Superintendent, and the detailed statement of the expenditures. Your attention is also called to their estimates, and the reasons given for increased appropriations for repairs, improvements, and enlarging the building.

THE INSTITUTE FOR THE DEAF AND DUMB.

The institute for educating the deaf and dumb is located at Indianapolis. Its object is to educate persons of that class between the ages of 10 and 21 years, and to make them proficient in some useful occupation or trade, so as to enable them to provide for their own support. The number of pupils in attendance during the year 1874 was 354.

The expenditure for the year ending Oct. 31, 1873, was $70.584 57, and for the year following, $68,960.88. The report of the Superintendent calls your attention to the important fact that the increase of deaf mutes in the State is in a ratio exceeding that of the increase of the population. His statement of the causes, and his array of facts in support thereof, are of special interest. You will find it important to consider with care his suggestions for adequate provision for the large number who cannot now be provided for at the institute. Considerations of policy, as well as of humanity, and the requirement of the Constitution, demand that they be so educated and instructed in useful employments as to render them self-supporting. Society thereby, in a large degree, will be relieved of their maintenance, and they will be made happy in the consciousness of honorable independence.

THE HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

The Hospital for the Insane is located two miles west of Indianapolis, upon a tract of land of 160 acres. Its object is the treatment of the insane with a view to their restoration, and none are received who are supposed to be incurable.

On the 31st day of October, 1873, there were in the hospital 474 patients, and during the following year 373 were admitted, and 365 were discharged. Of those discharged 194 were considered cured, 45 improved, and 92 unimproved and incurable.

The expenditures for the year ending Oct. 31, 1873, were $209,339.47, and for the year ending Oct. 31, 1874, $195,702 52. Substantial and valuable improvements and repairs have been made during the last two years.

I ask your careful attention to the reports of the Trustees and of the Superintendent. They show the gratifying fact that the per cent. of recoveries has been unusually large during the last year, and the general health of the inmates improved. This result gives assurance that the expenditures for improvements suggested by experience have been wisely made. Pure water, fresh and pure air, careful attention, and eminent skill give the result of more than 50 per cent. of cures. But a large portion of this most unfortunate class remain unprovided for. They cannot be properly taken care of in the poorhouses. In hundreds of instances they are a terrible burden upon families—the objects of ceaseless anxiety. It seems there is no place for them in private life. They become hopeless objects of commiseration, and sometimes of disgust. Without the capacity in many instances to preserve decency, they bring shame and humiliation to friends and neighbors. They cannot speak to you. They do not know you, nor do they know that you, the people's representatives, are their guardian. They cannot read the constitutional provision in their behalf, but you and I can. The honor of the State and the humanity of the people will not allow these poor unfortunates to be longer neglected. I believe Indiana is to-day the most prosperous State of the Union. Her people are liberal and generous in a cause like that for which I plead. Everybody else has a home. These poor, starless, hopeless wrecks of humanity must also have a home. They must be cared for, that they may live, and die, and be buried, like our brothers and sisters.

The grounds upon which the present institution stands are sufficient for another, entirely separate, and of equal or greater capacity. I concur in the recommendation of the Superintendent, to which I call your especial attention, that the new hospital be located thereon. His suggestion of the economy and advantage of one general management is very important. I recommend a special tax for the work, to be known as the tax for the insane. A small levy will provide for its commencement, and its prosecution from year to year until completed. When completed, it will be your best and most enduring monument.

THE STATE PRISON NORTH.

On the 15th day of December, 1874, there were four hundred and fifty-five convicts in the Northern Prison, which was an increase of eighty-seven during the year. The government of the prisoners has been rigid, but just; their food has been abundant and wholesome, and their clothing comfortable. There has been but little sickness in the prison, and but four deaths during the last two years.

During the two years ending Dec. 15, 1874, there was received from the income of the prison $123,200.40, and expended for current and ordinary expenses $104,034.26.

No part of the appropriation of $26,000 made March 10, 1873, for the current expenses of the prison has been required or used. There has been expended during the two years for permanent improvements $14,060.96, and a small sum upon the library. The improvements include an abundant supply of water, a new shop, and a new roof upon the cell-house. The old roof was destroyed by fire. The defect which probably caused the loss, and the manner in which it has been remedied, are stated in the report of the Board of Directors. The labor of the prisoners used in making the improvements is not included in the estimate of the cost.

Additional shop room is required for the advantageous employment of the convicts, and an additional cell-house should be built. There are but 395 cells in the prison, while there are 455 prisoners to be provided for, and the number is rapidly increasing. It is hurtful to health and discipline to confine more than one prisoner in a single cell.

The favorable financial condition of the prison is attributable to the promptness and fidelity of the contractors as well as the diligence and efficiency of the Warden and his assistants.

I have not been able to execute the act of March 10, 1873, authorizing the exchange of certain of the prison lands for other lands owned by Peter Donnelly, for the reason that there are errors of description in the act. It is important that the exchange be made. The proposed acquisition is necessary for proper drainage. I recommend that the act be amended so as to properly describe the lands.

THE STATE PRISON SOUTH.

During the year 1873 the average number of convicts in the Prison South was three hundred and ninety-five, and on the 16th day of December, 1874, the number was four hundred and seventeen. Much and severe sickness prevailed during the two years. It became almost epidemic. There were thirty-six deaths.

The report of the Directors for 1873 showed repairs amounting to $17,802.05. They stated that the work done had put the prison in good repair. But the report of 1874 shows an expenditure for additional repairs of $21,577.21, making in two years $39,379.26. No new structures appeared to have been erected. The description of the work done, requiring so large an expenditure, is not sufficiently full to enable you or the Executive to judge of its extent and propriety. I understand that some of the prisoners were employed upon improvements about the prison, and that their labor was charged at sixty cents per day to the repairs, and thereby the expenses upon that account appear larger than they really were. The Warden's reports show the ordinary expenses for the two years to have been $119,743.26, and the proceeds of prison labor, $136,314.73, but in this statement is included an expenditure for repairs, and, also, a portion of the $19,000 received from the State Treasury and, also, the labor of a portion of the convicts employed upon prison work.

There are constantly insane convicts in both prisons. They should not be kept with other prisoners. I concur in the recommendation of the wardens that provisions should be made for their separate confinement.

During the last three years the greater portion of the convicts in the Southern Prison have been employed by the Southwestern Car Company. Prior to that use of the prison labor the Ohio Falls Car and Locomotive Company had erected extensive and valuable works in the city of Jeffersonville, and were employing a large number of mechanics and laborers in the construction of railroad cars. During the last eighteen months the competition has interfered with the business of the outside works; and it is claimed that it has seriously disturbed the employment of free labor. It has caused much dissatisfaction and discontent in that locality. I think it is a hardship that should be remedied, if possible. The Falls Company had expended a large sum of money in the construction of their works, and had attained successful operation, and large numbers of mechanics and laborers, amounting to several hundred, had removed to the city and obtained reliable employment, as they supposed, when the new car company was organized for the use of the prison labor in direct competition. The Constitution, as well as humanity, requires that the treatment of the convicts shall have reference to their reformation. Reformation, by confinement, without labor is impossible. Considerations of policy also require their employment at such useful labor as will support the institution. But I think this labor should not be brought in such direct and destructive competition with free labor, especially in a case where the free labor had first established its own reliable employment. The existing contracts will continue in force for about two years. During that time no complete remedy can be found, but after the expiration of the contracts the prisoners should be otherwise employed. In the meantime, should you authorize the commencement of the asylum for the insane, perhaps you can provide for the employment of a portion of the prisoners upon that work. Other States have found such use of the labor convenient and expedient.

THE REFORMATORY INSTITUTION FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS.

By the appropriation made at the last Legislature the indebtedness on account of the reformatory was paid and the building completed. Mrs. Sarah J. Smith was appointed Superintendent, and in every respect has been a most faithful and efficient officer. In September, 1873, the institution was opened, and soon thereafter the female prisoners, eighteen in number, were removed to it from the State Prison South. There are now thirty in the penal department, and ninety girls in the reformatory. For a detailed statement of the expenditures in completing the building and maintaining the inmates, I refer you to the reports of 1873 and 1874. Some additional improvements must be made. The institution should be so inclosed as to allow the prisoners outdoor exercise and prevent escapes. I recommend that the law regulating admission to the reformatory department be so amended as to admit girls within the age of 16 years.

Experience has shown the wisdom of providing a separate prison for female convicts. The probability of reformation is greatly increased. The building in its present condition is not safe from fire. It has been on fire on two occasions. Upon one occasion it was probably the work of a prisoner. I recommend that the Board of Managers be authorized to make such improvements as will make it more secure.

The institution lost a devoted and valuable officer by the resignation of S. A. Fletcher, Jr., Esq., the President of the Board of Managers. I appointed J. H. Kappes, Esq., to fill the vacancy.

THE HOUSE OF REFUGE.

The House of Refuge, at Plainfield, Hendricks county, was established pursuant to a requirement of the State Constitution. It is upon a tract of land of 225 acres. There are now 265 inmates. The expenditures of the last year amounted to $57,082.58, of which $15,82.35 was for improvements and buildings, leaving $41,420.23 the expense of the institution. Of the entire expenditures $16,075.71 was received from the counties. Two large buildings have been erected during the year, one for a shop and the other for a family house. The family house will provide for fifty boys. The entire improvements made during the year are of the estimated value of more than $25,000. Ten thousand dollars of that value was for the labor of the boys. They made the brick and did all the other work not requiring skilled labor. The inmates of the institution are vicious boys and juvenile offenders, and their reformation is its object and purpose. The reports show the reformation of sixty per cent., and the improvement of others. As far as possible they are brought under the influence of moral sentiments. They are taught in the schools, and are required to do useful labor. These are the reforming influences. Out-door and farm labor is found to be most useful. In his report the Superintendent says: "Give the boys plenty of outdoor work, and the labor of their information is infinitely lightened." I concur in his recommendation that additional farm lands be purchased. It is necessary to give employment to the boys, and to provide supplies for the institution. I ask your attention to the reports of the Board and the Superintendent.

THE STATE-HOUSE AND LIBRARY.

For the management of the State Library and the care taken of the State-House and adjoining grounds I refer you to the carefully prepared and very full report of the State Librarian. The library has been put in excellent order, many missing volumes supplied and useful additions made, and the rooms have been refitted and made inviting to visitors. Repairs and improvements have been made in the State-House which had become almost indispensable to its occupancy. They were made with the approval of myself and the State officers, and executed with cultivated taste and rigid economy.

A NEW STATE-HOUSE.

On the 10th day of March, 1873, a concurrent resolution was adopted by the General Assembly, declaring that a necessity existed for the building of a new State Capitol, and awarding the sum of two thousand dollars as a premium for the best plans, specifications and estimates for the same. By the resolution it was also provided that a joint committee representing the two houses be appointed, whose duty it would be to receive the plans, specifications, and estimates. That committee has given careful attention to the matter so referred. In their printed regulations they required the plans to be for a structure to cost not exceeding two million dollars. They have received many plans and specifications, with detailed estimates, and have with great diligence examined and compared their respective merits. They will, no doubt, make to you a full report of their proceedings, with their recommendations.

The work thus inaugurated by the last Legislature comes before you for consideration and action. It can hardly be questioned that a new State-House should be built. This house is neither suitable nor safe for the transaction of the public business. It does not correspond with the greatness of the State. It is not creditable. No other State in the Northwest has such a house. These halls are not fit for your session. Your constituents when they visit the city can neither [illegible] nor hear your proceedings. They are [illegible] better provided for in your court-houses. You have no suitable committee-rooms. You are dependent upon rented rooms over the city. You are thereby hindered in that personal consultation among yourselves which is so important in legislation. The people do not desire this. But they will expect you to avoid that prevalent fault in public buildings, of extravagant ornaments. The building should be plain, tasteful, substantial, and permanent, adapted to its purposes, and sufficient for the growing demands of the public service. Several years will be req[illegible] its construction, and a small speci[illegible] annually, will be sufficient.

THE ST[illegible]ARD OF AGRICULTURE.

A full acco[illegible] of the proceedings of the State Board of Agriculture, and a statement of its financial affairs during the years 1873 and 1874, will be found in the reports of those years. The most important move of the board during that period has been the erection upon the State Fair grounds of a beautiful and spacious structure for a State Exposition. To induce the board to enter upon that work 420 of the business men of the city of Indianapolis gave their guaranty in the sum of $100,000 against loss. The guarantors have paid a large sum upon the cost of construction. The Exposition has added greatly to the importance and attractiveness of the State Fair. Together they constitute an attractive and useful institution, dedicated to the exhibition, promotion, and improvement of the agricultural, mechanical, mineral, and productive industries of the State. The management, however skillful and impartial, of such an institution must necessarily encounter dissatisfaction and criticism. The members of this board and its officers have not escaped. In inaugurating and executing so important a work as the union of an exposition with the fair, it could not be otherwise. But the reports and my own observation justify me in saying that during these two years they have been faithful, and in a high degree successful.

The Department of Geology and Natural Science, established by the act of March 5, 1869, was placed in connection with and under the control of the State Board of Agriculture. Under the active and efficient management of Prof. Cox, the State Geologist, that department has greatly promoted the interests of the people of this State. The surveys have developed valuable minerals in large quantities. That you may fully appreciate the extent and importance of the work which has been accomplished, I call your attention to the annual reports. I recommend that you continue the necessary appropriations, and that you place the service upon a more permanent basis.

THE VIENNA EXPOSITION.

By the act of March 4, 1873, provision was made for the proper representation of this State and of her interests at the Vienna Exposition. By direction of that act, I commissioned the State Geologist as Commissioner of this State. He has made a detailed report to me of his proceedings and of his expenditures, which I communicate herewith. There remains an unexpended balance of the appropriation of $682.42, which has been returned to the Treasury.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The financial reports of the Indiana Horticultural Society show that its receipts for the year 1874 were $1,125.21, of which $1,000 was by appropriation from the State Treasury, and that its expenditures amounted to $521.81, having in its treasury $603.40. I have received no further report of its proceedings since that of the January meeting, 1874. I understand the society is growing in strength and interest.

BATTLE-GROUND INCLOSURE.

As required by the act of Dec. 18, 1872, the Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of State, and Treasurer of State, caused a beautiful and permanent iron fence to be built around the Tippecanoe battle-ground. I recommend the enactment of a law in accordance with the requirement of the Constitution for the protection and preservation of the grounds and improvements, with penalties for trespassing. At the request of the State officers and myself, the Commissioners of Tippecanoe county have assumed the charge and care thereof, and will provide for any expenditure necessary to keep the same in repair.

The entire cost of the fence was $17,854.17, leaving of the appropriation unexpended $6,245.83. I suggest the propriety of using that unexpended balance in the construction of a suitable monument to the officers and soldiers who fell upon that field. If invited to do so, I suppose Ohio and Kentucky would join this State in the construction of the monument, thus making it what it should be, the work of the three States in honor of their soldiers who fought and fell together.

THE PUBLIC PRINTING.

The legislative printing has been done under the supervision of the Secretary of State, in accordance with the joint resolutions of Jan. 28 and 31 1873.

I have caused the executive documents to be printed under contracts at prices fixed by competing bids. The rates have been as low as could be obtained, and as low as the work could be done without actual loss. The Auditor's reports show the amounts paid.

PRESERVING THE PEACE.

Upon two occasions I have been called upon to furnish arms and ammunition to Sheriffs to prevent threatened public disturbance; and upon three occasions I have called out the militia to support the civil officers in maintaining the peace, and enforcing the law. The expenses attending these proceedings amounted to $4,299.45. One of these occasions was in the enforcement of legal process in a controversy between two railroad companies. As the military force was required to enable the Sheriff to execute a civil process when hindered by a large body of men, I thought it proper that the expenses should be borne by the plaintiff, and I so required. The sum was promptly paid by the company, amounting to $2,495. With the concurrence and approval of the State officers I directed the payment of the residue of the $4,299.45 to be made out of the civil contingent fund under my control. It was not clear to the State officers, nor to myself, that such a use of the appropriation was contemplated by the Legislature, but the duty to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed," and to preserve the public peace, was so clearly imposed by the Constitution that we could not hesitate. The public safety, and the supremacy of the law, should not be dependent on any uncertain construction of an act of appropriation. I recommend that you appropriate [illegible] of the Governor.

I ask your attention to the reports of the Adjutant General and Quartermaster General. The militia is almost entirely unorganized. There are but a few companies in the State in a condition to respond to any call that may be made upon them. I ask your consideration of the propriety of so amending the law to organize the militia as to make it more efficient, and to the propriety of the State giving some aid in properly equipping some companies.

The State is sufficiently supplied with arms. In addition to the former supply, I have made requisitions upon the United States ordnance office for, and received, 500 breech-loading Springfield rifles, 150 Spencer rifles, and six Gatling guns, and suitable ammunition. The greater part of the arms are stored in the United States Arsenal, near the city of Indianapolis.

THE CENTENNIAL.

On the 3d day of March, 1871, an act of Congress was adopted, declaring that "it behooves the people of the United States to celebrate, by appropriate ceremonies, the centennial anniversary" of the signing and promulgation of the Declaration of Independence of the United States; and that it is appropriate to commemorate the completion of the first century of our national existence by an exhibition of the natural resources of the country, and of our progress in those arts which benefit mankind, in comparison with older nations; and declaring also, that "the exhibition should be a national celebration in which the people of the whole country should participate," and that "it should have the sanction of the Congress of the United States." In accordance with that declaration the act of Congress provided: "That an exhibition of American and foreign arts, products, and manufactures shall be held, under the auspices of the government of the United States, in the city of Philadelphia, in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-six." Provision was also made for a commission to execute the will of Congress so declared. The organization has been completed, and the State of Pennsylvania, and the city of Philadelphia, have appropriated large sums of money to aid the enterprise. The work of preparation has been commenced and is rapidly advancing. The designs contemplate an exhibition suitable for the great occasion.

The act of Congress has committed our country and the people to the celebration. A failure would cause us national humiliation. Success will gratify our national pride, and at the same time promote our prosperity by attracting the people and wealth of other countries. I recommend that you make such provision as will secure to the people of Indiana, and their interests, a full and advantageous representation.

TEMPERANCE.

The act of Feb. 27, 1873, regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors has not accomplished the good that was expected of its advocates. It has not been sufficiently in accord with public opinion to be efficient and useful. It has been the cause of irritation without remedying the evils it was intended to suppress. The duty rests upon you to revise and reform that legislation. In the discharge of that duty, you will assume that there are evils to society and to individuals connected with the traffic in intoxicating liquors which it is the province of law to restrain and prevent. Sales should not be made to boys; and drunkenness should be punished as well as selling to the intoxicated; and the minor who misrepresents or conceals his age to obtain liquor, should be punished as well as the person who knowingly sells to him. Sales should be forbidden when the public peace or safety requires it. Like other pursuits, it should be suspended after a reasonable hour in the night, so as to avoid the disturbances incident to the traffic at that time. It should be made unlawful to buy whenever it is made unlawful to sell, and the punishment should be inflicted on the purchaser as well as the seller.

I recommend that a reasonable tax, or license fee, be imposed. It should be higher than heretofore, and subject to forfeiture of the license for disregard of law. That policy will bring a large revenue into the school fund, if so directed, and at the same time identify the interests of the party selling with that of society, in preserving order and good conduct at his place of business.

I suggest, for your consideration, whether it is not practicable to make a difference of regulation in respect to the sale of vinous and malt liquors and the stronger and more intoxicating drinks. There is a great difference in the evils that result from their use.

FEES AND SALARIES.

The effort at reform in the civil service of the State should not stop until the compensation of every officer shall be so accurately defined as to exclude all constructive fees and charges, and until it shall be so adjusted as to produce greater equality, and in many cases a large reduction. As far as practicable fixed salaries should be established and all other compensation prohibited. The compensation should be sufficient to command for the public efficient and reliable service, but no greater. The act regulating fees, etc., of March 8, 1873, is perhaps an improvement upon the old law, but it leaves much yet to be done. This subject should receive your attention.

APPORTIONMENT.

The Constitution requires that the number of Senators and Representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties according to the number of white male inhabitants above twenty-one years of age in each. The apportionment made by the act of Dec. 27, 1872, is not in accordance with that requirement. The inequality among many counties is obvious and gross. Laws fixing representation should not be frequently changed, nor upon unimportant considerations. Stability is a quality important to their value. But no reason for amending the law could be stronger than that found in the fact of its gross inequality. The question is not free from doubt in my mind whether the apportionment can be changed prior to the next enumeration under the Constitution. But should you be satisfied that the law may be amended, then the reasons in its favor are conclusive. In making the amendment of the law, no consideration whatever should be regarded but the constitutional requirement of equality and justice.

RAILROAD FREIGHTS.

Complaints are made that the railroad companies discriminate against way freight both by exorbitant charges and by inadequate provision for shipment. Many of the roads of this State constitute parts of through lines from the West to the East, and any discrimination against the way business in the manner complained of would occasion heavy loss to the people. I suppose there is some inconvenience and delay in transacting way business that must be compensated, but it should not be made the pretext to take advantage of the absence of competition, and to make the charges unreasonable. I recommend that you inquire into the causes of the complaints, and that you provide a remedy that will be safe to the people and just to the railroads. The independent freight lines that are interposed between the stockholders and the people, to the hurt of both, should be brought more directly under the control of our laws for the purpose of regulation and taxation.

THE SWAMP LAND RECORDS.

By virtue of the joint resolution of 1865, I appointed O. M. Eddy, Esq., swamp land clerk, and assigned him to the duty of revising and correcting the files and records relating to the swamp lands of the State. They were in a very defective condition. With care and diligence he applied himself to the work, and his report shows satisfactory progress toward its completion. The record and files relating to so large a quantity of land are important, and should be accurate and reliable. So far as the revision has been completed, I think they will be found reliable.

THE EXECUTIVE RECORD.

I have caused a full record to be kept of all the transactions of my office. I found no complete record of the correspondence of my predecessors, and but defective records of other official acts. It has often been difficult, and sometimes impossible, for me to ascertain their opinions and decisions upon questions again presented.

APPRAISEMENT OF REAL ESTATE.

I concur in the recommendation of the Auditor of State that the revenue law of December, 1872, be so amended as to provide for the appraisement of the real estate every fifth year instead of every second year.

LOCAL TAXATION.

I call your especial attention to the suggestions of the Auditor of State in relation to the necessity of a limit to be imposed upon the power of taxation by counties and townships, and by cities, in special cases.

I also submit for your consideration whether the difficulties and probable losses in the collection of taxes, occasioned by the postponement of the collection of one-half thereof for six months, is compensated by any adequate advantage to the people. Experience shows that the provision which allows the postponement occasions both inconvenience and loss.

THE EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

As required by the Constitution, I herewith report all cases of reprieve, commutation and pardon which I have granted, and all cases of fines and forfeitures which I have remitted, with a statement of the several amounts, and the names of persons relieved, and the facts and considerations which have governed me in each case.

SPECIAL MESSAGES.

At an early period of your session I will make a communication to you in relation to the lands known as the bed of Beaver lake; and also in relation to the condition of the Wabash and Erie canal, and the legal proceedings touching the same, pending in the Circuit Court of the United States.

STATE OFFICERS.

It gives me pleasure to say that the State officers with whom I have been associated in the execution of the laws have been faithful, intelligent and efficient in the discharge of their official duties. In regard to every public matter requiring our concurrent action, I have given them my entire confidence. For them I entertain sentiments of personal respect and esteem.

It is my painful duty to inform you of the death of Hon. Milton B. Hopkins, Superintendent of Public Instruction, which occurred on the 16th of August last. He was a faithful and able public officer, and in his death the cause of education in the State has sustained a great loss. I appointed his son, Alexander C Hopkins, his successor for the residue of the official term.

I trust that your proceedings will be harmonious and result in the promotion of the interests of the State and people.

THE LOUISIANA TROUBLE.

I had intended to restrict this communication to subjects that are of special interest to the State of Indiana, and had written all I intended to say when it became known to the country that free representative government had been broken down in the State of Louisiana by military violence. It is a fundamental right and essential to free institutions that a legislative body shall be the judge of the qualifications, elections, and returns of its own members. It is declared in our Constitution and in the Constitution of the United States and in the Constitution of Louisiana. It is exclusive, and no power, not even the judiciary, can interfere with, or question it. It is a perogative of the State, because without it no free State can exist. Without any pretext of domestic violence, that right has been taken away from the popular branch of the Legislature of Louisiana, and members recognized by the body have been driven from the hall by armed soldiers under the command of United States military officers, and others, not recognized by the body as members, have been seated as such.

The cause of the House of Representatives of Louisiana and of its constituency is your cause, and will be the cause of the people you represent, so long as constitutional and independent legislation shall be cherished by them as a right. Shall the privilege of the people to make their own State laws by their chosen representatives rest upon right, or only upon permission? The voice of the people should be so expressed as to restore the right. I ask you to protest against and denounce the usurpation as a crime to be detested, and not a precedent to be respected.

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
Governor of Indiana.

Executive Department, Jan. 7, 1875.

A CALUMNY RETRACTED.

And a Girl and Her Lover Made Happy—Style in Nevada.

The fashion reporter of an Austin City (Nev.) paper described the belle of the masquerade ball in the following astounding language:

"The most gorgeous, stunning, high-toned, richest, fastest-classest, nicest, or any other adjective for costume in the 'outfit,' was that worn by Miss Frankie Clarke. She was the hifalutinest, gayest and gallusest dressed gal in the room. She appeared in the room as a page, and she was a page that any man would leave another to read. Both in costume and action she was as perfect as a big sunflower."

A couple of days after the appearance of the notice, into the editorial room of the paper stalked a young man. His brow was wrapped in thunder, his body in a suit of tweed, and his hand clasped a big lump of hickory. He pulled a paper out of his pocket, and, pointing his finger to the paragraph, said: "I want ter see the man as wrote that 'ere." "I am the individual," replied the person. "What did yer go and do it for, that's wat I want to know?" "Oh, because I thought you'd like to see your girl made out one of the most bewitching females that was ever set on earth to keep a man from his hash and drive balmy sleep from his pillow." "Now, look here, ever sence that was published I can't get a word out on her. She sets in front of the looking-glass and keeps a gazin' on herself, and makin' squint eyes at her dress, and puckerin' up her mouth, and actin' as if she were a blasted sight better'n anybody else. I want this 'ere thing fixed, or there'll be an editor's situation vacant." He looked significantly at the club. For a moment the reporter stood in profound thought; then his face brightened, and he said, "I'll fix it in next week's paper. After you have seen the next issue, call and tell me the result." The young man left. In the next week's paper appeared the following paragraph:

"A CORRECTION.—We made a grave mistake in our issue of last week. In our description of the masquerade ball, we accidentally substituted the name of Miss Frankie Clarke for that of Miss Georgie Waller. Any one who is acquainted with the first named lady must have discovered the error. It is true that she appeared for what was intended as a page, but she looked a good deal more like a boot-black in hard luck. She is not good-looking, her actions were absurd, and every man in the room kept as far from her as possible. She thinks of moving out of this community, as it's unappreciative. When she goes she will be escorted out of the town by a brass band. The people of Austin will gladly miss her from among them."

The next day the young man entered the office. In his hand he bore a rifle, and his belt was ornamented with a big six-shooter and a tremendous bowie-knife. He sailed up to the reporter. "I look warlike, don't I? I don't feel a bit like fightin', you bet. You jest oughter have seen her when she read that correction. Why, she just danced a jig with madness; and she sot down and cried, and then she come up and threw her arms around my neck, and said: 'Arthur, do you love me?' 'You bet your best bonnet on that,' said I. 'Well, never expect me to speak to you again if you don't go and kill the fellow wat writ that slander.' In course I promised. And here I am to kill you." He laughed long and heartily. After a time he quieted down, and the reporter said: "I suppose, in order to make it all right between you and your girl, I've got to become a corpse. I'll do it. [illegible] I'll do the business." He sat down at a desk, and scribbled away for a few minutes, and then returned with a sheet of paper, on which was written:

"OBITUARY.—It grieves us to be compelled to announce the sudden death of Mr. Charles Keller, the young and talented fashion editor. In a moment of mental aberration he had slandered an estimable, accomplished and beautiful young lady of this city, named Miss Frankie Clarke. Yesterday her betrothed called at this office and asked for the author of the slander, and, when he discovered him, shot him dead on the spot. This paper will be unable to give fashion gossip hereafter. We find it impossible to fill the place left vacant by Mr. Keller. Though erratic, he was a man of kindly heart, and could listen more attentively to stale stories and drink more bad whisky than any man in America.

"R. I. P."

"That's your sort," said the infuriated lover. "That's the thing to a T. Come along, Mr. Corpse, and hist a little lightning." The lady was satisfied when the paragraph appeared in the next issue of the paper, her lover was regarded as a hero, and the Austin paper ceased to give reports of fashionable balls.—Chicago Tribune.

THE TERRIBLE McWATERS.

A Sketch of a Noted Western Desperado.

[Nebraska City Correspondence Chicago Times.]

Our District Court has just adjourned, and the notorious desperado, William McWaters, has been sentenced to twenty-one years at hard labor in the Lincoln Penitentiary, and the ponderous gates have hidden the criminal from the world in which he regarded human life no more than a sportsman does a prairie chicken. He was young in years, but graduated early among the bushwhackers of Missouri, and is known from Nebraska to Oregon as the terrible McWaters—a living personification of just such characters as figure in dime novels, and fill up the measure of glory in saloon literature.

William McWaters was born in Platte county, Mo., the year after the great flood—1844. His mother was a Kentucky woman of superior character.

Soon after the rebellion broke out he joined a company of the boys who burnt the Platte bridge and precipitated the Hannibal and St. Joe train into an awful chasm, killing many of the passengers, because Federal soldiers were among them. Then he enlisted with Jim Giddins' band and fought under Gen. Price for six months. On coming back home to Bee Creek he found the family residence burnt, his father and brother killed by the militia, and the rest of the family driven off in banishment. So he associated himself with Bill Anderson, John and Fletch Taylor, and other desperate bushwhackers, and resolved to sacrifice a hundred lives for one in revenge, and did pick off Capt. Cheeseman and thirty or forty of his men, who were quartered in the neighborhood. But the rising glory of Quantrell drew them over into Kansas again, where McWaters found congenial work in the sacking and burning of Lawrence.

Quantrell afterward carried his free booters into Arkansas, and there they fell out among themselves over a woman, and the sanguary Bill Anderson drew away from Quantrell and raided back through Northern Missouri like a flame of fire over the prairies, carrying young McWaters in his train, who had many adventures more strange than fiction, and was assisted out of many hair-breadth escapes by a fair heroine named Jennie Mayfield.

At the close of the war we find McWaters keeping a saloon in Platte City, when he shot a man; and his friend, John Taylor, was shot by the police. He then escaped to St. Joe, which was seething with desperadoes from all parties, where his other friend, Fletch Taylor, was shot dead by the police; and McWaters, in return, shot the policeman.

By the aid of confederates he got out of Missouri and came to Wyoming, in this county, where a romantic attachment sprung up between him and a beautiful young lady, who was to have married his friend Fletch Taylor, and he was to be the groomsman, and they were on the way up when the affray took place in St. Joe which ended the career of Fletch Taylor. Miss Susie Davis wedded McWaters, and through thick and thin has idolized her husband—the one bright picture in this narrative.

Two years ago McWaters shot Wolfe dead in a row in Wyoming; and soon after his brother-in-law, Woodson, who is a cousin of Gov. Woodson, of Missouri, shot Barlow dead, and is now serving a term in the penitentiary for it. McWaters was cleared. But about a year afterward John Crook and he shot and killed an innocent man in Dold's saloon, in this city. They were caught and shut up in an iron cage, where it seemed they were very safe for trial. But, one evening, when the guards were shifting them, they managed to steal the arms, and, at the pistol's mouth, drove the guards into the cage, locked them in, and escaped on horses which had been placed outside by friends. In the Indian Nation the men separated in bad blood, and McWaters, for whom a large reward was offered, was again caught at Hays City, Kansas. But while the Sheriff's posse was making the prison safe for him he executed the old maneuver, and suddenly shut six of them inside, while he escaped on the Sheriff's horse.

He then made his way northward among the Blackfoot Indians, and shot one of them dead over a bottle of whisky, and has his blankets yet, with the bullet-holes, he running the gauntlet of the whole tribe.

We next hear of McWaters at the little town of Sparta, Baker county, Oregon, where he visited a relative and had a famous needle-gun, with which he murdered a man named George Weed, with whom he had a quarrel in a gambling-house. The man had gone off some distance, but had on a soldier's blue coat, and McWaters could not resist the temptation of letting fly a charge at his brass buttons shooting him in the back.

IF you regard comfort, safety and economy, stop at the Sherman House when in Chicago. Under its new management and reduced scale of prices, it leads all the other hotels.

GERRIT SMITH'S last letter was written to Prof. John M. Langston, of Howard University, and bears date December 23, 1874. It was an inquiry as to the probable fate of the Civil Rights bill.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.—The Texas New Yorker says: "An old Scotch physician once said to one of his patients: 'Keep your feet warm, your head cool, and your bowels open, an' there's little "ilse" can harm ye.' This aphorism is full of wisdom, and expresses exactly what DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS will do for you. We speak of what we know from nearly two years' practical experience in the use of this indispensable family medicine. Its office is to attack a lazy, torpid liver, and impart new life to this vital organ—a proper flow of bile and a prompt discharge of effete matter. A good digestion and appetite are restored to the sufferer. Pure blood, the 'life of the flesh,' is secured, and the patient soon feels himself a walking electrical battery. Good health is more precious than fine gold—VINEGAR BITTERS restores it, and is, therefore, above price. The man who discovered it is a philosopher and a benefactor of his race." 18

A Wrong Custom Corrected.

It is quite generally the custom to take strong liver stimulants for the cure of liver complaint, and both the mineral and vegetable kingdoms have been diligently searched to procure the most drastic and poisonous purgatives, in order to produce a powerful effect upon the liver, and arouse the lagging and enfeebled organ. This system of treatment is on the same principle as that of giving a weak and debilitated man large portions of brandy to enable him to do a certain amount of work. When the stimulant is withheld, the organ, like the system, gradually relapses into a more torpid or sluggish and weakened condition than before. What then is wanted? Medicines, which, while they cause the bile to flow freely from the liver, as that organ is toned into action, will not overwork and thus debilitate it, but will, when their use is discontinued, leave the liver strengthened and healthy. Such remedies are found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets.

A CURE OF LIVER DISEASE.

RUSK, Texas, May 10, 1873.—DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—My wife last year at this time was confined to her bed with Chronic Liver Disease. I had one of the best doctors to see her, and he gave her up to die, when I came upon some of your medicine. I bought one bottle and commenced giving it. She then weighed 82 pounds; now she weighs 140 pounds, and is robust and hearty. She has taken eight bottles in all, so you see I am an advocate for your Medicines.

HOLLAND HOUSE, Rockford, Ill., April 20, 1874.—DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Sir—I have now taken four bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery in connection with your Pellets, and must say that nothing I have ever taken for my liver has done me as much good. I feel like a new man. Thanks to your wonderful medicine.

WILHOFT'S ANTI-PERIODIC OR FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This invaluable and standard family medicine is now a household word, and maintains its reputation unimpaired. It is indorsed by the medical profession, and prescribed daily in the Charity Hospital and other hospitals in New Orleans. Wilhoft's Tonic is thus highly recommended by the leading medical men of the country, and is worthy of such indorsement. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

WE were pleased to see, not long since, in one of our exchanges, some pretty severe remarks addressed to several persons who, during an interesting lecture by Rev. Jno. S. C. Abbott, kept a continuous coughing, which prevented many from hearing. People who cannot refrain from coughing, had better stay away from such places, or else take a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment with them.

THERE is no better way of saving money than in purchasing a good article. This is especially the case in so conspicuous an article of dress as a gentleman's collar. Those who have worn either the Elmwood or Warwick Collar have discovered this, and advise their friends to try these first-class goods.

THE importance of giving Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders to horses that have been out in the cold rain, stood in cold wind, or drank too much cold-water, cannot be over estimated; no man should be without them who owns a good horse.

EPILEPSY or FITS cured by the use of Ross' Epileptic Remedies. Trial Package FREE. For circulars, evidence of success, etc., address ROSS BROS., Richmond, Ind.

The question is often asked why Dr. S. B. Ross succeeds in curing many cases, where all others have failed? The reason is simply this: he treats the cause of the complaint; and this removed, the effects soon cease. A case of deafness was caused by scarlet fever. Several physicians tried to cure by treating the ears. Dr. Ross cured the case by removing the dregs of the scarlet fever. The pamphlet contains prescriptions free.

ELASTIC TRUSS.

THE ELASTIC TRUSS AND SUPPORTER is now superseding all others, being adopted everywhere by the leading physicians, surgeons, druggists, army and navy, hospitals, gymnasiums, etc., etc.

The success and universal satisfaction they have given, as well as the great number of radical cures they have effected, has demonstrated the fact that rupture can be surely cured without suffering or annoyance, and without the danger of incurring Spinal Disease or Paralysis, often caused by the severe pressure of Metal Trusses and Supporters. It is the only sure cure for Hernia as it is the only truss in use that will hold the rupture securely in all positions in which the body can be placed. It will perform radical cures when all others fail. It can be worn with ease and comfort when no spring truss can be used. When once adjusted, no motion of the body or accident can displace it. These instruments have the unqualified approval of the most eminent practitioners in the profession.

From the numerous testimonials in our possession we append the following:

"After the experience of months, patients testify strongly to its efficacy, as well as to the ease and freedom from inconvenience with which the instrument is worn. With superior advantages, the Elastic Truss possesses in a high degree all requisites and qualifications claimed for other inventions. I have no hesitation in regarding it as an important means for the relief and cure of Hernia."

"J. M. CARNOCHAN, M. D.,
"Ex-Health Officer of the Port of New York, Surgeon-in-Chief of N. Y. State Hospital," etc., etc.

GEO. V. HOUSE, M. D., Supt. Elastic Truss Co.

Dear Sir—After suffering for thirty years, in my own person, from the use of every form of Metallic Truss procurable in this country and in Europe, I, two years ago, applied your Elastic Truss, and since that time I have experienced comfort and satisfaction, and been taught the truth, that the Elastic Truss is the only instrument that should be used for the relief and cure of Hernia; and now after more than thirty years' continuous practice, and having adjusted many hundreds of Trusses, (and for the last twenty months yours exclusively,) I gratefully declare it to be my deliberate opinion, that your Elastic Truss is the only one entitled to the confidence of the public; that elasticity is the only power at all adapted to the requirements of a Truss or Supporter, and am convinced that your Elastic Truss actually cures a large proportion of all cases to which it is applied, not only among children, but in numerous cases within my own knowledge of patients from 50 to 75 years of age.

H. BURNHAM, M. D.
Prof of Anatomy and Surgery, N. Y. E. Med. Col.

Beware of cheap and worthless imitation Elastic Trusses, which some parties advertise and sell, fraudulently representing that they are manufactured by the Elastic Truss Co. These Trusses are sent by mail to all parts of the country. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Before purchasing any other, write for Descriptive Circular (free) to the

VINEGAR BITTERS
VEGETABLE
PURELY ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Auburn Courier.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 21st, 1875.

☞Senator Thurman sent a radical Senator to grass, the other day, in magnificent style. A fellow named West who by some means managed to have himself dubbed Senator from Louisiana, was blubbering about assassination, when Thurman turned upon him with this scornful remark: "That attempt of the Senator (West) to create an impression here that assassination was in the air was about the airiest bubble ever found in an empty head. Great laughter greeted this pointed hit, and poor West ignominiously subsided.

☞Senator Schurz, of Missouri, he ro patriot and statesman, addressed the Senate on Monday, in a speech of great power and unanswerable argument, on the Louisiana question. He denounced in fit terms the course of the administration, condemning it for its usurpation of power and the violations of the rights of the people. He closed his great speech in the following soul-stirring appeal to every patriot in the land.

"In the name of that inheritance of peace and freedom you want to leave to your children, in the name of that pride with which, as Americans, you lift up your heads among the nations of the world, don't trifle with the constitution of your country, don't put in jeopardy that which is the truest glory of the American name. Let not the representatives of the people falter and fail when the liberties of the people are at stake."

☞The Ligonier Banner says: The patriotic letter of Hon. D. W. Voorhees, announcing his withdrawal from the senatorial contest, will add immensely to his popularity. There were considerations against his election at this time that could not be overcome, but his voluntary retirement from an exciting contest will go very far toward obliterating unfavorable recollections of the past. Mr. Voorhees has been taught a wholesome lesson from which, we doubt not, he will in the future draw large profits What he needs most just not is quiet, calmness, and abstinence from public discussions. This will superinduce a natural and easy approach to statesmanship and the abandonment of demagoguery. Then his time will come. He will then be in position to determine whether to accept the Governor ship, the Senatorship, or the Vice Presidency of the United States. Either of these positions is within his reach.

☞The further investigation of the Pacific Mail subsidy fraud developes the fact that John G. Schumaker, a Democratic member of the present Congress, from Brooklyn, handled nearly $300,000 of the money. Mr. Schumaker was not a member of Congress at the time he used this money, but was a lobbyist, and it is presumed he spent the money in corrupting members. King the Republican Postmaster of the House, and Parsons, the Republican member from Cleveland, Ohio are both badly implicated in the matter. It is amusing to see the Republican papers striveing to make their readers believe the Democrats were jointly responsible for that steal because Schumaker is a member of the present Congress. While it is quite probable that Schumaker is a scoundrel, there certainly is no evidence that he sold his vote or influence as a member of Congress. A scheming or corrupt lobbyist is a very different thing from a corrupt and trading member or officer of Congress.

A Merited Rebuke.

In the Indiana Legislature on Thursday last, Mr. Haven, of Terre Haute, introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of Indiana, That we do most solemnly protest against the act prepetrated by military power against a sovereign state, and do instruct our senators and representatives in congress to immediately take such steps as will restore to Louisiana her outraged sovereignty, and not only this but that they will effectually stop the prepetrators of this great crime against liberty and law from further repetition of the infamous act.

The resolution was bitterly opposed by the Republicans of the House, but it was passed to a second reading by the decisive vote of 60 to 33. The vote upon this resolution shows the Democratic strength in the House. It was fit and appropriate that the Democracy of Indiana, through their Representatives, should express their disapprobation of the great crime committed by the Grant administration in Louisiana.

King Kalakaua.

We have had quite an extended visit from the King of the Sandwich Islands, who has now gone home to Honolulu, his Island capital, a man-of-war, having been ordered to San-francisco for that purpose. His sayings wise and unwise, his personal appearance, his speeches and everything pertaining to him generally, have been noticed in the papers. One of his most unfortunate speeches was made in New York, when giving an account of things at home. He said, "they had too much missionary." Perhaps he did not consider, that although he is now King of a christain nation, his ancestors were reduced to the lowest depths of degradation. Licentiousness and infanticide were general, the marriage relation being unknown, the aged were buried alive or stoned to death, and the only appellation applied to them was nude savages.

The first work of the missionary was to purify the social life of the people, and so rapid was their work, that in 1870 the American Board of Missions considered their work finished.

They had created a society, founded upon the principals of christianity.

It was the work of the missionary that enabled this King to dress in becoming style, and appear before the Chief Magistrate of this great nation, and be welcomed by her people. The gospel through the missionary has done its work. They now have a constitution and laws, a Sabbath a christian ministry and some of the largest churches in the world. If any one has a doubt in regard to the divinity of the gospel, we can point in triumph to the isles of the sea.

Our nation in the high honors which it pays to this Sandwich Island King, acknowledges the worth and power of christianity.

TILTON BEECHER SUIT.

This case drags its slow length along, and will probably end sometime next summer; as an act of the legislature is being passed, authorizing a continuance of the court for the purpose.

The crowd has become so great that it has become necessary to issue tickets of admission.

Mr. Beecher, wife and son. Mr. Tilton and a large delegation from Plymouth Church, are constantly in attendance.

Judge Morris' opening speech occupied three days, and contrary to most precedents not only stated to the jury what he expected to prove, but treated them as facts already proved, and argued, and pressed them home to the jury.

Notwithstanding the crowd, the court room is very quiet, no applause being allowed. The greatest stifled sensation yet manifested was at the conclusion of Judge Morris' speech, when he stated that he would not attempt to portray, or draw a picture of the seducer, but would read an extract from an author more capable to judge of the question, and to draw the picture than he was.

We then read an extract from one of Mr. Beecher's sermons delivered twenty years ago.

After reading the most touching, and heart rending words, that ever fell from mortal lips, he called upon the jury by every consideration dear to us on earth, by the sacredness of home sanctity of the family altar, to brand the seducer as his crime deserves.

Amid the profound sensation produced by this touching appeal, Mr. Beecher seemed to be the least affected.

He looked at his wife and smiled, and as the Court took a recess he stepped over and shook hands with Mrs. Tilton, and then with the large delegation of his church, that constantly surrounded him.

Mr. Beecher's brother remarked, that the extreme quietness in the court was owing to the divine influence, brought about by the thousand prayrs that are ascending from the church.

It has been noticed by several of his friends, that Mr. Beecher is under a cloud, that this great trouble is pressing the life out of him.

The dark look on his face, the absent gaze in the distance, indicate a mind in terrible suffering.

We predict, that neither Mrs. Tilton nor Mr. Beecher will long survive a verdict of condemnation in this case.

☞The Morgan raid claim was summarily strangled in the House yesterday, and will not drag its weary length along the session.

JOHN L. DAVIS,

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Charles A. O McClellan is Plaintiff and Magdaline Bender and Dennis Bender are Defendants, require me to make the sum of Five Hundred and Two dollars and fifty cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on between the hours of 10 and 4 o'clock of said day at the door of the court house of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot No. Five (5) in Park's addition to the town Auburn. Also the following lands to-wit: Commencing at the northwest corner of said lot No. 5 (5) and running thence north four rods (4) thence east in a parallel line with said lot No. 5 to Cedar Creek, thence south four rods to said lot No. 5, thence west to the north line of said lot No. 5 to the place of beginning, all in section 29, township 34 north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb Co. Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said Decree, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and cost.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

DON'T forget the Courier is only $2 a year.

WE are waiting for some to pay their subscriptions.

THE nose that won't emit sap these days, ought to be patented.

DURING the ice season we have heard of no involuntary baptisms.

THE proposals for the Albion jail will be received until Jan. 28th.

WE learn that Wm. Richmond is going to move his store down town in a short time.

THE special term of court this week does not seem to bring many people to our place.

OUR old friend, Joe Robbins, talks of starting a new livery. Joe understands the business.

PARTIES in the city are trying to purchase the Puffenburger lot, opposite the Swineford house.

A LARGE tamarack log, measuring five feet across the stump was drawn to the mill by Geo Baldock's team.

Mr. James Barclay, living west of town three miles, will have a public sale on the 3rd of next month.

WE learn that our townsman, Mr, Ober will build a business room in the spring near Swineford's meat market.

THE late snow, though not heavy, was a god send to the wheat and our farmer friends will be in better spirits.

IN another column Mr. Baldock advertises some very fine business lots and a new frame dwelling for sale.

THERE is a nipping air about the town and a great many men "take a nip" with alarming regularity

WE are visited by more tramps than any other town of the same size in the "world or h—ll below."

WE have miss-laid our Coruana items in some careless way, and, of course, cant publish them. Dish up some more F.

There is energy in the ring of the milkman's bell, these cold mornings. He doesn't stand long on the order of going, either.

WE were compelled to "lay over" the Butler and Corunna items last week, on account of them not reaching us in time for publication.

THE rabbits have to suffer this winter. Several of our nimrods have made a business catching this game, and at last accounts had two holed.

"Don't be afraid to tell your wife that you are not making money." If anybody knows a man that needs that kind of advice, he will please step to the front.

THERE was a meeting held at Ensley's Hall last Saturday, for the purpose of organizing a new grange. We did not learn whether they succeeded or not,

THE citizens of Garret had a hop last week, which proved to be a success in every particular. Some of our young ladies attended, and speak highly of the social qualities of the place.

A BOY fastened his sled on the runner of a two-horse cutter, and as they turned the corner of Seventh-st., that boy balanced himself on his nose.

THAT little "cully" who takes our kindling wood every evening after school had better "let up" pretty soon, or we'll have the devil apply a No. 9 stoga where it will fit.

THE store of Vordermark & Sons is bound not to be beat in low prices. All their goods are marked in plain figures so every one can see them, and warranted to be genuine.

SOME people complain about their children being non observing, but we'd like to see the child who won't observe how the family pie is cut and who gets the biggest piece.

THE frost found its way into cellars this winter, where it was never known to go before. Many persons think they will lose their entire stock of vegetables and canned fruit.

THERE came very near being a runaway near Hebel's corner, the other day. One of the firey steeds broke its halter, but the other wasn't "man" enough for his. The team belonged to Mr. Reesoh.

THE slippery condition of the sidewalks has caused many persons more especially those of the male persuasion, to utter adjectives, which if heard, [illegible] would blush to find it fame."

MR. RUSH has abandoned the auction business and has just received a large invoice of dry goods, underware, cigars, tobacco, &c. Give him a call, in Ward's old room.

WANTED, immediately, at this office, the name of the man who wrote about the 'beautiful snow," and prophesied a mild winter. Editors who wish to attend a first-class funeral will please copy.

WE were stopped on the corner yesterday by the worst looking specimen of humanity we ever witnessed. He was crooked up like an old fashion pair of turn-over skates, and was inquiring the way to Garret city.

A well executed counterfeit fifty cent note is in circulation. We can give no description of it, as it is so seldom we see a fifty cent note of any kind that it would be a hard matter for us to tell the good from the bad.

WE are pleased to state that the several Sunday Schools in this place are not only well attended but are also very interesting and profitable. The interest manifested in them is truly encourageing, and what is, more, it is on the increase.

WHEN you use a postal card, write the address the first thing. Tons of postal cards without any address are destroyed in the dead letter office, because people write their message first, and then forget to address the card.

DURING the first of the week a few friends of Mr. & Mrs. R. Eldridge, by invitation, assembled at their residence, and partook of a most sumptuous dinner, the memory of which haunts us still, when all things else have fled.

THE new jail and John Hebels new block will be two large structures that our citizens can feel proud of, and if all the buildings are erected that are now in contemplation, we will have quite a city in another year.

ALTHOUGH the subscription of the COURIER is increasing at a very satisfactory rate, we know that if the friends of the paper would use their influence a little in its behalf, the present number of subscribers could be doubled in a very short time

THE matrimonial market, considering the favorable weather is rather slim.—Only one happy couple concluded to avail themselves of the comforts of connubial felicity, "until death do us part," during the past week. Hurry, up boys! Life at the best is very short, and enjoy it while you can.

WHAT'S hogs worth?" said a Irish Tommy, the other day, to one of our farmers. "Eight cents," replied the farmer. Faith and be jabers, I'll leave this burg too quick. I was going to sell my pardner yonder who is hog drunk, but he'll have to fetch a better figure than that, or his parents will be at a great loss.

ON last Thursday several citizens of Albion, paid our town a visit. We did not learn the names of all, but were informed Mr. F. Kimmell, postmaster at the above place, was among the jolly crew. Come again, gentlemen, we are always glad to see so happy a party enjoy the "amusements" of our place.

THE extremely cold weather have been hard on the wheat fields. Several inches of snow would be a great protection.—Farmers say that the wheat is suffering very much, at places being entirely lifted out of the ground by the frost. We hope this is not generally the case in our northern counties.

AVILLA is going to have a dramatic performance in a few days, and will present that old, but attractive play, Rip Van Winkle. Mr. Jas Lowrie, who conducted our last performance here, will superintend the one above mentioned, and from this we can assure the citizens of Avilla and vicinity that they will miss a rare treat if they fail to attend.

WE take pleasure in calling attention to the fact that Baker Bros. are the most accommodating business men within the scope of our knowledge, which is admitted to be very extensive. They understand their business, and attend to it. No less to be commended are their efficient and agreeable employees, who are ever ready to comply with every reasonable wish of the numerous customers of the establishment

Northern Indiana fared very well at the hands of the Legislature in the distribution of the offices filled by that body. We are glad to notice that our good friends H. E. Wadsworth, of the Laporte Argus, Dr. T. Davenport, of Warsaw and W. T. Pratt, of Fort Wayne, have been selected as directors for the Northern Prison.—Three better men could not have been found in the State.

A GREAT many of the travelling public make especial efforts, while in this part of the state, to reach Auburn to pass the Sabbath day. You will always find the hotels better filled on Sunday than any other time, which goes to prove that we are ahead of most places in the way of hotels.

THE editor that was such a fool as to publish a newspaper that made nobody mad at him was oblige to abandon business a long time ago. He is now engaged in the more congenial labor of peddling milk. There is something peculiar about the fellow's character, so much so that every gentleman he meets feels an instinctive desire to kick him.

Examination of Teachers.

No further regular examination will be held until March, as the the teachers for the winter schools are nearly, or quite, all engaged; and I wish to have all my time for institute work. But should any require examination, time and place can be settled by applying to me.

JAMES A. BARNS, Co., Supt.
Waterloo, Nov. 28, 1874.

THE Band Boys are getting ready to give their fine entertainment in the dramatic line, and we mention it now so that all will be prepared to attend. Their company is large, and plays of the best selection will be put upon the stage. Our friend J. W. McKay will superintend the performance, and we are safe in saying that everything will be in the best of shape. We have not been informed when the first entertainment will be given, but we hope at no distant day.

T. C. Mays, of the Auburn Courier, has been elected Assistant Clerk of the Indiana House of Representatives. He was the candidate of the Republican newspapers of the state, having been first brought out by them. The "power of the press" is, indeed, very great!—Indianian

While we are grateful for many kind notices from the Republican papers, yet if we had relied exclusively on these, there would'nt have been a grease-spot left.—The only thing that won for us was a majority of votes in the Democratic caucus.

STUDYING the quiet ways of Mother Nature in the hot summer days along the rivers in our county, lying serenely beneath the welcome shade of a friendly tree giving no thoughts of anything in the future, contented, lazy, not hungry, indifferent as to whether the fish bit or not, and living the life of a drone when the winter's wood should have been provided all come to the vision of many a poor rooster shivering in that same suit of summer clothes in the blast of this January day like fragments of a half forgotten dream and almost as unreal.

OUR genial friend Chauncy Meek will be at Miller & Casebeer's for the next week or two, where he will be pleased to meet his friends.

WANTED—5,000 large White Oak Trees—1,000,000 Staves—I will pay the highest price in cash for 5,000 oak trees, suitable for heading for oil barrel staves. Will pay the following cash price for staves:

Delivered at Moresville station. 13 per M
Delivered at St. Joe, station. 14 per M
Delivered at Auburn Junction. 14 per M

Staves to be 34 inches long 5 inches wide, 7-8 of an inch thick on heart edge made of green white or burr oak. For further particulars inquire of Jonathan Rummel, Agent, or Danl Culver Auburn Junction. J. H. SMITH. (4t.

ONE of our young roosters, who frequently gets on a "Bender," wrote an order to play billiards, and signed his father's name. The bartender was (A)'ndy to the table, and the lad stumped him for a game. The cues in both racks were handled, one by one, until he (the boy we mean) found a twenty ounce cue, and laying it to one side, he hauled his coat, wamus and vest, and spotted his ball.—The proprietor not exactly satisfied with the order, bade the boy wait until he returned. His stay was short—and so was the boy's. The lad now amuses him self playing "thumbs up" with his sister. Next.

LAST Friday was the day set for letting the contract of our fine jail building. The Auditor's office was crowded nearly all day, and Messrs. McIntyre and Hague were busy as bees waiting on applicants for the job. The following bids were given in to the County Commissioners for said building:

—Crane, Duncan & Co., $26,570; Wm. H Myers, $28,900; Brace & Reed, $31,300; A. G. Canfield, $27,000; Claflin & Mompler, $33,917; C. Boseker, $26,779; J. M. Bratton & Co., $28,897; G. M. Maxwell, $30,100; G. W. Pollon, $47,150; Sutermeister & Co., $26,300; B. C. Colgrove, $31,770. The contract was awarded to Crane. Duncan & Co, Waterloo.

THE following is a good illustration of the manner in which many grown-up boys are inclined to do business in these times: Two boys were standing before a grocery, when one asked the other, "have you got three cents?" "Yes." "Well, I have got two cents, give me your three cents and I'll buy a five center." "All right," says No 2, handing out his money No. 1 enters the store, and procures the cigar, lights it and puffs it with a good deal of satisfaction. "Come, now give us a pull," says No. 1, "I furnished more than half the money." "I know that," says the smoker, "but then I'm the President, and you being only a stock-holder you can spit."

PERSONAL.

Wm. Zern, of Grand Rapids Crossing was in town yesterday.

Howard Shaffer, of Metz, Ind., gave us a brief stay on Tuesday last.

Frank Kennedy, of the Waterloo Press, gave us a call on Tuesday.

Mr. Ober and Wife have returned from their wedding tour, to Pennsylvania.

James Barclay, Esq., west of town, will move among us in the spring.

Mrs. S. Dills, of Ohio, is visiting friends in the city—[illegible] Ralston, Esq.

Mr. Kinsey, formerly of our place, is at Maysville, O., attending a musical convention.

Mr. Geo. Olinger, living two miles west of the city, is very ill. The Odd Fellows are waiting upon him in their usual, brotherly manner.

Mr. Cowan, an old resident of Decatur Ind., paid a visit, last week, to his son Dr. J. A. Cowan, of this place. He is very much pleased with the location of our town, and will probably locate here in the spring.

THE Clerk of the Legislature, nee T. C. Mays of the Courier, gave us a glimpse of his charming phiz on last Saturday. The honors of office have made no visible change in him. He is the same whole-souled, jovial fellow of former days.

We noticed the following persons, from Waterloo, in attendance at the Presbyterian supper, Tuesday evening: Judge Best and Wife, C. A. O. McClellan and Wife, R. Wes. McBride and Wife, Rev. Mr. Fowler and Miss Ella Chamberlain.

SOME amusing incidents will occur to excite your risibles as you journey thro' life. The following will serve as a sample of some of the Yankee tricks of our Auburn youngsters: As one of them was busily engaged perusing a ten cent novel, (shielded by a Grammar) he was very much annoyed by the continual hic-coughing of his father, who, by the way, had taken an over dose of vinegar bitters, and after suggesting a number of remedies, to no purpose, mentally ejaculated, "I'll fix him," and starting up suddenly he yelled fire with all his might. Its useless to say that the "old man" lit on his back, and the center table ditto. In five minutes after the old gentleman had recovered he made a hop-step-and-jump for that lad and with a six inch shingle he caused the gentle zephyrs to undulate on the seat of that boy's breeches in a way that will prove a caution to all boys in the future not to try modern remedies on their sires. Exit boy.

YANKEE DINNER.—The old fashion New England dinner, by the Presbyterian Church, at Ensley's Hall, on Tuesday evening, was a fine affair. The novelty of the arrangement greatly contributed to that end. Our young people were dressed in ancestral costume—sweet young ladies were made to represent grand-mothers in Israel, all but the wrinkles, and brave young men represented the blue stocking aristocracy of Yankeedom. It would not, however, been successful peen nearly, had not the edibles been donated. If beans do not take a sudden rise in the market it will be from the fact, that all is quiet on the Potomac and no war raging. We noticed some old veterans, whose capacious bread-baskets had not been on the outside of such a substantial dinner since the Hon. Peter Kiser brought out the immortal scrap book on the 8th of Jan. last. Our young grand-mothers were kept on a frisky trot to answer to the call for more beans! more beans!

Although it was called a Yankee dinner, the Englishman and Dutchman were not forgotten, as roast beef and onions were abundant and sourkrout (dot vas fine) did much more abound. The dinner was a credit to the ladies, and was heartily enjoyed by its numerous and hungry partakers.

In the evening oysters and other refreshments were served, the beauty and chivalry of Auburn being well represented.—All seemed pleased with the entertainment, with themselves, the world, and the rest of mankind. They cleared $100.

Letter From the Capitol.

DEAR COURIER.—So far one hundred and seventy three bills have been introduced in the House, embracing every subject almost that it is possible to Legislate for. There are among this number 15 bills for the reduction of the per diem of members from $8 a day down to $6, $5 and even $4.—There is no doubt but that there will be a reduction These bills are now in the hands of the Committee on Fees and Salary. A large number of bills have been introduced on the subject of the sale of intoxicating liquors and they are now in the hands of the Temperance Committee. An immense number of petitions have been presented, each county being well represented in long rolls measured by the foot rather than by the number of signatures. We believe a good license law will be reported from this Committee.

A bill has been introduced to allow County Commissioners $4 per day.

House Bill No. 127 fixes the salary of County Treasurers as follows: Five per cent on the first $25,000 collected two per cent. on the next $10,000, five per cent. on delinquent taxes, &c.

I give the text of the new liquor law reported to-day from the Committee on Temperance:

Be it enacted, etc—That it shall be unlawful for any person to directly or indirectly sell, barter or give away for any purpose of gain, any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time without first procuring from the Board of Co. Commissioners a license as heretofore provided.

Any person 21 years old shall give notice in county paper, stating the precise location and the kind of liquors to be sold, twenty days before the meeting of the Board. Any inhabitant may remonstrate in writing against the granting of such license. The Board shall grant such license requiring the applicant to give bond in $2,000 to keep an orderly and peacable house, and pay all fines that be assessed against him, providing that he shall be a fit person to sell liquor, and not in the habit of becoming intoxicated providing that no appeal taken from the order of the Board shall stop the applicant from selling until decided against said applicant. When the applicant desires to sell by the drink he shall pay to the County Treasurer a fee of $100 to sell all kinds of liquors, if only vinous or malt liquors $50 for one year, such fee to be applied for common school purposes. No city or town shall charge said applicant more than the following sums: Cities $200 town $100 upon the payment of the above sum to the County. The Auditor shall issue a license, no license to be granted for a greater or less time than one year. No sales to be made on Sunday nor on any election day.—Upon conviction thereof he shall forfeit his license and be fined from $10 to $50. Any person selling to any one in the habit of being intoxicated after notice by relatives shall be fined from $10 to $50. Any person selling without license shall be fined from $20 to $100, Any person selling to a minor shall be fined $10 to $50 or to an intoxicated person. Any person selling adulterated liquors shall be fined from $50 to $500 to which the court or jury may add imprisonment. All licenses forfeited when saloon is kept in a disorderly manner, and the keeper fined.

BUTLER ITEMS.

EDITOR COURIER.—A sad accident occurred about 4 miles south of town last week, to a little girl of Fredrick Ginter. While the mother was out of the house the little girl's clothes caught fire from the stove. The mother hearing the child scream ran in and found her enveloped in flames. She wrapped her dress around her and carried her out in the snow. By this time the mothers hands was burned to a crisp. The child died the next day.

The Desciple church is nearing to a completion, Mr. Bunker has the job of seating it and is pushing the work along rapidly. Its dedication takes place the 7th of Febuary.

Some vile fiens broke into friend Simmon's picture gallery, and unthoughtfully got their hand on some ready-made clothing, and could'nt let go, and the result is Simmons can't find his coat and pants. They were recently purchased at Ligonier and the cost mark was on them yet. Mr. S. thinks they will return them, yet.

Our little Willie Sutton, attending school at the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, at Indianapolis, has got so he can verse very fluently with his pen. I saw a letter he wrote home, and it was full of joy and hope that when he returned he could talk to his father and mother with his pen.

A couple of young bloods, of Franklin tp., differed on the size of their muscle The result was knock down, and they were brought before Justice Fay, and one went home worth $30 less than when he came.

An auction room has opened out here for the sale of hats and caps. If you want anything cheap in the line of goods come to Butler and you never will begrudge your trip.

The cold weather is making its marks on the extremity of suffering humanity. It probably would have been colder if the thermometer had been longer.

Preparations are being made for extensive improvements here in the way of building.

Mrs. Hubble, the widow of Jacon Hubble, has gone east to spend the balance of the winter with her friends.

Mr. Dilworth is on our streets again.—He has been visiting Virginia

NEWS SUMMARY

The East.

THE reduction of wages of mill operatives at Fall River, Mass., which went into effect Jan. 1, is causing much distress. The wages of weavers, men and women, range from $5 to $6.00 per week; of the spinners, who are all able-bodied men, most of them with families, $9 to $11. The operatives are discouraged at the prospect, and a general strike is anticipated.

The West.

An unsuccessful attempt was made a few days ago by the convicts of the Nebraska Penitentiary to remove to more congenial quarters. A simultaneous attack was made upon the guards, who were all disarmed, with one exception. This one was shot in the knee and disarmed. The convicts then seized the armory, which contained plenty of weapons and ammunition for the force, and but for the severity of the weather the prison would have been empty. On the arrival of a company of soldiers from Omaha, and a promise of liberal treatment, peace was restored.... A snow-slide in the Big Cottonwood canon, near Salt Lake, last week, killed James Cox, John Trenberth, James Glasson and James Renfrey were killed....Four men were drowned in the Missouri river at Omaha, on Tuesday last, while attempting to cross the ice with teams

THE Illinois State Grange met at Springfield on the 13th inst. Ninety counties were represented by 160 delegates. The report of the Secretary shows that there are 1,533 granges in the State, of which 433 are in arrears with their report and dues. The total receipts of the State Grange for the past year are $21,315.83. The expenditures and the number of members in the State are kept secret....The country is flooded with counterfeit 10s and 5s on the Traders' National Bank of Chicago. Look out for them. They are well executed, and calculated to deceive.

The South.

A NEW ORLEANS dispatch of the 7th inst. says: "Mr. R. H. Marr, representing the White League, waited on Gen. Sheridan last evening and stated that the White League was ready to surrender to the civil authorities. Gen. Sheridan has expressed himself as determined to break up the organization, and is going to compel them to disarm."

NEW ORLEANS advices of the 9th inst. report everything quiet. There is a movement among many prominent Republicans looking to a re-reconstruction of the State. Judge Henry C. Dibble has written and had published a letter, addressed to the Congressional Investigating Committee, urging such a course. The plan is to have a bill passed by Congress providing for a provisional government for the State, under military rule Gen. Sheridan has addressed the following telegrams to the Secretary of War:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Jan 8.

W. W. Belknap, Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.:

Several prominent people here have for the last few days been passing resolutions and manufacturing sentimental protests for Northern political consumption. They seem to be trying to make martyrs of themselves. It cannot be done at this late day. There have been too many bleeding negroes and ostracized white citizens for their statements to be believed by fair-minded people. Bishop Wilmer protests against my telegram of the 4th inst., forgetting that on Saturday last he testified under oath before the Congressional Committee that the condition of affairs was substantially as bad as reported by me. I shall soon send a statement of the number of murders committed in this State during the last three or four years, the perpetrators of which are still unpunished. I think that the number will startle you. It will be up in the thousands.

The city is perfectly quiet. No trouble is apprehended.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN,
Lieutenant-General.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 8, 1875.

W. W. Belknap, Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.:

I shall send you, this evening, a report of affairs as they actually occurred here on the 4th inst. My telegram to you of that date, and those of the 5th and 6th inst., are truthful of the condition of affairs in this section, and strike so near the water-line, that ministers of the gospel and others are appealed to to keep the ship from sinking. Human life has been held too cheaply in this State for many years.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN,
Lieutenant-General.

GOV. KELLOGG and the leaders of the Republican party in Louisiana repudiate the letter of Henry C. Dibble proposing another reconstruction of the State.

THE City Council of New Orleans has adopted a resolution stigmatizing the statements of Gen. Sheridan regarding the insecurity of life and property as an infamous libel.

EX-GOV. THOMAS E. BRAMLETTE, of Kentucky, is dead.

Washington.

THE only developments in the Pacific Mail inquiry on the 7th were the identification by H. D. Cooke and George W. Riggs, bankers, of three checks paid to Representative Schumaker, amounting to $150,000.

REPRESENTATIVES PARSONS and Schumaker appeared before the Pacific Mail Investigating Committee on the 8th inst. and testified as to their connection with the disbursement of the subsidy fund. Parsons said that he had been employed by Stockwell as counsel, and was paid $10,000 for his services, and $3,500 for contingent expenses. He had nothing to do with the subsidy, and did not know that Irwin was disbursing money to secure it. Schumaker said that he had been counsel for Irwin, Stockwell, the Pacific Mail Company, and several persons connected with the company, and did not consider that he had any right to tell their secrets. When pressed to tell what he did with the $275,000 paid to him, he said that the money was placed to his credit by mistake, and that he had rectified the mistake, retaining about $10,000.

A WASHINGTON paper is authority for the statement that President Grant has received several anonymous notes threatening him with assassination if he does not remove the Federal troops from Louisiana....Congressman Schumaker testified before the Pacific Mail Investigating Committee, on the 10th inst., that he paid $50,000 of the corruption fund to Lyman Elmore, a New York lobbyist, and the late Gen. Morgan L. Smith.

THE Spanish government proposes to settle the Virginius matter with the United States upon the same terms as were agreed upon with Great Britain. The latter country has been paid £500 for the family of every white person massacred by Burrell, and $300 for each colored family. Our government has stated that these terms could not be accepted, on account of this distinction in color, and that none would be accepted which should make any discrimination as to race. ....Abert, the recusant Pacific Mail subsidy witness, being threatened with imprisonment, has made a clean breast of the matter and told all about how and to whom he disbursed that part of the corruption fund intrusted to his manipulation. The amounts were apportioned as follows: To Joseph MacFarland, correspondent of Forney's Press and the Boston Globe, $25,000; to W. B. Shaw, the correspondent of the Boston Transcript, $15,000; to Don Piatt, the editor of the Capital, $5,000; to J. M. Morey, formerly editor of the Washington Chronicle, $1,500; to A. W. Randall, ex-Postmaster-General, $6,600; to S. E. Chittenden, $5,000; to A. D. Corwine, of Cincinnati, $1,500; to J. H. Herses, Assistant Doorkeeper of the House, $11,000; to J. G. Barrett, ex-Mayor of Washington, $7,000; to H. G. Fant, a banker here, $1,000; to R. C. Parsons, $1,500; to Mr. Moran, of the Philadelphia Tribune, $1,000; R. C. Parsons, $1,500; O. J. Averill, $9,000; Chas. H. Sherill, $500; Wm. Moran, $200; Charles Abert, $7,000; Cormick, $500; Ingraham, $5,000; John Boyd, $4,500. Total, $120,000, disbursed between March 6 and Sept. 6, 1872.

THE Maine Legislature has re-elected Hannibal Hamlin to the United States Senate.

THE Republican Senators held a caucus at Washington on the 9th inst., in which there was a heated discussion of the Louisiana question. It was decided to sustain the President in his course toward Louisiana. The Republican members of the lower house were in caucus the same evening, and the whole question of the condition of the South was discussed at length, but no definite action was taken.

THE Louisiana Legislature has again elected P. B. S. Pinchback to the United States Senate....The Republican Convention of New Hampshire has nominated Person C. Cheney, of Manchester, for Governor, and Charles F. Powers for Railway Commissioner. ....The Nevada Legislature has elected Mr. Sharon to the Senate of the United States.

THE fifty-two Republicans of the Louisiana House of Representatives who were present at the organization of that body have published their report of the affair. They state that the House consists of 110 members; that there were 102 present at the organization, 52 of whom were Republicans and 50 Democrats; that the Republicans were therefore in the majority, and that it was impossible for the Democrats to get control of the body except in violation of law.

KING ALFONSO disembarked from a Spanish frigate at Barcelona on the 9th inst., and was enthusiastically received by an immense crowd. He left on the following day for Madrid, via Valencia.

ADVICES from Spain report that Don Carlos is determined on a vigorous prosecution of the war, notwithstanding the restoration of the monarchy. The Madrid government has therefore ordered the resumption of active operations against him....The steamer Cortes, belonging to North Shields, has been lost in the Bay of Biscay. Twenty-six persons were drowned.

FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

THURSDAY, Jan. 7.—Senate.—The Senate devoted nearly the entire day to the discussion of Thurman's resolution in regard to Louisiana affairs. The debate was very animated, and was participated in by Hamilton (Md.), Logan, Conkling and others. The galleries became so demonstrative that the presiding officer (Ferry, of Michigan) ordered them cleared if order was not preserved.

House.—White asked leave to offer a resolution thanking the President for his course in the Louisiana matter, and offering him the hearty co-operation of the House in sustaining his efforts in that behalf. Objected to....The House took up and passed without debate, under the operation of the previous question, the Finance bill enacted by the Senate before the holiday recess. The vote stood 136 to 98....The House voted, 128 to 68, to drop the impeachment proceedings against Judges Durell (of Louisiana) and Busteed (of Alabama), inasmuch as they had tendered their resignations.

FRIDAY, Jan. 8.—Senate.—After the transaction of some unimportant business, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of Thurman's resolution calling upon the President for information concerning Southern affairs. The debate waxed warm, and was continued till 6 o'clock, the principal participants being Bayard (who led off), Sherman, Thurman, Sargent, Morton, Conkling and Gordon. The resolution was finally passed, with Conkling's amendment, adding the words, "if not incompatible with the public interest." The vote was 32 yeas to 21 nays.....Schurz was to have spoken on Louisiana affairs, but was prevented by sickness. A resolution was introduced by him instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire what legislation is necessary to secure to the people of Louisiana their rights of self government under the Constitution.

House.—The only important feature of the House proceedings was the introduction by Butler of a bill providing for a "legal and fair election in Louisiana," and to "guarantee to that State a republican form of government."

SATURDAY, Jan. 9.—Neither branch of Congress was in session to-day.

MONDAY, Jan. 11.—Senate—Davis introduced a bill for the improvement of the Kanawha river, in West Virginia....Clayton moved a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for the report of Maj. Lewis Merrill, "relating to certain disorders in Louisiana," particularly the Coushatta troubles; agreed to....Schurz spoke at length upon the Louisiana question, the galleries being crowded. The Senator argued strongly in favor of the right of the people to local self-government, to which Morton replied, claiming that the outrages in the South were more glaring than Sheridan showed them to be in his report.

House—Bills introduced: To fix the salaries of the Judges of the Court of Claims at $6,000; to abolish the office of Lieutenant General of the Army; to increase import duties ten per cent. after March, 1875; for pensions to soldiers of the Mexican war who served in the Confederate army; to open up the Black Hills Indian reservation to settlement; to prevent telegraph monopoly....Kasson introduced a bill supplementary to the bill to resume specie payments....Garfield reported a bill appropriating $25,000 for the entertainment of King Kalakaua....Cox introduced a resolution condemning the intervention of the general government in Louisiana affairs, and demanding the withdrawal of the military forces from that State; referred.

TUESDAY, Jan. 12.—Senate.—Morrill, of Vermont, reported a joint resolution authorizing Thos. W. Fitch, an engineer in the navy, to accept a wedding present sent to his wife, Minnie Sherman Fitch, by the Khedive of Egypt....The bill abolishing the Western District of Arkansas was passed....Howe replied to the speech of Schurz of the previous day on the Louisiana question, after which the Senate went into executive session.

House.—The Postoffice Committee was directed to report what changes can be made in the postal laws for the purpose of reducing expenses....The Senate bill to remove the limitation restricting the circulation of gold banks to $1,000,000 was passed—136 to 80.... The Senate amendments of the Naval Appropriation bill were concurred in; they only increase the House appropriations $20,000— [illegible]....Townsend, Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill granting to railroad companies right of way through the public lands, which was passed. The bill gives the right of way to the extent of 100 feet on either side of the central line of the road, and the right to take from adjacent public lands earth, stone, timber, etc., necessary for construction of the road; also ground for stations, not to exceed twenty acres for each station, to the extent of one station for every ten miles of road.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 13.—Senate.—The consideration of Schurz's resolution in regard to Louisiana, being unfinished business, was resumed, and Logan made a speech in defense of the Republican party, Grant and Sheridan....Morton introduced a bill for the relief of the Terre Haute and Indianapolis Railroad Company....Pratt called up the bill ceding to the several States within whose limits they respectively lie, the beds of unsurveyed lakes and other bodies of water, and addressed the Senate on the report of the committee in the case. ..The message of the President on Louisiana affairs was then read, and the Senate soon afterward adjourned.

House—Cannon introduced a bill to promote commerce among the States and to cheapen transportation of person and property between the Atlantic seaboard and the Western States....The House then went into committee of the whole, with Poland in the chair, on the Indian Appropriation bill, which appropriates $4,855,507. After a long discussion, and without making much progress on the bill, the committee rose, and the House adjourned at 5 o'clock.

LOUISIANA.

Sheridan's Account of the Affair of the 4th of January—Official Report to the Secretary of War.

HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE MISSOURI, NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 8, 1875.—Hon. W. W. Belknap, Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.: I have the honor to submit the following brief report of affairs as they occurred here in the organization of the State Legislature of Jan. 4, 1875. I was not in command of this military department until 9 o'clock at night on the 4th inst., but I fully indorse and am willing to be held responsible for the acts of the military conservators of the public peace upon that day and during the few days which I was in the city prior to the 4th of January. The general topic of conversation was the scene of bloodshed that were liable to occur on that day, and I repeatedly heard threats of assassinating the Governor, and regrets expressed that he was not killed on the 14th of September last; also, threats of assassination of Republican members of the House, in order to secure the election of a Democratic Speaker. I also knew of the kidnapping, by banditti, of Mr. Cousin, one of the members-elect of the Legislature.

In order to preserve peace and make the State-House safe for the peaceable assembling of the Legislature, Gen. Emory, upon the requisition of the Governor, stationed troops in the vicinity of the building. Owing to these precautions, the Legislature assembled in the State-House without any disturbance of the peace. At 12 o'clock William Vigers, the Clerk of the last House of Representatives, proceeded to call the roll, as according to law he was empowered to do. One hundred and two legally returned members answered to their names. Of this number fifty-two were Republicans and fifty Democrats.

Before entering the house, L. A. Wiltz had been selected, in caucus, as the Democratic nominee for Speaker, and Michael Hahn as the Republican nominee. Vigers had not finished announcing the result when one of the members (Bellen, of Lafourche) nominated L. A. Wiltz for temporary Speaker. Vigers promptly declared the motion out of order at that time, when some one put the question, and, amid the cheers on the Democratic side of the house, Wiltz dashed on to the rostrum, pushed aside Vigers, seized the Speaker's chair and gavel, and declared himself Speaker. A protest against these arbitrary and unlawful proceedings was promptly made by members of the majority, but Wiltz paid no attention to these protests, and on a motion from some of the Democratic side of the House, it was declared that one Trezevant was nominated and elected Clerk of the House. Trezevant at once sprang forward and occupied the Clerk's chair, amidst the wildest confusion over the whole house. Mayor Wiltz then again, on another nomination from the Democratic side of the House, declared one Flood elected Sergeant-at-Arms, and ordered a certain number of assistants to be appointed. Instantly a large number of men throughout the hall, who had been admitted on various pretexts, such as reporters and members' friends and spectators, turned down the lapels of their coats, upon which were pinned blue ribbon badges, on which were printed in gold letters the words "Assistant Sergeant-at-arms," and the Assembly was in possession of the minority. The White League of Louisiana had made good its threat of seizing the House, many of the assistant Sergeants-at-Arms being well-known as captains of the White League companies in the city.

Notwithstanding the suddenness of this movement, leading Republican members had not failed to protest against this revolutionary action of the minority, but all to no purpose, and many of the Republicans rose and left the House in a body, together with Clerk Vigers, who carried with him the original roll of the House, as returned by the Secretary of State.

The excitement was now very great, and the acting Speaker directed the Sergeant-at-Arms to prevent the egress or ingress of members or others, and several exciting scuffles ensued, in which knives and pistols were drawn, and for a few moments it seemed as if bloodshed would ensue. At this juncture, Dupre, a Democratic member, from Orleans parish, moved that the military of the general government be invoked to preserve peace, and that a committee be appointed to wait on Gen. De Trobriand, the commanding officer of the United States, stationed at the State House, and request his assistance in clearing the lobby. The motion was adopted.

A committee of five, of which Dupre was made chairman, was sent to wait upon Gen. De Trobriand, and soon returned with that officer, who was accompanied by two of his staff officers. As Gen. De Trobriand walked down to the Speaker's desk, loud applause burst from the Democratic side of the House. Gen. De Trobriand asked the acting Speaker if it was not possible for him to preserve order without appealing to him to preserve order as a United States army officer. Wiltz said it was not; whereupon the General proceeded to the lobby, and addressing a few words to the excited crowd, peace was at once restored. On motion of Dupre, Mr. Wiltz, in the name of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana, thanked Gen. De Trobriand for his interference in behalf of law and order, and the General withdrew.

The Republicans had now generally withdrawn from the hall, and united in signing a petition to the Governor, stating their grievances and asking his aid. The petition, signed by fifty-two legally returned members of the House, is in my possession.

Immediately subsequent to the action of Wiltz in ejecting the Clerk of the old house, Billieu moved that two gentlemen from the parish of DeSoto, one from Winn, one from Bienville, and one from Iberia, who had not been returned by the Returning Board, be sworn in as members, and they were accordingly sworn in by Wiltz, and took their seats on the floor as members of the House.

A motion was now made that the House proceed with its permanent organization, and accordingly the roll was called by Trezevant, the Acting Clerk, and Wiltz was declared Speaker, and Trezevant Clerk of the House.

Acting on the protest made by the majority of the House, the Governor now requested the Commanding General of the department to aid him in restoring order, and enable the legally returned members of the House to proceed with its organization according to law. This request was reasonable and in accordance with the law. Remembering vividly the terrible massacres that took place in this city on the assembling of the Constitutional Convention in 1866 at Mechanics' Institute, and believing that the lives of the members of the Legislature were, or would be, endangered in case an organization under the law was attempted, the posse was furnished, with a request that care should be taken that no member of the Legislature returned by the Returning Board should be ejected from the floor. This military posse performed its duty under directions from the Governor of the State, and removed from the floor of the House those persons who had been illegally seated and who had no legal right to be there; whereupon the Democrats rose and left the House, and the remaining members proceeded to effect an organization under the State laws.

In all this turmoil, in which bloodshed was imminent, the military posse behaved with great discretion. When Wiltz, the usurping Speaker of the House, called for troops to prevent bloodshed, they were given him. When the Governor of the State called for a posse for the same purpose and to enforce the law, it was furnished also. Had this not been done, it is my firm belief that scenes of bloodshed would have ensued.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Lieutenant-General.

A New Election in Louisiana.

Gen. Butler has introduced a bill in Congress providing for a new election in Louisiana. The following are its main provisions:

That an election shall be held on the fourth Tuesday in May, 1875, for the election of State officers and members of the Legislature, under the superintendence of suitable persons to be appointed by the President. These persons are to select two others from each political party as State Registrars, to make a new registration of the voters of the State. Each parish is to have in like manner two Supervisors of Registration of different parties, with two clerks; the Supervisors are in like manner to appoint Commissioners of Election in each election precinct from the different parties. The ballot is to be publicly counted at the closing of the polls, and the result certified by the Commissioners. The persons so elected to serve to the end of the term for which they would have served had they been elected in 1872 and 1874. Section 22 of the bill authorizes the President to use any part of the army or navy to carry out the provisions of the bill, and appropriates $200,000 to defray the expenses of this legislation and election.

The bill is an elaborate one, and goes into details in the arrangements, being substantially the bill introduced by Mr. Butler last year.

INDIANA NEWS.

THE LEGISLATURE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Thursday, Jan. 7.—Senate.—The Senate convened promptly at 10 o'clock and organized by the election of John Overmyer, Republican, of Jennings county, as principal Secretary; W. H. Smith, Republican, of Cass county, as assistant Secretary, and E. H. Menifee, Independent, as principal Doorkeeper. The Republicans and Independents compromised on a division of the offices. The vote stood on all officers 27 to 23, the latter representing the Democratic strength. The Senate at once proceeded to business. Several important resolutions were passed, and twelve bills introduced and passed the first reading for readjusting the pay of members. Roe introduced a bill fixing the Governor's salary at $5,000. Givan introduced a bill for a uniform assessment law. Bell, of Allen, in two bills, asked that the organization of Boards of Trade be authorized and managed by law, and that warehouses be established, inspectors appointed, etc. Beardsley, of Elkhart, called for amending of the Justice act, and for provisions that no one shall be sued outside of his own county. He also introduced a second bill declaring it unlawful to deprive employes of any railroad of the benefit of the exemption law, proceedings of attachment and garnishee, instituted without the State.

House.—The House completed its organization by electing David Turpie, of Macon, Speaker; Samuel W. Holmes, of Jackson, Clerk; T. C. Mays, of De Kalb, assistant Clerk, and Moses L. Lewman, of Putnam, Doorkeeper. All are Democrats—the Speaker getting 54 votes, and the other three 56 each. The Independents and Republicans voted for their own candidates, in each instance. Havens, of Terre Haute, introduced a resolution protesting against the interference of the military in the New Orleans affair as "a great crime against liberty and law." It was passed by a vote of 59 to 37. Eighteen bills were introduced. Six were concerning the pay of members, and essentially of the character of those introduced in the Senate—three fixing the salary of the Governor at $4,000, $5,000, and $6,000, respectively. Three called for amendment of the assessment law, and four sought to regulate the sale and drinking of intoxicating liquors. One, introduced by Mr. Havens, of Vigo, is intended to essentially replace the ter[illegible] law. The principal features of it are, that no man shall sell liquors in any quantity without license, and upon violation of this provision he shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $100 for the first offense, and for all subsequent offenses he shall be sent to prison for not less than five nor more than thirty days. Any person selling in quantities not less than a quart shall pay a license of $25, and a second license of $50 shall serve as a permit for the sale of spirituous and malt liquors. The seller shall give $1,000 bond, and is liable to a fine of $10 for selling on Sunday.

FRIDAY, Jan. 8.—Senate.—The Senate convened at 10 o'clock, and shortly after proceeded to the hall of the House to listen to the reading of the Governor's message. In the afternoon they reassembled and went earnestly to work. Bills were introduced as follows: By Larue, of Tippecanoe, to repeal the law extending by counties aid for building railroads; by Peed, regulating the practice of medicine; by Neff, regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors; by Beardsley, fixing the pay of the President of the Charitable Board at $400 per year, and Directors of Prisons and all State institutions at $800; by Givan, amending the Justice of the Peace act; by Hough, prohibiting the sale of firearms to minors; by Larue, to amend the liquor law to compel drinkers to secure license for buying liquor; by Thompson, allowing mortgage of property by guardians of children and persons of unsound mind; by Neff, limiting juries to six persons, who shall have cognizance of felonies only.

House.—After the reading of the Governor's message the House proceeded to business. The following bills were introduced; To amend the School law; authorizing Judges to hold court outside of their circuits; amending the fee and salary act; to authorize commissioners of certain counties to procure, at the public expense, records of government lands, to be filed in the Recorder's office for the public inspection; for collecting damages for sheep-killing dogs; making intoxication a misdemeanor; defining liabilities of County Clerks for custody of moneys; fixing per diem of members at $5, and 20 cents mileage; for compulsory attendance in the year, six weeks consecutively; amending the road law; creating a Thirty-ninth judicial circuit, composed of Ohio, Union, and Switzerland counties; amending the Justice-of-the-Peace act; amending the School law, making liquor license money payable to the school fund; making the sale of liquor a misdemeanor; defining who shall be entitled to practice medicine and surgery; creating a Fortieth judicial circuit, composed of Hamilton county; requiring license for the sale of liquor; raising the revenue for the years 1875-'76 5 cents on $100 and 50 cents on poll; amending the criminal code; regulating action before Justices of the Peace; providing for trial of causes when the Judge is prejudiced, by the appointment of an attorney to preside; amending the assessment act; amending the act prescribing the duties of trustees.

MONDAY, Jan. 11.—Senate.—A resolution was adopted favoring the discharge of any employe of the Senate who may be found intoxicated....A number of new bills were introduced—one by Given, regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors; by Rhodes, abolishing grand juries; by Beardsley, for a new game law; by Winterbotham, preventing nepotism in appointing to office in any State institution; by Dykeman, appropriating $[illegible] for expenses of the Legislature; by the same, regulating attorneys' fees; by the same, repealing the act allowing 10 per cent. interest on unpaid judgments; by Chapman, declaring agreement to pay attorneys' fees incorporated into printed notes illegal or void; by Peed, providing for printed notices in German newspapers; by Stocklegger, amending the Assessment law; by Bruese, amending the Gravel Road law; by La Rue, making railroad stockholders liable for all labor performed on the road; by Neff, amending the Justice of the Peace act; by Humphries, amending the Redemption law; by the same, making illegal the clause in promissory notes for collection of attorneys' fees; by Bell, allowing appeal to the Supreme Court in case of appointment of receivers; by Boone, amending the law for alienation of real property; by the same, amending the Fee law; by Greene, amending the Building Association law of 1851; by Maxwell, requiring officers to account for interest received on any public funds in their hands.

House.—Reno, of Owen county, introduced a resolution asking the Committee on Temperance to draft a temperance bill in accordance with the principles enunciated in the Democratic State platform and the recommendation of the Governor. Adopted—51 to 41....The joint resolution on Louisiana affairs being taken up, a motion was made to refer it to the Committee on Federal Affairs. A long and exciting debate followed, occupying nearly the whole afternoon. The resolution was passed, and engrossed for a third reading....The Speaker announced the standing committees....The following bills were introduced: By Darnell, in relation to the duties of County Commissioners; by Martin, regulating the sale of liquor; by Pfaffiin, giving the United States the right to acquire the title of land in Evansville for Postoffice purposes.

TUESDAY, Jan. 12.—Senate.—The Lieutenant-Governor announced the standing committees....Bills were introduced to give married women control of their property and earnings; to hold principals responsible for accidents to employes by negligence of company employes; to repeal the law creating a bank department in the Auditor's office; providing for return of property or value thereof sold to infants before contract for purchase is voidable....By a vote of 38 to 10, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union were granted audience for addresses on January 21....A resolution to separate civil and criminal practice in courts was defeated and laid on the table by a vote of 28 to 18.

House—In the House bills were introduced to abolish grand juries; to make taxes payable in one payment; to secure to wives the control of their property; repealing the County Superintendency; for a uniform freight-tariff; compelling railroads to fence their line of road....A resolution was introduced opposing the building of a new State-House, but it was tabled, by a large majority. ....The resolution for pensions to Mexican war soldiers was passed, as also the Legislative Appropriation bill of $125,000 for the expenses of this Assembly.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 13.—Senate—Bills were offered to compel railroad companies to pave their tracks; to amend the fish law; to provide for the education of colored children; authorizing husband and wife to testify for or against each other; to place each county officer on a specific salary; to repeal the Dog law, and to provide for the inspection of coal oil....In the afternoon a bill was introduced making the State election in November, but it is unconstitutional....Bills were introduced for incorporating the Indiana Horticultural Society; making the Assembly to consist of twenty-five Senators and fifty Representatives, which was passed to a second reading; and making grave-robbing a crime punishable by $1,000 fine and twenty years' imprisonment.

House—Resolutions were passed favoring an asylum for incurable insane; opposing further increase of Circuit Courts; requesting the committee to report a bill at once reducing the compensation of members.... Bills were introduced making the Legislature to be composed of twenty-five Senators and fifty Representatives, and for the incorporation of the State Horticultural Society....A number of temperance petitions were presented and referred.

Careless English.

A lady and gentleman were crossing our meadow one cloudy day, when suddenly it began to rain.

"Won't you be kind enough to hoist my umbrella?" said the lady.

"Certainly," said the gentleman.

I was astonished at this, for if "won't" means anything at all, it means will not; and therefore, according to my translation, the genteman really had told the lady that certainly he would not be kind enough to hoist her umbrella!

But no. Even while he spoke he opened that useful article and held it gracefully over his companion.

"Thank you!" said she earnestly.

"Not at all," said he still more earnestly. And on they went.

"Why, the fellow flatly contradicted the lady," said I to myself. "How outrageous!"

But no, again, for they were on the best of terms, and the lady smiled sweetly at his words.

Yet the birds tell me that this sort of talk is quite usual among genteel human beings.—St. Nicholas.

A Human Vampire.

A very curious illustration of the power of imagination occurred here within the week, recalling the weird horror of Sclavonic legends. A grand seigneur Serbe, the Prince Nicholas Borolajovak, came to Paris to live because he found it impossible to remain in his own country on account of an absurd superstition current in regard to him. It was that he belonged to a family of vampires, and that in this family the eldest son of every third generation returned after death to suck the blood of the living! Notwithstanding the fact that Prince Borolajovak had been educated at Paris and was a cultivated, intelligent man, he was unable to rid himself of the horrible idea, and requested his landlord, a short time before his death, to have his heart taken from his body before it should be buried. He was ill but three days, falling so the evening after making the strange request.—Paris Letter.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCE.

As had been anticipated, the first week of the new year witnessed an increased demand for money, consequent upon the resumption of some branches of business which had been at a stand-still during the holidays, and a firmer, more satisfactory feeling pervaded the market. There was no advance in rates of interest, however, 8 to 10 being the current interest figures. Bonds were quiet; U. S. 5-20s '62, closed at 114¼; of '64, 116, 10-40s 114¼, and currency 6s at 117¼. Latest gold quotations: Chicago, 112¼; New York, 112¼ to 112⅜.

BREADSTUFFS.

The following are the receipts and shipments for the week, as compared with the same time last year:

The movement in the grain markets has been very light during the week under review—in fact it is seldom that we are called on to note such inactivity and lifelessness in grain circles. This was more especially the case during the first half of the week, although at no time was there anything like an active movement in any of the markets. The general tendency of the trade seemed to favor the "bears" and the tendency of values was invariably to a lower range. The receipts, although only fair, were in daily excess of the shipments, and the consequence is a steady and rapid increase in the stock in store; this being especially the case with wheat and corn. The advices received from Liverpool and New York were not of an encouraging tenor, quoting dull, weak markets and declining prices. The local speculative element seemed to have lost their interest in the trade, while outside orders were more or less restricted. Toward the close of the week there was a considerable improvement, and the general outlook was more favorable to sellers and holders. The lower prices attracted more orders to the market, while "shorts" were covering more freely at the profit offered by the decline. The result was a reaction and the recovery of a portion of the decline. The receipts during the closing days of the week were lighter. Flour remains very dull. The principal interest of the week centered in wheat, the other grain markets ruling comparatively quiet. Rye and barley were dull. The following table shows the current quotations at the opening and at the close:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 spring wheat	90⅜@ 90½	88½
Seller February	92	89⅝
New No. 2 corn	66	65⅛@65⅜

LIVE STOCK.

The market for cattle was rather easy at times, under the liberal offerings and less favorable Eastern advices, but, taken altogether, the trade was quite satisfactory to sellers, and at the close the market was quite firm. Shipping steers quotable at $4.50 to $5 10 for fair, $5.15 to $5.65 for good, and $5 75 to $5.25 for choice. Extra sold at from $6.40 to $7.25. Stock cattle were in better demand and firmer.

PROVISIONS.

Trading was moderately active during the past week, mainly on speculative account, and values, although not sustaining any severe changes, fluctuated quite frequently. Mess pork was 15c per brl lower, closing at $18.80 to $18.85 cash and $19.30 seller March. Lard firmer, in active demand for shipment to Liverpool to fill contracts; closing at $13.55 cash, $13.65 seller February, and $13.82½ seller March. Meats firm.

DRESSED HOGS, SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

Dressed hogs opened dull and weak, but closed firm at $7 50 for pigs, $7.75 to $7 85 for 100 to 200 lb weights, and $8.10 to $8.15 for choice heavy. Seeds closed firmer, under a fair speculative inquiry. Timothy quotable at $2.35 to $2.55 for fair to choice. Clover, $5.75 to $5.80; mammoth, $6 25. Flax steady at $2. Hungarian, 80c to 85c. Millet, 70c to 80c. Highwines closed active and firm at 94½c per gallon.

PRODUCE.

Butter was dull and weak at lower prices, the stocks steadily accumulating, closing at 20c to 24c for roll, and 20c to 30c for fair to choice packed. Beans quiet and steady. Bagging was steady and quiet, but firmer at $31.50 for Stark A's. Cheese was quiet, but at the same time firm, and prices were steady at 14½c to 15½c for prime factory, 14c to 14½c for good and 7c to 13½c for common to fair. Cranberries dull. Cider was firm at $6.00 to $6.50 per brl for choice sweet. Dried fruits were quiet at 7½c to 7¾c for choice Michigan, 7c to 7¼c for Ohio, and 5½c to 5¾c for Illinois apples, and 8½c to 9c for halves peaches. Eggs dull and weak; demand light and offerings fair, closing at 24c to 25c for fresh. Green fruits firm and in fair order demand. Oranges quotable at $11 to $12 50 for Valencia, and $5.50 to $6.50 for Malaga. Apples slow at 75c to $2.50 for poor to choice. Hides continued to rule steady and firm, at 7½c to 8c for green frozen, 8½c to 9¼ for green salted, and 15c to 16c for calf. Hogs were firm. Hay was quiet at $14 50 to $15.00 for No. 2, and $16.50 to $17.00 for No. 1 timothy. Prairie firm at $12 to $13 for prime upland. Poultry was firmer at 10c to 12½c per lb for good to choice turkeys, and 4c to 9c per lb for chickens. Ducks $2 50 to $4 00 per dozen. Geese $5.00 to $10.00 per dozen. Potatoes were quiet but firmer at 80c to 85c for choice round lots, and 85c to 90c from store. Pop corn is 1½c to 2c per lb. Sweet potatoes $3 to $4 per brl. Salt steady and firm. Tallow quotable at 7¼ to 8½c for fair to choice country. Veal firm at 5c to 10c per lb. Vegetables quotable at $2.75 to $4.50 for onions, 30c to 45c per bu for turnips, 60c to 65c per doz for celery, and $3.00 to $3.50 per brl for spinach.

LOUISIANA.

Special Message of President Grant.

His Response to the Senate's Request for Information.

To the Senate of the United States:

I have the honor to make the following answer to a Senate resolution of the 8th instant, asking for information as to any interference by any military officer or any part of the army of the United States with the organization or proceedings of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana, or either branch thereof, and also inquiring in regard to the existence of armed organizations in that State hostile to the government thereof, and intent on overturning such government by force.

To say that lawlessness, turbulence and bloodshed have characterized the political affairs of that State since its organization under the Reconstruction acts, is only to repeat what has become well known as a part of its unhappy history; but it may be proper here to refer to the election of 1868, by which the Republican vote of the State, through fraud and violence, was reduced to a few thousand, and the bloody riots of 1866 and 1868 to show disorder. These are not due to any recent causes or to any late action of the Federal authorities. Preparatory to the election of 1872, a shameful and undisguised conspiracy was formed to carry that election against the Republicans, without regard to law or right, and to that end the most glaring frauds and forgeries were committed in the returns, after many colored citizens had been denied registration and others deterred by fear from casting their ballots. When the time came for a final canvass of the votes, in view of the foregoing facts, William P. Kellogg, the Republican candidate for Governor, brought suit upon the equity side of the United States Circuit Court for Louisiana, and against Warmoth and others who had obtained possession of the returns of the election, representing that several thousand voters of the State had been deprived of the elective franchise on account of their color, and praying that steps might be taken to have their votes counted, and for general relief. To enable the court to inquire as to the truth of these allegations, a temporary restraining order was issued against the defendants, which was at once wholly disregarded and treated with contempt by those to whom it was directed.

These proceedings have been widely denounced as an unwarrantable interference by the Federal judiciary with the election of State officers, but it is to be remembered that by the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States the political equality of colored citizens is secured, and under the second section of that amendment, providing that Congress shall have power to enforce its provisions by appropriate legislation, an act was passed on the 31st of May, 1870, and amended in 1871, the object of which was to prevent the denial or abridgement of the suffrage of citizens on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, and it has been held by all the Federal Judges before whom the question has arisen, including Justice Strong, of the Supreme Court, that the protection afforded by these amendments and these acts extends to State as well as to other elections.

That it is the duty of the Federal Courts to enforce the provisions of the Constitution of the United States and the laws passed in pursuance thereof is too clear for controversy. Section 15 of said act, after numerous provisions therein, to prevent an evasion of the Fifteenth Amendment, provides that the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of the United States shall extend to all cases in law or equity arising under the provisions of said act and of the act amendatory thereof. Congress seems to have taken prompt and equitable as well as legal proceedings to prevent the denial of suffrage to the colored citizens, and it may be safely asserted, that if Mr. Kellogg's bill in the above named case does not present a case for the equitable interposition of the court, no such case can arise under the act. That the courts of the United States have the right to interfere in various ways with State elections, so as to maintain political equality and rights therein, irrespective of race or color is comparatively a new, and to some it seems to be a startling, idea; but it results as clearly from the Fifteenth Amendment of the Constitution and the acts that have been passed to enforce that amendment, as the abrogation of State laws upholding slavery results from the Thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution. While the jurisdiction of the court in the case of Kellogg vs. Warmoth and others is clear to my mind, it seems that some of the orders made by the Judge in that and the kindred case of Antoine were illegal; but while they are so held and considered, it is not to be forgotten that the mandate of his court had been contemptuously defied, and they were made while wild scenes of anarchy were sweeping away all restraint of law and order. Doubtless the Judge of this court made grave mistakes, but the law allows the Chancellor great latitude not only in punishing those contemning his orders, but those preventing the consummation of the wrong which he has judicially forbidden. Whatever may be said or thought of these matters, it was only made known to me that the process of the United States Court was resisted, and as said acts specially provide for the use of the army and navy when necessary to enforce judicial process arising thereunder, I considered it my duty to see that such process was executed according to the judgment of the court. Resulting from these proceedings, through various controversies and complications, a State administration was organized, with Wm. P. Kellogg as Governor, which, in the discharge of my duty, under section 4 of article 4 of the Constitution, I have recognized as the government of the State. It has been bitterly and persistently alleged that Kellogg was not elected. Whether he was or not is not altogether certain; nor is it any more certain that his competitor, McEnery, was chosen. The election was a gigantic fraud, and there are no reliable returns of its result. Kellogg obtained possession of the office, and, in my opinion, has more right to it than his competitor.

On the 20th of February, 1873, the Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Senate made a report in which they say that they are satisfied by the testimony that the manipulation of the election machinery by Warmoth and others was equivalent to 20,000 voters, and they add that to recognize the McEnery government would be recognizing a government based upon fraud, in defiance of the wishes and intentions of the voters of the State. Assuming the correctness of the statements in this report, and they seem to have been generally accepted by the country, the great crime in Louisiana, about which so much has been done and said, is that one is holding the office of Governor who was cheated out of 20,000 votes, against another whose title to the office is undoubtedly based on fraud, and in defiance of the wishes and intentions of the voters of the State. Misinformed and misjudging as to the nature and extent of this report, the supporters of McEnery proceeded to displace by force, in some parts of the State, the appointees of Gov. Kellogg, and on the 13th of April, in an effort of that kind, a butchery of citizens was committed at Colfax, which in bloodthirstiness and barbarity is hardly surpassed by any acts of savage warfare. To put the matter beyond controversy, I quote from the charge of Judge Woods, of the United States Circuit Court, to the jury in the case of the United States vs. Cruikshank and others, in New Orleans, in March, 1874. He said: "In the case on trial there are many facts not in controversy. I proceed to state some of them in the presence and hearing of counsel on both sides, and if I state as a conceded fact any matter that is disputed, they can correct me." After stating the origin of the difficulty, which grew out of an attempt of white persons to drive the Parish Judge and Sheriff, appointees of Kellogg, from office, and their attempted protection by colored persons, which led to some fighting, in which quite a number of negroes were killed, the Judge states that most of those who were killed were taken prisoners. Fifteen or sixteen of the blacks had lifted the boards and taken refuge under the floor of the Court House. They were all captured; about thirty-seven men taken prisoners; the number is not definitely fixed. They were kept under guard until dark. They were led out two by two, and shot. Most of the men were shot to death. A few were wounded, but not mortally, and by pretending to be dead were afterward, during the night, able to make their escape. Among them was the Levi Nelson named in the indictment. The dead bodies of negroes killed in this affair were left unburied till Tuesday, April 15, when they were buried by a Deputy Marshal and an officer of the militia from New Orleans. These persons found fifty-nine dead bodies. They showed pistol-shot wounds, the great majority in the heart, and many of them in the back of the head. In addition to the dead found, some charred remains of dead bodies were discovered near the Court House. Six dead bodies were found under a warehouse, all shot in the heart but one or two, who were shot in the breast. The only white men injured, from the beginning of these troubles to their close, were Hadnot and Harris. The Court-House and its contents were entirely consumed. There is no evidence that any one in the crowd of the whites bore any lawful warrant for the arrest of any of the blacks. There is no evidence that either Nash or Cazabat, after the affair, ever demanded trial before an officer who even set up a claim to legally act; but the Register continued to act as Parish Judge."

These are the facts in this case, as I understand them to be admitted. To hold the people of Louisiana generally responsible for these atrocities would not be just; but it is a lamentable fact that insuperable obstructions were thrown in the way of punishing these murderers, and the so-called "Conservative" papers of the State not only justified the massacre, but denounced as "Federal tyranny and despotism" the attempt of the United States officers to bring them to justice. Fierce denunciations ring through the country about office-holding and election matters in Louisiana, while every one of the Colfax miscreants goes unwhipped of justice, and no way can be found in this land of boasted civilization and Christianity to punish the perpetrators of this bloody and monstrous crime.

Not unlike this was the massacre in August last. Several Northern young men of capital and enterprise had started the little and flourishing town of Coushatta; some of them were Republicans and office-holders under Kellogg. They were, therefore, doomed to death. Six of them were seized and carried away from their homes and murdered in cold blood. No one has been punished, and the "Conservative" press of the State denounced all efforts to that end, and boldly justified the crime.

Many murders of a like character have been committed in individual cases, which cannot here be detailed. For example: T. S. Clifford, Judge of the parish, and the District Attorney of the Twelfth Judicial District of the State, on their way to the court, were shot from their horses by men in ambush on the 8th of October, 1873, and the wife of the former, in a communication to the Department of Justice, tells a piteous tale of the persecutions of her husband, because he was a Union man, and of the efforts made to seize those who had committed a crime which, to use her language, "left two widows and nine orphans desolate."

To say that the murder of a negro or white Republican is not considered a crime in Louisiana, would probably be unjust to a great part of the people; but it is true that a great number of such murders have been committed, and no one has been punished therefor, and it is manifestly true that the spirit of hatred and violence there is stronger than law.

Representations were made to me that the presence of troops in Louisiana was unnecessary, and that there was no danger of public disturbance if they were taken away. Consequently early last summer the troops were withdrawn from the State, with the exception of a small garrison at New Orleans barracks. It was stated that a comparative state of quiet had supervened; that the political excitement as to Louisiana affairs seemed to be dying out; but the November election was approaching, and it was necessary for party purposes that the flame should be relighted. Accordingly, on the 14th September, D. B. Penn, claiming he was elected Lieutenant-Governor in 1872, issued an inflammatory proclamation, calling upon the militia of the State to arm, assemble and drive out the "usurpers," as he designated the officers of the State. The White Leaguers, armed and ready for the conflict, promptly responded. On the same day the Governor made a formal requisition upon me, in pursuance of the act of 1795, and sec. 4, article 4, of the Constitution, to aid in suppressing domestic violence. On the next day, I issued my proclamation, commanding the insurgents to disperse within five days from the date thereof, but before the proclamation was published in New Orleans the organized and armed forces reorganizing a usurping government, had taken forcible possession of the State House and temporarily subverted the government. Twenty or more people were killed, including a number of the police of the city. The streets of the city were stained with blood. All that was desired in the way of excitement had been accomplished.

Prior to, and with a view to, the late election in Louisiana, white men associated themselves together in armed bodies, called "White Leagues," and at the same time threats were made in the Democratic journals of the State that the election should be carried against the Republicans at all hazards, which very naturally greatly alarmed the colored voters. By section 8 of the act of Feb. 28, 1871, it is made the duty of United States Marshals and their deputies, at the polls where votes are cast for Representatives in Congress, to keep the peace and prevent any violations of the so-called Enforcement act and other offenses against the laws of the United States, and upon a requisition of the Marshal of Louisiana, and in view of said armed organization and other portentous circumstances, I caused detachments of troops to be stationed in various localities in the State to aid him in the performance of his official duties and the enforcement of the State laws. The officers and troops of the United States may well have supposed that it was their duty to act when called upon by the government for the purpose.

That there was intimidation of the Republican voters at the election, notwithstanding this precaution, admits of no doubt. The following are specimens of the means used: On the 14th of October, eighty persons signed and published the following at Shreveport: "We, the undersigned, merchants of the city of Shreveport, in obedience to a request of the Shreveport Campaign Club, agree to use every endeavor to get our employes to vote the people's ticket at the ensuing election, and in the event of their refusal to do so, or in case they vote the Radical ticket, to refuse to employ them at the expiration of their present contracts." On the same day another large body of persons published, in the same place, a paper in which they used the following language: "We, the undersigned, merchants of the city of Shreveport, alive to the great importance of securing a good and honest government to the State, do agree and pledge ourselves not to advance any supplies or money to any planters the coming year, who will give employment or rent lands to laborers who vote the Radical ticket in the coming election."

I have no information of the proceedings of the Returning Board for the said election which may not be found in its report, which has been published, but it is a matter of public information that a great part of the time taken to canvass the votes was consumed by the arguments of lawyers, several of whom represented each party before the board. I have no evidence that the proceedings of this board were not in accordance with the law under which they acted. Whether, in excluding from their account certain returns, they were right or wrong, is a question that depends upon the evidence they had before them; but it is very clear that the law gives them the power, if they chose to exercise it, to decide that way, and prima facie, the person, whom they return as selected are entitled to the offices for which they were candidates.

Respecting the alleged interference by the military with the organization of the Legislature of Louisiana on the 4th inst., I have no knowledge or information which has not been received by me since that time and published. My first information was from the papers of the morning of the 5th of January. I did not know that any such thing was anticipated, and no orders, no suggestions, were ever given to any military officer in that State upon the subject prior to the occurrence. I am well aware that any military interference by the officers or troops of the United States with the organization of a State Legislature or any of its proceedings, or with any civil department of the government is repugnant to our ideas of government. I can conceive of no case, not involving rebellion or insurrection, where such interference by the authority of the general government ought to be permitted or can be justified; but there are circumstances connected with the late Legislature imbroglio in Louisiana which seem to exempt the military from any intentional wrong in that matter, knowing that they had been placed in Louisiana to prevent domestic violence, and to aid in repressing it. The revolution was apparently, though it is believed not really, abandoned, and the cry of "Federal usurpation" and "tyranny in Louisiana" was renewed with redoubled energy. Troops had been sent to the State under the requisition of the Governor, and as other disturbances seemed imminent, they were allowed to remain there, to render the Executive such aid as might become necessary to enforce the laws of the State and repress the continued violence which seemed inevitable at the moment when the Federal support should be withdrawn.

Each branch of a legislative assembly is the judge of the election and the qualifications of its own members, but if a mob or a body of unauthorized persons seize and hold the legislative hall in a tumultuous and riotous manner, and so prevent any organization by those legally returned as elected, it might become the duty of the State Executive to interpose, if requested by a majority of the members-elect, to suppress the disturbance and enable the persons elected to organize the House. Any exercise of this power would be justifiable under most extraordinary circumstances, and it would then be the duty of the Governor to call upon the constabulary, or, if necessary, the military force of the State; but with reference to Louisiana, it is to be borne in mind that any attempt by the Governor to use the police force of that State at this time would have undoubtedly precipitated a bloody conflict with the White League, as it did on the 14th of September. There is no doubt that the presence of the United States troops on that occasion prevented bloodshed and the loss of life. Both parties appear to have relied upon them as conservators of the public peace.

The first call was made by the Democrats, to remove persons obnoxious to them from the Legislative hall, and the second was from the Republicans, to remove persons who had usurped seats in the Legislature without legal certificates authorizing them to seats, and in sufficient number to change the majority. Nobody was disturbed by the military who had a legal right at that time to occupy a seat in the Legislature. That the Democratic minority of the House undertook to seize its organization by fraud and violence; that in this attempt they trampled under foot the law, in that they acted under a preconcerted plan, and under false pretenses introduced into the hall men to support their pretensions by force, if necessary, and that the conflict, disorder and riotous proceedings following are facts, seems to be well-established, and I am credibly informed that these violent proceedings were a part of a premeditated plan to have the House organized in this way; to recognize what has been called the McEnery Senate, then to depose Governor Kellogg, and so revolutionize the State government. Whether it was wrong for the Governor, at the request of a majority of the members returned as elected in the House, to use such means as were in his power to defeat these lawless and revolutionary proceedings, is perhaps a debatable question; but it is quite certain that there would have been no trouble if those who now complain of illegal interference had allowed the House to be organized in a lawful and regular manner. When those who inaugurate disorder and anarchy disavow such proceedings, it will be time enough to condemn those who, by such means as they have, prevented the success of their lawless and desperate schemes.

Lieut.-Gen. Sheridan was requested by me to go to Louisiana to observe and report the situation there, and, if in his opinion necessary, to assume the command, which he did, on the 4th inst., after the legislative disturbances had occurred, at 9 o'clock in the evening, a number of hours after the disturbance. No party motives nor prejudices can reasonably be imputed to him, but, honestly convinced by what he has seen and heard there, he has characterized the leaders of the White League in severe terms and suggested summary modes of procedure against them, which, though they cannot be adopted, would, if legal, soon put an end to the troubles and disorder in that State.

Gen. Sheridan was looking at the facts, and possibly not thinking of proceedings which would be the only proper ones to pursue in times of peace—he thought more of the utter lawless condition of society surrounding him at the time of his dispatch and of what would prove a sure remedy. He never proposed to do any illegal act, nor expressed a determination to proceed beyond what the law in the future might authorize for the punishment of the atrocities which have been committed, and the commission of which cannot be successfully denied.

It is a deplorable fact that political crimes and murders have been committed in Louisiana which have gone unpunished, and which have been justified or apologized for, which must rest as a reproach upon the State and country long after the present generation has passed away. I have no desire to have United States troops interfere in the domestic concerns of Louisiana or any other State.

On the 9th of December last, Gov. Kellogg telegraphed to me his apprehensions that the White League intended to make another attack. Upon the same day I made the following answer, since which no communication has been sent to him:

"Your dispatch of this date just received. It is exceedingly unpalatable to use troops in anticipation of danger. Let the State authorities be right, and then proceed with their duties without apprehension of danger. If they are then molested, the question will be determined whether the United States is able to maintain law and order within its limits or not."

I have deplored the necessity which seemed to make it my duty, under the Constitution and laws, to make such interference. I have always refused, except where it seemed to be my imperative duty to act in such a manner as the Constitution and laws of the United States required. I have repeatedly and earnestly entreated the people of the South to live together in peace and obey the laws, and nothing would give me greater pleasure than to see reconciliation and tranquillity everywhere prevail, and thereby remove all necessity for the presence of troops among them. I regret, however, to say that this state of things does not exist, nor does its existence seem to be desired in some localities; and as to those, it may be proper for me to say that, to the extent that Congress has conferred the power on me to prevent it, neither Ku-Klux Klans, White Leagues, nor any other association using arms and violence to execute their unlawful purposes, can be permitted in that way to govern any part of this country; nor can I see with indifference Union men or Republicans ostracised, persecuted and murdered on account of their opinions, as they now are in some localities.

I have heretofore urged the case of Louisiana upon the attention of Congress, and I cannot but think its inaction has encouraged the great evil. To summarize: In September last an armed, organized body of men, in the support of candidates who had been put in nomination for the offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor at the November election in 1872, and who had been declared not elected by the Board of Canvassers that had been recognized by all the courts to which the question had been submitted, undertook to subvert and overthrow the State government that had been been recognized by me in accordance with previous precedents. The recognized Governor was driven from the State House, and, but for his finding shelter in the United States Custom House in the capital of the State of which he was Governor, it is scarcely to be doubted that he would have been killed. From the State House, before he had been driven to the Custom House, a call was made in accordance with the 4th section of the 4th article of the Constitution of the United States for the aid of the general government to suppress domestic violence. Under those circumstances, and in accordance with my sworn duties, my proclamation of the 15th of September, 1874, was issued. This served to reinstate Gov. Kellogg to his position nominally, but it cannot be claimed that the insurgents have to this day surrendered to the State authorities the arms belonging to the State, or that they have in any sense disarmed. On the contrary, it is known that the same armed organizations that existed on the 14th of September, 1874, in opposition to the recognized State government, still retain their organization, equipments and commanders, and can be called out at any hour to resist the State government. Under these circumstances, the same military force has been continued in Louisiana as was sent under the first call, and under the same general instructions.

I repeat that the task assumed by the troops is not a pleasant one to them; that the army is not composed of lawyers capable of judging at a moment's notice of just how far they can go in the maintenance of law and order, and that it was impossible to give specific instructions providing for all possible contingencies that might arise. The troops were bound to act upon the judgment of their commanding officers upon each sudden contingency that arose, or await instructions which could only reach them after the threatened wrongs had been committed which they were called upon to prevent. It should be recollected, too, that upon my recognition of the Kellogg government I reported the fact, with the grounds of the recognition, to Congress, and asked that body to take action in the matter; otherwise I should regard their silence as acquiescence in my course. No action has been taken by that body, and I have maintained the position marked out.

If any error has been committed by the army in these matters, it has always been on the side of the preservation of good order, the maintenance of law, and the protection of life. Their bearing reflects credit upon the soldiers, and if wrong has resulted, the blame lies with the turbulent elements surrounding them.

I now earnestly ask that such action be taken by Congress as to leave my duties perfectly clear in dealing with the affairs of Louisiana, giving assurance at the same time that whatever may be done by that body in the premises will be executed according to the spirit and letter of the law, without fear or favor.

I herewith transmit copies of documents containing more specific information as to the subject matter of the resolution.

A Remarkable Dog Story.

Some years ago, while Mr. Hamilton was fishing near the lower rapids of the Mississippi, just above the Keokuk, he observed below him a man bailing a canoe, preparatory to taking himself, wife, and baby across the river. At the same time Mr. H. saw that his Newfoundland dog was watching the proceeding of the party. Seeming to comprehend their intention, the dog uttered a peculiar howl, and, passing rapidly up the river for some distance, plunged into the water and swam diagonally down and landed on a large rock standing out of the water about midway the stream. After shaking the water from his shaggy coat, he again watched the party, who, in the meantime, had embarked in the canoe. Just as the little boat passed the rock, it was caught in the rapidly descending current and instantly capsized. The woman, in falling into the water, loosed her hold on the child, which floated down the stream. The man caught his wife and waded with her to the rock. The instant the child fell into the water, the dog leaped in, and in a short time was seen in the still water below swimming with the child in his mouth, which he carried in safety to the shore.—Franklin (Ky.) Patriot.

A NEWARK (N. J.) paper gives the origin of the term "foreign" to everything connected with that State somewhat as follows: When Joseph Bonaparte left Spain somewhat hurriedly, he desired, through an alien, to own real estate, and appealed to the Legislatures of many States for a specific act enabling him to do so. After trying Pennsylvania, New York, and other States, he succeeded in New Jersey, and, having secured an act of the Legislature, built the finest residence in America at Bordentown. He was liberal with his money, and became of no little service in building up the town. Philadelphia, observing his wealth, and regretting her inability to share it, talked sour grapes by calling Joseph Bonaparte King of New Jersey, and that State a foreign country governed by a despot.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

The Old Home.

An out-door quiet held the earth
Beneath the winter moon,
The cricket chirped in cozy mirth,
And the kettle crooned, upon the hearth,
A sweet, old-fashioned tune.

The old clock ticked, a drowsy race,
With the clicking of the cricket,
And red coals in the chimney-place
Peeped out with many a rosy face,
Like berries in a thicket.

The crane's arm empty, stuck out stiff,
And tinware on the shelves
Twinkled and winked at every gliff,
In the flickering fire-light, as if
They whispered to themselves.

The good dame, in her ruffled cap,
Counted her stitches slowly,
And the old man, with full many a gap,
Read from the Big Book on his lap
The good words, wise and holy.

The old clock clicked; the old man read,
His deep voice pausing, lowering;
The good wife nodded, dropped her head—
The lids of both were heavy as lead—
They were sound asleep and snoring.

Oh, hale old couple! sweet each dream,
While—all the milk pans tilting—
Puss paints her whiskers in the cream,
Till John and the belated team
Bring Maggie from the quilting.

May Time, I pray, when failing years
Make thin my voice and thrapple,
Find my last days of life like theirs,
As sweet with children's loves and prayers,
And like a winter apple.

CARE OF IMPLEMENTS.—Every farmer should keep a good wrench which can be adjusted to fit a nut of any size, that may be employed on wagons or farm implements. The wood-work of implements and carriages frequently shrinks so that clips, bolts and braces have an opportunity to work; if the nuts are not tightened, the parts commence wearing or the nuts soon work off the bolts. The same is true of rivets, when they pass through wood-work. They often need to be drawn up tight with a riveting hammer.

TESTING SEEDS.—In a portion of Denmark, where one-fifth of the land is cultivated to clover the vitality of the seed is tested by placing a quantity on a knife blade, and heating it over a lighted candle. The good seed will pop open and pop off, while the worthless remains and carbonizes on the blade. Mr. Christian Bagge, of Oakland, reminds us of this fact in response to an inquiry for practical tests for seeds.—Indiana Farmer.

WINTER TREATMENT OF STOCK.—Liberal feeding is now needed. No stock should be allowed to lose now what they have made in the summer. On the contrary, they should be kept growing. And they may be, by proper feeding. "He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand," is very true in this respect. There must be close attention to this matter, or money is lost in feed and in weight of stock. Don't trust too much to hired men or boys. Have exact measurements for the feed. A box to hold three quarts should be in every feed bin. This makes a fair allowance for one ox or horse, or for two cows, or four calves at each feed. A bushel basket of fine cut hay is an average for one horse or cow or two calves at each feed. There should be no waste, but as much feed given as will be eaten up clean. Give salt regularly, in small quantities, or have it accessible to the animals.—American Agriculturist.

NONSENSE ABOUT FARMING.—The Germantown Telegraph remarks thus sharply about errors that creep into agricultural literature: We find more errors and nonsense about farming, etc., in the public prints, even in those devoted to agriculture and its kindred branches, than would take all the time of one well-informed person to correct from week to week. But we are glad to know that the reading farmer has one sure protection against the injury that would be inflicted upon him in this way, and that is his own good common sense. In connection with this, our eyes have just lit upon a statement given in a leading agricultural journal in the Southwest, as to the proper allowance of hay for one horse. This is set down at 3.08 pounds per day for every hundred pounds weight of the animal. Now, if we estimate the average weight at 850 pounds, and the quantity fed at three pounds, it would make the animal's allowance 25½ pounds per day, 178 pounds per week, or about 10,300 pounds per year! This would be over five tons per horse, just twice the quantity fed in these parts!

FAT CATTLE.—As the question of pure blood, good handling, and the points of a good animal, all finally culminate in the fat steer, from which a large part of the real wealth of Iowa is derived, why does not this animal take a more prominent position at our fairs, in our periodicals, and on our fancy farms. Fat cows and noble bulls have their places and rightly, but while there are hundreds of the latter on exhibition the fat steer is seldom seen. There were two at our late State Fair. They were noble specimens, but why so few, and why do they occupy so diminutive a position on our list of prizes? The cows and the bulls are only the means by which the animal of utility is produced. Why is the animal neglected which fills our pockets, and whose juicy steaks maketh richer than the wine of the valleys of Burgundy? If they cannot have a more prominent place at our county fairs, there should be a fat cattle show of itself. It would tend greatly to induce our people to put their corn and grass in a shape which will command a better price than in any other form. Fat cattle are not the farmer's character for a bank, but they are the cash in the vaults. They are not what the agriculturist expects at some future day, but they are the present realization of his hopes and labor. They are not what visionary men dream about, but the practical man's present joy. Let us, therefore, have more specimens of the real fruits of the improvement of the stock of the country at the places where we exhibit our idols.—Des Moines Register.

Recipes, etc.

ROUGE FOR CLEANING SILVER PLATE.—Take equal parts of precipitated subcarbonate of iron and prepared chalk, powdered. Mix well.

LAMB CHOPS.—Fry them a light brown in butter; then add a little water, flour, salt, and a dust of pepper to the gravy. Let it brown, and pour over the chops.

WHITE CAKE.—Two cups of sugar, one-half cup of butter, the whites of five eggs, one cup of water, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. This is an excellent cake.

DEATH TO EARTH WORMS.—To keep earth worms from flower pots, a correspondent gives the following remedy: "I put ten drops of carbolic acid in a pint of water, and poured that on the earth in the pots, and it acted like a charm, killed all the worms, and the plants improved at once. It has been three weeks since it was applied, and they are all in a nice growing condition, and I think it is time enough to show what it will do." Will our lady readers bear this in mind, and when earth worms become troublesome in their flower pots, procure at a drugstore some carbolic acid and test the remedy?

REPELLING ANTS.—Some years ago, says a correspondent of the London Times, at my house in the country, a colony of ants established themselves under the kitchen flooring. Not knowing the exact locality of the nest, I endeavored to destroy the insects with treacle, sugar, arsenic, etc.; but, although I slew numbers thus, the plague still increased. At last, bethinking myself that ants dislike the smell of tar, I procured some carbolic acid and diluted it with about a dozen times its weight of water. I squirted a pint of the mixture through the air-bricks under the flooring, and my enemies vanished that day, never to return. It has always been successful. For crickets, etc., also, a little of this sent into their holes acts as an immediate notice to quit.

ALASKA.

The Exaggerated Reports Concerning Our Northwestern Territory.

Henry W. Elliott, Special Agent of the Treasury Department, has submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury his report upon the condition and importance of the fur trade in the Territory of Alaska, the condition of the natives, and the revenues and resources of the island. The extravagant statements which have been made in regard to the revenues of this Territory, which, if true, would either prove its fitness for the future reception of a highly-civilized population, or show it to be a land of utter desolation, and the $7,000,000 purchase money a total loss to the general government, have caused Mr. Elliott to pay great attention to the subject; and in his report he has endeavored to give a concise description of the agricultural character of the Territory as he has seen it. This, he says, might be truthfully summed up in saying that there are more acres of better land now lying a wilderness and jungle in sight of the car windows of the Pennsylvania railroad while crossing the Alleghenies, than can be found in all Alaska; "and when it is remembered," he says, "that this Pennsylvania land, in the heart of one of our oldest and most thickly-populated States, will remain as it now is, cheap and undisturbed for an indefinite time, in spite of its close proximity to the homes of millions of energetic and enterprising men, it is not difficult to estimate the value of the Alaska acres, remote as they are and barred out by a most disagreeable seacoast climate, leaving out altogether the great West and vast agricultural regions of British America. But then, directly to the contrary, it would be wrong to hint by this statement, true as it is, that the country is worthless; for in the Sea Islands alone the government possesses property which would not remain in the market many days unsold were it offered for seven millions, and from which the annual revenue is doubly sufficient to meet all expenditures for the proper government of the whole Territory if the matter were correctly adjusted."

Moreover, beyond a few outcrops of tertiary coal, and small leads near Sitka of gold and silver, with reports of native copper in situ, nothing is known of the mineral wealth of the Territory so far as Mr. Elliott could learn, but he has reason to think that it will develop into some value. The value and probable yield of the cod banks of Alaska have been greatly overrated, but he thinks it may be reasonably anticipated that the success attending the canning of salmon on the Columbia river will stimulate the prosecution of this industry at the mouths of all the large streams and rivers of the Territory. It is safe to assert, he remarks, that no other almost unknown section of the world was ever brought into notice suddenly about which more has been most emphatically and positively written, based quite entirely upon the whims and caprices of the authors, than about Alaska; and, therefore, it will be surprising if the truth in regard to the Territory does not frequently come into conflict with many erroneous popular opinions.

City Criminal Statistics.

The annual report of the Police Justices makes a terrible showing for our morals, if left without a word of explanation. The total number of persons arraigned is reported at 84,821, which would be one in twelve of the entire population. But it must be remembered that 40,777 of these were arrested for intoxication; 18,264 for disorderly conduct, generally produced by intoxication, and 3,139 were arrested for vagrancy. This total of 62,180 arrests for minor offenses, that cannot be called crime, takes the edge off the report, and it is further softened by the fact that many of the arrests were of "repeaters" and "rounders," who were brought before the magistrates for intoxication, from five to twenty times each during the course of the year. The Justices have done well in collecting and paying over $71,287.25 from fines. One item looms up sadly all through the list, and that is in relation to the arrests of women. There were 13,574 females arrested for intoxication, 6,305 for disorderly conduct, and 1,388 for vagrancy. Despite the law, despite reformatory institutions, despite the preachers and the churches, a great army of women are slipping down to death in the midst of our life-saving appliances. What is the remedy? Can the Police Magistrates tell us?—New York Commercial Advertiser.

YOUTH'S VISION OF THE FUTURE.

[BY T. H. SHREEVE.]

Before we hear the mournful chime
Of sadness falling on the hours,
Before we feel the winds of Time
Like frost-breath on the heart's wild flowers

We stand by Life's mysterious stream,
Viewing the stars reflected there;
And dream not that each vivid gleam
Can ever be o'er cast with care

But as its murmurs gently rise,
The lute's soft magic haunts each tone:—
We hear not stricken hearts' sad sighs,
Or dark browed Grief's unwelcome moan.

Like some weird sybil, Fancy then,
The Futures' tale breathe on each heart
Conjuring up heroic men
And women acting angel's part.

Fame whispers to the eager ear
Of mighty triumphs to be won
Of laurels which no times shall sear,
And banners flaunting in the sun.

She points us to the lordly few
Whose brows no shades oblivious wear,
Entranced by them, we do not view
The ghosts of thousands injure there.d

Take the boy, if you can. And the black off and get a man.

Their's many a good bit of work done with a sad heart.

The pen of the tongue should be dipped in the ink of the heart.

If you wish success in life, make perseverance your bosom friend experience your wise counselor, caution your elder brother, and hope your guardian genius.

Those who educate children well are more to be honored than they who produce them, for these only give them life, those, the art of living well.

The Sabbath.—The people of nearly all nations have a special regard for one day in each week. Christians observe Sunday, the Greek, Monday, the Persians, Tuesday, the Assyrians, Wednesday, the Egyptians, Thursday, the Turks, Friday, and the Jews Saturday. Thus every day in the week is a sabbath in some country, and it would be well for all to remember that "it is right to do good on the sabbath day.

Richland Tp., Institute.

Institute convened Jan., and was organized by electing R. H. Gilbert, chairman, and B. F. Fretz secretary.

The members engaged in discussions on the usual subjects, among which the methods of teaching map-drawing proportion in Arithmetic were the most prominent,

After the discussions, action was taken concerning the place of holding the next institute. It was decided to hold a session of two days at Coruona on the 19th and 21st of February.

Aside from the regular institute work, there will be a social exercise on Friday evening in which others are invited to participate.

After the assignment, of work for the next session, the institute adjourned.

R. H. GILBERT, Chairman.
B. F. FRETZ, Secretary.

Union Tp., Institute.

Institue convened at 11 o'clock A. M. and organized by electing A. R. Huffman chairman and Hattie Griswold secretary.

The chairman then assigned the following persons to duty, S. C. Frets, method of teaching history; Mattie Miller, how to create an interest in dull classes; Miss Eberly, the child's first lesson at school; what should they be and how conducted? Object teaching:—its uses and abuses, Hatiie Griswold; how to make beginers understand Longitude and Time, A. R. Huffman.

Afternoon:— Mr. Frete's remarks on history came on, followed by Mr. VanAuken on the subject of Physical Geography. The remarks relatating to Tides were very interesting and instructive. Following were the discussions on several vital subjects.

After the discussions motion was made to hold the next institute at Waterloo on Feb. 13th motion was also made. That the recording secretary cause to be printed in the Press and COURIER a programme of exercises for the next meeting containing the names of those whose exercises were not given on account of lack of time or absence of preformers and retaining to the President the night to add other exercises, and causes at his discretion.

There were present all the Auburn teachers, Supt. VanAuken and Miss Mary Walsworth of Waterloo schools and several others from various parts of the township. We are not discouraged but think this might have been a better attendance with little effort.

We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. If times are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combined. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; no secret in it, simply purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumers.

Just take teas, for instance: We save our consumers on that article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the importer.

We save the profit of the jobber, [illegible] per cent, of the speculator, which is [illegible] per cent, of the wholesale grocer, which 10 to 20 per cent, or as much more as he can get. All these profits our customers have the profit of.

FOR CONSUMPTION!

KING'S NEW DISCOVERY
DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY

The unparalled success invariably attending the introduction of

DR. KING'S

New Discovery for Consumption.

Far surpasses that of any other medicine ever placed before the American people. In fact it has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. Wherever it is sold a lively and increasing demand is at once created, and why is it? Our answer is this: It is a remedy that travels on Its Own Merits and always gives Perfect Satisfaction, hence the success. We know whereof we speak and in order to prove this statement we make the following offer: Do not Ever Ask to Buy until you know what you are getting. All we ask of those troubled with consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c, is to go to

The Great Cause of HUMAN MISERY

Just Published in a Sealed Envelope. Price 6 cts
A LECTURE on the nature, treatment and radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhoea, induced by self abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility and fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c.—by Robt J. Culverwell, M. D. author of the 'Green Book,' &c.

The world renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of self abuse may be cured without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radical.

☞ This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands. Sent, under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, on receipt of 6 cents, or two postage stamps. Address

How they Played it on Dougherty.
From the Detroit Free Press

One day last week four or five Detroiters went into Macomb county to shoot squirrels and kick their shins against logs and fence rails. They had just eaten a cold lunch in the woods one noon when one of party, a young man named Dougherty stretched out on his back, pulled his hat over his eyes and gave his mind up to the work of assisting his body to catch a little nap.

The remainder of the party, having an understanding before hand, quietly withdrew one by one, One of them passed around to a bush, near Dougherty's feet and took a tin rattle box from his pocket. Another stood close to the young man's legs, and, in a suppressed voice, when the signal was given whispered:

"For Heaven's sake! Dougherty, don't move so much as a finger! A big rattlesnake is right under your legs!"

Dougherty was flat on his back, eyes covered, arms sprawled out, and his voice trembled as he replied:

"My God! what shall I do?"

"Keep perfectly quiet it is your only hope! If you even raise a finger he will dart his fangs into you!"

The man with the rattle box gave it a shake, and reached out and laid a club across Dougherty's legs while the other man moved off about twenty feet and exclaimed:

"Heavens! what can we do? If we shoot we may kill Dougherty!"

The club was rolled off on the ground and the victim whispered:

"For mercy sake kill it!"

The club was rolled over his leg again, the box shaken, and the man whispered back:

"Be quiet or it is instant death! I think the snake wants to go to sleep, and if you will keep still you will be all right."

The box was shaken, the club moved around and finally the 'snake' seemed to Dougherty to settle down on his breast. He dared not whisper for fear of rousing it, but one of the men called out:

"There it is asleep, we'll move away and wait for it to glide off!"

The whole crowd moved over behind a band and laughed and rolled and tore up the dirt until they were exhausted, while poor Dougherty lay there like a log, not even daring to draw an ordinary breath. The sweat ran down his face, and started out from his body, until his shirt was wringing wet. The fellows took their guns and tramped away, leaving him thus, and were gone an hour and a half. When they returned Dougherty was sitting up, having discovered the joke about five minutes previously. He didn't have a word to say, but for an answer he rose up shouldered his gun, and made a bee-line for the highway, and none of the party has met him since.

A NOVEL RAFFLE.

One of the most novel as well as exciting raffles that ever took place in Seymour came off Saturday evening.—Miss Minnie Clarence made the novel proposition of putting herself up to be raffled off at fifty cents a chance. At first the matter was treated as a joke, but when it became known that the offer was a bonna fide one, chances went rapidly, and in less than a half an hour every chance was taken, and heavy premiums were paid by young men anxious to win the beautiful and lovely prize.

Miss Minnie is a most bewitching beauty of 18 summers an orphan, of respectible parentage, and a member of the best society in the state. She was decidedly the belle of Seymour and was loved and admired by all who ever became acquainted with her, and probably envied just the least bit by the young ladies. She is a bright blonde perfect in form, fair complexion, and has most ravishingly beautiful eyes.—Ever since she came to Seymour she has been the center of attraction, and the admiration of the men. In justice to Miss Minnie, we would state that she gave the winner the privileos of accepting or refusing her, and reserved the same privilege for herself. There may be several in the crowd whom she would have refused, but there was none, we venture to say, who would refused her. How could they?

The hour set for the raffle came and found all ready to try their luck. Miss Minnie was there in person, dressed in the hight of fashion, to lend a charm to the occasion. She stood leaning gracefully against the show-case, never speaking a word nor betraying the least emotion, or showing the slightest preference for any of the contistants, excepting there was perceptible twinkle in her beautiful eyes when some young and beautiful "lover" would shake the dice.

Name after name was called, and each one in turn would shake the box with nervous hand, until all but three had thrown, nothing higher than thirty eight had been thrown. Then came Lynn Falkoner's turn. Lynn is a blond himself, and a clever, hard working young man and perhaps the twinkle of his eyes nerved him to the work At any rate he tossed the ivory with steady hand, and the scorer called forty-six. The other two throws were made amid too much excitement even to be counted, and the prize was awarded to Lynn. Minnie came forward and took Lynn's arm, and the two went out together amid the cheers of the crowd. She accompanied him to his father's hotel, where she was presented to his relatives, who had not had the pleasure of her acquaintance before, after which she was escorted home. We of course do not know, certain, but as Lynn is a good clever young man, and she would be an honor to any household, we are inclined to say that neither will back out.

HE FINALLY WENT.

Yesterday afternoon an old man appeared before the Detroit & Lansing Railroad ticket window, at the Central Depot, and asked:

"What you charge for a ticket to Lansing?"

"Two-sixty, sir," replied the agent, wetting his thumb and reached out for the money.

"Two dollar and sixty cents!" exclaimed the stranger, pulling his hand out of the window.

"Yes, sir, that is the regular fare."

"Then I sthays here by Detroit forty years!" said the man, getting red in the face. "I have never seen me such'n swindle as dat!"

"Two-sixty is the regular fare, and you will have to pay it if you go," replied the agent.

"I shust gif you two dollar and no more."

"No, I can't do it."

"Vell, den I sthays mit Detroit till I dies," growled the old man, and he went away and walked around the depot. He expected to be called back to "take it along" when he had been chaffing with a clothing dealer. Such an event did not occur, and after a few minutes, the old man returned and called out:

"Vell, I gif you two-dollar and ten cents."

"No I can not do it replied the agent."

"Vell den I don,t go, so help me grashush! I have lived in Detroit three yers, und shall bay bolies tax, sewer tax, und want to grow up mit dis town, und I shall not be swindles."

He walked off again, looked back to see if the agent would not call him, and after a stroll around, he returned to the window, threw down some money and said:

"Vell, dake two dollar and twenty cents, und gif me'n dicket."

"My dear sir can't you understand that we have a schedule of prices here and that I must go by it," replied the agent.

"Vell den, I sthays mit Detroit von dousand yare!" replied the stranger, madder than ever. "I bays bolice taxes und sewer taxes, und I shall see about this by the Sheaf Police!"

He walked off again, and as he saw the locomotive backing up to couple on to the train he went back to the window and said:

"Gif mein dicket for two dollar and thirty cents and I ride on the platform!"

"Can't do it."

"Vell den py golly, I spikes to you what I doses! Here is dem two dollar and sixty cents, and I goes to Lansing and never comes back! No sir I shall never come back, or I shall come mit do blank road! I bays taxes by dem bolice, and by dem sewers, und I shall show you dat I shall haf nodding more to do mit dis town!"

He went on the train.

A startling rumor is telegraphed from the old world, to the effect that Germany is arming en masse for another war. Bismarck's vigorous prosecution of the catholics is supposed to be the cause of it, and it is not improbable that another war will grow out of it. Indications point to a general European conflict.

NEWS SUMMARY.

The East.

ANOTHER bold bank robbery in broad daylight—this time at Carbondale, Pa. Two men entered the First National Bank at noon, while the clerks were at dinner, and asked to have a bill changed. As the cashier was counting the money, they sprang over the counter and grappled with him, and after a desperate struggle, in which he was severely beaten, a gag was thrust into his mouth, his hands tied behind his back, and his feet securely bound. The robbers succeeded in getting $6,000.

THE suspension of labor by reason of strikes in the Lehigh coal regions in Pennsylvania is now complete, about 25,000 miners being "locked out" of work by the inflexibility of the proprietors and the resolutions adopted in the Laborers' Union against submitting to a reduction of wages....Four men were blown to atoms by the explosion of a nitro-glycerine factory near Communipaw, N. J., on Saturday last.

THE New York Grand Jury visited Blackwell's Island Penitentiary the other day, and found William M. Tweed occupying a small, ill-ventilated room, and dressed in prison garb.

The West.

A CONVENTION of miners was held at Springfield, Ill., last week, at which a resolution was adopted declaring against strikes and in favor of the settlement of disputes between employers and employes by arbitration.... They have been having some fearful weather out in the Territories. At Helena, Montana, on the night of the 13th of January, the mercury in the thermometers all froze, and small quantities of mercury in vials also congealed. Proof whisky, placed out of doors, froze solid in half an hour. Four Chinamen were found about half a mile from town, frozen to death. The whisky they had with them, in small kegs, was frozen solid. A number of persons were frozen to death at different points. At one point in Wyoming Territory the spirit thermometer marked fifty-six degrees below zero....Two-thirds of the business portion of Vermilion, Dakota Territory, has been destroyed by fire. Loss $70,000. Destructive fires are also reported at Galena, Ill. (loss $125,000), and at Ottawa, Kansas (loss $60,000).

CHICAGO papers announce the failure of the Cook County National Bank, of which B. F. Allen is President. It is stated that depositors will lose nothing.

SPECIAL advices from the Southwest announce the end of the Indian war for the winter at last. Gen. Miles has, during his late campaign, administered a far more severe drubbing to the restless tribes on that frontier than they ever received before, and has left them in no condition for an early renewal of hostilities.

ONE of the most disastrous and wide-spread storms ever known in the West swept over Colorado, part of Utah and California on the 20th of January. There was loss of both life and property. Several costly railway bridges were destroyed, and several towns submerged.

The South.

TWO HUNDRED citizens of Arkansas recently published a card indorsing Gen. Sheridan's action at New Orleans, and his statement that a reign of terror exists in Arkansas. Gov. Garland thereupon issued instructions to the prosecuting attorneys of the State to have each one of the signers of the paper summoned before the grand juries of their respective counties and compelled to testify, and that if the facts are established as set forth in their statement, the guilty parties are to be punished to the full extent of the law. Gov. Garland has also sent a special message to the Legislature calling attention to the matter, and urging the passage of more stringent laws.

ADVICES from New Orleans of the 19th inst., report the situation unchanged. Gen. Sheridan had gone on a tour to the country parishes.

AN Associated Press telegram from Vicksburg of Jan. 18 states that on that day "Maj. George E. Head, with a squad of Federal troops with fixed bayonets, acting, it is stated, under orders from Gen. Emory, entered the Sheriff's office and forcibly ejected Sheriff A. J. Flanagan, who was in possession by virtue of the recent election, about the validity of which there is a constitutional question. Maj. Head reported his action to Chancellor Hill, who was holding court in an adjacent room, by whom the action of the military was countenanced and seemingly approved. Flanagan also reported the facts to Chancellor Hill, and appealed to the court to protect him in the discharge of his duties, but was refused. The Chancellor appointed W. H. McGhee Sheriff pro tem., and he was placed in possession of the office by the military. McGhee is a white Republican and was Deputy under Sheriff Crosby."

THE Missouri State Prison, at Jefferson City, was the scene of a formidable mutiny a few days ago. The convicts in the shoe shops, to the number of 300, quit work, and armed with knives, hammers, and such weapons as they could lay hands on, were preparing to march forth to freedom, and would doubtless have succeeded but for the presence of large numbers of citizens, who responded at the first alarm. Armed with rifles and shotguns, they surrounded the prison, and the mutineers, perceiving the hopelessness of a struggle with them, submitted quietly. The pretext for the mutiny was the alleged insufficiency and bad quality of food.

A BLOODY affray occurred last week at Laconia, Ark., on the Mississippi river, resulting in the death of Charles and Alvis Buck and two brothers named Harris. The latter were recently from Illinois, and the former hail from Kentucky

THE Patrons of Husbandry of Louisiana and Mississippi have issued an address to the order throughout the United States indorsing the report of the sub-committee of Congress....J. N. Vaughn, one of the Democrats ejected from the Louisiana Hall of Representatives, has brought suit against Sheridan, Emory and De Trobriand for $100,000 damages.

Washington.

A WASHINGTON telegram states that after full consultation between the Republican Senators, the conclusion has been reached to accept Pinchback's credentials as a Senator from Louisiana [illegible] and admit him to a seat in the Senate....The Sub-Pacific railroad committee of the House have agreed to report favorably Tom Scott's Southern railroad measure.... A prominent Republican Senator, who is in the confidence of President Grant, says in a dispatch to the Chicago Tribune, is authority for the assertion that the administration is sick of Kellogg, and ready to throw him overboard, if any feasible means can be devised. It is stated that a pressure will be made to induce him and Antoine to resign, in which event a new election will be necessary.....The Comptroller of the Currency has already received applications for $1,000,000 of new circulation, under the provisions of the new Finance law. These applications come almost entirely from the Western States. The Committee on Ways and Means think that the bill restoring the tax on tea and coffee is certain of a favorable report in committee, but are not positive that it can pass the House.... The Attorney-General has received a petition signed by 800 negroes, making the request that the United States [illegible] apart a territory for dissatisfied negroes [illegible] protect them by the military under any form of government acceptable to Congress. The petition represents that the blacks would make more rapid progress in civilization if not compelled to remain in contact with whites....The commission which was appointed to report upon the various plans suggested for the improvement of the mouth of the Mississippi river recommend the adoption of Capt. James B. Eads' jetty system.

WHITELAW REID, of the New York Tribune, was summoned to Washington last week to testify in the Pacific Mail investigation. After his examination Reid was arrested for libel on complaint of ex-Gov. Sheppard, and required to give bail.

PRESIDENT GRANT has sent a special message to Congress advocating the appropriations asked for by the Chief of Ordnance in order to the improvement of our sea-coast defenses. The Ordnance Bureau desires to make some experiments with rifled guns, paying therefor at the rate of $100 for each discharge; also to change a number of smooth-bores into rifled cannon. An Associated Press telegram from Washington says the President's message has raised the question among members of Congress whether there was any probability of war with a foreign power and whether the President had knowledge leading him to such apprehension. Some members could see no ground for fear, while others thought probably some serious difficulty might arise between the United States and Spain, and it was therefore proper that our ports in the gulf should be prepared against sudden assault from Spanish vessels in the event of hostilities growing out of the Cuban question.

Political.

A WASHINGTON telegram says "the Cabinet, notwithstanding contrary rumors, is united upon the President's Louisiana message." It is added "the present drift of the Louisiana question here is toward the continued recognition and maintenance of the Kellogg government." At a caucus of Southern Republicans in both branches of Congress it was unanimously decided to support Kellogg, and that if the alternative is presented of a new election or a provisional government, they will choose the latter.

FRANCIS KERNAN (Democrat) has been elected to succeed Mr. Fenton in the Senate from New York.....The sub-committee appointed to visit New Orleans for the purpose of investigating Louisiana affairs have made their report to the General Committee. They say that the action of the Returning Board in rejecting the returns from Rapides parish was arbitrary and illegal. They say: "We are constrained to declare that the action of the Returning Board on the whole was arbitrary, unjust, and, in our opinion, illegal; and that this arbitrary, unjust and illegal action alone prevented the return, by the Board, of a majority of Conservative members of the Lower House. The committee confined their investigation to two parishes, and find that no general intimidation of Republican voters was established. No colored man was produced who had been threatened or assaulted by any Conservative because of political opinion, or discharged from employment or refused employment. Of all those who testified to intimidation, there was hardly any one who, of his own knowledge, could specify a reliable instance of such acts; and of the white men who were produced to testify generally on subjects, very nearly all, if not every single one, was a holder of office." The report expresses the opinion that there was a "fair, free and peaceable election in Louisiana in November, 1874," and that a "clear Conservative majority was elected to the lower house of the Legislature," of which they were deprived by the "arbitrary act of the Returning Board."

A NEW ORLEANS telegram of the 18th inst., says: "The following is from a Republican official source: Republicans assert that the report of the Louisiana sub-committee goes outside the record, and that no testimony was brought before them to show the funding of illegal legislative warrants, displacement of judges by Kellogg, or seizure of arms by the police without process of law. They assert that specific evidence will be adduced to disprove these and other allegations of the committee, which they say are based solely on briefs of Democratic counsel."....The Democrats of the Missouri Legislature have chosen Gen. Francis M. Cockrill as the successor of Mr. Schurz in the United States Senate.... The committee sent to Little Rock to investigate Arkansas affairs have unanimously come to the conclusion that Brooks was legally elected Governor of that State, and a majority of the committee further agree as to the validity of the Garland government....Vice-President Wilson has written a letter on the political situation to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, in which he disclaims the belief attributed to him that the Republican party is dead. He insists that it is not dead, nor hopelessly defeated; that the elements of its original strength, and proper management, will insure its continued success. He believes there should be a new policy toward the South; that the bad men in the party should be ejected, and good men outside of it invited to enter.

THE Congressional committee sent to Vicksburg to investigate the cause of the troubles there have returned to Washington. It is stated that the Republican members of the committee have arrived at the conclusion that a White League exists in Mississippi, and is a very formidable organization; that the white people instigated the riot which resulted in the slaughter of so many negroes. ....The Minnesota Legislature began balloting for United States Senator on Jan. 19, with the following result: Ramsey (Rep.), 60; Donnelly (Ind.), 59; Davis (Rep.), 24; scattering, 1[illegible]. Necessary to a choice.... The Rhode Island Legislature has had a hard time electing a Senator, having balloted 31 times at last summer's session. They met Jan. 19 and again resumed the contest, the first trial standing: Burnside, 43 (53 being necessary to a choice); Dixon, 37; Barstow, 16; scattering, 18. A second ballot was taken with about the same result.....The contest for United States Senator was reopened in the Massachusetts Legislature Jan. 19, the three leading candidates being H. L. Dawes, J. G. Abbott and E. R. Hoar.... Judge Wallace, Democrat, has been elected United States Senator from Pennsylvania. The Connecticut [illegible] have nominated for Governor, Hon. James Lloyd Greene, Mayor of Norwich; Lieutenant Governor, Charles L. English, of New Haven; Secretary of State, Col. A. Fenn, of Plymouth; Treasurer, O. D. Arnold, of Meriden; Comptroller, R. B. Crawford, of Norwalk....Joseph E. McDonald has been elected United States Senator by the Indiana Legislature by the following vote: McDonald, 78; Pratt, 44; Buchanan, 13; Thompson, 6; Curry, 3; Holman, 1.....Henry L. Dawes has been elected United States Senator by the Legislature of Massachusetts. The vote was as follows: Dawes, 140; C. F. Adams, 98; Abbott, 10; H. L. Pierce, 1; E. R. Hoar, 9; N. P. Banks, 1; C. Devens, Jr., 10. Whole number of votes, 269; necessary to a choice, 135.... Hon. Thomas F. Bayard has been re-elected United States Senator from Delaware.... The second ballot for Senator in Minnesota stood: Ramsey, 61; Donnelly, 51; Davis, 24; scattering, 10.

General.

THE commission of engineers on the alluvial basin of the Mississippi recommend government aid for the purpose of reclaiming these alluvial lands, and suggest an immediate appropriation of $1,500,000 for Louisiana, and $500,000 each for Arkansas and Mississippi, to close existing breaks and crevasses.

THE St. Louis police have struck a trail which they think may lead to the discovery of Charley Ross....The latest advices from Fort Garry report that it is currently rumored that documents from the imperial government, containing a general amnesty to all parties implicated in the rebellion of '69 and '70, have been received by Lieut.-Gov. Morris, and that an official Gazette extra will be issued containing this proclamation.

Foreign.

A LONDON dispatch announces the loss of the British steamer Bride, from Alexandria for Hull. Twenty of her crew were drowned. ....King Alfonso has arrived at Madrid, where he was enthusiastically received by the populace....A Madrid telegram denies that Valmaseda is to succeed Concha as Captain-General of Cuba.

THE steamship Alice from Cardiff for Constantinople has been lost at sea, and twenty persons were drowned....Mr. Gladstone has expressed his determination to withdraw from the leadership of the Liberal party in England, which he has directed for so many years.

TROUBLES come fast and thick upon poor old Spain, and it looks as if her new King will more than have his hands full. The cable brings news that a German man-of-war has landed a force at Zarauz, on the Spanish coast, and occupied the place. It is added that Germany will shortly have fifty guns on the Northern coast.

THE London Times of Jan. 17, in an editorial discussing the European situation, says: "In the gloom surrounding us, one thing is perceptible—all are arming. Germany is arming en masse; the surrounding nations, including the best part of the world, cannot do otherwise. Momentary dreams of peace have fled. Germany recognizes the stern necessity. What she won by arms she can only hold by arms, and while the arms are in her hands." The Times confesses that Germany cannot raise a third army. Her hopes are in her navy.

ON account of the flagrant outrages on railway trains and employes, the Spanish government has determined that every armed Carlist found in the vicinity of any railroad shall be shot.... The British steamer Berar, from Odessa, for Cardiff, is supposed to have gone down with all on board—twenty in number.

MONTENEGRO, a small independent country of European Turkey, embracing a population of 150,000, has got her dander up, and is resolved to go to war with the powerful Turks. ....It is reported from Spain that the Republican and Carlist leaders are plotting together with a view of uniting their forces against King Alfonso.

FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

THURSDAY, Jan. 14.—Senate—The time was mostly occupied in debate on Louisiana affairs. Logan finished his speech, which was begun the day previous, and occupied five hours....At the conclusion of Logan's speech, Tipton obtained the floor, but at the request of Conkling he gave way to allow the reading of a message from the President on finance, intending to resume to-morrow....The message was then read, and the Senate, after executive session, adjourned.

House—Discussion of the Indian Appropriation bill occupied nearly the entire day.... The Secretary of War recommends the construction of a breakwater at Cleveland, Ohio, at an estimated cost of $1,300,000....The Appropriation Committee agreed to appropriate $47,000, to be expended in fish propagation under the direction of Spencer F. Baird....A bill was passed removing the political disabilities of John Withers, James P. Winter, and William Kearney, of Texas. Adjourned.

FRIDAY, Jan. 15.—Senate—The House bill to amend the act granting pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the war of 1812, and to restore to the pension rolls those persons whose names were stricken therefrom in consequence of disloyalty, was recommitted to the Pension Committee....Unfinished business being in order, Tipton concluded his argument on Louisiana affairs, begun yesterday, and Logan, Frelinghuysen, Saulsbury and others took part in the debate that followed, after which the Senate adjourned.

House—G. F. Hoar, from the select committee on Southern outrages, presented the report of the sub-committee, which had been to New Orleans; the report was ordered printed, but was not read, as the committee had voted to proceed to Louisiana and continue the investigation....The bill for the relief of the United States ships Wyoming and Takiang was rejected—99 to 51....The House then instructed the Sergeant-at-Arms to retain the recusant witness, Irwin, in custody until he shall purge himself of contempt, after which it adjourned till Monday.

SATURDAY, Jan. 16.—Senate—Clayton presented a memorial signed by over 200 citizens of Arkansas, formerly soldiers in the Union army, indorsing the course of Gen. Sheridan in New Orleans, and declaring that the statements made by him were true. Laid upon the table....Ferry, of Michigan, introduced a bill to authorize the issuance of patents for certain sections of land in [illegible]. Referred.

House—The House was not in session to-day.

MONDAY, Jan. 18.—Senate—Morton introduced a bill to establish a mint for the coinage of gold and silver in Indianapolis....Unfinished business (the Louisiana discussion) was taken up, but postponed to permit action on the appropriation bills, to which various amendments were added....Logan introduced a bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at or near the Grand Chain.

House—Bills were introduced: To prevent the issue of national bank notes of greater denominations than $100; to establish a mint at Cincinnati; to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at Memphis; in regard to alleged new evidence in the Fitz John Porter case....The bill appropriating $25,000 to defray the expenses attending the visit of the King of Hawaii was passed.

TUESDAY, Jan 19.—Senate—A memorial from the Legislature of Dakota, asking for the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad, was laid before the Senate by the Vice President....The time of the Senate was occupied principally in consideration of the Legislative Appropriation bill.

House—E. R. Hoar offered a resolution for the appointment of a select committee to inquire whether the privileges of the House had been violated by the arrest and detention of Whitelaw Reid, at the suit of Alexander R. Shepherd, while Reid was within the District of Columbia under a subpœna from a committee of the House; adopted, and a committee of five appointed, comprising Messrs. E. R. Hoar, Hale of New York, Orth, Clymer, and Sayler. The House went into committee of the whole on the Indian Appropriation bill, Poland in the chair, but adjourned without disposing of the question.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 20.—Senate—Clayton introduced a bill to protect each State against invasion, and for other purposes. It provides that whomsoever shall invade any State for the purpose of violating the laws of said State, or of the United States, or for the purpose of interfering in any manner with the execution of said laws, or whomsoever shall wilfully and corruptly conspire, combine and confederate with any other person for any of the purposes above indicated, shall, upon conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of felony and be punished by a fine not exceeding $10,000, and by imprisonment at hard labor not exceeding ten years.... The Legislative Appropriation bill, after some unimportant amendments, was read a third time and passed....Morton's amendment to the Constitution, providing for the election of President and Vice President by direct vote of the people, was read, but without action upon it the Senate went into executive session.

House—Garfield reported a bill appropriating $150,000 for continuing the construction of the St. Louis Postoffice....Crounse introduced a bill appropriating $30,000 for the distribution of seeds to the portions of the country that have suffered from grasshopper ravages....The Indian Appropriation bill was considered in committee of the whole, and the proposition to pay nearly three million dollars to the Choctaw Indians, under the award of the Senate of March 9, 1859, was agreed to and so reported to the House; but this amendment being deemed objectionable the bill was rejected—111 ayes to 120 noes, and the bill was recommitted....The Speaker presented a message from the President calling special attention to the absolute necessity of providing proper armament for the seacoast defenses, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs....After some debate on the Pacific Mail investigation the House adjourned.

NATIONAL FINANCES.

Views of the President—He Offers Some Suggestions Regarding the New Finance Bill—Also Favors the Restoration of the Tea and Coffee Tax, and the Increase of the Tariff to the Old Standard.

President Grant has signed the new Currency bill passed by Congress. Accompanying his approval of the measure he sent to the Senate the following message embodying his views of it, and the legislation necessary to render it effectual:

To the Senate of the United States:

Senate bill No. 1,044, to provide for the resumption of specie payments, is before me, and this day receives my signature of approval. I venture upon this unusual method of conveying notice of approval to the house in which the measure originated because of its great importance to the country at large, and in order to suggest further legislation which seems to me essential to make this law effectual. It is a subject of congratulation that the measure has become a law, which fixes the date when specie resumption shall commence, and implies an obligation on the part of Congress, if in its power, to give such legislation as may prove necessary to redeem this promise. To this end I respectfully call your attention to a few suggestions:

1. The necessity for increased reserve to carry out the obligation of adding to the sinking fund annually one per cent. of the public debt, amounting now to about $34,000,000 per annum, and to carry out the promises of this measure to redeem, under certain contingencies, $80,000,000 of the present legal-tenders, and without contingency the fractional currency now in circulation. How to increase the surplus revenue is for Congress to devise, but I will venture to suggest that the duty on tea and coffee might be restored without permanently enhancing the cost to consumers, and that the 10 per cent. reduction of tariff on the articles specified in the law of June 6, 1872, be repealed. The supply of tea and coffee already on hand in the United States would in all probability be advanced in price by adopting this measure, but it is known that the adoption of free entry to these articles of necessity did not cheapen them, but merely added to the profits of the countries producing them, or of middlemen in those countries who have exclusive trade in them.

2. The first section of the bill under consideration now provides that fractional currency shall be redeemed in silver coin as rapidly as practicable. There is no provision preventing fluctuation in the value of paper currency with gold at a premium of over 10 per cent. above the currency in use. It is probable, almost certain, that silver would be bought up for exportation as fast as it was put out, until change would become so scarce as to make the premium on it equal to the premium on gold, or sufficiently high to make it no longer profitable to buy for export, thereby causing a direct loss to the community at large and great embarrassment to trade. As the present law commands the final resumption on the 1st of January, 1879, and as gold receipts by the Treasury are larger than gold payments, and currency receipts less than currency payments, thereby making monthly sales of gold necessary to meet the current currency expenses, it occurs to me that these difficulties might be remedied by authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem legal tender notes whenever presented in sums not less than $100 and multiples thereof, at a premium for gold of 10 per cent., less interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum, from the 1st of January, 1875, to date, putting this law into operation and diminishing this premium at said rate until the final resumption, changing the rate of premium demanded from time to time, as the interest amounts to one-quarter of one per cent. I suggest this rate of interest because it would bring currency at par with gold at the date fixed by law for final resumption. I suggest 10 per cent. as the demand premium at the beginning, because I believe this rate would insure the retention of silver in the country for change. The provisions of the third section of the act will prevent combinations made to exhaust the Treasury of coin. With such a law it is presumable that no gold would be called for not required for legitimate business purposes. When large amounts of coin should be drawn from the Treasury, correspondingly large amounts of currency would be withdrawn from circulation, thus causing a sufficient stringency in currency to stop the outward flow of coin. The advantages of a currency of a fixed known value would also be reached. In my opinion, by the enactment of such a law business and industries would revive, and the beginning of prosperity on a firm basis would be reached. Other means of increasing the revenue than those suggested should probably be devised, and also other legislation. In fact, to carry out the first section of the act, another mint becomes a necessity. [illegible] coinage it would [illegible] beyond that fixed by [illegible] not [illegible] of [illegible] now [illegible] and gold from the ores brought from the mountain Territories, in Chicago, St. Louis and Omaha, three in the former city, and as much of the change required will be wanted in the Mississippi Valley States, and as the metals to be coined come from the west of those States, and as I understand the charges for transportation of bullion from either of the cities named to the mint in Philadelphia or New York [illegible], with an equal expense for transportation back, it would seem a fair argument in favor of adopting one or more of these cities as the place or places for the establishment of new coinage facilities.

I have ventured upon this subject with great diffidence because it is so unusual to approve a measure (as I most heartily do this), even if no further legislation is attainable at this time, and to announce the fact by message; but I do so because I feel that it is a subject of such vital importance to the whole country that it should receive the attention of, and be discussed by, Congress and the people, through the press, and in every way, to the end that the best and more satisfactory course may be reached of executing what I deem the most beneficial legislation on a most vital question to the interests and prosperity of the nation.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Jan. 14, 1875.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCE.

There was a better demand for loans, and the money market ruled steady and rates were firm at 10 per cent. Grain and provision men are the principal applicants for favors; while there was a good supply of loanable funds. Bonds quite firm and a trifle higher, closing at 114¼ to 114½ for U. S. 5-20's of '62, 115¾ to 116 of '64, and 114¾ to 115¼ for 10-40's. Currency 6's, 117⅜ to 117⅝. Latest gold quotations—Chicago, 111¾ to 112¼; New York, 112¼.

BREADSTUFFS.

The visible supply of grain, comprising the stocks in granary, at the principal points of accumulation, at lake and seaboard ports, and in transit by rail Jan. 9, 1875, and the comparative stocks at the other undermentioned periods, were as follows:

	1875. Jan. 9.	1875. Jan. 2.	1874. Jan. 10.	1873. Jan. 11.

The movement in the grain markets has increased somewhat during the past week, but still there was no special activity shown, and the amount of business transacted was relatively light. This inactivity on the part of the speculative interest is accounted for by the unfavorable circumstances surrounding the trade and affecting the movements of speculators. The reports received from Liverpool and New York were of a discouraging tenor, quoting a declining tendency in values and a general weakness. The local speculative movement here during the fall was such that prices for all grains were forced to a higher range than to allow any shipping movement, and the result has been a steady and quite rapid accumulation of the stock in store. The "bears" have had the entire control of the trade and forced a general and steady decline in prices. At the present writing and during the week under review, the condition of affairs has been improving. The low prices are beginning to attract the attention of parties having money to invest, and there is also a better demand from shorts, who are covering their contracts at the profit offered by the liberal reduction in values. Eastern advices were again unfavorable, but the receipts are decreasing, and speculators seem to have more confidence in the future. Farmers are holding back grain, and the current prices, especially of wheat, are certainly very low. Spring wheat ruled fairly active, and corn was also selling more readily. Oats were regular and firm. Rye scarce and firm. Barley strong under light receipts. The markets closed steady and firm, with a more favorable outlook for the future.

The following were the current quotations at the opening and at the close:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 spring wheat	88¾@88⅞	88¾
Seller February	88⅜	89¼
New No. 2 corn	65⅞	66¼
Seller February	66	66⅞
Seller May	71¼	72¾@72½
No. 2 oats cash	52	52¼@52½
Seller February	52¾	52¾
No. 2 rye	96	97 @97½
No. 2 barley	$1.24½@1.25	$1.27@1.30
Seller February	1.26½	1.27@1.27½

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle market was steady and firm and quite an active business was transacted. The receipts were liberal, but the quality was good. Shippers bought freely at $4.75 to $5.20 for fair, $5.25 to $5.70 for good, and $5.75 to $6 25 for choice. Extra, $6.50 to $7.00. Stock cattle steady and firm at $2.75 to $4 00. Butchers' stock, $2.50 to $4.75. Hogs dull and 30c to 40c lower under the heavy receipts; closing at $6.00 to $6 50 for poor to good light and $6 60 to $7.10 for common to very choice heavy; prospects more favorable. Sheep firm and higher; closing at $3.50 to $5.75 for common to choice grades.

DRESSED HOGS.

Opened firm, but soon ruled weak and remained dull and easy until the extreme close, when a firmer feeling was developed, and under an increased and urgent competition between buyers, the market ruled active and closed firm with a c onsiderable portion of the decline recovered, closing at $7.25 to $7.35 for pigs, $7 45 to $7.50 for light weights—between 100 and 200 lbs—and $8 for heavy weights.

PROVISIONS.

A moderate speculative business was transacted in this market, but an unsettled feeling prevailed and prices fluctuated quite frequently. Mess pork was 70c to 90c per brl lower, and lard was active, higher at the opening, but closed easier. Meats were ⅛c to ⅛c lower. Mess pork closed at $18.25 cash, $18.70 seller March and $18.40 for seller February. Cash lard, $13.37½; seller March, $13.65 to $13.67½.

HIGHWINES AND SEEDS.

Highwines continue to rule steady and firm, there being a good demand and ready sale at 94c. Seeds were quiet and firm, with a moderate speculative inquiry. Timothy quotable at $2.40 to $2.60. Clover, $5.90 to $5.95. Flax, $2. Millet, 70c to 85c. Hungarian quiet at 80c to 85c.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter remains very dull and prices easy; closing at 20c to 28c for roll, and 20c to 28c for fair to choice shipping lots. Retailing in [illegible] on the basis of $31.50 for Stark A's. Beans in fair local demand [illegible] to $2.15. Broom corn firm and in [illegible]. Beeswax steady at [illegible] for choice yellow. Cooperage closed at $1.25 for pork barrels, and $1.45 to $1.50 for lard tierces. Eggs were in good demand and firm at 24c to 26c for fresh and 17c to 20c for pickled. Hops firm and in better demand at 40c to 50c for best. Potatoes were steady and firmly held at 80c to 90c for peachblows. Hay was in better demand and prices advancing. Hides were steady at 10c for kip, 12c for veal kip, 8c to 9c for part cured, 8½c for green heavy, and 15c for green calf. Cheese firm at 14c to 15c for Western factory, and 8c to 12c for common. Apples dull at $2.00 to $3.00. Cider was steady and firm at $6.50 to $7.00. Honey firm at 25c for comb and 15c for strained. Feathers firm at 60c to 65c for live geese and 6c to 7c for chicken. Poultry was firmer and [illegible] Vegetables were quiet and unchanged. [illegible] quiet.

THE SUN'S DISTANCE.

Startling Results Obtained by the Recent Transit Observations—In Less than 1,440 Years the Earth will Fall Plump into the Sun.

The New York World publishes a cable dispatch from London, saying:

"The first tentative computations made at Greenwich of data obtained from observations of the recent transit of Venus have yielded results somewhat different from what were expected. Four calculations made independently give the sun's parallax as being respectively 906 seconds, 942 seconds, 925 seconds, and 930 seconds, the mean being 924 seconds. The computations were made by Prof. O. Henrici, Ph. D., of the University College; Mr. Frederick Guthrie, of the Royal School of Mines and Arts, and Messrs. Dunkin and Ellis, assistants at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich. No calculations have yet been completed at Kew Observatory. The computations as given were made only upon the basis of moments of external and internal contact as reported from different points of observation, and may be considerably modified when photographic and micrometic measurements are taken into account."

Based on this dispatch, the World remarks, on the authority of an American astronomer, as follows:

"To say that the sun's parallax has been ascertained to be 924 seconds, is to say that the sun is distant from us about 22,323 semi-diameters of the earth, or 88,443,726 miles. This is 6,926,274 miles less than the distance made out by Encke from observations of the last transit, and 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 less than the results obtained by more recent measurements. If this ratio were constant, we should require 1,440 years to overcome the entire distance and fall into the sun. But, as it is certain that our centripetal motion would be vastly accelerated continually as we got closer within the sphere of the sun's attraction, unless his forces should be proportionally decreased or his volume reduced, it is also probable that we should consume very much less time than is above given in making the tremendous journey."

A Ghastly Execution.

One of the most bungling and revolting executions on record was that of the hanging of the two negroes, Jarvis and Jackson, at Hempstead, near New York city, on Friday of last week. The account of the sickening affair, as reported by telegraph, relates that at 11:26 the weight was released, and both bodies sprang into the air, but only for an instant was one suspended, and in the next moment was witnessed an inexpressibly horrible sight. The body of Jackson was drawn up quickly, and his struggles of agony began, but Jarvis' body had risen perhaps a foot when the rope broke, and he struck the platform squarely on his feet, completely paralyzed by terror, and undoubtedly terribly hurt by the jerk of the noose on his neck. There was a pause of shuddering silence all over the yard, and the half-lifeless form swayed forward and would have fallen but for the intervention of the Sheriff's arm. For three minutes, while the rope was being repaired, Jarvis hung limp and motionless upon the arms of the officers. Sheriff Sammis says that he did not utter a word, but others say that he begged in a broken voice: "For God's sake, don't murder me." The knot was loosened around his neck, but the black cap was not drawn up lest he should be convulsed by the sight of his companion, who was struggling with his legs drawn up and his hands clenched by his side. Then a young man on a ladder ran the cord down, and it was about to be refastened when it slipped and with a grating, rasping noise slipped over the joists. Another minute of frightful suspense intervened, during which officers and citizens were muttering "Horrible! Horrible!" and the rope was again slid down through the beam. This time it was fastened, pulled taut against the wretch's neck, who was still able to keep his feet, and then he was slowly pulled up, hand over hand, the requisite distance, and allowed to strangle to death. His second hanging occurred at 11:30, and his pulse ceased to beat at 11:42, after writhings sickening to behold, the body swinging round and round, and shivering and trembling as if touched by a galvanic battery.

GOLD is being found in Upper Georgia in large quantities. Rumors had been afloat for several days concerning a new mine of immense richness, where many lumps in a pure state had been picked up on the surface, varying from 30 to 40 pennyweights. It is within an hour's ride of Chattanooga, and miners say its riches promise to eclipse anything on the continent.

CURRENT GOSSIP.

A Bonanza of Corruption.

The Pacific Mail subsidy investigation at Washington pans out a perfect bonanza of venal richness. Journalists, Congressmen, and even the humble door-keepers and scullions seem to have had a finger in the rich pudding.

Train.

A report has been going the rounds that George Francis Train has become hopelessly insane. He is also credited with an intention to start a new daily paper in Cincinnati. If the latter report is true, there can be no doubt of the correctness of the first.

The Great Scandal Suit.

The celebrated Tilton-Beecher trial, in Brooklyn, N. Y., is dragging its slow length along, and will probably be protracted several weeks into the future. But one witness—"Mutual Friend" Moulton—had been examined up to the 18th inst., and he had furnished no testimony additional to that embraced in the famous published "statements."

An Item for Farmers.

A remarkable paper was read before the American Dairymen's Convention, at Utica, last week, by Mr. L. W. Miller, in which he detailed his repeated experiments in feeding cows in winter on three quarts of corn-meal each per day, without any hay or other food. He claims that they have done well during the progress of the experiments and afterwards, and that there are no objections to the plan.

Rich Bridal Presents.

The following list of bridal presents is published in the Chicago Tribune: A pair of pebble-goat shoes from the bride's brother-in-law; a glass door-plate from her grandmother's uncle; a half-dozen case-knives and a kerosene lamp from the bridegroom; a mop, broom and potato-masher from an unknown friend; a can of kerosene and a bundle of kindlings from the bride's mother-in-law; also a nutmeg-grater and some mantiel ornaments from her school friends.

Spain.

Bourbon rule in Spain begins with the appointment of Valmaseda as Captain-General of Cuba. He is the "bloody-butcher" Captain-General who had five students shot for scratching four meaningless lines on a piece of glass set in a tombstone. One-and-a quarter lives per scratch was a pretty cheap estimate of human life, even for a Spanish grandee in Cuba, and Valmaseda had to be recalled. Alfonso XII. sends him back again, and he asks for 20,000 more troops to prolong the hopeless struggle.

Crushed to Pulp.

An employe in one of the Chicago rolling-mills recently met his death in a singular and peculiarly shocking manner. While engaged in oiling the machinery his fingers were caught between two rollers weighing forty-eight tons, and driven by an engine of 300 horse power. These rollers fit closely together, and the unfortunate man was drawn closely into the narrow space between them. Before the horrible engine of death could be stopped, he had passed entirely through. His body was crushed inch by inch, and was reduced to a pulpy mass, bearing no more resemblance to a human form than a quantity of sausage-meat. The fragments were gathered up, bit by bit, by his horrified fellow-workmen, and conveyed to his late residence.

Inauguration Day.

The Chicago Journal says that by calculation it will be observed that the next Presidential inauguration day—March 4, 1877—will fall on Sunday. This conflict of inauguration dates with a non-secular day has occurred only twice before in the history of the United States. The first was in 1821, at the second inauguration of President James Monroe—he being re-elected—and the second was at the inauguration day proper of Zachary Taylor, in 1849. By special legislative appointment, these inaugurals transpired on March 5, the Monday following the set date, as probably will be that of 1877. Three times every century in the revolution of years will inauguration day fall on Sunday, about once in a man's lifetime. The next collision of dates, after 1877, will not be until the year 1917.

A Great Industry.

J. W. Peters, Secretary of the Butter and Cheese Exchange of New York, in an address delivered before the American Dairymen's Association, at Utica, N. Y., last week, estimated the annual American product of butter, at 1,400,000,000 pounds; of cheese at 300,000,000 pounds. The export of butter is about 15,000,000 pounds, while that of cheese for 1874 was nearly 114,000,000 pounds. Some of the Western butter received at New York, Mr. Peters says, is of fine quality, and the average quality was much improved in the last few years. Most Western butter, however, received there has its value fixed by the exporters. Better butter-packages are much needed, and the address strongly recommended metal packages instead of those of wood. Mr. Peters, thinks there is a falling off in the home demand for cheese, and, to encourage this, strongly recommends the manufacture of small cheese. The manufacture of skim-milk cheese was strongly condemned. The guaranteeing of weights of cheese by the shipper was thought important.

The Sandwich Islands.

King Kalakaua, of the Sandwich Islands, has attracted nearly as much attention during his visit to this country as he would have attracted had he been a European king with an ancestry of unlimited Bourbons. We, however, have a special interest in the Sandwich Islands, since their civilization is due to the labors of American missionaries. We are frequently told that Christian missions have been a failure. But here we have a civilized and intelligent gentleman who is the king of a nation that is more orderly than any European nation, and in intelligence and morality compares favorably with any nation of the Caucasian race. A little more than two generations ago the Sandwich Islands where a nation of brutal cannibals. It was solely the influence of the Christian missionaries which wrought the almost miraculous change which has taken place in so short a time. King Kalakaua is a visible testimony of what missionary effort can accomplish, and from this point of view his visit has a peculiar interest for religious people.

A New Finance Bill.

Representative Mason, of Iowa, has introduced in the lower house of Congress a bill supplemental to the bill to restore specie payments recently passed by that body. Section 1 provides that on Nov. 1, 1875, and for five months thereafter, any person may present, at the Sub-Treasury of the United States, legal-tender notes in sums of $50, or any multiple thereof, for exchange for gold, and receive gold in exchange at the rate of $50 for $100 in notes, and for each period of four months thereafter, the rate shall be successively advanced 1 per cent. in gold until July 1, 1878, and on and after Jan. 1, 1879, exchanged at par. Section 2 provides for presenting gold at the Treasury to be exchange for notes. Section 3 provides for the issuing of Treasury certificates for either class of funds, if such funds shall be at any time insufficient to meet the demands, which certificate shall be received for all payments due to the United States and payable in the funds represented by such certificates. Section 4 provides that the notes redeemed under the third section of the act "To provide for the Resumptiion of Specie Payments," shall not be reissued, but be cancelled and destroyed.

Text of the Finance Bill.

The following is the full text of the Finance and Currency bill passed by Congress. It has received the approval of President Grant, and is now the law of the land:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and required, as rapidly as practicable, to cause to be coined at the Mints of the United States, silver coins of the denominations of ten, twenty-five and fifty cents, of standard value, and to issue them in redemption of an equal number and amount of fractional currency of similar denomination; or, at his discretion, he may issue such silver coins through the Mints, Sub-Treasuries, Public Depositories and Post-offices of the United States, and upon such issue he is hereby authorized and required to redeem an equal amount of such fractional currency until the whole amount of currency outstanding shall be redeemed.

SEC. 2. That so much of section 3,524 of the Revised Statutes of the United States as provides for a charge of one-fifth of one per centum for converting standard gold bullion into coin is hereby repealed, and hereafter no charge shall be made for that service.

SEC. 3. That section 5,777 of the Revised Statutes of the United States limiting the aggregate amount of the circulating notes of national banking associations be and is hereby repealed, and each existing banking association may increase its circulating notes in accordance with the existing law, without respect to said aggregate limit, and new banking associations may be organized in accordance with the existing law, without respect to said aggregate limit, and the provisions of the law for the withdrawal and redistribution of national currency among the several States and Territories are hereby repealed, and whenever and so often as circulating notes shall be issued to any such bank association, so increasing its capital or circulating notes, or so newly organized as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem the legal-tender United States notes in excess only of $300,000,000 to the amount of eighty per centum of the sum of national bank notes so issued to any such banking association as aforesaid, and to continue such redemption as such circulating notes are issued until there shall be outstanding the sum of $300,000,000 of such legal-tender United States notes and no more. And on and after the 1st day of January, A. D. 1879, the Secretary of the Treasury shall redeem in coin the United States legal-tender notes then outstanding on their presentation for redemption at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States, in the city of New York, in sums of not less than $50. And to enable the Secretary of the Treasury to prepare and provide for the redemption in this act, authorized or required, he is authorized to use any surplus revenue from time to time in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and to issue, sell, and dispose of at not less than par in coin either of the description of bonds of the United States described in the act of Congress approved July 14, 1870, entitled "An act to authorize the refunding of the national debt," with like qualities, privileges, and exemptions to the extent necessary to carry this act into effect, and to use the proceeds thereof for the purposes aforesaid.

And all provisions of law inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

INDIANA NEWS.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

THAT "man wants but little here below," is illustrated by the following from the Newcastle Mercury: "Samuel White, one of the live farmers of Franklin township, has twenty acres of ground under cultivation, including fences, stable-lot and door-yard. During last year, 1874, he raised upon his little farm and sold $470 worth of hogs; killed eight head of hogs for his own meat, and has nineteen head of stock hogs for next year's feeding; two head of work-horses and one cow; raised one acre of potatoes, one acre of oats, had one acre in grass, a garden, and harvested forty bushels of wheat; has from 300 to 400 bushels of corn in his crib, and all from twenty acres of land."

An enthusiastic meeting was held at Evansville a few days ago on behalf of the projected improvement of the Ohio river.

PERSONAL.

DR. PHILIP H. BARTON, of Danville, has been re-appointed surgeon of the Danville and Vincennes railroad for the year 1875.

CASUALTIES.

TWO MEN and a woman, in attempting to cross the Ohio river, at Evansville, last week, in a small boat, were caught between two cakes of ice and carried some distance down the river. When rescued the woman was in an insensible condition and almost frozen.

MR. SAMUEL WILLIAMS, living near Lebanon, Boone county, while out hunting a few days ago, accidentally discharged his gun, the contents entering his abdomen, producing a fatal wound.

RAILROADS.

THE following record of railway constructions in Indiana during the year 1874 is taken from the Railway Gazette:

Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Chicago—Of the new part of this road, 114 miles is in Indiana, extending entirely across the northern part of the State.

Cincinnati, Rockport and Southwestern—Track was laid from the Ohio river, at Rockport, northward 40 miles to Jasper.

Frankfort and Kokomo—Completed from Frankfort northeast 25¾ miles to Kokomo, Ind., connecting the Logansport, Crawfordsville and Southwestern railway with the lines intersecting at Kokomo. Three miles of track was laid in 1873.

LEGAL.

JUDGE BICKNELL has rendered an elaborate decision in the suit of Valentine Kelly, deciding that the town of Ohio Falls, Hamilton county, has no legal existence. It is Clarksville and nothing else.

A $20,000 libel suit has been brought against the Indianapolis Sentinel Company by L. C. Curtiss of Newcastle.

DEATHS.

SAMUEL GRIFFIN, one of the oldest settlers in Henry county, died at his residence in Ogden last week. He had been a resident of that county for over half a century.

DAN H. BENNETT, a prominent newspaper man, died at his residence near Kokomo a few days since.

CHARLES H. STRICKLAND, a prominent citizen of Richmond, died suddenly of heart disease a few days ago.

CRIME.

JAMES LYTLE, 17 years of age, living near North Vernon, committed suicide recently by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a pocket-knife, because a young lady to whom he had been paying his addresses had broken the engagement.

THE notorious desperado, Bill Rodifer, has again escaped from the Southern Prison.

IN a drunken row at Xenia, recently, a man named Lee was shot by Eli Hayne, the ball entering on the left side and grazing the left lung. The victim is in a critical condition.

IN the case of Trible vs. the State of Indiana, tried at Brazil, Clay county, for the shooting of Thomas Gray, on the 11th of July last, the jury rendered a verdict of "not guilty."

MISCELLANEOUS.

QUARTERMASTER-GEN. SAMUEL BECK, has submitted his report to the Governor. The State owns 1,036 rifles of improved patterns and 176 old flint locks. There are nineteen militia companies in the State, armed under the law. He recommends the building of a State armory for the storage of arms and ammunition. There is due from the general government $29,406.78 worth of arms and stores.

THE excitement in Benton county over its "beast" was ended last week. A farmer put out a piece of poisoned liver, and the animal ate thereof to his hurt. The "beast" proved to be a large South American puma, an anim a very similar to the tiger.

THESE are hard times for County School Superintendents. A bill has been introduced in the Legislature for the abolition of that office.

JOHN SHUTE, a wealthy bachelor, of Richmond, is in trouble, Miss Annie Brown, a dashing dry goods clerk of that city, having brought three suits against him for breach of promise, seduction and bastardy, claiming $20,000 damages.

THE LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 14.—Senate—The papers in the contests of Walker against Carne and Jeffries against Baxter were received and referred....Bills introduced: For removing public officers for intoxication by the Circuit Court, on complaint of any citizen, on proper trial; preventing discrimination in railroad freights, providing that railroad companies shall pay double the amount of damages to shippers from failure to carry at reasonable rates, and not charge as much or more for transporting a less than a greater distance; fixing Judges' salaries—Supreme Judges $3,000, Circuit Judges $2,000, Criminal Judges $1,500, Superior Judges $2,500; requiring a vote of the people before County Commissioners shall appropriate more than $5,000 for any public building, bridge, etc.; providing for opening streets, which provides for the appointment of five freeholders each year by the Circuit Court as City Commissioners, and allows the assessment of benefit elsewhere than on the line of improvement; instructing the Committee on Temperance to embrace the local-option feature in any bill that it may report.

House—Bills introduced: Fixing local fare on railroads at three cents per mile, and freight at five cents per ton per mile when transported 30 miles or more, and six cents for less, iron, etc., to be five cents per ton; requiring county and township officers to account for interest received on public moneys; making the pay of County Superintendents $4 for each calendar day actually employed; providing that, in trials by jury, two-thirds be sufficient to make a verdict, signed by the foreman; fixing interest on money at 6 per cent.; exempting $300 worth of personal property owned by women, married and single, over 21 years of age, from service or sale for debt; compelling corporations to pay employes once each month, and, on failure, suit may be brought and execution issued thereon, returnable in thirty days, with no stay, and property sold on five days' notice, without benefit of valuation and appraisement; authorizing County Commissioners to borrow money at the legal rate of interest, to the amount of 1 per cent. on property valuation, and issue bonds therefor, for the purpose of erecting public buildings.

FRIDAY, Jan. 15.—Senate—Bills introduced: Requiring Township Trustees to levy a tax of fifty cents on $100 for the payment of school debts each year until such school debts are paid; authorizing towns to issue bonds to complete public buildings, not to exceed $10,000, at 8 per cent. interest, and not to be sold for less than ninety-four cents; allowing divorce judgments to be opened within two years by adverse party, as to alimony and care of children, where no other notice to defendant has been given than by publication; making desertion of wife and children a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $100 and sixty days' imprisonment; making grand and petit juries consist of six persons....Oliver presented a bill providing for a State Board of Health, consisting of six members, to be appointed by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate; also, for a Superintendent of Vital Statistics.

House—Bills introduced: Defining the liability of married women on their contracts, holding them responsible for any contract made with the consent of their husbands, the same as if they were unmarried; making libel punishable by $1,000 fine and six months imprisonment, justification the only defense. ....A resolution instructing the Temperance Committee to report a Temperance bill embracing the local option feature of the Baxter bill was tabled, 59 to 34, which vote demonstrates that the lower house disfavors the continuance of the Baxter law.

SATURDAY, Jan. 16.—Senate—The proceedings of the Senate were not of general interest.

House—A resolution looking to the amendment of the School law, so as to have the State Board of Education prescribe text books for the State, was defeated....Bills introduced: Establishing County Courts and abolishing Boards of Commissioners; making the legal rate of interest 6 per cent.; defining abortion as felony, with a penalty of from one to ten years' imprisonment; removing the disabilities of married women as to contracts.

MONDAY, Jan. 18.—Senate—Bills introduced: Asking the Governor to confer with the Governors of adjoining States as to the appointment of two commissioners from each State to devise and agree upon uniform laws for the regulation of railroads, the commissioners to receive the same pay as members of the Legislature, and to report their action to the next General Assembly; making blocking of streets by railroad cars a penal offense.

House—The Ways and Means Committee reported back and disapproved the bill exempting $300 worth of property held by heads of families from sale for debt....A resolution limiting the fees and salary of the Auditor of State to $4,000 was adopted unanimously.... Bills introduced: Authorizing the assessment of 8 cents on $100, and 50 cents for each poll, for revenue purposes for 1875-6; creating State University Board of Regents; authorizing the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to dismiss County Superintendents guilty of any immoral conduct.

TUESDAY, Jan. 19.—Senate—A resolution was introduced asking for an investigation of the Adam Earl contempt case in the Supreme Court, involving the reports of money paid for an early decision in the case of the Lafayette, Bloomington and Muncie railroad. The reports are of the alleged payment of $7,000 to ex-Judge Chas A. Ray, Godlove P. Behm, of Lafayette, and Law Librarian Graham, of Bloomington. A long discussion ensued on the resolution, which was finally referred to the Judiciary Committee....Bills introduced: Limiting the number of grand jurors to seven; to make void contract on railroad coupon tickets that, if detached, they will not be honored....A ballot for United States Senator was then taken, resulting as follows: McDonand 23, Pratt 15, Thompson 7, Buchanan 4, Holman 1.

House—A score or more of petitions were received on temperance, and one from 22 granges in Bartholomew and Browne counties, representing 10,000 citizens, praying that attendance upon public schools be made compulsory....At half-past 2 p. m. the House proceeded to ballot for United States Senator. On the first ballot the result stood: McDonald 53, Pratt 26, Buchanan 9, Curry 2, Holman 3, Browne 2; total 95.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 20.—Senate—Reports were made: From the Committee on Judiciary—To indefinitely postpone bill mak ng husband and wife competent witnesses against each other; concurred in....To indefinitely postpone bill 61, subjecting lands of married women to their own debts; concurred in....The election of prison directors and trustees of benevolent institutions, etc., was postponed until Feb. 17....After debate on the bill to repeal the act allowing interests on judgments the Senators proceeded to the House to compare the vote for United States Senator.

House—Bills reported from the Temperance Committee: Fixing license fee at $400, with bonds at $2,000; making drunkenness a misdemeanor, and providing penalties for the sale of liquors to minors, on Sundays, and on general elections....The Committee on Federal Relations reported favorably on the bill to enable the United States to acquire land for postoffice in Evansville....The Educational Committee reported in favor of a bill paying a debt of $22,168 of the State Normal School, and providing for a sinking fund of $20,000....A bill was introduced reducing the salaries of Supreme Court Judges to $3,000; Circuit Judges to $2,000; Criminal Circuit Judges to $1,500, and in cities of 40,000 inhabitants to $2,000, and Superior Judges to $2,250....The Committee on Ways and Means were authorized to inquire into the expediency of giving $20,000 to Kansas and Nebraska sufferers....The hour having arrived for the election of a United States Senator, both houses balloted in joint convention, and the vote resulted as follows: Whole number of votes cast, 145; necessary to a choice, 73; McDonald, 78; Pratt, 44; Buchanan, 19; Thomnson, 6.

Transit of Venus.

Judging from the mail reports of the observations of the recent transit of Venus, at least one important and interesting contribution to science has been made—rather, one error corrected. This was the "black drop" phenomenon. In previous observations the disk of Venus was noticed to be apparently elongated towards the edge of the sun's disk at the moment of contact, even as when one barely touches the surface of a bowl of water with a finger tip, then raises it slightly above the surface, a connecting drop appears between the flesh and the water. All the reports thus far received unite in declaring that no such phenomenon was observed last month, so that the "black drop" is to be considered but an optical delusion which better instruments and more accurate observations have corrected.

SURE CURE FOR FROST-BITE.—A mixture of equal parts of chloroform, balsam copaiva, and tincture capsicum, is almost as near a specific for frostbites and chilblains as is sulphur for the itch. The above can be had of any druggist, should be labeled for "external use," and kept closely corked. For use: Prepare a pledget of cotton or lint of proper size, shake the mixture well, saturate the pledget, place it on affected parts; then cover with a piece of thin manilla paper, well oiled, and over that a bandage. One application is usually sufficient, but may be repeated if necessary.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Rivalries of Women.

A woman writes in the Boston Globe: "One day, on the trip up, when reading a magazine, my attention was attracted by the glitter of a gold bracelet, which, look where I would, flashed before my eyes, and further scrutiny revealed the fact that the young lady who wore it was particularly anxious that I should be attracted by it, and, to further her design, began cutting the leaves of her magazine with a silver fruit-knife. For the purpose of showing her that I was not particularly dazzled, in fact that there was another such in the world, I took a gold pencil from my pocket and marked a passage in my book, for my bracelet was equal to hers. Observing that fact she drew off her glove and carefully arranged her veil so that I might not fail to see the heavily-chased ring which encircled her finger. I could 'go her one better' here; so taking off my glove, I drew down the blind, flashing a rare topaz and a solitaire diamond before her appreciative eyes. She saw, and quickly pulling off her other glove, displayed a splendid cluster diamond and a gigantic amethyst. I was slightly nonplused, but as she wore no earrings, I felt that after all I was even with her. At the instant she drew an elegant little watch from her belt, which she studied attentively two whole minutes, holding it up in full view, then turned to me as if to say; 'Well, go on.' I had done my best and could not answer the challenge, but thought mournfully of my poor little locket in a drawer at home, with one side all jammed in. When, at last, the aggravating creature took a jewel-case from her satchel and held up a lovely coral set, turning it this way and that to exhibit all its beauties, furtively glancing at me to be sure that I observed, I was utterly vanquished, completely routed, and so greatly absorbed in my book that I did not see a thing."

A Rich Angel Entertained Unawares.

A few evenings since there dropped into an up-town hotel, a man about five feet eight, with heavy chin-whiskers, and with rather a seedy and patched suit, but clean. He wanted lodging for the night, and inquired of the landlord if he could "bunk" with him. The landlord, not liking his condition and appearance, told him "he guessed not." The stranger took a seat and entered into conversation with some of the boarders. The landlord discovering during the evening that he was an educated man, remembered the saying of "entertaining angels unawares," told him he might stay if he paid in advance. The stranger at once took out about $10 in currency, and tendered a $5 bill for the payment. The landlord soon after took him to bed, and left him in his room, but stationed himself where he could see the occupant of the room. The stranger, after taking his boots off, got down on his knees in front of the bed and delivered the Lord's Prayer in a most impressive manner, after which he prayed for all the inmates of the house, for his friends and for his enemies, that they might be preserved from all danger and that they might be happy. He then arose and commenced undressing, in the meanwhile talking to himself and making expressions aloud like the following: "What a fool I have been;" "Some thieves might have picked me up;" "I wonder if I have got it;" then taking two large rolls of bank bills from different parts of his person, which he put under his pillow and then got into bed. The landlord says he never heard the Lord's Prayer repeated in a more impressive manner. The stranger is a heavy lumber dealer from the upper Hudson.—Troy Press.

Never Waste Bread.

One day, about one hundred and thirty years ago, a young Scottish maiden was busy about her household affairs, when an aged stranger came to the door and asked permission to enter and rest, requesting at the same time something to eat. The young girl brought him a bowl of bread and milk, and tried in various ways to make him comfortable. A piece of bread happening to fall on the floor, she pushed it out of the way into a heap of ashes. "Never waste bread!" cried the stranger, with much emotion, picking up the bread and putting it into his milk. "I have known the time when I would have given gold for a handful of corn kneaded in a soldier's bonnet." A quick suspicion crossed the girl's mind and sent her to the room of her invalid mother, who hastened to the kitchen on hearing the description of the old man with delicate hands and clean, coarse linen. In a moment she knew him to be the good Scottish Lord on whose estate they were tenants. He had just returned from the battle of Culloden, were the young Prince, Charles Edward, had been defeated by the royal troops. He and many others were obliged to hide for their lives. After being driven from one hiding-place to another, he at last found a safe hiding-place on a part of his estate where were large cairns, called the "Cairns of Pitsigo." The lady who tells the story says that "every one in the neighborhood knew of his residence;" the very children would go peep at him as he sat reading, but would never breathe his name. "Nor," she adds, "shall I ever forget the lesson the poor fugitive taught me—never to waste bread."

WAGGING ANOTHER BONE.—A New Hampshire school teacher lately was questioning one of his classes upon the anatomy of the human body, and, standing upon one foot, and swinging the other foot and limb, he inquired how many bones he was moving. Several incorrect answers were given at first, but after it had been answered correctly, the question was asked if any of the scholars thought differently. A little fellow, not yet in his teens, raised his hand immediately, signifying that he disagreed with his schoolmates, and the teacher, repeating the question, "How many bones was I moving?" was astonished to hear the little chap increase the proper number by one, in the same breath, giving as his reason, "You were moving your jawbone, too."

SPONGE JELLY CAKE.—One cup white sugar, one cup flour, three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of saleratus or soda and two of cream tartar. Bake fifteen minutes and roll while warm.

A FEW EPITAPHS.

ON A PATRIOT.

Here lies a soldier, under yon stone,
Stop passer-by, and heave a groan;
Groan, did I say? No—hurrah, for he is happy, I ween,
Singing Hail Columbia, Yankee Doodle, and God Save the Queen,
In the land of Glory, where he has been, by this time a cherubim. Amen.

A COUNTRY SCHOOL TEACHER.

In this grave lies Mary Edwards, a pretty school marm,
Who coaxed and flattered all the beaux, but never did them harm;
She was graceful, evanescent, but she faded like the dew,
And her age (excuse me for telling it) was just forty-two.

THE UNRULY MEMBER.

In this sacred spot my wife does lie,
She quit this world and went on high;
Her tongue wagged so fast for thirty long years,
[illegible]

DEATH OF A CHILD.

It was spotted measles that killed our Daisy;
When I think of her death it makes me so crazy,
I don't see why we should have so much trouble,
While others go "scot free" and of money have double

[illegible]

As death was sauntering idly by,
He spied the apple of my eye;
With cruel aim and no delay,
In her heart's core he put decay.

And like the fruit upon the tree
She dropped down dead in spite of me.
To celebrate her fall this day,
I raise a stone to Mary Grey.

A SLANDERER.

Here lies an old dame, with a dangerous tongue,
She slandered all her neighbors and really thought it fun;
She got so angry one day, when in a slanderous fit,
That a blood vessel burst, and the biter got bit.
This epitaph was written by her victims in the town,
And this heavy granite stone was laid to keep her body down.

Humorous.

PIECE-MAKER—Bull in a china shop.

WAR—Murder set to music.

A POWERFUL motive—The locomotive.

LONESOME—A man minding his own business.

SOMEBODY says that King Koffee is a wreck. Somebody else says that all kings are Rex.

A WISCONSIN man recently killed six skunks in one day. After interviewing the first one he became reckless, and so kept on.

"You see that man there!" she replied; "well, he's my husband. The baby's sick, and he said give her castor ile, and I said goose grease, and thar he lays!"

THE Duluth woman who put the kerosene can on the stove-hearth while she went out to trade with a peddler is now keeping house in a barn, kindly loaned for the occasion.

A CHAP who spent $1,500 to graduate from Harvard is Postmaster in Iowa at $24 per year. He would "swap" his knowledge of Greek roots for a hill beans if he could.

"DON'T be angry with me, darling," is an appropriate song for a man to sing after he has blackened both of his wife's eyes. It goes to show that he is a man of fine feeling.

AN hour passed on—the Turk awoke. He had been sleeping in front of a grocery in Cairo, and as he got up he pulled out a revolver and wounded three men, saying, "Somehow I don't feel lively to-day."

THE captain of an amateur base-ball club, when trying to make an excuse for his having been defeated, said: "It's no wonder you beat us, for the man who played left field for us couldn't even read."

A RASH refusal—Customer (flying from importunate tradesman): "No, thank you, nothing more, really! Not another article, thank you! Good morning! [Escapes!—ha! ha!—refusing his own umbrella!]—Punch.

BAGGS got up too early one morning, and began to scold the servant girl. His little six-year-old, who had been listening attentively during the conversation, broke in with, "Father, stop scolding; you needn't think that Jane's your wife."

A SCOTCHMAN went to a lawyer once for advice, and detailed the circumstances of the case. "Have you told me the facts precisely as they occurred?" asked the lawyer. "Oh, ay, sir!" replied he; "I tell ye the plain truth. Ye can put the lies into it yourself!

As a gentleman was nearly run over in a narrow London street by a dray, he shouted to the driver, "Do you want to kill me?" whereupon the intelligent driver put the thumb of his dexter hand to his nose, and, spreading out his fingers like a fan, replied, "If I had knowed you was a-coming this way, I would have sent you a post-card!"

"ARE you going after the sugar?" called a Marquette mother to her boy, who was in the street. "Am I going after that sugar?" drawls the youth in a saucy and impertinent tone; just then he happened to see his father coming up behind him, and he said very respectfully and lovingly, "Why, of course I am, ma—I didn't know you needed it right away."

Artistic Wasps.

The evolutionists have received unexpected encouragement from a colony of English wasps which lately developed a taste for artistic decoration. A many-colored nest was discovered suspended from the branch of an apple-tree. Undulating lines of red, blue, green, yellow and white went round and round the spherical nest with great regularity, the colors being kept distinct and the whole presenting a very curious specimen of insect paper-making. The owner of the orchard was for a long time puzzled to account for this phenomenon, but it was at length discovered that the wasps had procured their material from a lot of colored paper trimmings which had been used to cover strawberry beds in a neighboring garden. The question naturally arises, why did these wasps keep the tints separate if they were insensible to color?

"CASTOR ILE."—A policeman passing along Macomb street, in Detroit, a few days ago, halted in front of a house which had two broken windows, and, sticking his head through one of them, he saw a man seated on a chair, with his head bound up, other chairs broken to pieces, and the room looking as if a big row had taken place.

Auburn Courier.
THURSDAY, JANUARY 28, 1875.

☞The Mexicans have expelled from the country 148 sisters of charity. They will be driving all the ewe lambs into exile next

☞The senatorial contest in Tennessee is exceedingly hot. Although two of the contestants have withdrawn Andy's chances are not particularly flattering.

☞Pinchback is again put into the limbo of the committee on privileges and elections. He has spent two years in that paradise of circumlocution and red tape already ☞Senator Sherman stated in his speech on the Louisiana affair that Gen Sheridan had said that "3,500 murders had been committed since 1866." Sheridan said nothing of the kind. He said that 3,500 persons had been "murdered and wounded," which is a vastly different matter.

☞Reno of Owen is as miserable as 'his friend and 'The Plan.' These two gentleman are troubled sore because the treacherous democrats diden't make unmitigated asses of themselves by electing a man to the United Staes who didn't know as much [illegible] three year-old boy ought to know about the functions of money. But at this point the paths of the malcontents diverge, Reno mourning for Voorhees and "the Plan,, for himself. Both have sought consolation in the columns of the newspapers which they manage to cumber with an precedented overflow of swash.

☞The Hon, Isaac Jenkinson late consul to Glasgow, assumes control of the Fort Wayne Daily Gazette, as business manager and editor in chief Mr. Jenkinson was formerly proprietor of the Gazette having sold his interest in 1869. Mr. J. J. Grafton, late business manager, continues as a stockholder but discontinues his connection with the management of the paper. Mr. Samuel Morse, manageing editor, has resigned. It is understood that the Gazette will be immediately enlarged to an eight page paper.

☞Bro Weamer thought our article on Louisiana smelt too much of copper, but it was only a reflex of a large portion of the Republican press, as well as a large number of influential members of that party.

Vice President Wilson said, "that the whole Louisianna business was wrong, that the mismanagement of affairs had become odious to the people, that he had no voice in its affairs, but if his suggestions had been accepted two years ago this whole southern trouble would have been averted."

Wm. Cullen Bryant said; "These practices which contemplate the subjection of local politics to the Federal authorities, by the exercise of the military power must be denounced, must be stopped, must be broken up forever!"

President Grant said in his message "I am well aware that any military interference, by the officers of troops of the United States, with the organization of a State Legislature or any of its proceedings, or with any civil department of the government, is repugnant to our ideas of government. I can conceive of no case not involving rebellion or insurrection where such interference, by the authority of the general government, ought to be permitted, or can be justified."

The sub-committee on Louisiana affairs consisted of two intelligent, firm Republicans, and one mild Democrat; and after examining a large number of witnesses, black and white, they unanimously reported that the disturbances in Louisiana originated from the action of Republican politicians, and that the White League was composed of peaceable, law abiding citizens.—The report of the committee was so unexpected to the radical members of Congress, that another committee has been appointed, and have proceeded to New Orleans to further investigate the matter, a report from whom will be looked for with a good deal of interest

The unauthorized authority exhibited by Sheridan is unfortunate, not only to Louisiana but the whole south Sergeant Ed. Kennedy thinks that Gen. Sheridan enjoys the situation.—The following is from him to the Fort Wayne Journal:

Sheridan being assigned to duty
In the city of New Orleans,
The ladies admire his beauty—
The lovely creole queens.

SPEAK OUT.

We have heard much, and written some ourself about "salary grabbing" yet there is an unusal reticence manifested by the Democratic press in reference to the more than $200,000 that came into the hands of one Schumaker, a democratic member of Congress from New York, through the hands of one Irvin agent of the Pacific Mail Company Why don't the Columbia City Post, the two Murray's the Ligonier Banner, Auburn Courier [illegible] gentlemen, let us hear from you!—Northern Indianian.

The editors of the Indianian well knew that Mr. Mays was at the State Capitol using his influence to correct the abuses of a former Republican administration, and that his paper was left in the hands of boys, or they never would have made the above request. But when so "large and influential" a paper as the Indianian commands, we must obey.

Misery, they say, loves company, and it is not at all surprising that the most corrupt and money-grabbing administration that ever disgraced the country, should try to ring in Democrats and make them particis criminis in their disgraceful transactions. They even tried to implicate the tall Sycamore but he appeared before the Ways and Means Committee and proved an alibi, and so with a number of other Democrats. It is nothing very strange that one weak-kneed Democrat, or even more, amid this wholesale surrounding of greenbacks, should depart from the principles of their party and with Zachariah share the loaf.

Democrats are opposed to corruption, no matter from what source it comes, and if the editors of the Indianian are in any doubt in regard to which party is the most responsible for the Pacific Mail rascality, we refer them as a matter of history to the Congressional Globe of 1871–2, where they will find that the principal speakers supporting that measure were Republicans, and the speakers in the negative Democrats.

The great body of affirmation votes were Republicans, and the great mass of negative votes Democrats, and if any doubts exist in regard to which party got the most money, we would invite them to take a peep into Irvin's budget and look at the lists given to the Committee—some editors got $25,000. Mr. Mays got nothing, nor we presume the editors of the Indianian, as we believe they were not very strong advocates of that measure. But why talk about such small matters, or does our Bros. wish to confine us to Schumakers account.

We remember of a Methodist minister being elected to Congress, that was too poor to buy a horse and saddle bags, and now he owns tracts of land larger than Kosciosko County.—Schumaker could not begin to buy them, and numerous other instances of the same kind.

We have an indistinct recollection of an humble dealer in butter and eggs residing in Warsaw some years ago, that scratched his head to see if it felt wooly enough to go to Congress. He went—and there found such a flood of unparalled corruption that at the close of his speech on railroad monopolies he sung the following touching hymn:

"And are we yet alive,
And do we still rebel?
'Tis wondrous, 'tis amazing grace
That we are out of hell."

We are gratified to state, however, that he survived, but soon deserted the home of his youth, it not being high-toned enough for him, and now stands around with the nabobs at Washington. Fortunes were made in a day in those times, Bro. Indianian. We had a man at the helm who signed a bill increasing his own salary and did'nt care a d—n for expenses, and his trusty supporters followed in the wake.

But those halcyon days have passed, honest old Democrats are coming up from all parts of the country, and it is amusing to notice what a number of these precious, thieving rascals have business in the old country, out of the reach of investigating committees. If Schumaker is a Democrat he has got a Republican memory, it is very treacherous in regard to money matters.—He swears before the committee that he don't know anything about the money, if he got it he paid it out according to directions. Money either strengthens or blunts the memory wonderfully.

The Indianian says that it has written something on salary-grabbing—why not write something about King who was not worth a cent when he commenced his duties as door-keeper and lobby member of Congress, but left a millionare.

Shumaker, according to his own testimony, was only an agent to disburse the funds; while others of all classes, Congressmen, Editors, Bankers, Postmaster-generals, ex-Mayors, Newspaper Correspondents, Lawyers and Door-keepers were bought with money, and thereby convinced that the Pacific Mail Subsidy was a sublime necessity.

The Sandwich Island King said in New York, speaking of things at home, "that they had too much missionary." Perhaps the editor of the Indianian in only selecting Schumaker for a subject, was because they thought the others might be too much Republican, and "that's what we told Emily."—Next.

☞The New York Times in discussing the qualities of the new senators, speaks of Mr. McDonald in the following terms:

Joseph E. McDonald, of Indiana who was chosen after a severe struggle promises to exert considerable influence in the Senate. What his abilities may be as a legislator remains to be seen but as a political manager, he has no equal in his own party in the West and we are inclined to think none in the East. He was chairman, during the last canvass of the democratic committee of his state. He leans at present toward a progressive policy, but we shall not expect to see him cling to it at the risk of any serious check for his party Professing to be a hard money man he was named by a caucus that adopted resolutions in favor of inflation and repudiation. On the whole he promised to be a formidable politician and his position in the Senate will soon show how far he possesses also the qualities of a statesman.

The conservative members of the Louisiana legislature offer to throw their case into the hands of the four members of the special committee on Southern affairs now in New Orleans. These four gentlemen are Hoar Frye, Wheeler and Marshall. The conservatives must certainly have lively faith in the goodness of their cause and the goodness of human nature, or they would never trust their intrests in such hands.

Valentines for all, at Houser & Co.

Gordon & Roth are the premium artists

Rubber Boots down, at J. E. Woodford's

Frozen ears are a common affliction now.

We will soon have a cigar manufacturer among us.

A standing invitation—taking a drink with a friend.

Jas Lowrie is organizing a combination troupe here.

Examine Abright's stock of Ladies Gold Watches.

Teachers; it will pay you to go to Houser & Co. for prepared cards.

Mr. A. O. Miller's troup will soon give us a performance.

Remember that Mrs. Little & Fair have moved their shop.

If you want watches neatly repaired go to Abright's.

J. E. Chandler, of Chicago, is now a guest of Cy Boughan.

The Angola people are to have a Masquerade Ball to-night.

Selling Boots & Shoes of all kinds lower than ever, at J. E. Woodford's.

Some of our merchants are engaged in the arduous task of invoicing.

We have a lawful partnership firm of corporation fiddlers.

All subscribers out side of the county must pay for their paper in advance.

Abright will sell watches at greatly reduced prices for the next 30 days.

We notice Mr. Speck brother of our townsman Johney Speck, on the streets.

There were 275 iron horses 'kicked the stuffin' out of each other, on the different railroads, last year.

Money is so scarce in Michigan that a dollar bill creates as much excitement as a circus poster.

Every family in Auburn has a private skating rink. It lies in front of their gates, on the sidewalk.

There is a new song entitled "Why did he leave her, because she was poor?" The title settles the question.

M. Weis, Esq., of Fort Wayne, gave us a glimpse of his charming phiz on last Tuesday.

[illegible]bright has a large stock of Jewelry that is being closed out at your own price.

Mr. Gilbert, agent for the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R. R. at Butler, was in the city last Saturday.

We hear many of our ladies tell some very pitiful tales about their geraniums, monthly roses, &c., "gone died."

"We pledge ourselves to drink whiskey moderately," is the cordial precept of the Mt. Vernon Temperance Society.

Bills have been introduced in the Legislature to prevent Stallins, Bulls &c. from running at large. Alas, poor Beecher.

Brother Beecher says he is the happiest man in the whole nation. Brother Beecher probably does not tell the truth.

If any of our merchants have special bargains to offer these dull times, let them tell the people through the Courier.

An Auburn lady had her ear "Cooked," at the sleighing party last week, by the severe frost. Her escort must have been bashful, very.

Go to Abright's for a fine article in Silver Plated Knives, Spoons, Fork, & every thing in the line of Silver and Plated ware.

Lewries Combination troup will visit Corunna to-night and give one of their splendid entertainments. Its worth your quarter.

Fire.—Last Saturday about four o'clock the residence of Mr. John Cool, living three miles North of the city, was burnd to the ground.

Undertakers smile to see "promising" young men carry revolvers in their hind pocket during the slippery sidwalk season.

Our clever townsman, W. H. Dills, has been afflicted for several days with a sore throat.

The rumor that John Hebel, is not going to build his new block is all false. We have our information from John, himself.

When young ladies turn their backs on the young men now-a-days, it is not because they are mad, but because they want to show their new overskirts.

Al. Dawson, of Spencerville, with S. C. Evans, of Fort Wayne, have started to California to invest in the wild lands.—Will return in March.

"Will you take some of this butter, Mister?" "Thank you ma'am, I belong to the temperence society—can't take any thing strong."

A little more attention given to the matter of sprinkling ashes on the walks in front of the business houses would be thankfully received by the public.

We noticed a number of citizens from the Pollowag's delight last Saturday.—They smile over the prospects of Garret to much.

This is the season of the year when careless people dump red hot ashs into a barrel, and then wonder how the fire originated.

The wife of an ex-Treasurer McQueen, of Bartholomew county, Ind., was killed at Columbia, Ind., by the backing of a train a few days ago.

The merchants of our place are enjoying a fine trade, and the reason is because Auburn men sell the best goods that can be purchased.

Special attention paid to manufacturing and reparing Boots and Shoes of every description, by W. W. Humes, at J. E. Woodford's.

Several Auburn boys consider it "high toned," to wear a thirty-five cent undershirt, displaying its scarlet band above a reversible chalked up paper collar.

McConell Esq., of Angola, gave us a short stay on last Tuesday Morning. He was on his way to Chicago via of the Baltimore & Chicago R. R.

There, now; a fellow is safe for a while Judge Walsh, of Brooklyn, has decided that a woman has no right to open her husband's letters.

S. J. Lock, and a friend of his of Waterloo, was in the city Tuesday. They were on their way to Garret City, having a speculation in view.

Mrs. McCrum, living about one mile west of Sedan, dropped dead on Monday last. She is quite an old lady which perhaps was the case of such sudden death.

John Treesh, of Fairfield tp., has purchased the City bakery, and will soon take possession. He will keep a full assortment of groceries tobaccos &c, in connection with the bakery.

Our time has been so closely occupied in the job department, for the past several days, that we have been obliged to neglect our local page. Hunting items after night are as hard to find, as saloons that will trust.

We have never yet seen a young man, who had found some girl silly enough "to strike up a flirtation with him," who did not pronounce her to companions (who had never seen her) as "the pootiest girl that ever lived."

We have received from Hon. W. W. Curry, Secretary of State, a copy of his annual report. Among other things, it contains a list of senators and representatives from Indiana since the admission of the state into the Union.

The ladies of the Methodist church held their social at Dr. J. H. Ford's residence on Wednesday evening, last week and we are informed that it was a most enjoyable affair. The number present was large, and the entertainments were all amusing.

Mrs. Little & Co, have removed to their old stand, on North Main st. The room they have lately been occupying is too small for their business,—we mean there wasn't room to twist up Ostrich feathers as the style requires.

He weighs one hundred and fifty pounds and six ounces. The basket contained four dozen eggs and two lamp chimneys As he fell on main street, he murmured: "Eggs thirty cents a dozen and the Louisiana muddle not settled! What will Mary say?"

A gallant school boy's toast: "The girls! May they add charity to beauty subtract envy from friendship, multiply genial affections, divide time by industry and recreation, reduce scandal to its lowest denomination, and raise virtue to its highest power."

An industrious Auburn mechanic, out of employment, bought a wood saw and buck a few weeks ago. Every morning he looks longingly at his purchase, imagines he had done a fair day's work borrows a dime from the first man he meets buys a loaf of rye bread and sleeps in a hay-mow. But for the saw and buck the man would starve.

A newly married man says everybody ought to pay their wives for doing the housework, just the same as they would anyone else. A terrible precedent to establish, and one fraught with untold dangers. The women would come down on us for back pay, and the panic that would ensue would paralyze business for ten years to come.

You good sounding instruments, the Auburn Cornet Band cannot be beat in the State, and all should remember that they will give a first-class dramatic performance, and will give some fine selections of music, during the intervals of the performance. Next week we will state when they will appear.

Last Monday evening our citizens were entertained by Stephen's "Art show," By the aid of the Stereo-panopticon, a new instrument for producing photographic picture, he was enabled to illustrate historical events, works of art, etc, in a truly wonderful manner. Where this entertainment visits, the citizens should give it a liberal patronage.

It is reported that a man went home at about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning; and using his finger for a billiard cue smote his sleeping wife in the short ribs crying "Pool!" and sunk into a sweet slumber. He has since explained to his wife that women can have no idea how the cares of business will sometimes affect the brain.

We call special attention to J. E. Woodford's new advertisement in this issue. He has one of the finest stocks of boots and shoes in the county and all is of the best material the market affords, call in when you are in need of this kind of goods. W W. Humes, is forman of the manufacturing department and owing to this fact we need not comment.

The Methodist denomination, of our place, have their church about completed on the inside, and will commence holding service on next Sunday morning. They have been to great expense in moving and reparing this edifice, but what has been done has added much to the comfort and beauty of the building. It will be finished on the outside early in the spring when they will re-dedicate, it.

Fire.—On last Monday evening about eleven o'clock the frame barn of J. C. Sommers was discovered to be on fire. The fire seemed to be in the hay-mow, and there is no doubt but that it was the work of an incendiary. Mr. S. was not at home at the time. There was hay, corn etc, in the building, of quite a large amount, which was nearly all destroyed. Every thing was insured.

At Last.—Yesterday the vexed question as to the location of a depot on the B. & O. R. R, between here and Hicksville was settled as between Concord, Boylestown, St. Joe and Coburntown, resulted in favor of the St. Joe nag. It has been a long and windy race. Buildings to consist of elevetor and passenger house, similar to the one here, and completed June 1st, 1875.

The Fox hunt at corunna, last saturday resulted in catching six foxes. Two wild turkeys were in the ring and one of them became so frightened with the noise and confusion that one of the gentlemen picked it up. The crowd was immense, and every one was so well pleased that they think of giving it another trial. Joe. L. caught the largest fox—one of the hounds had just droped it a minute or two before, however.

Examination of Teachers.

No further regular examination will be held until March, as the the teachers for the winter schools are nearly, or quite, all engaged; and I wish to have all my time for institute work. But should any require examination, time and place can be settled by applying to me.

C. P. Houser goes to Indianapolis, in a few days to engage with C. E. Dickinson & Co. Manufactures of the celebrated "Triumph" School Desk, and dealers in all kind of school supplies. C. P. has has for the last three years been the agent in North Eastern Ind., for A. H Andrews & Co. of Chicago, during which time he has furnished numerous school houses and churches, with the latest and most approved style of furniture. And has through his integrity and promptness in business won the confidence of many school and church officers

We have just received some splendid visiting cards.

J. Abright, Esq., has purchased the corner owned by Mrs Fair, on Main street, and will take immediate stepes to erect a fine business room. The contract will be let to-day. Joe has shown a lively spirit in the way of business and enterprise ever since he has been in our midst, and we wish him abundant success

Mr. John Lanning, father of our County Clerk J. R. Lanning, Esq., died with "acute bright's disease," at his son's residence, on January 25th, 1875, at the advanced age of eighty years. He moved from Ohio, in 1848, to this county where he has since resided. He was a highly respected citizen, and his friends through out the county will deeply deplore his loss.

We have been shown a design for an upholstered front gate, which seems destined to become very popular. The foot board is cushioned, and there is a warm soap stone on each side, the inside of the step being adjustable, so that a short girl can bring her lips to the line of any given moustache without trouble. If the gate is occupied at 10:20 P. M., an iron hand extends from one gate post, takes the young man by the left ear, turns him around, and he is at once started home by a steel foot. The girl can if she likes, set this part at a later hour than 10:30.

We are pleased to say that no firm in the world does a more, square and fair business, than that of Messrs Miller & Casebeer, the leading merchants of Northern Indiana. Parties who wish to purchase goods, could make their expenses by buying of the above firm, even if it took a whole day to come, and return to Auburn. At present they are having a clearing out sale, and it is immaterial to these gentlemen, whether they make a cent or not. All they ask, is what the goods cost them. We hope our friends will remember this.

A young man named Manford Parker, residing near Huntertown, was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun, on Saturday. The ramrod passed entirely through his body

Two boys was preparing for a hunt, and before starting they loaded their guns.—One of the ramrods fastened itself, and the boys got upon the floor, one of them taking the gun the other the rod, and bracing themselves by putting their feet together they commenced pulling, when the gun went off, resulting as above.

The deceased was a nephew of our townsman J. R. Moody, Esq.

F. G. Fried has employed "Charles Knapp" for clerk in his store.

Lafe Miller took a span of mules from the hitching post, on the sly, to haul a load of wood to the depot. After getting the wood loaded and nicely perched upon the seat, drove toward the depot, and as he neared it the mules became frightened and backing the load further away than it was in the first place. Lafe was so frightened that he unloaded the wood and replaced the team. Two hours afterward he had not recovered from his fright, and carried the mail bag into the butcher shop.

Letter From Indianapolis.

January 28th, 1875.

Dear Courier.—The result of the Senatorial canvass, as you doubtless know, resulted in favor of Hon. Joseph E. McDonald. This result seems highly satisfactory in this part of the State, and I have no doubt that it will prove so, in time, to every locality. On the first ballot Mr. McDonald received 78 votes out of 145. Pratt, Holman, Curry, Thompson and Buchanan dividing the balance between them. A great deal of interest was manifested in this election, and on the day that the Assembly met, Jan. 15th the lobby of the House, where the joint session was held, was densely packed, many ladies being present. In the evening a grand banquet was held, at the Occidental by Mr. McDonald to which about three hundred of his friends were present among them many Republicans, personal friends. Toasts were made by the new Senator, Gov. Hendricks, Leut. Gov. Saxton and many others, and "several" bottles of champagne were opened. Champagne may be a fashionable drink but I confess I don't have much hankering after it.

Last Thursday was agreed upon by the House and Senate to hear the ladies on the subject of temperance, and 3 o'clock in the afternoon found every available place in the House, packed with ladies.—They swarmed around the Speaker and Clerk's desk, until there was just room enough left to breathe. After prayer by one of the ladies, Mrs Governor Walker, made a very fine address, or appeal, as she called it, and the friends of temperance may feel proud over their advocate. It was the best argument I have ever heard on the subject. Mrs. Aveline of Fort Wayne, followed in an imprompta address, which was listened to with great attention. She made a touching appeal on behalf of mothers for their husbands and sons, being fresh from the grave, she said, of a dear son who had perished thro' the traffic.

Mrs. Doctor Robinson, of this city, next followed, and it was delightful to hear this charming little woman lend her voice in the good cause.

While I am in favor of a license law that will cut down this traffic, yet I believe such noble women as these will accomplish more in their persistent efforts than the public will concede. They presented petitions against the repeal of the present law, signed by twenty-three thousand and three women of Indiana, certainly a strong remonstrance, and one that cannot be passed by unheeded.

Work is going on in the Legislature as fast as is consistent with a faithful discharge of public duty, and a great many bills have been introduced in both branches, looking to the interests of the State.—Though the House is somewhat incongruous in its composition, yet it is a splendid working body and we believe the result will be heartly Legislation.

The other day, finding a spare moment I stepped down into the office of the State Geologist, and had quite an interesting conversation with Prof. E. T. Cox, on his pet theme Geology. He is a most agreeable gentleman, a fine conversationalist, an active indefatigable and well versed in his business. I presented the specimen of lead taken from the soil of DeKalb County, and asked his opinion of a lead or gold mine in that region. His answer dashed my hopes at once, I tried to compromise, and insisted that he must acknowledge at least the existence of coal in paying quantities but he would not even concede this point.

He stated that the Northern part of the State was covered with glacial deposits to the depth of from 60 to 200 feet. Such specimens as I presented, he said, were derived from the disintregating of rocks, which lay north of us and which were brought there by the action of moving ice or glaciers similar to those now in Switzerland. Any minerals found in our part of the State are derived from this source, and never exist in paying quantities.—When in paying quantities they are found in places imbedded in rock.

The presence of any ore in our county may be accounted for in this way, and reliable quantities can only be expected in the rocks which lie at the base of the drift. Throughout the north part of the State, precious metals are found in the drift, but not in sufficient quantities to pay working them.

The geological position of rocks underlying DeKalb County belonging to the Magora or upper Silurian epoch, similar in its lithological (stone like) character to the stone which is found in Wabash or Joliet. In other words the Professor made out DeKalb County to be entirely barren of any mineral wealth unless we went down several hundred feet for it.

I ask him if the glacial decomposition disentegrated from the ledges and metalurgic substances, did not spring from volcanic eruptions and culminate in a gigantic fraud. He tumbled immediately and allowed I was in the main correct.—And I left him.

Dr. Boschee's German Syrup.

Go gh no more! How much joy there is in every household to know that they can at least procure a remedy for any case of coughs severe colds settled in the breast Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs that is certain to cure. It is a satisfaction to know that a person is safe from the dangers of these disease—all you need do is to go to F. E. DAVANPORT'S and get a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup, two or three doses will relieve you at once. If you doubt what we say in print get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it or a regular size for 75 cents.

BUTLER ITEMS.

The farmers are taking advantage of the fine sleighing, and are busily engaged in hauling logs and wood. C. S. Stey's saw mill South of railroad is receiving 130 logs per day, he has got 3,000 logs piled in his log yard now, and expects as many more by the end of the week.

One night last week, two vile fiends entered the residence of J. Elton's, an Eel River Conductor. Mr. Elton being away from home. Mrs. E. heard them and raised the window, and yelled murder, fire, and something else to such an extent that it scared the thieves out of their boots and they ran as if the old boy was after them, and the woman stopped yelling. No damage done.

Last Saturday evening John Bales a switchman, on the yard here, in coupling cars, got his hand between the dead woods and got three of his fingers smashed, John has been lucky a long time, but time only determins the fate of Railroad men.

The Methodist's are holding a protracted meeting, at Hoverstoch's corners, and we learn they are haveing brilliant success. Some twenty have expressed religion. Let the good work go on, Bro. Podicord was called away, his wife's mother not being expected to live, he let the meeting in the hands of Father John McCurdy and we well all know that there will be no lack of energy. Father M. knows just how to manage such meetings, and I venture to say, he will convert as many souls with the help of God as the next man.

The Methodist society had a donation supper last Thursday eveing for the Minister and the net Proceeds were forty dollars.

Those boys that run horses going home from meeting and get their sleighs all broke up, had better stop it before they get their necks broken. You had better read the calamity that occured at Lagrange a few weeks ago from the same kind of business and then consider danger

The Fox chase, the other day, resulted in the hunters coming out second best the Fox is still runing at large.

Mr. Dickinson from Edgerton, Ohio congregationalist preached at the methodist church last sabbath.

Lost—A week or so ago Mrs J. E. Fisher had the misfortune to lose a green vel between the Presbyterian church and Mrs. Wartenslaben's corner. The finder will confer a favor by leaving the same at this office.

YOUTH AND AGE.

When I was young there seemed to be
No pleasure in the world for me;
My fellows found it everywhere,
Was none so poor but had his share—
They took mine, too!
I sought in vain; it was my fate
To be too early, or too late;
The when was there, the [illegible] was down—
and why? and to what golden zone?
If youth but knew!

Why art thou, Youth, so swift, so slow?
Why dost thou let thy pleasures go?
All that they grasp thy hands let fall;
The best they do not grasp at all,
Do not pursue!
What tingles in my blood like wine
Those tender eyes that turn to mine,
The soft tears in my eyes that start—
Tell me, what does it mean, my heart?
If youth but knew!

Now I am old there seems to be
No pleasure in the world for me;
[illegible] for what is past,
Because I did not hold it fast,
[illegible] is now!
That youth is weak, and age is strong,
Should be the burden of my song,
And might be in my happier hours,
If autumn leaves were summer flowers,
If age could do!

Mock not my sighs, and my white hair,
O Youth so foolish and so fair!
Remember, life is not all June;
The lean and slippered pantaloon
Awaits thee too!
Be wise, delay not, oh, make haste!
Go, steal your arm around her waist;
The rosebud mouth begins to blow;
Stoop down and kiss it—so, boy, so!
If age could do!

Dum vivimus, the wise men say,
And you can do it as well as they;
So live and love, then, while you can,
Nor sigh, like me, when you are a man,
"If youth but knew!"
Far better be where Folly dwells,
And shake him with your jangling bells,
Than hear belated Wisdom come,
And beat upon the muffled drum,
"If age could do!"

ROSAMOND'S BOWER.

Love was everything to Margaret Mercer—love and home. She was such a very woman to the heart's core, that I doubt if she had any ambition. To wish to be great, to be known of all the world, to be very wise or learned, never entered her simple mind; but one thing she hoped and labored for with all her might—to be empress of her husband's heart, and living queen regnant in his home. Such a home as she made of it, too—so bright in every nook and corner—so bright as she was with her fair, smooth face—smooth save for dimples.

Mathew Mercer should have been a very happy man, and so he esteemed himself. Two children as pretty as their mother played at her knee; and there never had been an angry word between the pair since he first courted her. They were as greatly blessed as were Adam and Eve in paradise. But even to paradise, as we remember, there came a serpent. So, to Margaret Mercer's home came one day Elsie Grey, as fair a serpent as one could meet—a woman of whom one said, looking at her for the first time, "She is as good as she is beautiful." She came as governess for the children; and Margaret, charmed by her sweet face, made a compact of friendship with her at once, and was well pleased that Mathew liked the girl.

"She is so lonely, my dear," said Margaret, looking up into her husband's eyes, as they stood together before the pleasant fire on the first evening after the governess' coming. "And it is hard for any woman to earn her bread among strangers; let us be very good to her."

"You could not help being good to any one, Margaret," said Mathew, "and I will try; but I must not quite make love to her—eh, Maggie?"

Then the wife had turned and kissed him.

"I should be jealous, and put poison in a bowl of coffee, and offer her the choice between that and your sharpest razor," she said, laughing.

That was in December. One day in June Margaret walked a little thoughtfully among the roses in the garden, and wondered whether it might not be that she was a little jealous.

"So wrong of me," she said to herself. "Mathew is only kind to Elsie."

A tear trembled on her eyelash, and at last she sat down upon a bench and fairly sobbed aloud, telling herself all the while how wrong it was.

And just then, without knocking, in walked Miss Euphemia Jones, her next-door neighbor, and looked straight into the wet eyes, turned, somewhat indignantly, upon her.

"Ain't well, eh?" said the spinster.

"Not very," said Margaret. "And tired, you know, and——"

"And unhappy," said the spinster. "Don't tell me, Mrs. Mercer. And this I say—get rid of that sly boots of a governess, or you'll have more reason to cry than you have now. Men are men, Mrs. Mercer, and your husband——"

"He is the best man in the world," said Margaret.

"But he's a man," said the spinster. "Why, look here, my dear. Men are men. The last bright eyes are always brightest. It's only women that love through long years with nothing to show for it—not a kiss, not a word, not a letter; women that love some one pithout a speck of beauty until there couldn't be any face so bright and dear to them in all the world. Men ain't like us, and never will be, and this Elsie Grey is pretty, my dear."

"But Mathew is my husband," panted Margaret.

"Then he ought not to go a-walkin' with Miss Grey," said the spinster; "holding her hand, too—he oughtn't. Don't be frightened. But there's something you ought to know—he oughtn't to go out of town along with her. We saw them go, I and Mrs. Thompson, only an hour ago. My dear, did you know they were going? My dear, don't look so; don't feel so, if you can help it. She had a bag with her; so had he. She——"

But then the wretched wife fell forward into her neighbor's arm, insensible.

Other neighbors came in, and they put her to bed and took care of her as though for once all women were sisters. There was no doubt on any one's mind that the very worst had come to pass; and so, indeed, it had. Bewitched by the beautiful serpent his wife's kind heart had warmed and nourished until it had strength to sting her, Mathew Mercer had left his home, his wife, and his children, for her sake.

Margaret had no father or brothers to take her part; she could only suffer in silence. That which aroused her first was the need of earning bread for her children—the two who had ceased their play to wonder why home had grown so dull a place, why papa never came home, and why mamma wept so bitterly, and the unconscious little creature born at the time when her grief was the greatest and the blow but newly fallen.

What could she do for her children's bread? With the question came a thought to which ambition never would have given birth. She could paint. Already certain little bits of still life, scraps of landscape, and a child's head or two, proved her power to put a pretty thing, if not a fine one, upon canvas. Many artists at least lived by their art. She would live, and her children should know no want. And so she began her life-work.

There were hours to come of poverty so great, that the prayer for daily bread was answered with no more than bread and water. There were nights passed in the dark, because the purse held nothing which might be spent for oil or candle. There were fireless days in dead winter; but through all, hope lived, and pride, and a mother's love.

No one guessed what Margaret suffered; and at last her prospects brightened. A certain fashionable clique took a fancy to Mrs. Mercer's pictures; her bits of still life sold; her children's heads were voted gems; the womanly prettiness of her conceptions pleased the eyes of other women, and Margaret felt very rich and prosperous.

She had begun with no ambition save that of love; she had struggled only for her children. Now she began to dream of a name and fame—of painting great pictures—of being a great woman. Strange hopes for Margaret Mercer—hopes that seldom come to any woman until the natural hopes and ambitions of her life are blasted.

So with no fear of starving upon her now, after five years of labor—ten years in which no word had ever come to her of the man she had loved so truly, and who had so wofully broken the vow he uttered, to cherish and protect her while life should last—Margaret began the first picture which went beyond mere prettiness—the first in which action and expression, rich draperies and knowledge of the costumes of the past were needed; a picture of Queen Eleanor in Rosamond's bower. It was an illustration of an old ballad which told the tale; and Rosamond was wondrous fair, and the Queen mightily stern and cruel, if the poet were to be believed; but, as she painted, that which slept within her soul found utterance.

Rosamond, beautiful indeed, had a face as false as it was fair; and Queen Eleanor's eyes held in their depths a look of such reproach that one might see she was an injured wife; and the bowl was at Rosamond's lips; and upon the wall of the bower hung a portrait—the portrait of the King. Margaret did not mean it; but as she painted hard and fast through the long summer days, the faces that grew upon the canvas were portraits.

Rosamond was Elsie Grey; Eleanor had her own features; and the portrait of the King upon the wall was that of Mathew Mercer.

Margaret's children watched her as she painted—the boy of 16 and the girl of 14, and the younger boy who had never seen his father.

"She is just like mamma—the Queen, I mean," cried this little one at last; "only mamma never looked so cross."

"Not cross," said the girl. "The Queen is not cross, but angry, and sorry, and proud."

The elder boy said nothing for a while. At last he muttered, "She's pretty, though, that girl. Who ever looked like her? I know some one. Who was it? The King is like what I'll be when I get a beard."

Then Margaret knew what she had done. She sent her children out to walk, and locked the door. Then she stood before her easel, struggling with herself.

The woman within her said, "Dash your brush at it; paint it out, for you have written down your life history." The artist said, "Let it stand. What though it wrings my heart to look at it? it is the best thing I ever painted."

The woman looked upon the false face of Rosamond and the beautiful portrait of the King, and cast herself down and wept. The artist arose, and saw the gloss upon the golden hair, and the reflex of light upon the white satin and purple velvet, soft as though one could lift it in its folds; saw the flesh like flesh—the shadow, like the real light and shadow—saw power and feeling in the picture, and smiled through her tears.

For the first time she understood that love was not all of life. For the first time she stood proud and ambitious, and hopeful of fame and desirous of it; and this before the record of her life-grief, with the beautiful faces of her false husband and his love, created by her own pencil, looking down upon her.

Then she opened the door, and went to seek her children in the garden; and told them how some day they should all go to Italy together; and was happy, with a strange prideful happiness, new to her and new to them.

The picture was sent for exhibition. It hung in a great gallery set off by a dusky proscenium; people went to see it, and it was admired; critics praised it. A rich man offered a great price for it. Margaret was proud and glad; so were the children, to whom she spoke again of Italy, where she would paint such pictures as she had never painted before.

And meanwhile a man, threadbare and rusty, old before his time, with remorse so stamped upon his handsome features that a child could read it there, prowled often about the door of the gallery where the picture hung, and looked in along the still echoing entrance, at the end of which the man who took the tickets sat. At last he ventured in.

"Look here," he said, in a sort of shame-faced way, to the ticket-taker; "I want to see that picture. I haven't any money; but I knew Mrs. Mercer once. Let me look, won't you? It can't hurt you, or any one."

"If you know her, why, I suppose—" yawned the man—"only look here; don't stay long—"

But the man had passed him. He walked up to the picture, and looked at it. Then he pressed his hand upon his forehead, and ground his teeth together.

"Margaret! Margaret!" he muttered; "oh, heavens! Margaret!"

And then he sat down, staring at the picture with eyes that saw those likenesses as none others ever had.

He sat there still, when a rustle of silk, a sweep of velvet, the high tones of young voices filled the gallery. A lady walked up the room and stood before the picture—a child by her hand, a tall girl and boy behind her.

"It looks better here than in my studio," she said, quietly; "only I shall touch Eleanor's face again when I have it home. It is not stern enough."

The man heard the voice, gave one look, dragged his hat over his eyes, and cowered down upon the bench, huddling himself together as a beggar does—seldom any other. The lady did not look at him; but the child did. In a moment more, it had pulled its mother's sleeve.

"There's a man just like the King," he said; "just such a beard, mother."

And Margaret turned her head. Then her face grew white. She took a step toward the man. He started to his feet.

"Mathew!" she cried.

He only turned his face away.

"Mathew," she said again, "did you come here to find me?"

"No," he answered; "I am not coward enough for that. I came to look at that picture. I knew what I should see; that picture, born of your grief, with the story of my treachery and your wrong stamped upon it. Did you say to yourself, as you painted it, that thus the memory of that evil done you should outlive you, and those who injured you?"

"I painted the picture with no thought of that," she said. "Oh, Mathew! Mathew! I ought not to speak to you; but you are poor—you are unhappy——"

"I am as poor as I deserve to be," he said. "Nothing has prospered with me since I left you. As for the woman there——"

"That is Rosamond," said Margaret, as he pointed to the canvas.

"It is Elsie Grey," he said. "As for that creature, she has been as false to me as to you; and worse than the bowl of poison or the dagger was offered her by fate before she died."

"She is dead, then?" said Margaret.

"Yes, of a dog's death!" he muttered; "in a hospital. That's the way she died, as I shall."

Margaret went one step nearer.

"You have not asked me to forgive you, Mathew," she said softly.

"Forgive me, when you have painted my crime down for all posterity to look upon!" he said. "Is it likely? Besides, you are rich now"—and he looked at her costly dress; "and I next door to a beggar."

Great tears filled Margaret's eyes.

"Mathew," she said, "does that picture stand between us?"

"Your hate—your scorn—that which gave birth to that picture must," he said.

"Have you a penknife?" she asked.

"A penknife?"

"Yes."

Perhaps he thought she meant to kill him. He took it from his pocket and opened it, as he handed it to her, and flung his coat back, and stood, as it were, ready for a blow. And she indeed lifted the knife, but the blow fell upon the picture, upon the painted face of the King, upon the golden hair of Rosamond, and the royal robes of Queen Eleanor—slit and tore them, dashed from the canvas all the toil of months, in a few short minutes. There was no picture left, as she turned from her work, for critics to stare at, or rich men to buy; but her eyes sparkled, and her cheeks were aglow.

"Nothing stands between us now, Mathew," she said. "There is no memory of the past on my heart, any more than on that canvas. Let it be blotted out for both of us, and let us begin our life anew together."

And in a moment she wept upon the bosom of the man who, whatever had been his faults, was still her husband, and the father of her children—and the only man she had ever loved in her life.

I think Margaret will never paint another great picture in her life. Pretty things—bits of still life and woodland nooks, and doves upon their nests, still grow beneath her pencil; but no dreams of art or fame, no longings for Italy, slumber in her dark eyes now. Instead, you see there the sweet light reflected from the fireside, and all her dreams are of home. Perhaps she ought not to be happy, but she is. And he who has repented is dear to her, as the Bible says repentant sinners are to heaven. And Queen Eleanor, and Rosamond, and the false King, and the wrongs and woes that gave bulk to those "counterfeit presentments," have faded from her mind forever.

As for the picture, no one guesses how it was destroyed, except the ticket-taker, who, laying the deed to the charge of the man he admitted, keeps his own counsel, lest he should be blamed.

Sheridan in the Rotunda.

Gen. Phil. Sheridan appeared in the rotunda of the St. Charles during the hour appointed for the meeting of the Western men. During the course of the evening the General made two appearances there. He was in citizen's dress, and wore a silk hat. As far as observed, no citizen entered into conversation with him, and yet he was keenly observed, with many suppressed manifestations of the excitement the populace felt on account of the part he had taken in the affairs of Louisiana. Later in the evening Gen. Sheridan reappeared in the rotunda, and walked around with an air of nonchalance that was quite refreshing. This time he was closely followed by a crowd, whom he did not appear to notice, smoking his cigar with pretty much the same demeanor that is supposed to characterize his master at Washington. The popular indications, however, were more marked than before; and, as he walked leisurely along, there were heard the murmurs of suppressed rage, which occasionally found vent in a hiss. Finally, the little General disappeared, and quiet reigned in Warsaw.—New Orleans Times.

Our Railway System.

The past year has not added largely to the length of the railroads in this country. This was mainly owing to the fact that on account of the depression in business and the legislation by most of the Western Legislatures, but few new roads were built. Much has been done, however, toward the improvement of existing roads, and in making ready for the traffic anticipated when the financial and business affairs return to their normal condition. The American Railroad Journal gives the following as a near approximation to the actual present status of our railroad system:

Of the increase of main and branch line was added by—New England, 79.08; the Middle States, 406.54; the Southeast States, 58.32; the Gulf and Southwest States, 236.40; the Interior (E.) States, 587.76; the Interior (W.) States, 138.69, and the Pacific Slope States, 296.90. Of the increase of second, etc., track, about one-half is due to the New York Central and Hudson River railroad third and fourth tracks between Albany and Rochester. The Erie, the Pennsylvania, the Philadelphia and Reading, and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads have also added largely to their auxiliary tracks, sidings, etc. The roads of the interior States have done comparatively little in this regard. The additional cost of railroads in the United States adds up $202,513,391. About two-thirds of this sum has probably been expended on new works, and the remainder in the improvement of the tracks, equipment, buildings, etc. Most of the great roads have largely relaid their tracks with steel rails. In the tables given above we make the total length of track laid down 90,050.62 miles, of which 77,206.28 miles are main and branch lines, and 13,844.34 miles second, third, and fourth tracks and sidings. The average cost of all the railroads of the United States, obtained by dividing the total cost by the sum of tracks laid, is $43,630 per mile, or if divided by the sum of all the main and branch lines only, it is $51,556 per mile.

How Woman Headed the Table.

A writer says: "In Elizabethan England, when gallimawfreys had given way to the substantial fare of our later cookery, it was the custom at private dinners to place the principal joints and masses of meat at the upper end of the table, above the salt, so that the chief guests could see clearly the best of the good cheer, and also appropriate the choicest cuts before the inferior folk below the joint of honor were served. Fashion having thus decided that the 'carving should be done on the table,' the ladies were invited to the head of the table, not out of gallantry, but in order that they should do the work which could no longer be executed conveniently by professional carvers. It may cost the reader a struggle to admit that our ancestors had no more chivalrous purpose in view when they promoted woman to her proper place at the festal board, but there is no doubt as to the fact. The new ordering of places was the result of masculine selfishness and insolence, rather than masculine gallantry. Just as in mediæval society the lady of the house rendered service to her guests by discharging the functions of a gentle serving woman, in preparing dishes for their enjoyment, and even in bringing them to table with her own hands, so in Elizabethan life she went up to the top of her table and seated herself among the first guests, in order that she might serve them as a carver. At the same time, the number of 'great pieces' requiring several carvers she brought other ministering ladies to the upper end of the table where the grand joints were exhibited. Having been thus called to the top of the table for her lord's convenience instead of her own dignity, the mistress of the house soon made it a point of honor to occupy the place, which had in the first instance been conceded to her as a servant rather than as principal lady. Ere long, with her characteristic cleverness in making the best of things, and stating her own case in the way most agreeable to her self-love, she regarded her carver's stool as a throne of state, and affected to preside over the company, though the terms of her commission only authorized her to help them to food."

The Soldier.

The recent German proposition to call out the landsturm, which has hitherto corresponded in Germany to the French leves en masse, increases the available resources of the empire to the extent of 175,000 men. None of these will be over 42 years of age, and the majority will have passed through the reserve, and the landwehr. Having attained a veteran experience of the trials and discomforts of military service, they thought they had reason to expect exemption from them in the future, but their hopes seem doomed to disappointment. When this measure becomes law, the German army will have the astonishing total of from 1,700,000 to 1,800,000 men, all accustomed, by regular periodical training, to the duties of the soldier. On the 9th of last month, the conseils de revision of France began their examination of persons subject to military duty in the territorial army, so-called—a sort of landwehr—under the new law, devised after the German plan. These comprise all men between twenty-nine and forty years of age, and they amount in total to the vast figure of 2,400,000 men. More than half of these, of course, will be found unfit for service; and the French are not so amenable to military discipline as the Germans, it is safe to infer that the experience so far will be continued, and, in spite of pains and penalties threatened, only a fraction of those who are liable, will put in an appearance before the conseils. The active army of France, we may add, is at such a low ebb that it would be hard for the War Minister to place more than 200,000 men in the field at short notice. France may love war—and she certainly hates Germany—but she does not take kindly to the Prussian military system. The French army on a war footing on paper, besides the territorial army above referred to, amounts to 689,000 men, beside the reserve of each. The active army of Austria numbers 897,000 men, besides seven annual contingents and a landwehr. The nominal effective force of the Italian army was on the 1st of January, of this year, 737,514 men, of whom 392,994 had received a complete military education, 247,987 were imperfectly instructed, and 96,523 totally untaught. Russia is now busily engaged in following the general movement. The country has been divided into fourteen military circumscriptions, and the work of enrolling those liable to military duty is rapidly going forward. Its completion will give Russia the largest military force and reserve in Europe. Add to these enormous figures the men actually on service with the navies of Europe—England, 68,264, (including naval reserve); Russia 36,000; France, 33,570; Turkey, 21,000; Spain, 14,000; Germany, 12,450; Austria, 11,530; Italy, 11,200; Holland, 6,260; Denmark, 4,800; Norway, 3,500; Portugal, 3,300. Europe, it will be seen, from these figures, begins the new year with a larger number of armed men than she has had at any previous epoch.

Glancing at these figures, the reader may gather some comfort in comparing our situation with that of the old world. Our little army of 25,000 men, and the militia of the States, numbering 153,000, represent all the military service we are called on to render.—New York Times.

A Large Tea-Kettle.

For some weeks Boston has been all agog over the size of a huge tea-kettle in front of a tea-store in that city. Two prizes had been offered for the nearest estimates of its capacity, and the Yankee citizens have consequently been "guessing" ever since. Twelve hundred guesses were made and recorded, there being 120 of ten gallons or less, and five of over 3,000 gallons. These figures show a wide divergence in opinion. The average guess of the first thousand was 114 gallons, and the last thousand about 181 gallons. At noon New Year's day the kettle was publicly measured, in the presence of 5,000 or 6,000 persons, Mr. William F. Reed, the official Sealer of Weights and Measures for the city, filling the kettle with water by using a five gallon measure, under the supervision of Hon. Henry Baldwin, Judge of the Municipal Court in the Brighton District. The thing, therefore, had a sort of official indorsement. The progress of the filling was scored upon a blackboard by Mr. Reed's son. The work proceeded thus as rapidly as possible until the kettle was nearly full, when smaller measures were successively substituted. The excitement grew intense as the end approached, and at 1:05 o'clock the great problem was settled by the recording that the kettle contained just 227 gallons, 2 quarts, 1 pint, and 3 gills. The prizes were a chest o' tea for the nearest guess, and twenty-five pounds of coffee for the next best. The nearest guess was 227 gallons, 2 quarts, and 1 pint, wine measure, or within 3 gills of the exact quantity. This guess was made by eight different persons, and the chest of tea was divided among them. The second nearest guess was 227 gallons, 3 quarts, and 1 pint, or within 5 gills of the correct figures. This quantity was guessed by five persons, and among them was the coffee divided.

THE Boston Traveller published on the 1st inst. the last of a series of careful meteorological observations for Boston, which begun just fifty years ago that day, and have appeared daily in that paper for a quarter of a century. Three or more times a day, for half a century, the same careful observations marked the temperature, the state of the barometer and the direction of the wind, together with any peculiarities in the weather deserving notice. At the same time all the eclipses and important discoveries in the heavens have been recorded; and at the end of each quarter and at the end of each year have been summarized. The quantity of rain and the depth of snow have also been given. The Traveller says that this has all been done by Mr. Robert Treat Paine, from pure love of science, with no other recompense than the satisfaction it has afforded the observer and the comparatively few persons in the community who take an interest in such matters.

Her sister, aged twelve years, carried the little one into the yard, rolled her in the snow, and saved her life.

IN Albany a few nights ago, a party was given by Erastus Corning, which cost $6,500, and a statistical Jenkins who was present says the silks, laces and diamonds present were valued at $2,000,000, while the real estate and bonds represented could not have been less than $20,000,000.

SMALL-POX has been very prevalent in Montreal the past year, there being 661 deaths from that disease in nine months. A Montreal paper calls on the Catholic clergy to advocate vaccination, in opposition to the French doctors, who oppose it. The death-rate of Montreal is twice as heavy as that of London.

A RAT'S bite has been the cause of intense suffering to Mrs. Mary Caron, in Springfield, Mass. While assisting to kill a rat it bit one of her fingers. In a few days her hand and arm swelled frightfully, and one side of her [illegible] was almost paralyzed. She was [illegible] thrown into convulsions, and for many days had to be kept under the influence of morphine. Four physicians were in attendance. At last accounts she was rallying, but was still much emaciated.

DEATH was the result of a foolish wager in Paris, recently. A young man made a bet that he would smoke twelve cigars, one after another. At the end of the eighth he began to feel unwell, and when he had finished the ninth he was attacked with giddiness and shiverings. He refused to leave off smoking, but went home in charge of some friends. A medical man was called in, who could not, however, help him, and he died during the night.

A Horse that "Knows the Ropes."

The Newburg (N. Y.) Journal relates the following: "A gentleman living in the suburbs has a colt which he values highly, not only on account of his possessing pure blood and a degree of speed, but for his intelligence. In common with the other stock in the stable, he is fed his hay from a crib on the side of the building. It had been noticed that, while all the other animals left a small quantity of fine hay-seed in the further end of the crib, which could not be reached, the bars only permitting them to get their noses in a short distance, this horse always had his eaten clean. On being watched it was discovered that the colt would catch up the slack of his rope halter in his teeth so that it formed a loop, and thrusting it between the bars, he was able to push it to the back part of the crib, and by drawing it out again, to drag with it, where he could reach it, the part of the feed referred to. Thus it was the crib was always clean. The way he handled the rope is said to be skillful and sagacious in the extreme."

A SOLUTION of oxalic acid crystals, one part by measure to eight of soft water, will remove dry ink stains. Samples of mixed and of woolen goods are sent by the author of this recipe from which ink stains have been removed by this acid, leaving scarce a trace behind.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

LONG-WOOLED SHEEP, A NEW BREED.

At a [illegible] men, [illegible] South [illegible] ram, which was so remarkable for its fine silky luster and softness, and the unusual length (over five inches) of the smooth, fine wool, as well as for its beauti[illegible] that all [illegible] yarn, and very superior [illegible] could be made from it. It was stated that it was a result of in-and-in breeding of Negretti sheep with Leicester (Lincoln) rams; the number of generations required was not stated, however.

FATTENING PIGS.

For our own use we never fatten anything but spring pigs. It takes better feed and more care to make pork from a pig than an old hog, but the pork is better, and the work is accomplished in nine months instead of eighteen. The advocates of fattening old hogs seem to forget that they feed twelve months or more before they begin to fatten, and that store pigs cannot live upon air and water. If the quality and quantity of food consumed by an eighteen months' hog and nine months' pig be compared, the advantage will be found on the side of the pig for equal amounts of pork produced. Of course there must be some old fellows kept to propagate the species, and these must in due time be fattened.—New York Times.

HOW TO HAVE GOOD CABBAGES.

If you wish to be successful in raising good solid cabbages save one or two of your largest and best formed heads for raising seed another year. Set them out in the spring without amputating the head, trim off the wide sprouts, and from seeds thus raised and sown select the most thrifty plants, and nineteen out of twenty of the plants set will head up and become good-sized cabbages if the ground is in good condition. By cutting off the head and raising seed from the stump I find about one-half of the plants do not head up. When cabbage plants are set out, a little rock weed or a teaspoonful of fine salt scattered around the plant will keep the worms from destroying them.

UNLOADING CORN.

The way to unload corn, as described by a correspondent of the New York Tribune, is simply to put a board lengthwise in the body of carts or wagons, resting on top of either end. It should run the whole length. Then fill in until the load is on and the unloader begins at once on top to shovel, running his scoop on the board, which should be, say 12 or 15 inches wide. In this manner he continues to shovel until he gets to the bottom on the opposite end from where he began, and then pushes the board out of the way and shovels out the remainder. This method has proved so very satisfactory to me, and such a saving of time, that I feel I ought to urge its adoption by my brother farmers, believing if it were generally adopted it would likely save $50,000 annually.

SHEEP IN THE WEST.

We find the following in the Western Agriculturist: "Western farmers do not raise sheep enough. Every farmer should keep a few sheep, and the sale of wool and surplus mutton sheep would bring millions of dollars into the West every year. Washington county, Pa., produced this year over 2,000,000 pounds of wool, which brought over $1,000,000, and this, too, without interfering with their farming. They are a prosperous people, and give proper attention to the improvement of their flocks. Now sheep are the most easily kept of any farm stock; they are beneficial to the farm to eat out the weeds and wild grass, and the sale of wool and mutton brings cash to the farmer just when he wants it most, from spring to the maturing of the crops. Too many of our farmers think it too small a business to raise sheep, while they will raise scrub horses and cattle, which they never can sell for enough to pay for the feed they eat, while sheep have two profits, wool and mutton."

HOW I USED SAWDUST.

About six years ago, I had a saw-mill set on my farm. At first they washed the dust, as the sawyers called it, by letting a stream of water run under the saw. As the water got low it would not work; then they had to wheel it out in a pile, and when they went away I had a big pile of sawdust on my hands. As it was on a good piece of bottom land that I desired to plow, I wanted it out of the way. I tried to burn it, but it would not burn. I concluded at last to turn it to some account; so when I put my hogs up to fatten I hauled a load every few days and threw it in the pen. They mixed it up with their manure and the cobs, and in the spring I had about twenty wagon loads of the best manure, besides keeping the hogs clean and dry. I used the sawdust for bedding the horses and cows; I put it around my grape vines to keep down grass and weeds, and the ground moist. The vines improved wonderfully. So my pile of sawdust is used up, and it has paid. If I was to have a mill again I would make the bargain to have the sawdust left on the ground.—Corresp. Ohio Farmer.

The Housekeeper.

BROWN BREAD.—One pint of Indian meal, one pint of rye meal, one and a half pints of milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, three-fourths cup of molasses; steam five hours.

BUTTERMILK GRIDDLE CAKES.—One cup of buttermilk; small half teaspoonful of soda allowed to the buttermilk; salt; sufficient flour to make a thin batter. (Dissolve the soda in a very little boiling water.)

GINGER NUTS.—One pound of flour, three-quarters pound of lard and butter mixed, three-quarters pound of sugar, one-quarter pound of ginger, two ounces of allspice, one ounce of caraway seed, and one pint of molasses.

TO BAKE A BEEF'S HEART.—Cut it open, remove the ventricles, and let it soak an hour in lukewarm water, to free it from the blood. Wipe dry with a cloth, and parboil in a little water for twenty minutes. Make a rich stuffing, fill the heart with it, and secure it with a string. Let it bake an hour and a half, or two hours, with half a pint of water, in the oven or dripping pan. The gravy will not need any thickening. Serve in a chafing dish, and with currant jelly.

MAIZENA PUDDING.—One quart of [illegible] maizena, [illegible] of white powdered sugar, extract of lemon, salt. Boil the milk, stir in the maizena, yolks of the eggs (well beaten), five tablespoonfuls of the sugar, and some salt. Be careful not to let it burn as it thickens. [illegible] somewhat cool, flavor, and pour into two dishes. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, and add the remaining three tablespoonfuls of the sugar. Flavor this, and spread it on top of the two puddings. Set them in the oven, to remain there until the frosting browns.

An Incident of the Beecher-Tilton Trial.

It was while the crowd was thus hastily dispersing that a remarkable incident took place. Mr. Beecher, with a good-natured smile and his usual genial manner, left his own counsel and stepped across the room to the table at which Mr. Tilton's counsel sat, and, reaching across it, saluted Mr. Beach, and then shook his hand. Mr. Tilton, with a stern expression on his face, stood at this moment within two feet of the clergyman, but did not look in his direction, although he must have heard every word that was uttered.

"If,"—said Mr. Beecher to Judge Beach, laughingly—"if I get out from between the paws of two such lions as you and Fullerton, I'll believe I am innocent, and that is what I came here to find out."

"You forget," said Mr. Beach, pointing to Mr. Evarts, "the Daniel standing among the lions and closing their mouths."

Mr. Beecher placed one hand on Mr. Shearman's shoulder, and the other on Mr. Evarts', and remarked in a jocular form: "My lions are very harmless animals." Then, turning to Mr. Morris, he said: "Let me present myself to you, Judge Morris."

The ex-Judge very coldly replied: "Mr. Beecher."

The pastor of Plymouth Church was not to be repulsed this way, and continued: "I notice that you lawyers, like preachers, know how to deliver long sermons."

There was a slight tinge of sarcasm in Mr. Morris' tone as he retorted: "Yes, sir; I had a long story to tell."

Mr. Evarts joined in the conversation at this moment, and playfully said: "Mr. Morris, I noticed that you expatiated only on those things which were against our side."

Mr. Morris answered in the same pleasant manner: "I thought you could attend to the other things much better than I."

By this time the counsel were surrounded by a large crowd of curious listeners, among the number Mrs. Beecher and several members of Plymouth Church. Mr. Morris was on the point of leaving, when Mr. Beecher again addressed him: "Judge Morris, you should have come to me for a point or two. I could have put you up to some things which would have made your speech appear very different."

Mr. Morris made no reply, and Mr. Tilton, for the first time, shot a quick glance, in which mingled hate and scorn were expressed, at the speaker, and then turned to Gen. Pryor. That gentleman had been listening to the conversation with an unmistakable look of disgust on his sharply-cut features. Addressing Tilton, he made a brief remark in a contemptuous tone of voice, and the two left the court-room together.—New York Telegram.

Mrs. Beecher in Court.

During some parts of ex-Judge Morris' address to the jury, in the opening of the Beecher trial to-day, the pastor held his face toward the floor. It was flushed, but otherwise did not express emotion. Mrs. Beecher sat steadily looking at the speaker. Her face was cast down, and her eyes, directed upward under her sharply-cut brows, gave her a peculiar aspect suggestive of mingled anger and watchfulness. The corners of her mouth drawn down add to her sternness. Once, when the speaker stated that his client could not, of course, produce direct evidence to prove his charges, Mrs. Beecher turned toward her husband with a smile, but soon resumed her look of bitterness. During the entire speech Beecher looked very serious. For most part of the time he sat as if looking out of the window at the left of the Judge's bench. He had in his hand a book, which was occasionally consulted, and once he called his wife's attention to some memorandum in it. She smiled and whispered in his ear. Occasionally a cynical look stole over Mrs. Beecher's face. The only time Beecher allowed his expression to change was when Morris referred to Tilton as not having been moved by a spirit of revenge. Then a faint smile stole over his face.—New York Cor. Chicago Times.

New State Project Revived.

The project of a separate State, to include the Upper Peninsula of Michigan is strongly urged again by the Marquette Mining Journal, which ridicules the idea of being detached from Michigan and becoming a part of Wisconsin, or annexing a part of Wisconsin to form the new State. It dislikes the existing position of "depending upon the State that has no interest in common with the Upper Peninsula," and says, "the 70,000 people ask a separate government, with a local Legislature and a delegate to Congress, for the encouragement of manufacturing industries and the development of mineral and other resources that are without a parallel." The Portage Lake Mining Gazette, on the other hand, is opposed to any "one-horse Territorial scheme," and calls the attempt in this direction "a waste of time." The Lansing Republican believes that, if a decided majority of the people of the Upper Peninsula wish to set up on their own hook, and can show good reason for it, the Lower Peninsula will be forced to be willing.

THE grand jury of Lucas county, Ohio, lament the crime of gambling, and "look with regret on the practice of some of the churches in setting examples of said crime, and would most respectfully ask them to discontinue the practice."

Man and Dog Both Saved.

The other day a young man named Benjamin Machamer, one of the best hunters in Northumberland county, made a remarkable [illegible] into which he fell. This well is in the lower part of the town of Trevorton, near the [illegible] time has [illegible] in use that its existence was almost forgotten. It is about eight feet wide and eighteen feet deep, and at the present time contains ten feet of water. It was covered [illegible] question. Machamer started out in pursuit of game, accompanied by his dog, a valuable setter. His path lay near the old well, into which his dog had the misfortune to fall, through a hole caused by the decaying timber. The dog was highly prized by Mr. Machamer, who, in attempting to rescue it, fell in himself. In an ordinary sized well the situation would have been dangerous, and in this case it was extremely so, as the unusual width of the well prevented him from bracing himself against the side. The only possible way for him to get out was to climb up one side, and as the wall was very closely built, this was a difficult feat. But it was a struggle for life, and Machamer, being a young man of powerful strength and great energy, resolved to try. He succeeded in almost reaching the top, only to lose his hold, and fall back. Again and again he climbed up the side of the wall, and each time fell back into the cold water beneath. Every time he fell back the half-strangled dog would spring upon his shoulders, thus bearing him down and keeping him under water. In spite of this difficulty, however, he [illegible] the water [illegible] faint from the effect [illegible]. He had found a small stick floating on the water, which he inserted in the wall and placed one foot upon it, then put both hands in another aperture, thinking that if he did swoon he might possibly hang there until he returned to consciousness. The faintness, however, passed away, and he again attempted to reach the top. Finding that his wet clothes greatly impeded his progress, he succeeded in divesting himself of his coat and boots, one of which he threw out, leaving the other with the coat to sink to the bottom. Thirteen times he climbed up the side of the well, and thirteen times he fell back into the well. His perseverance surpassed that of the traditional spider, for he had great odds to contend with. At last, almost worn out, he made a final effort and reached the top. He didn't wait for the dog, but started for home immediately, and told his story. His father and another gentleman returned at once and rescued the dog. Mr. Machamer states that he was in the well an hour. The escape was wonderful.—Pottsville (Penn.) Miners' Journal.

How Do You Measure Wood?

A singular and interesting case is being tried here before Justice Ming. It appears that a wood-cutter took a contract to cut and deliver a certain amount of wood to the coal kilns of the blast-furnace situated here. The contractor delivered the wood in proper shape, but in measuring it a dispute arose between the company's agent and the contractor, the contractor claiming that the agent did not measure it accurately. Upon presenting his bill to the company, it refused to pay him for any more than what the agent had made it by his measurement. Law was resorted to, competent judges, among whom were engineers, were employed to inspect and re-measure it; but they differed in regard to the amount to something like one hundred cords. In measuring the length, some did so from one-third of the distance from where the chamfer begins to the tip end of the stick to the same distance on the other end, while others measured from one half of the length of the chamfer, and others from the tip of one end of the stick to where the chamfer begins on the other end. In the pile there are in the neighborhood of 950 cords. By computation it will be found that one inch of the end of the wood will amount, in the number of cords given above, to nearly twenty. Now it is evident that the three methods used will vary quite materially as to the length of the wood, and greatly as to the number of cords; but which is correct?—Appleton Correspondence Milwaukee Sentinel.

A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.—The perceptive faculty of women is usually keener than the same phrenological organ in men. Woman knows that beauty rather than genius is worshiped by the sterner sex. A man may talk with his lips of the latter to his lady-love, but the keenness of the woman knows that he is thinking of the former in his heart. All women have an innate desire to please their beaux. They are fond of admiration, hence one of their longings is to be beautiful. The grand secret of female beauty is health—the secret of health is the power to eat, digest and assimilate a proper quantity of wholesome food. Take VINEGAR BITTERS. It will cleanse the stomach, tone the vital organs, give a perfect digestion, purify the blood, clear up the complexion and produce a state of mental and physical electricity which gives symmetry of form, bright eyes, white skin, glossy hair and a genuine type of female loveliness which no cosmetic can compare with. 19

WILHOFT'S FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This medicine is used by construction companies for the benefit of their employes, when engaged in malarial districts. The highest testimonials have been given by contractors and by the Presidents of some of the leading railroads in the South and West. When men are congregated in large numbers in the neighborhood of swamps and rivers, Wilhoft's Tonic will prove a valuable addition to the stock of medicines, and will amply reward the company in the saving of time, labor and money. We recommend it to all. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & CO., Proprietors, New Orleans. For sale by all druggists.

Modern Women.

It is a sad commentary upon our boasted civilization that the women of our times have degenerated in health and physique until they [illegible] pale, nervous, [illegible] here and there a few noble exceptions in the persons of the robust, buxom ladies characteristic of the sex in days gone by. [illegible] large experience, covering a period of [illegible] years, and embracing the treatment of many thousands of cases of [illegible] ailments, Dr. Pierce, of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., has perfected, by the combination of certain vegetable extracts, a natural specific, which he does not [illegible] as being a most positive and reliable remedy for those weaknesses and complaints that afflict the women of the present day. This natural specific compound is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The following are among those diseases in which this wonderful medicine has worked cures as if by magic and with a certainty never before attained by any medicines: Weak back, nervous and general debility, [illegible] of internal organs, resulting from debility and lack of strength in natural supports, internal fever, congestion, inflammation and ulceration and very many other chronic diseases incident to women, not proper to mention here, in which, as well as in the cases that have been enumerated, the Favorite Prescription effects cures—the marvel of the world. It will not do harm in any state or condition of the system, and by adopting its use the invalid lady may avoid that severest of ordeals—the consulting of a family physician. Favorite Prescription is sold by dealers in medicines generally.

"ON the death of one of England's most eminent physicians, all his effects were sold by auction, and among other things was a sealed packet, marked "Advice to Physicians," which brought a good price. The purchaser on opening the packet, read as follows: "Keep the head cool, the bowels open and the feet warm." If physic is necessary, use Parsons' Purgative Pills; they are the most scientifically prepared pill that has appeared in the last hundred years.

THE SEED OF GOOD.

If I might do one deed of good,
One little deed before I die,
Or think one noble thought, that should
Thereafter not forgotten lie,
I would not pass away though I must
Be laid by death's unnumbered dust.

The fairy wing that wafts the seed
Upon the careless wind to earth
[illegible]
To find the germ of [illegible] its birth

Union Township Institute.—The following is the programme of exercises for the institute to be held at Waterloo Feb., 13th,

Reading exercise. W, H. McIntosh, Case, A. R. Huffman. Penmanship. W. H. Hoffman, Object teaching, its uses and abuses. Supt., Chas A. Barns: Best means of promoting order in school, Miss Frank Stall:—The childs first lesson at school, what should they be, and how conducted? Miss Eberly; Methods of hearing classes in spelling, D, D. Nelson:—Natural Science in common schools, F. VanAuken.

Neither teachers nor parents can be too wisely careful of the influence exerted upon their pupils and children! for principals apply to both mater and spirit. Just as the twig is bent, the trees inclined. Again since thoughts are imperishable existences, we should be careful in cherishing any other than such as we are willing to have for our companion on earth, and during our eternal state of being in the future world. Here, then, is something for all of us to attend to, and unspeakable consequance are depending on the performance of duty. Are you of the number who turn back in the day of battle, or of those who gard on the armor to do, or die?

JANUARY.

January, as it stands first in the calendars was thus placed by Numa Pompilius, the second king of Rome a peaceful, wise and generous soverign.

He added two months, January and February to Romulus's year: its name is supposed to have been derived from the Latin janua's gate, and as Janus was considered by the Romans to preside over the gates of heaven, the name of the month is supposed to have reference to the renewal of time.

It may seem strange to call that a new season when everything is most inactive and lifeless—when animals are benumbed by the cold and vegetation is lifeless and withered. For this reason some have proposed bigining the year with spring, when the face of nature is really renewed. But this happening at different climates, nearly all civilized nations have agreed that the year shall begin within a few days after the winter solstice which is the shortest day. This occurs on the 21st of December and from that, the days gradually lengthen until the middle of summer, so that the year may properly be said to be now turned.

Power of Kindness.—A driver belonging to the Grant Northern Railway goods station, had occasion to pass up the Quardrant road highway New York, to deliver a prckage. On approaching one of the horses, he was seen by a lady in the window who immediately said to some friends staying with her:

"Here comes the kind driver, do come and see what power he has over his horses."

The friends accordingly came to the window, when Benjamin Smithson, the driver in question, was asked by the lady to "shake hands" with his horses. With great good humor he at once complied. Standing in front of the pair of horses he called out:

"Tom, shake hands."

Instanctly the near horse lifted up his right foot. After a shake the driver said:

"Now, the other foot."

Up went the foot instantly. The driver then went in front of the other horse when a similar incident occurred

Perhaps, however, the most pleasing incident remains to be told. Retreating backwards several yards from the horses, he cried out:

"Now, Tom, turn round and come on."

Instantly the horses pulled away at the load, turning the van round, without the slitest need of the crack of a whip, and followed the clever driver as a dog would the shepherd.

Such an incedent shows clearly how much can be done with animals, but especially with the horse, simply by the power of kindness.—Detroit Advertiser.

We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. [illegible] are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combined. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; no secret in it, simply purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumer.

Just take teas, for instance: We save our customers on that article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the importer.

The unparalled success invariably attending the introduction of

DR. KING'S

New Discovery for Consumption.

Far surpasses that of any other medicine ever placed before the American people. In fact it has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. Wherever it is sold a lively and increasing demand is at once created, and why is it? Our answer is this: It is a remedy that travels on Its Own Merits and always gives Perfect Satisfaction, hence the success. We know whereof we speak and in order to prove this statement we make the following offer: Do not Ever Ask to Buy until you know what you are getting. All we ask of those troubled with consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c., is to go to

A LECTURE on the nature, treatment and radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhoea, induced by self abuse Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility and [illegible]; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c—by Robt J. Culverwell, M. D. author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of self abuse may be cured without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands. Sent, under seal, in a plain envelope to any address, on receipt of 6 cents, or two postage stamps. Address

The Champion Grasshopper Sufferer

He looked into the waiting room at the depot yesterday, saw an elderly couple there waiting to go west, and then after making sure that the special policeman was not around he entered the room.

He was a man who had seen other days, that was plain.

His plug hat was years old, his coat shone with age, and grease, and there was no collar on his neck. A policeman would have mentally recorded him a "vag" and the fellow would have stood a chance of being trotted to the central station.

"My good friends," he commenced as he approached the innocent couple, for heaven's sake, help me a little!

"Who are you?" asked the husband struck with the bummer's lonesome voice and general hard look.

"Name's Jones—Kansas—grasshoppers!" replied the man, turning away his head as it deeply affected.

"Be you one of those unfortunates who were almost eat up by grasshoppers?"

"The same, madam," sighed Jones had to leave the state—going to New Hampshire—got as far as here and money gave out! Heavens only knows what'll become of me!"

"Are you married?"

"Yes 'um wife and nine children, they are out here on the common in a wagon, all sick and shivering with cold!"

"I've heard about them grasshoppers are they very thick?"

"Thick! echoed Jones, you couldn't tell the difference 'twixt day and night, and the roaring of their wings made us deaf."

"My grashus! wasn't that awful!" sighed the woman.

"I had a hundred acres of corn, fifty of wheat, thirty of oats—nice meadow—lot of fruit—but the grasshoppers made a beggar of me in five hours!"

"They eat the stuff right up did they?"

"Eat! why the farm looked as if a fire had gone over it,

"I neaver heard of the likes!"

"There's folks east who didn' believe it," continued Jones.

"And you had to leave?"

"Yes' sold my land for $11, got my family into a wagon and started east Been one hundred and eighty days coming thus far, and buried two children on the way.

"Poor man!" sighed the woman.—Ebenezer, let's give him two dollars

"Two dollars is a pile of money."

But it's an awful sad case, nuff to tech a heart of flint.

The Lord loveth a cheerful giver."

"Well I s'pose it's a hard case, and we will be none the poorer for givin' two dollars."

"Thanks, my kind friend;"

"That's all right.

"I wish it was ten."

He slid out, and ten minutes afterwards might have been seen in a Front street saloon pouring bad gin out of a tall decanter, and remarking to the bar keeper:

"Say, old pard, was it in Virginia or Kansas where the grasshoppers was so thick?"

How he is Roused.—The average Detroit youth sits up late, and when sixo 'clock in the morning comes he is in his soundest sleep. The father depends on him to make a fire, and he turns over in bed and calls out:

"Solomon, it's six o'clock!"

Boy dreams of chasing a rabbit into a hollow log, and while he is hunting around for an axe the old man calls out:

"Come, Solomon!"

Boy's dream changes, and he thinks he is husking corn to get money to go to Dan Rice's circus. He is making the ears fly when the old man rips out:

Sol-o-man Sprin-brook!"

Boy moves uneasily, and dreams that he is playing baseball, and a crowd of admiring spectators seated on the top rails of the fences.

"If that boy don't rouse I'll make him think he's sent for!" mutters the old man, he looks at the clock; and then sitting up in bed he shouts:

"Oh, Sol! Oh, Sol!"

The boy dreams that he is loafing around the Opera House door and boring people for "checks," and he is about to get one when the old man slips up, pulls the quilts off, hammers away at him with the hair brush, and chuckles:

"There! I guess you won't want me to wake you up more than fourteen times more!"

As the boy pulls on his pants and gets into his vest he mentally declares that he'll run away that very day and become a pirate.—Detroit Free Press.

A MULE WILLING TO GO.

A bad little boy in Portland lit a pack of shooting-crackers and threw them into the street to see them "go off." One of Ike Batman's mules came along and swallowed them before they "went off." The mule walked about fifteen feet and stopped. Things wasn't acting right inside. He began to taste the smoke of fire crackers. He laid his left ear around against his ribs, and heard something. It was them crackers having fun. The mule picked out about three and a half miles of straight road and started. A negro met him about a mile the other side of the Almshouse, going south, while with perspiration, with streams of smoke shooting out of his nostrils mouth, and ears, while his tail stuck straight up, and a stream of blue and green smoke about ten feet long followed in the rear. Ike found his mule yesterday morning sticking half way through a farm house near Paddy's Run, still smoking. The man had got his family out and put 'em up into a lot of trees. Ike hauld his mule home, when he got cool enough, on a dray. The man is going to move his house further back off the road, and his wife and eldest daughter are going to be baptized when the water gets warm.—Louisville Journal

THAT BOY.

There he is again—rip, tear, slam bang! What a jumbled, tumbled, mussed up mess of humanity is that boy. Hear the cat! That boy is pulling its whiskers. What a cackling! That boy is teaching the chickens to swim. Here he is! No that's him scudding along under full sail after the dog.

What a boy! Everybody says he will amount to nothing in this or any other world.

Who placed a pin on the teachers chair? That boy. Who drew a map of the pond, [illegible] all, on the [illegible]? That boy. Who filled the sugar bowl with salt, hung his sister's best hat on the tallest tree, and then sat demurely in the corner with book upside down, foot on the cats tail and grandmother's spectacles above his nose? You might know that it was, that boy.

"I can't do anything with him," says mother. "A useless concomitant of humanity," says teacher. "A lad whose baneful influence is being felt in a pernicious manner by all his associates," says pastor.

But wait. Who brings the first of everything good to his mother? Who is always on hand when the schoolmaster asks a favor? Who tumbles heels over head that he may obtain a geological specimen for the minister Oh it is that boy, is it? Well then just look down into his heart and you will find it different from what you imagined. His soul is full, and it bubbles up and over every time he moves.

Mischievous actions, lively pranks, and sharp sayings are only the gateways through which escape the superfluous floods of his nature. The trouble is that his body is too small for his big soul.

Let him laugh and frolic and play. Yes, help him to do all this, and more too. Remember that our moral and intellectual giants were once just such boys, helped along by love. Also bear in mind that the pressure upon and abuse to such natures will make them fiends in human form.

Take them by the hand, and you can lead them up to the loftiest pinnacles of thought and action. Drive them, and they become the devil's strongest allies.

If you have one of those frolic-some lads in your home, school or neighborhood take care and watch over him, and the time will come when you will be proud of that boy.—N. O. Advocate.

A boy about twelve years old entered a Michigan avenue barber shop yesterday and asked the barber to cut his hair down close. The barber inquired if he wasn't afraid of catching cold.—when the boy replied: "I've got to run the chances, for there's trouble ahead. To-morrow is the day set for me and a Sixth Ward boy to meet over behind Goodhue's barn and see who's the boss of Detroit, and he's powerful at pulling hair. Cut'er right down to the skulp."—Detroit Free Press

A gentleman traveling through one of the most picturesque portions of the White Mountain region, saw a farmer at work, and, being of a sociable disposition, approached the man, expiated on the beauty and majesty of the surrounding scenery concluding the remark, "I suppose, my friend, you enjoy this glorious view that people come so far to look at!" Why yes," was the response; "but if I'd had the sortin' of these hills, I'd made 'em a little peak-eder."

THE COAL-IMP.

BY C. P. CRANCH.

I was sitting one night by my fire—
'Twas a fire of Westmoreland coal
[illegible]
[illegible]

My chamber was cozy and warm;
The curtains were closed all around;
And the snow at the window [illegible]
With a soft and [illegible] sound.

As I sat in my easy chair,
I think it had got to be late,
And over the top of my book I saw
A face in the glowing grate.

An ugly old face, too, it was—
With wings and a tail—I declare
And the [illegible]
And ended—I don't know where.

So odd were the features, I said,
"I must put you on paper, my friend;"
And took my pen and jotted him down—
Face, wings, and wriggling end.

[illegible] old imp he [illegible],
As vaguely he stared and shone;
But I fixed him in outline as well as I could,
And added a touch of my own.

He flapped his wings in the grate,
And struggled and puffed to be free,
And scowled with his blazing carbuncle eyes,
As if he appealed to me.

Then I said—but perhaps I dreamed—
"Old fellow—how came you there?"
"I'm not an old fellow"—the face replied,
"But a prisoned imp of the air.

"In the shape of combustion and gas
My wings I begin to find out;
So I flap at the bars and grow red in the face,
And am ugly enough, no doubt.

"I am made for a much better lot;
But I cannot escape, as you see;
Blistered and burnt, and crammed in a grate—
What could you expect of me?

"I once was a spirit of air,
A delicate fairy page,
Long, long ago—in fact, before
The carboniferous age.

"For centuries I was kept
Imprisoned in coal-beds fast,
When you kindled your fire this evening, you see,
I thought I was free at last.

"But it seems I am still to wait;
No wonder I'm cross as a bear,
Make faces, and flutter my wings of flame,
And struggle to reach the air."

"My ruby-faced friend," I said,
"If you really wish to be free,
Perhaps I can give you a lift or two,
It's easy enough. We'll see."

hen, taking the poker, I punched
A hole in the half-burnt mass—
When the fire leaped up, and the imp flew off
In a laugh of flaming gas.

THE TIGER OF CAWNPORE.

The capture of a man in India supposed to be the Nana Sahib, author of the English massacre at Cawnpore in 1857, has caused an interesting review of the horrible events which marked that holocaust of crime. It has been declared that the man who surrendered himself is not Nana Sahib, but some other enthusiast who desired out of the notoriety of the veritable beast to create for himself a momentary celebrity. Ambition assumes fantastic forms, and certainly in the person of this half-naked Sepoy the desire for publicity has sunk as low as it can well stoop.

Cawnpore lies on the south bank of the Ganges, a thousand miles from the bay of Bengal. In the spring of 1857 three thousand native troops were in barracks there, and of Europeans, including English soldiers, there were a little over one thousand souls. The native army had ceased to fear. Discipline was lax. Insubordination had been afoot since 1845. The British officers, steeped in idleness and false confidence, had lost all control over their men, but still they believed in the fidelity of the troops. The mind of the Sepoy soldier reeked with religious prejudice. The fancied insult which had been thrown upon their religion in greasing the cartridges with the fat of the hog had excited in the Hindoo mind an unquenchable hatred which it was found impossible to overcome. Five parts tallow, five parts stearine, and one part wax were the ingredients of that compound which will never be forgotten as long as England and India have a common history. It has been denied by English officers connected with the royal laboratory at Woolwich that hogs' lard formed any part of the cartridge, but this is open to grave doubts, inasmuch as the officer who denied the presence of the lard was also unable to testify as to the actual ingredient which should have taken its place. The supposed presence of hogs' lard, although without doubt a moving cause of the rebellion, was not the only reason that led up to the terrible events which followed. There was a man, and his name was Seereek Dhoonda Punth, familiarly known as the Nana Sahib. Bajee Rao, the peishwa of Poonah, was the last monarch of the Mahratta dynasties which shared the sovereignty of the Central Highlands. The English dethroned Bajee Rao, confiscated his territories, and then gave him a residence at Bithoor, with a handsome allowance of $400,000. The peishwa had no children, and so he adopted the man Seereek Dhoonda Punth. When Bajee Rao died in 1851, the heir put in a claim for the continuance of the pension, which was disallowed by England. He sent to London Azimoolah Khan, a clever villain, who began life as a kitmutgar or footman in an Anglo-Indian family. This fellow, speaking English and French fluently, and sporting diamonds and cashmere shawls without end, became not only a "lion," but a great favorite among the aristocratic dames of England. He failed, however, in his suit, and returned to Cawnpore without having secured to the Nana the allowance of old Bajee Rao.

At this time the Nana was thirty-six years old. He was fat, clean-shaven, with sallow complexion, and features strongly marked. He was a voluptuary of that sensual character which defies description. Pleasant in manner, he sought all opportunities to make himself familiar and popular with the sahibs of the garrison and their families. While the smile was on his lip, however, the judgment of the East India Company against his claim was forever a torture to his heart. His sole purpose in life was vengeance on the race that had despised and rejected his claim. With this for a private wrong in the hands of a desperate and cunning adventurer, and the hogs' lard of the cartridges to excite the fanaticism of an enthusiastic people, the beginning of the end was made easy. In January the peasants of Bengal were repeating, "Everything is to become red," and in March the provinces of the Ganges were receiving two chupatties or bannocks of salt and dough. It was the fiery cross of India, and notified men that they should be prepared, for "that something was in the air." Meanwhile the Europeans at Cawnpore ate, drank and were merry. The commanding officer at this post was Maj.-Gen. Sir Hugh Wheeler, a soldier of that class which followed those who had won their spurs at Seringapatam. He was seventy-five years of age, two-thirds of which he had spent under an Indian sun, a man utterly unfitted from his years and his antecedents to deal with the bloody perils of such a time. On the 18th of May, Gen. Wheeler telegraphed to government, "All is well at Cawnpore." [illegible] far from well. Nana Sahib be[illegible]. He moved his quarters from Bithoor to [illegible] in Cawnpore occupied by civilians and their families. The treasury containing £100,000 was put under the custody of his body-guard, and it was proposed that the ladies and children should be placed in Bithoor palace. This was declined. The General might have put the magazine in a state of defense, but was content in his imbecile way to [illegible] up a mud wall four feet high around what he was pleased to call an intrenchment. Peas and flour formed the bulk of the supplies and even these were insufficient. "What do you call that place on the plain?" said Azimoolah to a Lieutenant. "The Fort of Victory," was the answer. "No," said the hyena, "call it the Fort of Despair." On June 3 Sir Hugh Wheeler sent the last telegraphic dispatch that ever reached the outer world. He sent out two officers and fifty men and said, "This leaves me weak, but I trust to holding my own until more Europeans arrive."

That night a drunken officer fired on a cavalry patrol. He explained that his piece had gone off by mistake. The Sepoys, prepared for revolt, significantly remarked that their weapons also might go off by mistake before long. Wires had been cut, mails burned and roads blockaded, and the corpses of an English lady and gentleman, murdered above, turned into the canal that traversed Cawnpore. This was the first sight of white blood shed. On June 4, in the darkness of the night, three reports of a pistol announced that the hour had arrived. Native officers turned out their troops, and notwithstanding the exhortations of the British officers, the rebels marched to the northwest suburb and captured, without an effort, the treasury and the magazines. The next day was devoted by the English to gathering the remnants of the native forces. They collected their luggage and furniture and prepared for flight. But flight was not to be. The rebellion had a chief, and the chief had a policy. Nana Sahib was about proceeding to Delhi, the headquarters of the rebellion, where the flag of the prophet had been unfurled, but Azimoolah persuaded him not to be absorbed into the court of the Mogul, but to conquer the country around Cawnpore and so command the avenues by which English reinforcements could arrive. Then when possessed of Delhi and Punjaub he might assume the Captain-Generalship of the rebel armies, and drive the accursed Christian dogs forever from the valley of the Ganges. Azimoolah was successful. On June 6 the Nana announced that he would commence the attack. The Sepoys murdered, robbed and fired everything within their reach in the native city. As soon as the mutineers had begun the assault, no Sepoy felt secure of his neck and plunder as long as one Englishman remained on Indian soil. Azeezum, a courtesan of prominence, rode up and down the lines, haranguing the troops. The sun never before looked on so sad a sight as that crowd of women and children cooped within a small space and exposed during twenty days and nights to the concentrated fire of thousands of muskets and a score of heavy cannon. By the third night every door and window had been beaten in. The shell and ball ranged at will through the naked rooms. Women and children were mangled by grape or round shot or crushed beneath falling brickwork or mutilated by flying splinters. Sir Hugh Wheeler was helpless. Capt. Moore was in command. No hero ever won his record of gallant deeds more nobly from the field of Hastings to the bloodiest fight of our own times. He was everywhere. It would be impossible in this brief mention to give the names of the heroes who sustained the honor of their country. One by one the cannon were rendered useless. On the eighth evening the thatched barrack was in a blaze. A night of horror followed. The guards crouched silent and watchful, finger on trigger, while the forms of countless foes prowled around through the outer gloom.

There were two wells, one supplied the besieged with water, the other was dry. It lay two hundred yards from the rampart. Thither every night the slain of the previous day were borne. Within the space of three weeks two hundred and fifty English people were deposited there. On June 18th reinforcements arrived at Cawnpore for the Nana. He poured in hot shot, and the dismay was frightful. On the 23d the Nana made an assault with the whole strength of the insurrection. The English shot down the teams which tugged the artillery, burned the bales, and routed them. That night a party of Sepoys desired to bury the slain, which was granted.

And now comes the act of treachery, which will cover forever the memory of Nana Sahib with an unutterable loathing. The English had determined to die, and fought with a desperation that never was exceeded. Among the rebels, disgust and disaffection gained ground from hour to hour. On the evening of the 23d, Azimoolah called upon a Mrs. Jacobi, a prisoner held at a ransom of £40,000, and directed her to proceed to Sir Hugh Wheeler with the proposition that all who were willing to lay down their arms should receive a safe passage to Allahabad. The offer was unhappily accepted. In another week they would be washed out of their defenses by the annual flood. Their stores had dwindled to less than a quart per head of almost uneatable native food. The choice was between death and capitulation. That evening a council of murder was held in the tent of the Nana. Only five or six advisers were present, but they knew to what they had been summoned. In the morning Azimoolah walked up to within a short distance of the British outposts, and to him went forth Moore and Whiting and Postmaster Roche. The fortifications were to be given up. The troops, such as were left, were to carry sixty rounds of ammunition each. Carriages would convey the wounded, the women and children and boats, victualled with flour, would be ready at the landing. Can we imagine what passed in that night? Hoolass Singh punted down the river during the night some two dozen barges, which were covered with roofs of thatch. The Suttee Chowra Ghaut is the landing place, a mile from the intrenchment. At two hours before daybreak, by the Nana's orders, five guns and as many hundred picked assassins were placed in ambush near an old temple on the bank of the river. At an early hour all Cawnpore was astir. Moore went about from group to group and impressed upon them the necessity of pushing off as soon as all were aboard and making for the opposite shore. On elephants, in palanquins, they set out on the dusky road to death. Lady Wheeler had given her ayah a bag of rupees for her fidelity. A Sepoy slashed her shoulder and took her treasure. But why go on with the sickening details? On reaching the water a bugle was sounded. It was the signal. The native rowers [illegible] English returned, but in another moment the roof of every boat was in a flame of death, ignited by red-hot charcoal. Then commenced the slaughter. A trooper rode to the Nana to tell him all was going well. Nana directed to keep the women alive, but kill the males. The order was carried out. The women were returned guarded by Sepoys, each of whom claimed a fair English girl as his share of the loot. Four Englishmen succeeded by swimming and floating in escaping the bullets of the murderers, and by degrees landed at the estate of Diribijah Singh. These were Thompson, Delafosse, private Murphy and gunner Sullivan. They were saved, and lived to tell the story as we tell it now. On June 26, the prison list numbered sixty sahibs, twenty-five mem-sahibs, or females, and four children. The men were seated on the ground and ordered to be shot. Then Dr. Boyes' wife ran in, and sat down behind her husband, saying, "If he must die I will die with him." Then the other mem-sahibs ran in saying "We also will die with our husbands," whereupon the Nana ordered them to be pulled forcibly away, all except the doctor's wife, who remained with her husband. Then the sahibs shook hands all around, and the Sepoys fired. They were not all killed, so the Sepoys went in and finished them off with swords. This was from the evidence of a native spy.

On July 1, the remaining prisoners were removed to a small building between the Black City and the Ganges. In India it is known as the "House of the Ladies," and in England as the "House of the Massacre." Here for a fortnight were penned 206 persons of European extraction. The prisoners so confined, and the number of them diminished so fast, that the Nana began to fear he would have no hostages to parley against a reverse. Meanwhile, Gen. Havelock was moving northward from Allahabad. The Nana took up a position to meet him twenty-two miles south of Cawnpore. The battle commenced at nine. At four in the afternoon the news of defeat had reached the Tiger. He ordered the prisoners to prepare for death. Five Sepoys were bidden to fall on. They entered the house. Their knives broke off at the handles. They procured others, and re-entered. By the time darkness had closed in, the men came out and locked up the house for the night, but the groaning continued till morning. We all know how the Nana attempted to make a stand against Havelock, how he fled into the morasses and how, in all probability, he died a quiet death which we must all regret, and over the well where those brave hearts lie stilled forever, rises a Christian temple of honor that should last forever. Near to it is an inclosure which marks the boundaries of the "House of the Ladies." So revolting a tale of blood and treachery does not often, happily, disgrace the historic pages of any nation.—St. Louis Republican.

A Tragedy of the Sea.

The British ship Euxine, bound from North Shields for Aden, was destroyed by fire in the South Atlantic in August last. The crew took to the boats, which soon separated from each other. The occupants of one boat lost all their provisions and water, and, after enduring the pangs of hunger for some time, drew lots to decide which of them should be killed to preserve the lives of his companions. The lot fell upon an Italian sailor, who was killed and cut up. Only a few hours afterwards the others were picked up by the Dutch ship Java Packet. The Batavia Handelsblad of the 3d of December says: "For several days they had eaten nothing, and had endeavored to quench thirst by sea water, so that one of them, wholly exhausted, strove to stab himself in despair. He was, however, restrained by the others, who proposed that, considering the circumstances, it should be decided by lot which of the six should be the first victim to save his comrades for awhile from death by hunger. In conformity with this plan six pieces of wood of varying length were cut; the mate held them in his hand, and each of the men drew out one; he who drew out the longest was to fall. Francis Shufus, an Italian, was the unfortunate whom the lot assigned for it. Meekly and without a murmur he submitted, and soon he gave up the ghost under the knife of his hungry fellows. Some hours afterwards, and when they had just commenced their horrid meal, a sail was sighted on the horizon, whither course was immediately shaped. On the evening of the same day—August 31—the five rescued persons, completely exhausted, reached the deck of the Java Packet. Captain Trappen and his subordinates immediately did all they could, by careful treatment to make the five unfortunates forget as much as possible the misery suffered."

A LARGE WOLF.—A large wolf, one of a pack of sixteen, has been shot in the Alps, measuring seven feet from the root of his tail to the tip of his nose. Previous to being killed he picked up a child, threw it over his shoulder and was making off with it when he was stopped by a shot from a hunter who happened to be near at hand. Dropping the child, and though mortally wounded, he made straight for the hunter, seized him by the knee and held him fast until death compelled him to release his hold. The child escaped without any serious injury, but the hunter died a short time after from hydrophobia.

WHEN a young lady has to stay at home from a party on account of a sty on her eye, it is useless to tell her that Providence doeth all things for the best.

JACK SHEPPARD OUTDONE.

Bill Rudifer's Extraordinary Escape from the Southern Indiana Penitentiary.

[From the Louisville Courier-Journal.]

The [illegible] Rudifer, lately confined in the State Prison South, at Jeffersonville, is the peer of any man living. His last feat caps the climax of his desperate and bold adventures heretofore, and he stands to-day before the world as the greatest living specimen of a successful jail-breaker since the days of Jack Sheppard and "Sixteen String Jack."

At twenty minutes to 4 o'clock yesterday morning, the guard in the north cell-house peeped through the glass door in the main guard-room and discovered that the main front door was closed, and all looked secure and right, and the two [illegible] their beds. He knew that all was not right, and immediately gave the alarm. The sleeping guards jumped to their feet; they discovered the open door; they ran out in the hall and found the outer door leading to the street also open. They rubbed their eyes, looked amazed and dumbfounded, and then came the exclamation: "Rudifer is gone!" And he had.

An investigation commenced at once, and the mode of Rudifer's escape discovered. At the south side of the new cell-house is an iron water-pipe leading up to a large tank on the top of the prison building. The pipe goes up a distance of sixty feet, and is but four and a half inches in circumference. It terminates within twenty feet of the tower where a guard is placed. The tower is ten feet above the walls of the prison, and on the top of the tower there is a cupola, in which is a beacon light. The light is made from five large gas burners, which throw a light sufficient to illuminate all of the inside of the prison and also a strong light upon all the walls, and can be seen for miles around. Rudifer, with the glare of the light upon him, climbed the small iron pipe, sixty feet high, and was safe on the prison wall or the roof of the main building. Within ten feet of the water tank, where Rudifer climbed up, is a trap-door leading down into the main building. He crawled to that, lifted it up, and descended to the upper floor, which is a hall. In the meantime, the guard in the tower gave no alarm, and was evidently wrapped in his thoughts of home and friends, or else he was dreaming the long hours away, or surely he would have seen Rudifer, who passed in the strong light so near him just now, pulled up the trap-door and disappeared down the opening. There is a sky-light in the hall from the roof through two floors to the lower floor. From the third or upper floor, Rudifer could peep over the railing around the sky-light and see all that was going on in the lower room, where the guards were stationed. They, as we have said, were asleep, but Rudifer did not know that. He descended another flight of stairs, which brought him to the second floor. Here, again, he could not only see what was transpiring below, but he could hear every word uttered by leaning over the railing, peering and listening. He could hear nothing; not a sound; for the sentinels below were sleeping. Now was his time to dare all or lose all and strike for liberty. On his way down stairs he had picked up a heavy iron poker four feet long—a formidable weapon—and with this in his hands he descended the last flight of stairs, cautiously opened the door at the foot of the stairs and in a moment more stood in the guard-room, with only two more doors between him and liberty. The two guards sleep soundly. All is well for Rudifer, and he is master of the room and equal to the situation. He goes to a desk at his right and takes from it a bunch of keys, used for unlocking the doors in other departments of the prison. Next he must have gone to the key-board to the right of the iron door; then he took down a number of keys, selected the one that unlocks the heavy padlock on the door, applied the key, unlocked the padlock and opened the iron door, passed out in the main hall of the prison, took down the bar and unlocked the outer door, and stepped out on the stone front step of the main entrance of the Indiana State prison, into the cold morning air, a free man. As he stands there on the steps of the prison, the indomitable will, reckless daring and bravery of the man are to be admired. He has overcome and surmounted difficulties and dangers in making his escape which one man in ten thousand would not dare undertake—much less to perform. He pauses on the steps—perhaps long enough to cast a scornful look back into the room where the sleeping guards are lying, and then he is off, leaving the doors wide open behind him.

Ripples of Thought.

Pity with its crystal drops is sweetening many a cup of life. And, in return, many a grateful heart is laying on the palm of pity the choicest gems of gratitude.

Good resolutions are an honor to every heart that may form them. But that honor takes to itself a new luster and that luster is nobler still when these resolutions are not broken.

Hearts have windows. They should be kept open at all times, that the glad sunshine of all that is true and beautiful in this life may enter and abide therein.

'Tis the mission of Hope to hold forth the germ of many a fair yet fragile flower. But they blossom forth or wither away, as God may decree it, in close proximity to the thorns of bitter disappointment.

Patience has its charms as well as its reputed virtue. The charm is in its cheerfulness; the virtue in its quiet fortitude to wait and trust. One adds to the other's beauty just as a moonbeam resting upon a placid sea adds to the beauty of the peaceful waters.

Died at His Post.

A Philadelphia paper tells the following story of a car-driver in that city who was frozen to death at his post. If true, [illegible]. It says: "The fortitude displayed by the renowned pilot on the Lake Erie packet, in meeting death at his post, and saving the lives of the passengers, was emulated on Saturday night, during the visit of the polar wave, by a driver of a Market street car, who froze to death while driving the car to the depot at Forty-first street and Haverford avenue. When near the depot, the conductor rang the bell, signaling for the car to stop. It was not heeded. Again he pulled, and no attention was paid. He then went to the front of the car, and found the driver numb from exposure, and dead. The [illegible] through his hands. When the depot was reached he was removed and effort was made to restore life, but with no success. The man was unmarried and about twenty-six years of age.

The Proper Clothing for Winter.

The London Sanitary Record of Dec. 26 has the following: "The extreme and continued severity of the weather has called public attention to the best means of combating the fatal influence exercised by the lowness of the temperature on the vital powers of the young, the feeble, and the aged. Many suggestions have been made for the purpose of keeping up the amount of vital heat necessary to counteract the depressing action of the external cold, of which [illegible] the sensible [illegible] ing so as to economize the vital heat generated in the body, and to prevent its radiation. He points out the futility of warming rooms to an excessive degree, and at the same time wearing thin clothing, since vital heat is generated in the body itself, not absorbed from the outside. [illegible] what material is best adapted to retain the heat, and to prevent its radiation to the outer air. Experiments conducted by Dr. Krieger tend to show that flannel and woolen materials answer this purpose more fully than any other manufactured materials. The same series of experiments also demonstrate that loose-fitting garments tend to keep us much warmer than tight-fitting ones. The reason of this is that our clothing not only renders the air still around us, but it also regulates its temperature by the heat that leaves our bodies. We heat our garments, and they continually heat the air passing through the meshes and pores of the skin. We do not feel the loss of heat which our clothing undergoes as we should if the air were to strike our surface without having been previously prepared by our dress; the differences of temperature balance themselves within the material we are clothed in, and of which the ends of our cutaneous nerves form no part. Inside our dress our temperature averages about 75.94 degrees Fahrenheit, which is best kept in by rough, loose woolen textures, while garments of silk and linen should be avoided. All persons, old or young, feeble or strong, who value the preservation of their health or their lives, should, as far as possible, in inclement weather, clothe themselves in flannels, woolen, and fur garments, eschewing silk and the lighter materials until the advent of a more favorable season."

German Newspapers.

A Berlin correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes, "You would indeed be surprised at the lack of enterprise in newspaper-making here. The National Zeitung, representing the liberal party and considered the best paper in the city, is similar in form to the New York Nation, though its page is a third or more larger. It has from three to four sheets in the morning edition, which appears every day except Monday, but in common with all other papers, it takes a three-days holiday three times in the year—at Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide, respectively. There is an evening edition of this paper Sundays excepted, consisting of a sheet and a half. The paper is generous in the space allotted to advertisements, but there is little effort to secure subscribers. The rule is that the paper shall be delivered by the month, and no subscriptions are taken from any intermediate date. One must pay from the beginning of the month, and be furnished with the back numbers, or wait until the opening of the next. Concerts, new operas, plays, etc., are first reported on the second morning after their appearance; and, as the evening papers only contain telegraphic dispatches, parliamentary reports, and court news, one doesn't know until Tuesday whether Niemann was in good voice or no on the Saturday before. Very much on the editorial page is quoted, suspected or believed to be so and so, very little is asserted. The American news is extremely meager, often incorrect, and rarely cheerful reading to the foreign resident. One pays for all this about twelve thalers a year ($9.72 currency), including the paper's delivery at your door, which is put down as a separate item."

Take Care of the Feathers.

"According to statistics very carefully compiled," says a writer in La Nature, "we throw away yearly a quantity of chicken feathers the intrinsic value of which is equal to the money we pay out for cotton." A startling statement, but the author considers it true, and he proceeds to explain how the feathers are prepared to render them valuable: The operation is to cut the plume portion of the feathers from the stem by means of ordinary hand scissors. The former are placed in a bag, which, when full, is closed and subjected to a thorough kneading with the hands. At the end of five minutes the feathers, it is stated, become disaggregated and felted together, forming a down perfectly homogeneous and of great lightness. It is even lighter than natural eider down, because the latter contains the ribs of the feathers, which give extra weight. The material thus prepared is worth and readily sells in Paris for two dollars a pound. About one and one-sixth Troy ounces of this down can be obtained from feathers of an ordinary pullet; and this on the above valuation, is worth about twenty cents. It is suggested that, through the winter, children might collect all the feathers about a farm, and cut the ribs out as we have stated. By the spring time a large quantity of down would be prepared, which could be disposed of to upholsterers, or employed for domestic use. Good feathers may be treated in a similar manner, and thus two-thirds of the product of the bird utilized, instead of only about one-fifth, as is at present the case.

HOWEVER rich a man may be, however titled, however proud, let him go his way with humility, remembering that he is only about the two-billionth part of the population of the world, and that he will some day die, and be missed by men just about as much as a mashed grasshopper is missed by his swarm.

THE Scientific American justly denounces the habit of visitors kissing the baby. A strictly pathological view of the subject leads to the belief that best way is to kiss the mother, when she is young and pretty, and let her give it to the infant.

A MAN was recently found lying insensible in the street by the police of Baltimore. He has since been claimed by a woman who positively identified him as her husband, and by a young man, a stranger to the woman, who is just as positive that the man is his long-lost father.

LIEUT.-COL. LONG, formerly editor of a newspaper in Maryland, and now an officer in the service of the Khedive of Egypt, claims to have discovered the true source of the Nile, in latitude 1 deg. 30 min., and between Urondogani and Uganda. As the source has been long looked for, it is appropriate that it should be Long found.

THE Brooklyn Argus says: "We see it stated that Col. Sam Pike, of Ohio, started no less than forty-two papers during his eventful career. Col. Sam Bard, of Georgia, has started about the same number, but in each case the Sheriff started so soon for Sam, that he never could tell whether he was meant for a journalist or a flying machine."

SENATOR SCHURZ contemplates residing in the neighborhood of either Boston or New York for a year or two after he leaves the Senate, with the view to better facilities for the preparation of a political history of the United States, which is among his literary plans for the future, and for which he has made a large accumulation of materials.

"BOFFIN'S BOWER" in Boston is a place well suited for its more than realization of the mythical "Bower" that existed in Dickens' imagination. It is a temporary home for all poor girls who fail to procure sufficient employment to support themselves. The leading spirit of the institution is a Miss Jennie Collins, through whose efforts it was inaugurated and exists. She has made it her one object in life to alleviate the miseries of such girls, and right well has she succeeded.

THE Boston Globe's report of Kalakaua's visit to the patent medicine manufactory of Cherry Pectoral Ayer, says: "Rather an interesting episode occurred while the party were in the 'vigor' department. Mr. Ayer said: 'Here is where you can get your head replinished with hair if it is naked.' Kalakaua replied: 'Why do you not put some on your own head, then?' Inasmuch as Mr. Ayer's head is very bald, the point was quickly seen, and a hearty laugh ensued."

The Wife's Victory.

* * * She told him to stay at home and take care of the baby, while she went to a Spiritualistic lecture. L—— resented; had business on hand, and would explained, but was admonished to silence by a stew-pan flying across the room in close proximity to his head. He retaliated by kicking over the table, and then that marital relation, predicated on a "love basis," was torn asunder. The climax was reached. The time which for years the woman had so earnestly prayed for had at length arrived, and gloriously she vindicated outraged feminity. On his devoted shoulders came the horse-whip; faster and faster rained the blows. In vain he implored, begged, beseeched her to let up, but his words proved only an incentive to the vixen wife. Her imprecations were fearful, but her strength at last succumbed, and as she laid aside the butt end of the cowhide carefully, she arrayed herself in her "meeting harness," and, as she gently closed the door, said: "L——, if the baby cries, you can borrow some sirup of Mrs. H——, next door."—Virginia Enterprise.

English Universities.

We learn from the late report of the Universities Commission, that the University of Oxford has an income of £47,000; the Colleges and Halls, £336,000; the University of Cambridge, £34,000; the Colleges and Halls, £306,000. For the year 1871, Exeter College, at Cambridge, with an income of £14,000, had from 170 to 180 undergraduates; Merton, with £17,000 a year, had 54 undergraduates; and Baliol, with £8,000 a year, had [illegible] College, with £59,000 a year, had 445 undergraduates; King's, with £34,000, had but 31; and Corpus, with £9,000, had [illegible]. THE GREAT SCANDAL.

Court Scenes and Trial Items—Some Interesting Sketches and Incidents.

"TAKE HER OUT."

[New York Telegram.]

At recess, to-day, Judge Neilson surveyed the court with a scrutinizing look, and his eye fell on a female hat and feather in the space set apart for members of the bar. In two seconds he was standing behind that female, and calling for an officer in loud and eager tones. The officer hurried along in great alarm. "Didn't I tell you?" demanded his honor, "that these rows of chairs are reserved for the bar!" The officer admitted that such was the unquestionable fact. "Then, take that woman out," said the Judge sternly, "and let no woman enter the court merely as a spectator." The officer [illegible] by the [illegible] and led her out, followed by her male friend. The Judge did not, apparently, notice the ladies lunching in the gallery.

THE PARTIES TO THE SUIT.

[From the New York Graphic.]

Mr. Beecher is scarcely a dignified person in this trial. He smiles and sneers, and has as many expressions as a chameleon. I do not see the fitness of bringing his wife into court. She is not accused of doing anything of the things for which he is undergoing trial, and her white hairs and grown-up children should have protected her from the publicity which it is optional with him to give.

Mrs Tilton's appearance in the court room was a gross violation of good taste. She is paraded among the enemies of her husband, where she belongs if what he charges is true. If she has injured him as he says, she can do him no further enmity by braving him in open court, but she has added to the probability of her unworthiness by this bold display. Tilton has not opened his mouth to suggest anything or express the slightest shade of feeling.

THE ANCIENT VENDER OF PIES.

[New York Dispatch.]

After the principal characters in the great suit, the ancient vender of pies who haunts the Court-House ranks next in importance. This high-strung pie-man has become a part of the trial now, and he brooks no familiarity. He administered, yesterday, to a prominent member of Plymouth Church, a crushing rebuke. "These mince-pies are very bad," remarked the church-member in question. "Werry bad, sir!" replied the pie-man; "but they're not half as bad as the langwedge as you've been a listening to all day." This pie-man, on the first day of the trial, was the meekest man in the court-room.

BUTLER THE AUTHOR OF MOULTON'S STATEMENTS.

[Testimony of F. D. Moulton.]

I made two statements after the publication of Beecher's; they were prepared, the first at Bay View and the other at Lowell. I gave the papers to Gen. Butler and he made out the statements. I did not dictate any of the first statement to a stenographer, but did a portion of the second. Was present when Gen. Butler dictated to the stenographer. I gave the facts to Gen. Butler for the manufacture of the statements. The drafting of the first statement occupied several days. The second statement was also in preparation several days.

FRISKY OLD ROOSTERS.

[New York Telegram.]

One peculiar feature of this gathering was the presence of a number of feeble, gray-haired old men. Despite the currents of biting, frosty air which swept through the corridors, these thin-blooded old men lingered with the crowd, and gazed with envious eyes upon those upon whom the doors were not closed. Just before 11 o'clock some one shouted, "Here they come!" and immediately there was a race to the rear of the Court-House. Mrs. Tilton, her face covered with a heavy lace veil, hung on the arm of a young man with Dundreary whiskers; next came Mrs. Shearman and Mrs. Anna M. Field, each with a gentleman. As the party made their way toward the court room the conduct of the crowd was simply outrageous. Audible comments upon the appearance of Mrs. Tilton, and coarse jibes about the plaintiff and defendant as well, passed freely. With considerable difficulty the party threaded their way through the files of rude spectators into the court room.

MOULTON AS A SMILER.

[Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

Zealous admirers of Mr. Beecher, who expected to see the witness flinch and his testimony shrivel and crack under a hot fire of cross-examination, went to lunch and subsequently to supper with impaired appetite and temper. Mr. Moulton smiled when he took his seat, smiled all the way through, and, when he rose to get his overcoat, smiled again as he whispered to a friend that it was easy to tell the truth. He was not disconcerted at any stage of the proceedings, but played with his handkerchief with an expression of amusement on his face, and was entirely at his ease, and, as many of Mr. Tilton's friends claimed, was the best witness ever seen in court.

A LUNCH-BEARING AUDITORY.

[New York Telegram.]

Many spectators came provided with lunches—notably those who occupy seats in the gallery. Between 1 and 2 o'clock in the afternoon, ham-sandwiches and mince-pies are in great demand, and when the supply of these articles fails the hungry spectator is obliged to satisfy his appetite with a measure of roasted peanuts.

IN CASE OF BEECHER'S CONVICTION, WHAT?

[Cor. Chicago Times.]

Already the spectators in court begin to speculate on what will happen in the event of Beecher's conviction. Will Plymouth Church drop him, and shall the remainder of his days be passed in pious meditation, and revising and annotating his "Life of Christ?" No, say most of the audience; Beecher is the church, and Plymouth has virtually kicked over the traces of Congregationalism. These people are not so much Congregationalists as Beecherites, and should the trial result disastrously to him, the majority of the church will rally around him and snap their fingers at the jury and the verdict. Indeed, one of the congregation declared, this morning, that he, for one, would stand by Beecher in any event. "Ever since this scandal business began," said he, "Beecher has been mounting higher and higher toward heaven. With him, it is truly, 'Nearer, my God, to Thee,' and there is no man in the country better able to lead his people to God."

"THE OLD MAN."

[Dispatch to Chicago Times.]

The Beecher family were out, or rather in, to-day, in full force, and several clerical-looking individuals, friends of the family, sanctified the proceedings, in a measure, by their presence. There was the "old man," as they begin to call Henry Ward Beecher; his wife; his son, Col. Beecher; his younger son; his brother, Dr. E. Beecher; his brother-in-law, O. C. Bullard, and his daughter-in-law, the wife of Col. Beecher. The [illegible]ed general attention. She is a plump little black-eyed beauty, with a laughing expression of face. She wore a black hat and feather, and a brownish, close-fitting suit.

Beecher walked in with a very subdued air, and quietly took his place, dispensing with the hand-shaking business, as did also his wife, who passed Mrs. Tilton and her friends rapidly, saluting all with a comprehensive bow. Soon after business commenced, Beecher crossed over, with a somewhat feeble step, to his counsel, and sat between Tracy and Evarts. His coat-collar was turned up, disarranging his long, thin, grayish hair. His eyes look weak and watery, as if lately subject to unusual strain, and no doubt he uses up a good deal of the "midnight oil," while wrestling with the spirit and arranging matters in ship-shape for his counsel. Most of the time he sat motionless, gazing intently at the carpet at his feet, as if intensely interested in the complicated pattern. It is plain that the worry and anxiety of trial are beginning to tell on him; and, if guilty, he is paying dear for his whistle. But anything must be preferable to squatting all the time on that "ragged edge."

NO MORE BOUQUETS.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Everbody remarked this morning the absence of bouquets from Beecher's table. It appears that the little incident of the presentation of flowers to Tilton, the other day, has determined the Beecher party to have no more bouquets in court, and thus all that pretty nonsense is played out, to the great relief of the audience.

THE LETTER OF CONTRITION.

Beecher's famous "letter of contrition" was produced in court the other day and the great preacher's counsel at once began to attack the authenticity of the document. The letter was read by Mr Shearman, who, on finishing the recital, said that the word "can't" had been amended by the letter "t" being striken out, and the words "for myself" inserted after the word "pleaded" and Mr. Shearman further added that these alterations had been made with different ink. This statement, made in a most significant manner, created intense excitement among the audience, and plaintiff's counsel, Judge Morris, in a most excited manner, jumped to his feet and said that the statement was false, and, despite the objections of the defendant's counsel, claimed that, owing to the pen used by Moulton, the ink had been imperfectly and unevenly laid on the paper at different parts of different words, which accounted for the peculiar appearance of the document. During this period of the proceedings the excitement in the court was tremendous. Mr. Beecher left his seat by the side of his wife, and was engaged in close and earnest conversation with Messrs. Evarts and Tracy. Mrs. Beecher evinced the greatest concern, and Mrs. Tilton leaned forward, as if eager to catch every word of the discussion.

SERIOUS.

[From Friday's Proceedings.]

Mr. Evarts—I object. Don't go on until the court rules.

Mr. Fullerton (sharply)—I shall go on until the court rules.

Mr. Evarts—I object to his saying anything while you are examining the witness.

The Judge—It may be a serious matter. Perhaps you ought to reserve your criticism; but the point may be reserved for redirect.

Mr. Fullerton (bitterly)—Yes, it is a serious matter and we will make it a serious matter for the other side. [Exultation among Tilton friends.]

Mr. Tracy—We are all serious people here. [Laughter.]

Mr. Fullerton—And you grow more and more serious every day. [Laughter by the Tiltons.]

BESSIE TURNER.

[From Chicago Journal.]

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the proceedings in the Beecher trial yesterday was the fact that both sides seemed to agree in wanting the letters of Bessie Turner introduced as a part of the evidence in the case. It will be remembered that she was a ward of the Tiltons, sent to Ohio to be educated, and that Mr. Beecher paid her bills. The first of the excluded letters pronounces the story that Tilton tried to violate her person a "wicked lie." The second, dated January 10, 18[illegible], is as follows:

MY DEAR MRS. TILTON: I want to tell you something. Your mother, Mrs. Morse, has repeatedly attempted to hire me, by offering me dresses and presents, to go to certain persons and tell them stories injurious to the character of your husband that I have been persuaded that the kind attentions shown me by Mr. Tilton for years were dishonorable demonstrations. I never at that time thought that Mr. Tilton's caresses were for such a purpose. I do not want to be made use of by Mrs. Morse, or any one else, to bring trouble on my two best friends—you and your husband. By-by.

BESSIE TURNER.

This letter was offered by the defense, and accepted with alacrity by the prosecution. What use this letter can be to the defense we are at a loss to understand. It is not a little strange, however, that the prosecution accepted it gladly.

AFTER bright steel has been thoroughly cleansed it should be dusted over with unslacked lime and left until wanted. The coils of piano wires thus sprinkled will keep from rust many years. Table knives which are not in constant use ought to be put in a case in which sifted lime is placed, about eight inches deep. They should be plunged to the [illegible] of the blades, but the lime should not touch the handle.

How He is Roused.

The average Detroit youth sits up late, and when six o'clock in the morning comes he is in his soundest sleep. The father depends on him to make a fire, and he turns over in bed and calls out:

"Solomon, it's six o'clock!"

Boy dreams of chasing a rabbit into a hollow log, and while he is hunting around for an ax the old man calls out:

"Come, Solomon!"

Boy's dream changes, and he thinks he is husking corn to get money to go to Dan Rice's circus. He is making the ears fly when the old man rips out:

"Sol-o-mon Spring-brook!"

Boy moves uneasily, and dreams that he is playing base ball, and he sees a crowd of admiring spectators seated on the top rails of the fences.

"If that boy don't rouse I'll make [illegible]," [illegible] the old man, as he looks at the clock; and then sitting up in bed he shouts:

"Oh, Sol! oh, Sol!"

The boy dreams that he is loafing around the Opera House door and boring people for "checks," and he is about to get one when the old man slips up, pulls the quilts off, hammers away at him with the hair brush, and chuckles:

"There! I guess you won't want me to wake you up more than fourteen times more!"

As the boy pulls on his pants and gets into his vest he mentally declares that he'll run away that very day and become a pirate.—Detroit Free Press.

A WOMAN SPEECHLESS FOR FORTY-TWO YEARS.—Katherine McCall, of Caledonia, sister of John G. and Laura McCall, at the age of twenty-two years,—up to which time she conversed like other people,—all at once ceased to speak, and for forty-two years had not spoken a word, until Sunday, Dec. 20, when her speech returned, and she now converses moderately but distinctly. No reason is given or known why this wonderful recovery of a woman's speech after so many years of pantomimic life.—Leroy (N. Y.) Gazette.

HEART DISEASE.—Many persons suffer with heart disease without knowing it—suddenly they drop off, and their friends are astonished, on a post-mortem examination, to learn that they died of heart disease. The heart, like the brain, is the seat of life—its diseases are of several characters. The most common are valvular disease, fatty degeneration and functional derangement. If the liver becomes deranged, and digestion impaired, the heart, through sympathy and juxtaposition, becomes abnormal. The following symptoms indicate approaching disease: Palpitation, giddiness, faintness, nervous prostration, deranged digestion, vertigo, cold extremities, etc., etc., for which the old school will administer iron, opium, antimony, mercury, and many other mineral poisons. Heart disease is a blood disease—purify the blood; remove obstruction to a limpid circulation by taking that Vegetable Alterative, VINEGAR BITTERS, and you will be a sound person in two or three months.

NO USE of any longer taking the large, repulsive, griping, drastic and nauseous pills, composed of crude and bulky ingredients, and put up in cheap wood or pasteboard boxes, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets represents, in a concentrated form, as much cathartic as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in the drug stores. From their wonderful cathartic power, in proportion to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect, but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized, one by the others, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly, operating cathartic. The Pellets are sold by dealers in medicines.

WILHOFT'S FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This medicine is used by construction companies for the benefit of their employes, when engaged in malarious districts. The highest testimonials have been given by contractors and by the Presidents of some of the leading railroads in the South and West. When men are congregated in large numbers in the neighborhood of swamps and rivers, Wilhoft's Tonic will prove a valuable addition to the stock of medicines, and will amply reward the company in the saving of time, labor and money. We recommend it to all. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans. For sale by all druggists.

AN Irishman called at a drug store to get a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment for the Rheumatism; the druggist asked him in what part of the body it troubled him most. "Be me sowl," said he, "I have it in ivery houl andcorner av me."

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

THE COAL-IMP.

BY C. P. CRANCH.

I was sitting one night by my fire—
'Twas a fire of Westmoreland coal
[illegible]
[illegible]

My chamber was cozy and warm;
The curtains were closed all around;
And the snow at the windows [illegible]
With a [illegible] tinkling sound.

As I sat in my easy chair,
I think it had got to be late,
And over the top of my [illegible]
A face in the glowing grate.

An ugly old face, too, it was—
With wings and a tail—I declare
And the [illegible]
And ended—I don't know where.

So odd were the features, I said,
"I must put you on paper, my friend;"
And took my pen and jotted him down—
[illegible] and wrinkling end.

A queer old codger he seemed,
[illegible]
But I fixed him in outline as well as I could,
And added a touch of my own.

He flapped his wings in the grate,
And struggled and puffed to be free,
And scowled with his blazing carbuncle eyes,
As if he appealed to me.

Then I said—but perhaps I dreamed—
"Old fellow—how came you there?"
"I'm not an old fellow"—the face replied,
"But a prisoned imp of the air.

"In the shape of combustion and gas
My wings I begin to find out;
So I flap at the bars and grow red in the face,
And am ugly enough, no doubt.

"I am made for a much better lot;
But I cannot escape, as you see;
Blistered and burnt, and crammed in a grate—
What could you expect of me?

"I once was a spirit of air,
A delicate fairy page,
Long, long ago—in fact, before
The carboniferous age.

"For centuries I was kept
Imprisoned in coal-beds fast.
When you kindled your fire this evening, you see,
I thought I was free at last.

"But it seems I am still to wait;
No wonder I'm cross as a bear,
Make faces, and flutter my wings of flame,
And struggle to reach the air."

"My ruby-faced friend," I said,
"If you really wish to be free,
Perhaps I can give you a lift or two,
It's easy enough. We'll see."

Then, taking the poker, I punched
A hole in the half-burnt mass—
When the [illegible] up, and the imp flew off
In a laugh of flaming gas.

THE TIGER OF CAWNPORE.

The capture of a man in India supposed to be the Nana Sahib, author of the English massacre at Cawnpore in 1857, has caused an interesting review of the horrible events which marked that holocaust of crime. It has been declared that the man who surrendered himself is not Nana Sahib, but some other enthusiast who desired out of the notoriety of the veritable beast to create for himself a momentary celebrity. Ambition assumes fantastic forms, and certainly in the person of this half-naked Sepoy the desire for publicity has sunk as low as it can well stoop.

Cawnpore lies on the south bank of the Ganges, a thousand miles from the bay of Bengal. In the spring of 1857 three thousand native troops were in barracks there, and of Europeans, including English soldiers, there were a little over one thousand souls. The native army had ceased to fear. Discipline was lax. Insubordination had been afoot since 1845. The British officers, steeped in idleness and false confidence, had lost all control over their men, but still they believed in the fidelity of the troops. The mind of the Sepoy soldier reeked with religious prejudice. The fancied insult which had been thrown upon their religion in greasing the cartridges with the fat of the hog had excited in the Hindoo mind an unquenchable hatred which it was found impossible to overcome. Five parts tallow, five parts stearine, and one part wax were the ingredients of that compound which will never be forgotten as long as England and India have a common history. It has been denied by English officers connected with the royal laboratory at Woolwich that hogs' lard formed any part of the cartridge, but this is open to grave doubts, inasmuch as the officer who denied the presence of the lard was also unable to testify as to the actual ingredient which should have taken its place. The supposed presence of hogs' lard, although without doubt a moving cause of the rebellion, was not the only reason that led up to the terrible events which followed. There was a man, and his name was Seereek Dhoonda Punth, familiarly known as the Nana Sahib. Bajee Rao, the peishwa of Poonah, was the last monarch of the Mahratta dynasties which shared the sovereignty of the Central Highlands. The English dethroned Bajee Rao, confiscated his territories, and then gave him a residence at Bithoor, with a handsome allowance of $400,000. The peishwa had no children, and so he adopted the man Seereek Dhoonda Punth. When Bajee Rao died in 1851, the heir put in a claim for the continuance of the pension, which was disallowed by England. He sent to London Azimoolah Khan, a clever villain, who began life as a kitmutgar or footman in an Anglo-Indian family. This fellow, speaking English and French fluently, and sporting diamonds and cashmere shawls without end, became not only a "lion," but a great favorite among the aristocratic dames of England. He failed, however, in his suit, and returned to Cawnpore without having secured to the Nana the allowance of old Bajee Rao.

At this time the Nana was thirty-six years old. He was fat, clean-shaven, with sallow complexion, and features strongly marked. He was a voluptuary of that sensual character which defies description. Pleasant in manner, he sought all opportunities to make himself familiar and popular with the sahibs of the garrison and their families. While the smile was on his lip, however, the judgment of the East India Company against his claim was forever a torture to his heart. His sole purpose in life was vengeance on the race that had despised and rejected his claim. With this for a private wrong in the hands of a desperate and cunning adventurer, and the hogs' lard of the cartridges to excite the fanaticism of an enthusiastic people, the beginning of the end was made easy. In January the peasants of Bengal were repeating, "Everything is to become red," and in March the provinces of the Ganges were receiving two chupatties or bannocks of salt and dough. It was the fiery cross of India, and notified men that they should be prepared, for "that something was in the air." Meanwhile the Europeans at Cawnpore ate, drank and were merry. The commanding officer at this post was Maj.-Gen. Sir Hugh Wheeler, a soldier of that class which followed those who had won their spurs at Seringapatam. He was seventy-five years of age, two-thirds of which he had spent under an Indian sun, a man utterly unfitted from his years and his antecedents to deal with the bloody perils of such a time. On the 18th of May, Gen. Wheeler telegraphed to [illegible]: "All is well at Cawnpore." [illegible] far from well. Nana Sahib [illegible] He moved his quarters [illegible] to house in Cawnpore occupied by civilians and their families. The treasury containing £100,000 was put under the custody of his body-guard, and it was proposed that the ladies and children should be placed in Bithoor palace. This was declined. The General might have put the magazine in a state of defense, but was content in his imbecile way to throw up a mud wall four feet high around what he was pleased to call an intrenchment. Peas and flour formed the bulk of the supplies and even these were insufficient. "What do you call that place on the plain?" said Azimoolah to a Lieutenant. "The Fort of Victory," was the answer. "No," said the hyena, "call it the Fort of Despair." On June 3 Sir Hugh Wheeler sent the last telegraphic dispatch that ever reached the outer world. He sent out two officers and fifty men and said, "This leaves me weak, but I trust to holding my own until more Europeans arrive."

That night a drunken officer fired on a cavalry patrol. He explained that his piece had gone off by mistake. The Sepoys, prepared for revolt, significantly remarked that their weapons also might go off by mistake before long. Wires had been cut, mails burned and roads blockaded, and the corpses of an English lady and gentleman, murdered above, turned into the canal that traversed Cawnpore. This was the first sight of white blood shed. On June 4, in the darkness of the night, three reports of a pistol announced that the hour had arrived. Native officers turned out their troops, and notwithstanding the exhortations of the British officers, the rebels marched to the northwest suburb and captured, without an effort, the treasury and the magazines. The next day was devoted by the English to gathering the remnants of the native forces. They collected their luggage and furniture and prepared for flight. But flight was not to be. The rebellion had a chief, and the chief had a policy. Nana Sahib was about proceeding to Delhi, the headquarters of the rebellion, where the flag of the prophet had been unfurled, but Azimoolah persuaded him not to be absorbed into the court of the Mogul, but to conquer the country around Cawnpore and so command the avenues by which English reinforcements could arrive. Then when possessed of Delhi and Punjaub he might assume the Captain-Generalship of the rebel armies, and drive the accursed Christian dogs forever from the valley of the Ganges. Azimoolah was successful. On June 6 the Nana announced that he would commence the attack. The Sepoys murdered, robbed and fired everything within their reach in the native city. As soon as the mutineers had begun the assault, no Sepoy felt secure of his neck and plunder as long as one Englishman remained on Indian soil. Azeezun, a courtesan of prominence, rode up and down the lines, haranguing the troops. The sun never before looked on so sad a sight as that crowd of women and children cooped within a small space and exposed during twenty days and nights to the concentrated fire of thousands of muskets and a score of heavy cannon. By the third night every door and window had been beaten in. The shell and ball ranged at will through the naked rooms. Women and children were mangled by grape or round shot or crushed beneath falling brickwork or mutilated by flying splinters. Sir Hugh Wheeler was helpless. Capt. Moore was in command. No hero ever won his record of gallant deeds more nobly from the field of Hastings to the bloodiest fight of our own times. He was everywhere. It would be impossible in this brief mention to give the names of the heroes who sustained the honor of their country. One by one the cannon were rendered useless. On the eighth evening the thatched barrack was in a blaze. A night of horror followed. The guards crouched silent and watchful, finger on trigger, while the forms of countless foes prowled around through the outer gloom.

There were two wells, one supplied the besieged with water, the other was dry. It lay two hundred yards from the rampart. Thither every night the slain of the previous day were borne. Within the space of three weeks two hundred and fifty English people were deposited there. On June 18th reinforcements arrived at Cawnpore for the Nana. He poured in hot shot, and the dismay was frightful. On the 23d the Nana made an assault with the whole strength of the insurrection. The English shot down the teams which tugged the artillery, burned the bales, and routed them. That night a party of Sepoys desired to bury the slain, which was granted.

And now comes the act of treachery, which will cover forever the memory of Nana Sahib with an unutterable loathing. The English had determined to die, and fought with a desperation that never was exceeded. Among the rebels, disgust and disaffection gained ground from hour to hour. On the evening of the 23d, Azimoolah called upon a Mrs. Jacobi, a prisoner held at a ransom of £40,000, and directed her to proceed to Sir Hugh Wheeler with the proposition that all who were willing to lay down their arms should receive a safe passage to Allahabad. The offer was unhappily accepted. In another week they would be washed out of their defenses by the annual flood. Their stores had dwindled to less than a quart per head of almost uneatable native food. The choice was between death and capitulation. That evening a council of murder was held in the tent of the Nana. Only five or six advisers were present, but they knew to what they had been summoned. In the morning Azimoolah walked up to within a short distance of the British outposts, and to him went forth Moore and Whiting and Postmaster Roche. The fortifications were to be given up. The troops, such as were left, were to carry sixty rounds of ammunition each. Carriages would convey the wounded, the women and children and boats, victualled with flour, would be ready at the landing. Can we imagine what passed in that night? Hoolass Singh punted down the river during the night some two dozen barges, which were covered with roofs of thatch. The Suttee Chowra Ghaut is the landing place, a mile from the intrenchment. At two hours before daybreak, by the Nana's orders, five guns and [illegible] picked assassins were placed in ambush near an old temple on the bank of the river. At an early hour all Cawnpore was astir. Moore went about [illegible] ground and impressed upon [illegible] necessity of pushing off as soon as all [illegible] board and making for the opposite shore. On elephants, in palanquins, [illegible] on the dusky road to death. Lady Wheeler had given her ayah a bag of rupees for her fidelity. A Sepoy slashed her shoulder and took her treasure. But why go on with the sickening details? On reaching the water a bugle was sounded. It was the signal. The native [illegible] opened [illegible] which [illegible] returned, but in another moment the roof of every boat was in a flame of death, ignited by [illegible] charcoal. Then commenced the slaughter. A trooper rode to the Nana to tell him all was going well. Nana directed to keep the women alive, but kill the males. The order was carried out. The women were returned guarded by Sepoys, each of whom claimed a fair English girl as his share of the loot. Four Englishmen succeeded by swimming [illegible] in escaping the bullets of the murderers, and by degrees landed at the estate of Diribijah Singh. These were Thompson, Delafosse, private Murphy and gunner Sullivan. They were saved, and lived to tell the story as we tell it now. On June 28, the prison list numbered sixty sahibs, twenty-five mem-sahibs, or females, and four children. The men were seated on the ground and ordered to be shot. Then Dr. Boyes' wife ran in, and sat down behind her husband, saying, "If he must die I will die with him." Then the other mem-sahibs ran in saying "We also will die with our husbands," whereupon the Nana ordered them to be pulled forcibly away, all except the doctor's wife, who remained with her husband. Then the sahibs shook hands all around, and the Sepoys fired. They were not all killed, so the Sepoys went in and finished them off with swords. This was from the evidence of a native spy.

On July 1, the remaining prisoners were removed to a small building between the Black City and the Ganges. In India it is known as the "House of the Ladies," and in England as the "House of the Massacre." Here for a fortnight were [illegible] 206 persons of European extraction. The place was so confined, and the number [illegible] diminished so fast, that the Nana began to fear he would have [illegible] against a reverse. Meanwhile, Gen. Havelock was moving northward from Allahabad. The Nana took up a position to meet him twenty-two miles south of Cawnpore. The battle commenced at nine. At four in the afternoon the news of defeat had reached the Tiger. He ordered the prisoners to prepare for death. Five Sepoys were bidden to fall on. They entered the house. Their knives broke off at the handles. They procured others, and re-entered. By the time darkness had closed in, the men came out and locked up the house for the night, but the groaning continued till morning. We all know how the Nana attempted to make a stand against Havelock, how he fled into the morasses and how, in all probability, he died a quiet death which we must all regret, and over the well where those brave hearts lie stilled forever, rises a Christian temple of honor that should last forever. Near to it is an inclosure which marks the boundaries of the "House of the Ladies." So revolting a tale of blood and treachery does not often, happily, disgrace the historic pages of any nation.—St. Louis Republican.

A Tragedy of the Sea.

The British ship Euxine, bound from North Shields for Aden, was destroyed by fire in the South Atlantic in August last. The crew took to the boats, which soon separated from each other. The occupants of one boat lost all their provisions and water, and, after enduring the pangs of hunger for some time, drew lots to decide which of them should be killed to preserve the lives of his companions. The lot fell upon an Italian sailor, who was killed and cut up. Only a few hours afterwards the others were picked up by the Dutch ship Java Packet. The Batavia Handelsblad of the 3d of December says: "For several days they had eaten nothing, and had endeavored to quench thirst by sea water, so that one of them, wholly exhausted, strove to stab himself in despair. He was, however, restrained by the others, who proposed that, considering the circumstances, it should be decided by lot which of the six should be the one bound to save his comrades for awhile from death by hunger. In conformity with this plan six pieces of wood of varying length were cut; the mate held them in his hand, and each of the men drew out one; he who drew out the longest was to fall. Francis Shufus, an Italian, was the unfortunate whom the lot assigned for it. Meekly and without a murmur he submitted, and soon he gave up the ghost under the knife of his hungry fellows. Some hours afterwards, and when they had just commenced their horrid meal, a sail was sighted on the horizon, whither course was immediately shaped. On the evening of the same day—August 31—the five rescued persons, completely exhausted, reached the deck of the Java Packet. Captain Trappen and his subordinates immediately did all they could, by careful treatment to make the five unfortunates forget as much as possible the misery suffered.

A LARGE WOLF.—A large wolf, one of a pack of sixteen, has been shot in the Alps, measuring seven feet from the root of his tail to the tip of his nose. Previous to being killed he picked up a child, threw it over his shoulder and was making off with it when he was stopped by a shot from a hunter who happened to be near at hand. Dropping the child, and though mortally wounded, he made straight for the hunter, seized him by the knee and held him fast until death compelled him to release his hold. The child escaped without any serious injury, but the hunter died a short time after from hydrophobia.

WHEN a young lady has to stay at home from a party on account of a sty on her eye, it is useless to tell her that Providence doeth all things for the best.

JACK SHEPPARD OUTDONE.

Bill Rudifer's Extraordinary Escape from the Southern Indiana Penitentiary.

[From the Louisville Courier-Journal.]

Rudifer, lately confined in the State Prison South, at Jeffersonville, is the peer of any man living. His last feat [illegible] the [illegible] of his desperate and bold adventures [illegible] and he stands [illegible] before the world as the greatest [illegible] Jack Sheppard, "Sixteen String Jack."

At twenty minutes to 4 o'clock yesterday morning, the guard in the north cell-house peeped through the glass door in the main guard-room and discovered that the main front door was closed, and all [illegible] and the two [illegible] were [illegible] their beds. He knew that all was not right, and immediately gave the alarm. The sleeping guards jumped to their feet; they discovered the open door. They ran out in the hall and found the outer door leading to the street also open. They rubbed their eyes, looked amazed and dumbfounded, and then came the exclamation: "Rudifer is gone!" And he had.

An investigation commenced at once, and the mode of Rudifer's escape discovered. At the south side of the new cell-house is an iron water-pipe leading up to a large tank on the top of the prison wall. The pipe goes up a distance of sixty feet, and is but four and a half inches in circumference. It terminates within twenty feet of the tower where a guard is placed. The tower is ten feet above the walls of the prison, and on the top of the tower there is a cupola, in which is a beacon light. The light is made from five large gas burners, which throw a light sufficient to illuminate all of the inside of the prison and also a strong light upon all the walls, and can be seen for miles around. Rudifer, with the glare of the light upon him, climbed the small iron pipe, sixty feet high, and was safe on the prison wall or the roof of the main building. Within ten feet of the water tank, where Rudifer climbed up, is a trap-door leading down into the main building. He crawled to that, lifted it up, and descended to the upper floor, which is a hall. In the meantime, the guard in the tower gave no alarm, and was evidently wrapped in his thoughts of home and friends, or else he was dreaming the long hours away, or surely he would have seen Rudifer, who passed in the strong light so near him just now, pulled up the trap-door and disappeared down the opening. There is a sky-light in the hall from the roof through two floors to the lower floor. From the third or upper floor, Rudifer could peep over the railing around the sky-light and see all that was going on in the lower room, where the guards were stationed. They, as we have said, were asleep, but Rudifer did not know that. He descended another flight of stairs, which brought him to the second floor. Here, again, he could not only see what was transpiring below, but he could hear every word uttered by leaning over the railing, peering and listening. He could hear nothing; not a sound; for the sentinels below were sleeping. Now was his time to dare all or lose all and strike for liberty. On his way down stairs he had picked up a heavy iron poker four feet long—a formidable weapon—and with this in his hands he descended the last flight of stairs, cautiously opened the door at the foot of the stairs and in a moment more stood in the guard-room, with only two more doors between him and liberty. The two guards sleep soundly. All is well for Rudifer, and he is master of the room and equal to the situation. He goes to a desk at his right and takes from it a bunch of keys, used for unlocking the doors in other departments of the prison. Next he must have gone to the key-board to the right of the iron door; then he took down a number of keys, selected the one that unlocks the heavy padlock on the door, applied the key, unlocked the padlock and opened the iron door, passed out in the main hall of the prison, took down the bar and unlocked the outer door, and stepped out on the stone front step of the main entrance of the Indiana State prison, into the cold morning air, a free man. As he stands there on the steps of the prison, the indomitable will, reckless daring and bravery of the man are to be admired. He has overcome and surmounted difficulties and dangers in making his escape which one man in ten thousand would not dare undertake—much less to perform. He pauses on the steps—perhaps long enough to cast a scornful look back into the room where the sleeping guards are lying, and then he is off, leaving the doors wide open behind him.

Ripples of Thought.

Pity with its crystal drops is sweetening many a cup of life. And, in return, many a grateful heart is laying on the palm of pity the choicest gems of gratitude.

Good resolutions are an honor to every heart that may form them. But that honor takes to itself a new luster and that [illegible] nobler still when these resolutions are not broken.

Hearts have windows. They should be kept open at all times, that the glad sunshine of all that is true and beautiful in this life may enter and abide therein.

'Tis the mission of Hope to hold forth the germ of many a fair yet fragile flower. But they blossom forth or wither away, as God may decree it, in close proximity to the thorns of bitter disappointment.

Patience has its charms as well as its reputed virtue. The charm is in its cheerfulness; the virtue in its quiet fortitude to wait and trust. One adds to the other's beauty just as a moonbeam resting upon a placid sea adds to the beauty of the peaceful waters.

Died at His Post.

A Philadelphia paper tells the following story of a car-driver in that city who was frozen to death at his post. If true, [illegible] It says: "The fortitude displayed by the renowned pilot on the Lake Erie packet, in meeting death at his post, and saving the lives of the passengers, was emulated on Saturday night, during the visit of the polar wave, by a driver of a Market street car, who froze to death while driving the car to the depot at Forty-first street and Haverford avenue. When near the depot, the conductor rang the bell, signaling for the car to stop. It was not heeded. Again he pulled, and no attention was paid. He then went to the front of the car, and found the driver numb from exposure, and dead. The [illegible] through his hands. When the depot was reached he was removed and effort was made to restore life, but with no success. The man was unmarried and about twenty-six years of age.

The Proper Clothing for Winter.

—London Sanitary [illegible] Dec. 26 has the following: "The extreme and continued severity of the weather has called public attention to the best means of [illegible] the [illegible] influence exercised by the lowness of the temperature on the vital powers of the young, the feeble, and the aged. Many suggestions have been made for the purpose of keeping up the amount of vital heat necessary to counteract the [illegible] cold, of which [illegible] the sensible [illegible] warming, so as to economize the vital heat generated in the body, and to prevent its radiation. He points out the futility of warming rooms to an excessive degree, and at the same time wearing thin clothing, since vital heat is generated in the body itself, not absorbed from the outside [illegible] what material is best adapted to retain the heat, and to prevent its radiation to the outer air. Experiments conducted by Dr. Krieger tend to show that flannel and woolen materials answer this purpose more fully than any other manufactured materials. The same series of experiments also demonstrate that loose-fitting garments tend to keep us much warmer than tight-fitting ones. The reason of this is that our clothing not only renders the air still around us, but it also regulates its temperature by the heat that leaves our bodies. We heat our garments, and they continually heat the air passing through the meshes and pores of the skin. We do not feel the loss of heat which our clothing undergoes as we should if the air were to strike our surface without having been previously prepared by our dress; the differences of temperature balance themselves within the material we are clothed in, and of which the ends of our cutaneous nerves form no part. Inside our dress our temperature averages about 75.91 degrees Fahrenheit, which is best kept in by rough, loose woolen textures, while garments of silk and linen should be avoided. All persons, old or young, feeble or strong, who value the preservation of their health or their lives, should, as far as possible, in inclement weather, clothe themselves in flannels, woolen, and fur garments, eschewing silk and the lighter materials until the advent of a more favorable season."

German Newspapers.

A Berlin correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes, "You would indeed be surprised at the lack of enterprise in newspaper-making here. The National Zeitung, representing the liberal party and considered the best paper in the city, is similar in form to the New York Nation, though its page is a third or more larger. It has from three to four sheets in the morning edition, which appears every day except Monday, but in common with all other papers, it takes a three-days holiday three times in the year—at Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide, respectively. There is an evening edition of this paper—Sundays excepted, consisting of a sheet and a half. The paper is generous in the space allotted to advertisements, but there is little effort to secure subscribers. The rule is that the paper shall be delivered by the month, and no subscriptions are taken from any intermediate date. One must pay from the beginning of the month, and be furnished with the back numbers, or wait until the opening of the next. Concerts, new operas, plays, etc., are first reported on the second morning after their appearance; and, as the evening paper only contains telegraphic dispatches, parliamentary reports, and court news, one doesn't know until Tuesday whether Niemann was in good voice or no on the Saturday before. Very much on the editorial page is quoted, suspected or believed to be so and so, very little is asserted. The American news is extremely meager, often incorrect, and rarely cheerful reading to the foreign resident. One pays for all this about twelve thalers a year ($9.72 currency), including the paper's delivery at your door, which is put down as a separate item."

Take Care of the Feathers.

"According to statistics very carefully compiled," says a writer in La Nature, "we throw away yearly a quantity of chicken feathers the intrinsic value of which is equal to the money we pay out for cotton." A startling statement, but the author considers it true, and he proceeds to explain how the feathers are prepared to render them valuable: The operation is to cut the plume portion of the feathers from the stem by means of ordinary hand scissors. The former are placed in a bag, which, when full, is closed and subjected to a thorough kneading with the hands. At the end of five minutes the feathers, it is stated, become disaggregated and felted together, forming a down perfectly homogeneous and of great lightness. It is even lighter than natural eider down, because the latter contains the ribs of the feathers, which give extra weight. The material thus prepared is worth and readily sells in Paris for two dollars a pound. About one and one-sixth Troy ounces of this down can be obtained from feathers of an ordinary pullet; and this on the above valuation, is worth about twenty cents. It is suggested that, through the winter, children might collect all the feathers about a farm, and cut the ribs out as we have stated. By the spring time a large quantity of down would be prepared, which could be disposed of to upholsterers, or employed for domestic uses. Good feathers may be treated in a similar manner, and thus two-thirds of the product of the bird utilized, instead of only about one-fifth, as is at present the case.

HOWEVER rich a man may be, however titled, however proud, let him go his way with humility, remembering that he is only about the two-billionth part of the population of the world, and that he will some day die, and be missed by men just about as much as a mashed grasshopper is missed by his swarm.

"BOFFIN'S BOWER" in Boston is a place well noted for its more than realization of the mythical "Bower" that existed in Dickens' imagination. It is a temporary home for all poor girls who fail to procure sufficient employment to support themselves. The leading spirit of the institution is a Miss Jennie Collins, through whose efforts it was inaugurated and [illegible]. She has made it her one object in life to alleviate the miseries of such girls, and right well has she succeeded.

THE Boston Globe's report of Kalakaua's visit to the patent medicine manufactory of Cherry Pectoral Ayer, says: "Rather an interesting episode occurred while the party were in the 'vigor' department. Mr. Ayer said: 'Here is where you can get your head replinished with hair if it is naked.' Kalakaua replied: 'Why do you not put some on your own head, then?' Inasmuch as Mr. Ayer's head is very bald, the point was quickly seen, and a hearty laugh ensued."

He retaliated by kicking over the table, and then that marital relation, predicated on a "love basis," was torn asunder. The climax was reached. The time which for years the woman had so earnestly prayed for had at length arrived, and gloriously she vindicated outraged femininity. On his devoted shoulders came the horse-whip; faster and faster rained the blows. In vain he implored, begged, beseeched her to let up, but his words proved only an incentive to the vixen wife. Her imprecations were fearful, but her strength at last succumbed, and as she laid aside the butt end of the cowhide carefully, she arrayed herself in her "meeting harness," and, as she gently closed the door, said: "L——, if the baby cries, you can borrow some sirup of Mrs. H——, next door."—Virginia Enterprise.

English Universities.

We learn from the late report of the Universities Commission, that the University of Oxford has an income of £47,000; the Colleges and Halls, £336,000; the University of Cambridge, £34,000; the Colleges and Halls, £300,000. For the year 1871, Exeter College, at Cambridge, with an income of £14,000, had from 170 to 180 undergraduates; Merton, with £17,000 a year, had 54 undergraduates; and Baliol, with £8,000 a year, had [illegible] College, with £59,000 a year, had 445 undergraduates; King's, with £34,000, had but 31; and Corpus, with £9,000, had 12. Oxford has 359 fellowships, with an average value of £260 a year; while Cambridge has 340, with an average value of £280. Oxford has in all 24 colleges, and Cambridge 17. The average income of a head of a house at Oxford is about £1,600, and at Cambridge about £1,200. Oxford also spends some £25,000 a year on professorships, and Cambridge only £17,000.

THE GREAT SCANDAL.

Court Scenes and Trial Items—Some Interesting Sketches and Incidents.

"TAKE HER OUT."

[New York Telegram.]

At recess, to-day, Judge Neilson surveyed the court with a scrutinizing look, and his eye fell on a female hat and feather in the space set apart for members of the bar. In two seconds he was standing behind that female, and calling for an officer in loud and eager tones. The officer hurried along in great alarm. "Didn't I tell you?" demanded his honor, "that these rows of chairs are reserved for the bar?" The officer admitted that such was the unquestionable fact. "Then, take that woman out," said the Judge sternly, "and let no woman enter the court merely as a spectator."

The officer took the lady by the arm and led her out, followed by her male friend. The Judge did not, apparently, notice the ladies lunching in the gallery.

THE PARTIES TO THE SUIT.

[From the New York Graphic.]

Mr. Beecher is scarcely a dignified person in this trial. He smiles and sneers, and has as many expressions as a chameleon. I do not see the fitness of bringing his wife into court. She is not accused of doing anything of the things for which he is undergoing trial, and her white hairs and grown-up children should have protected her from the publicity which it is optional with him to give.

Mrs Tilton's appearance in the court room was a gross violation of good taste. She is paraded among the enemies of her husband, where she belongs if what he charges is true. If she has injured him as he says, she can do him no further enmity by braving him in open court, but she has added to the probability of her unworthiness by this bold display. Tilton has not opened his mouth to suggest anything or express the slightest shade of feeling.

THE ANCIENT VENDER OF PIES.

[New York Dispatch.]

After the principal characters in the great suit, the ancient vender of pies who haunts the Court-House ranks next in importance. This high-strung pie-man has become a part of the trial now, and he brooks no familiarity. He administered, yesterday, to a prominent member of Plymouth Church, a crushing rebuke. "These mince-pies are very bad," remarked the church-member in question. "Werry bad, sir!" replied the pie-man; "but they're not half as bad as the langwedge as you've been a listening to all day." This pie-man, on the first day of the trial, was the meekest man in the court-room.

BUTLER THE AUTHOR OF MOULTON'S STATEMENTS.

[Testimony of F. D. Moulton.]

I made two statements after the publication of Beecher's; they were prepared, the first at Bay View and the other at Lowell. I gave the papers to Gen. Butler and he made out the statements. I did not dictate any of the first statement to a stenographer, but did a portion of the second. Was present when Gen. Butler dictated to the stenographer. I gave the facts to Gen. Butler for the manufacture of the statements. The drafting of the first statement occupied several days. The second statement was also in preparation several days.

FRISKY OLD ROOSTERS.

[New York Telegram.]

One peculiar feature of this gathering was the presence of a number of feeble, gray-haired old men. Despite the currents of biting, frosty air which swept through the corridors, these thin-blooded old men lingered with the crowd, and gazed with envious eyes upon those upon whom the doors were not closed. Just before 11 o'clock some one shouted, "Here they come!" and immediately there was a race to the rear of the Court-House. Mrs. Tilton, her face covered with a heavy lace veil, hung on the arm of a young man with Dundreary whiskers; next came Mrs. Shearman and Mrs. Anna M. Field, each with a gentleman. As the party made their way toward the court room the conduct of the crowd was simply outrageous. Audible comments upon the appearance of Mrs. Tilton, and coarse jibes about the plaintiff and defendant as well, passed freely. With considerable difficulty the party threaded their way through the files of rude spectators into the court room.

MOULTON AS A SMILER.

[Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

Zealous admirers of Mr. Beecher, who expected to see the witness flinch and his testimony shrivel and crack under a hot fire of cross-examination, went to lunch and subsequently to supper with impaired appetite and temper. Mr. Moulton smiled when he took his seat, smiled all the way through, and, when he rose to get his overcoat, smiled again as he whispered to a friend that it was easy to tell the truth. He was not disconcerted at any stage of the proceedings, but played with his handkerchief with an expression of amusement on his face, and was entirely at his ease, and, as many of Mr. Tilton's friends claimed, was the best witness ever seen in court.

A LUNCH-BEARING AUDITORY.

[New York Telegram.]

Many spectators came provided with lunches—notably those who occupy seats in the gallery. Between 1 and 2 o'clock in the afternoon, ham-sandwiches and mince-pies are in great demand, and when the supply of these articles fails the hungry spectator is obliged to satisfy his appetite with a measure of roasted peanuts.

IN CASE OF BEECHER'S CONVICTION, WHAT?

[Cor. Chicago Times.]

Already the spectators in court begin to speculate on what will happen in the event of Beecher's conviction. Will Plymouth Church drop him, and shall the remainder of his days be passed in pious meditation, and revising and annotating his "Life of Christ?" No, say most of the audience; Beecher is the church, and Plymouth has virtually kicked over the traces of Congregationalism. These people are not so much Congregationalists as Beecherites, and should the trial result disastrously to him, the majority of the church will rally around him and snap their fingers at the jury and the verdict. Indeed, one of the congregation declared, this morning, that he, for one, would stand by Beecher in any event. "Ever since this scandal business began," said he, "Beecher has been mounting higher and higher toward heaven. With him, it is truly, 'Nearer, my God, to Thee,' and there is no man in the country better able to lead his people to God."

"THE OLD MAN."

[Dispatch to Chicago Times.]

The Beecher family were out, or rather in, to-day, in full force, and several clerical-looking individuals, friends of the family, sanctified the proceedings, in a measure, by their presence. There was the "old man," as they begin to call Henry Ward Beecher; his wife; his son, Col. Beecher; his younger son; his brother, Dr. E. Beecher; his brother-in-law, C. C. Bullard, and his daughter-in-law, the wife of Col. Beecher. The lady attracted general attention. She is a plump little black-eyed beauty, with a laughing expression of face. She wore a black hat and feather, and a brownish, close-fitting suit.

Beecher walked in with a very subdued air, and quietly took his place, dispensing with the hand-shaking business, as did also his wife, who passed Mrs. Tilton and her friends rapidly, saluting all with a comprehensive bow. Soon after business commenced, Beecher crossed over, with a somewhat feeble step, to his counsel, and sat between Tracy and Evarts. His coat-collar was turned up, disarranging his long, thin, grayish hair. His eyes look weak and watery, as if lately subject to unusual strain, and no doubt he uses up a good deal of the "midnight oil," whille wrestling with the spirit and arranging matters in ship-shape for his counsel. Most of the time he sat motionless, gazing intently at the carpet at his feet, as if intensely interested in the complicated pattern. It is plain that the worry and anxiety of trial are beginning to tell on him; and, if guilty, he is paying dear for his whistle. But anything must be preferable to squatting all the time on that "ragged edge."

NO MORE BOUQUETS.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Everybody remarked this morning the absence of bouquets from Beecher's table. It appears that the little incident of the presentation of flowers to Tilton, the other day, has determined the Beecher party to have no more bouquets in court, and thus all that pretty nonsense is played out, to the great relief of the audience.

THE LETTER OF CONTRITION.

Beecher's famous "letter of contrition" was produced in court the other day, and the great preacher's counsel at once began to attack the authenticity of the document. The letter was read by Mr. Shearman, who, on finishing the recital, said that the word "can't" had been amended by the letter "t" being stricken out, and the words "for myself" inserted after the word "pleaded;" and Mr. Shearman further added that these alterations had been made with different ink. This statement, made in a most significant manner, created intense excitement among the audience, and plaintiff's counsel, Judge Morris, in a most excited manner, jumped to his feet and said that the statement was false, and, despite the objections of the defendant's counsel, claimed that, owing to the pen used by Moulton, the ink had been imperfectly and unevenly laid on the paper at different parts of different words, which accounted for the peculiar appearance of the document. During this period of the proceedings the excitement in the court was tremendous. Mr. Beecher left his seat by the side of his wife, and was engaged in close and earnest conversation with Messrs. Evarts and Tracy. Mrs. Beecher evinced the greatest concern, and Mrs. Tilton leaned forward, as if eager to catch every word of the discussion.

SERIOUS.

[From Friday's Proceedings.]

Mr. Evarts—I object. Don't go on until the court rules.

Mr. Fullerton (sharply)—I shall go on until the court rules.

Mr. Evarts—I object to his saying anything while we are examining the witness.

The Judge—It may be a serious matter. Perhaps you ought to reserve your criticism; but the point may be reserved for redirect.

Mr. Fullerton (bitterly)—Yes, it is a serious matter, and we will make it a serious matter for the other side. [Exultation among Tilton's friends.]

Mr. Tracy—We are all serious people here. [Laughter.]

Mr. Fullerton—And you grow more and more serious every day. [Laughter by the Tiltonites.]

BESSIE TURNER.

[From the Chicago Journal.]

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the proceedings in the Beecher trial yesterday was the fact that both sides seemed to agree in wanting the letters of Bessie Turner introduced as a part of the evidence in the case. It will be remembered that she was a ward of the Tiltons, sent to Ohio to be educated, and that Mr. Beecher footed her bills. The first of the excluded letters pronounces the story that Tilton tried to violate her person a "wicked lie." The second, dated January 10, 1871, is as follows:

> MY DEAR MRS. TILTON: I want to tell you something. Your mother, Mrs. Morse, has repeatedly attempted to hire me, by offering me dresses and presents, to go to certain persons and tell them stories injurious to the character of your husband, that I have been persuaded that the kind attentions shown me by Mr. Tilton for years were dishonorable demonstrations. I never at that time thought that Mr. Tilton's caresses were for such a purpose. I do not want to be made use of by Mrs. Morse, or any one else, to bring trouble on my two best friends—you and your husband. By-by.
>
> BESSIE TURNER.

This letter was offered by the defense, and accepted with alacrity by the prosecution. What use this letter can be to the defense we are at a loss to understand. It is not at all strange, however, that the prosecution accepted it gladly.

AFTER bright grates have been thoroughly cleansed they should be dusted over with unslacked lime and left until wanted. The coils of piano wires thus sprinkled will keep from rust many years. Table knives which are not in constant use ought to be put in a case in which sifted quicklime is placed, about eight inches deep. They should be plunged to the top of the blades, but the lime should not touch the handle.

How He is Roused.

The average Detroit youth sits up late, and when six o'clock in the morning comes he is in his soundest sleep. The father depends on him to make a fire, and he turns over in bed and calls out:

"Solomon, it's six o'clock!"

Boy dreams of chasing a rabbit into a hollow log, and while he is hunting around for an ax the old man calls out:

"Come, Solomon!"

Boy's dream changes, and he thinks he is husking corn to get money to go to Dan Rice's circus. He is making the ears fly when the old man rips out:

"Sol-o-mon Spring-brook!"

Boy moves uneasily, and dreams that he is playing base ball, and he sees a crowd of admiring spectators seated on the top rails of the fence.

"If that boy don't 'rouse I'll make him think he's sent for!" mutters the old man, as he looks at the clock; and then sitting up in bed he shouts:

"Oh, Sol! oh, Sol!"

The boy dreams that he is loafing around the Opera House door and boring people for "checks," and he is about to get one when the old man slips up, pulls the quilts off, hammers away at him with the hair brush, and chuckles:

"There! I guess you won't want me to wake you up more than fourteen times more!"

As the boy pulls on his pants and gets into his vest he mentally declares that he'll run away that very day and become a pirate.—Detroit Free Press.

A WOMAN SPEECHLESS FOR FORTY-TWO YEARS.—Katherine McCall, of Caledonia, sister of John G. and Laura McCall, at the age of twenty-two years,—up to which time she conversed like other people,—all at once ceased to speak, and for forty-two years had not spoken a word, until Sunday, Dec. 20, when her speech returned, and she now converses moderately but distinctly. No reason is given or known why this wonderful recovery of a woman's speech after so many years of pantomimic life.—Leroy (N. Y.) Gazette.

HEART DISEASE.—Many persons suffer with heart disease without knowing it—suddenly they drop off, and their friends are astonished, on a post-mortem examination, to learn that they died of heart disease. The heart, like the brain, is the seat of life—its diseases are of several characters. The most common are valvular disease, fatty degeneration and functional derangement. If the liver becomes deranged, and digestion impaired, the heart, through sympathy and juxtaposition, becomes abnormal. The following symptoms indicate approaching disease: Palpitation, giddiness, faintness, nervous prostration, deranged digestion, vertigo, cold extremities, etc., etc., for which the old school will administer iron, opium, antimony, mercury, and many other mineral poisons. Heart disease is a blood disease—purify the blood; remove obstruction to a limpid circulation by taking that Vegetable Alterative, VINEGAR BITTERS, and you will be a sound person in two or three months.

NO USE of any longer taking the large, repulsive, griping, drastic and nauseous pills, composed of crude and bulky ingredients, and put up in cheap wood or pasteboard boxes, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets represents, in a concentrated form, as much cathartic as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in the drug stores. From their wonderful cathartic power, in proportion to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect, but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized, one by the others, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly, operating cathartic. The Pellets are sold by dealers in medicines.

WILHOFT'S FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.—This medicine is used by construction companies for the benefit of their employes, when engaged in malarious districts. The highest testimonials have been given by contractors and by the Presidents of some of the leading railroads in the South and West. When men are congregated in large numbers in the neighborhood of swamps and rivers, Wilhoft's Tonic will prove a valuable addition to the stock of medicines, and will amply reward the company in the saving of time, labor and money. We recommend it to all. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans. For sale by all druggists.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Billious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., FEBRUARY 4, 1875.

☞John Hough, Esq., a prominent and wealthy citizen of Fort Wayne died on Saturday evening last.

☞John W. Forney is in Europe, and Wm. S. King somewhere in the Brittish Provinces, looking after the interests of the Centennial. Indianian please copy.

☞Thos. Swinney, of Fort Wayne, departed this life leaving an estate estimated at over $500,000. After the last survivors he wills sixty acres to the city for a public park.

☞The Supreme Court of Indiana rules that the law subjecting national bank shares to a tax for municipal purposes passed March 4, 1873, is unconstitutional, and that it specially provides for the collection of taxes for 1873.

☞According to the Iron Age a wedge or plate of Iron has been found imbedded in the masonry of the great pyramid of Egypt, the indications being that it must have been wrought in the age of the Cheops, placed by some authorities as far back as five thousand, four hundred years.

☞Nebraska elects A. S. Paddock to succeed Senator Tipton in the U. S. Senate. The new Senator is a distant relative of Senator Gen. Sherman. Though a conservative Republican he is known to be in full sympathy with the party on all the leading issues.

☞It is proposed by some of the Republican members of the present congress to pass appropriation bills for next year, thereby taking this matter out of the hands of the Democrats. Such action would be very unpopular to say the least of it.

☞Some enterprising citizens of Porter county, through Representative Crumpacker, presented a petition to the Legislature of Indiana, asking the passage of a law authorizing the payment by County Commissioners of a bounty of $25 on wolf scalps. The petition was referred to the committe on Louisiana affairs.—Val. Messenger.

☞The Arkansas State board of finance publishes a call to the holders of Arkansas bonds, asking a correspondence with a view to a consolidation and settlement of the debt outstanding against the state. A convention of bondholders is suggested by a resolution of the general assembly.

☞There is a strong sentiment in the legislature for a law prohibiting the sale of deadly weapons to boys. A large number of deaths have resulted from pistols and guns carelessly handled by boys within the past year, more probably, than persons generally suppose. The Senate bill 21, on this subject, was reported favorably last Saturday. As the practice now is, half the boys in both city and country carry in their pockets revolvers, which are more dangerous to friends than foes. It is certain the practice is a very bad one. If there is a remedy within reach, it should be applied.

☞After searching musty law books from the earliest dawn of civilization to the present time, together with a half dozen long speeches pro and con Mr. Tilton has been allowed to testify in his own behalf—not to anything that Mrs. Tilton has said, but his own knowledge and the confessions of Mr. Beecher. Mr. Beecher has six lawyers behind the scene that do not appear in public. Tilton's cross examination will be fearful.

☞The rascals in Washington don't want to see Johnson. They worked for his defeat but did not succeed. Last Saturday the following dispatch was sent from Washington to a prominent mumber of the Tennessee Legislature:

"For God's sake don't send Andy. Would rather have the devil here than him. That is what we all say, from President Grant down. Don't put yourself down as censuring Sheridan and Grant. Sheridan and Grant are right."

The legislature did not heed this advice, but rightly told Andy he might go to Washington to stir up the animals. Grant and Sheridan will receive no quarter at his hands.

☞The Radical leaders are now incubating a scheme for a foreign war, in case they fail keeping alive the prejudices and hatred generated by the war of the rebellion. They have no other stock in trade but that war record.

☞Like a clap of thunder from a clear sky comes the announcement that owing to the hard times, the price of killing a Chinaman in Nevada has been raised to seven dollars. What kind of a way is this to trifle with our liberties? People will not always stand by and see their pleasures and pastimes fooled with by office-holders.

☞It is mentioned that the Prince of Wales when he visited this country in 1860 was provided with a detached locomotive to pilot every train he rode upon in order to prevent accidents—this agreeably to the special request of his mother. This fact would argue that railroad accidents were not very common in England, at that time, and that American railroads had a very bad reputation in this respect. The record has changed since then. In December last there occured in England thirty-four railroad accidents by which thirty-seven people were killed out right, twenty-two more thought to be fatally injured, one hundred and forty bruised, and one hundred and thirty-one were somewhat hurt.—Bayard Taylor has propably revised his opinion, expressed last summer, that the English ware the superiors of American railways in the matters of safety, etc.

☞The election of Andy Johnson to the United States Senate, was the occasion of great joy in Nashville.—Old gray-haired veterans clasped their hands in silence, tears chocked their utterance, some breathed their congratulations in suppressed sobs, while others gave the "great commoner," as they called him an affectionate hug, bear fashion, and the colored men pressed around him and said they felt so happy.

General Bates, his opponent, in congratulating Mr. Johnson said, "I am frank to say that I am sorry you beat me, but I am equally sincere in expressing the hope that it is best for the country."

When he takes his seat he will find great changes have taken place during the seven years of his absence, among his old friends and enemies. Many have gone to that undiscovered country never to return.

Among the dead are, Chief Justice Chase, Edwin M. Stanton, W. P. Fessenden, James W. Grimes and Charles Sumner. Among the living who will probably meet him, are Senators Boutwell, Conklin, Logan, Edmunds and Morton. A cordial meeting between these gentlemen and Johnson can hardly be expected, on account of the following record:

"I do impeach Andrew Johnson, vice president and acting president of the United States, of high crimes and misdemeanors. I charge him with a usurpation of power and a violation of law. (1) In that he has corruptly used the appointing power. (2) In that he has corruptly used the pardoning power. (3) In that he has corruptly used the veto power. (4) In that he has corruptly disposed of the property of the United States. (5) In that he has corruptly interfered in elections and committed acts which, in contemplation of the constitution, are high crimes and misdemeanors, Therefore be it resolved, etc."

The people have vindicated him from these charges, and if he should speak for himself as opportunity occurs, he can look proudly in the face of his former accusers, with the approving stamp of history upon his transactions.

☞On Sunday evening last Samuel Bonner and wife, residing in Tiffin township, attended church in Evansport and left a little son, seven years old, at the house of Thomas Hiott to await their return. Mr. Hiott and wife also went to church, leaving two children at home. Being sleepy the three children laid on the floor and went to sleep. A short time afterward a coal oil lamp, which was left burning, exploded, setting the house on fire. The children were awakened after the fire had made considerable progress, and Mr. Hiott's children escaped with some severe burns. The little child of Mr. Bonner was frightened and was unable to escape from the house. He ran in a cupboard in the room and his cries were piteous to hear. His last words, heard by the boys, were, "Oh, Mother, Mother." His body was consumed and after the fire his bones were picked up from the ashes. The feelings of the stricken parents can better be imagined than described.—Defiance Democrat.

THE Eel River railroad, which passes through the northern part of this county, is said to be doing a splendid freight business for a new road. From fourteen to twenty heavy ladened trains pass over it every day, while its smooth and solid track places it beyond fear of accident.—Of course efficient management has a great deal to do with its success.—Wabash Free Trader.

The Eel River line is beginning to attract attention all around. It will get to be as important a line as the Toledo & Wabash.

SURE POP.

One week from to-night the band boys will appear at Ensley's hall in a dramatic preformance, and one that will discount all heretofore attempted. Great preparations are being made to have everything in a pleasing and instructive manner. Don't fail to attend.

MAKE a careful search through your pocket book. If you find any "tens" of the First National of Philadelphia, Poughkeepsie National, Richmond (Ind.) National, or "fives" on the Traders National or First National of Chicago, scrutinze them thoroughly. There are many dangerous counterfeits of these bills in circulation.

Lowrie's Combination of Novelties has been showing through the county for a few weeks past, and as far as we have heard it is pronounced to be the best show of the kind traveling. Mr. Lowrie himself is immense, and also Mr. Christman is a good song and dance man.—The whole performance is well executed, and worth your time and attention.

"A New York correspondent having indulged in too much gin and sugar, makes the startling announcement that the earth is falling towards the sun at a rate which will bring them together in about 1440 years." We feel this winter as if we were still a little too far away from the sun for comfort. However, anybody having fears of the collision must clear out of this within the next 1439 years and 11 months.

Examination of Teachers.

No further regular examination will be held until March, as the the teachers for the winter schools are nearly, or quite, all engaged; and I wish to have all my time for institute work. But should any require examination, time and place can be settled by applying to me.

WHEN the sexton of the M. E. church goes clear to the furtherest row of seats, to make our young men happy, they ought not to place themselves in the first seat they come to. But the boys are excusable this time, because they were not acquainted with the rules of the new church Remember what the sexton said, and in the future you will not be the cause of a "colored cheek" in a large audience, nor cause the painful task of a curtain lecture as long as the moral law.

CHEESE IT.—On Friday evening, Jan 29, 1875, the Butler Dramatic Association, advertised to play the great domestic drama entitled "Neighbor Jackwood, or the Fugitive's Friend," with a cast of characters numbering 15. The curtain raised and the company appeared. The first act occupied several minutes, and the company made a "down-head exit"—to look over their parts. The second scene was ditto, and they concluded to read their parts.—Failing in this they "commenced dealing out" (quarters to the audience) until the Company got "low" and the audience "high Jack." We are sorry for the boys and have no doubt that, when the time arrives for them to play the piece now in rehearsal, "All That Glitters is not Gold" they will "cheese it."

A patron of a certain newspaper once said to the publisher:

"Mr. Printer how is it that you have never called on me for pay for your paper. ?"

"Oh," said the man of types, "we never ask a gentleman for money."

"Indeed replied the patron:" "how do you manage to get along when they don't pay?"

"Well," said the editor, "after a certain time we conclude that he is not a gentleman, and we ask him."

"Oh—ah—yes—I see. Mr. Editor please give me a receipt," and hands him the amount due. Make my name all right on your books.

The New Jail.

We think the Commissioners made a great mistake in locating the new jail in the Court House Yard. There is something gloomy and repugnant to neatness and refinement, in having a prison-house in the heart of a city. What would be the unbiased judgment of every one in having a jail in the Court House Yard in Fort Wayne. No one would approve of it, it would be an eye sore to the City. It is precisely the same in Auburn. We do not know how soon we may rival our neighboring city, of lager and bologna, and how would a prison-house appear, in the very center of the business part of the city. The present location was not the original intention of the Commissioners, as they had purchased lots, adjoining Mr Ryan's livery stable for that purpose. We understand the change was made on account of the ground being impracticable for a foundation, but we are assured by some of our best contractors and builders that there need be no objection on that account. Even if there was, those lots could be sold and others purchased. Everyone we have heard speak upon the subject are unanimously in favor of Baldock's corner and we have understood that one of the Commissioners is of the same opinion.—We hope for the good of, not only our rapidly growing town, but the whole county, who should have a pride in the appearance of its county seat, that this important point will be thought of by our county Dads.

"THE world is so hollow hearted now," is the song of the grumbler. If we believe the tales of the old vinegar barrels we must conclude that the world was a Paradise fifty years ago, that men and women were as pure as the angels, and philantropists fooled away a great deal of time in vain endeavors to make mankind wiser and better.

The world may be no better, but it is certainly no worse than it was "in our grandfather's days." There are friendships as pure and unselfish now, as then. Good men, and true, are found in every hamlet. Christian women, who scatter sunlight and dispense charity with no stinting hand, are as numerous to-day as half a century ago. Kind fathers sacrificing mothers and obedient children "still live."

Grumbling about the sins of the world is confined to old persons and is with them, chronic. The blood in their veins is chilled and withered hearts grown cold Weary, and worn, and bent they look through the darkening years at the bright glad world and see only the sombre shadows. Memory rose-tints the days of "the long ago." They see only the good of the past and close their eyes to the evil. In viewing the world of to-day, they as persistently close their eyes to the good. It is not wise to remember only the evil. It is not just to the boys and girls of the present generation to quote their grandfathers and grandmothers on all occasion But our boys and girls will grow old, when they, too, will join the army of grumblers and tell their children's children how the world has degenerated.

TAKE NOTICE.

F. N. Wright & Co., are now prepared to sell Lumber lower than ever, having the last week made a trip to their mills in Michigan, and inform us that the company have about four million feet banked besides a choice stock of logs at their mill and are slashing out lumber at a fearful rate. They have a select stock of dry lumber on hand, kept in reserve for the company's yard at Auburn, which will be sold at lower prices than has ever been offered in this county before. Over two million dry, star shingles inspected and warranted to be of first quality, from $3.25 to $4.00. They also keep a large assortment of pickets and cedar posts.—Everybody that wants to use Lumber should not fail to give this firm the first call. Their yard is on Jackson-st., near Berry's Plaining mill.

CALICO DANCE.

A grand calico dance will be held at Ensley's Hall on February 22nd, 1875, under the auspices of the "Auburn Social Dance Club." The programme is as follows:

All ladies are to wear calico dresses, and each lady to bring with her, to the dance, a necktie of the same material as the dress worn. The gentlemen will draw the neckties by lot, and will wear the tie during the dance.

The neckties will be numbered by the door keeper, each lady receiving a number corresponding with the number on the necktie brought by her.

At 9 o'clock gentlemen will draw the neckties from a box and each will escort to supper the lady holding the number corresponding to the number drawn by the gentlemen.

No gentleman will be admitted without a ticket of invitation. No gentleman is expected to attend without a lady.

To meet promptly at 8 o'clock. A jolly time and large attendance expected. By order of,

COMMITTEE.

Corunna Locals.

Samuel Hall's little girl, was nearly choked to death the other day, by swallowing a 4 penny nail. The child seems to be doing well at the present time.

The citizens of Corunna, have been raising money, for the poor of Kansas, they have appropriated nearly $100. Let every one think of the poor, and pass in their mite.

Wm. Cummings, cut his foot very badly while using an ax carelessly. His mother is a helpless widow, and depended upon her son for support. Our citizens have been helping her to some extent.

Jim and Frank, traded dogs the other day, Frank got a splendid hound, while Jim got a wandering outlaw.

Our citizens are going to turn out en-mass, and help Fairfield Tp., next Saturday, in their great circle "fox hunt" come one and all, and have your sport.

The Methodist's are having a series of protracted meetings in our village

A problem to solve. Why does the fast trains whistle every time they near our town. If you go down to the depot, and see what is held over the track in front of the engine, you can solve this question without any trouble.

Old friend K'nney, tells the most stories and is the worst man to crack jokes, we ever heard of, he keeps our citizens and farmers from work these pleasant days.

The United Bretheren, are having their church frescoed in a beautiful style.

We saw Mike Long Jr. pass through our town last week, we took him to be Mike from Auburn.

The show on last Tuesday evening, was good, and well attended considering the size of our town, the citizens enjoyed the worth of their money.

There is some of our citizens like to read the Auburn COURIER so well that they borrow their neighbors, and when they can't borrow it, they try to steal it. Let such send $2. to the COURIER office and make their families happy.

There is a man of our village, making preperations to visit the Kansas regions.

Lipset Bros. have employed Samuel Hall, of our place for the coming year.

Miss Mollie Kline, of Auburn, while visiting her brother, near our village had a severe attack of Diptheria. F

Letter From Indianapolis.

Feb. 1st, 1875.

DEAR COURIER:—Nothing of a very startling nature has transpired in the General Assembly for several days.—The most noticeable feature was that of the debate in the Senate last week on the local option clause of the temperance bill. Mr. Bell, of Ft. Wayne, made a splendid speech against it, yet it passed that body by a vote of [illegible] to 29 It is to come up in the House next Friday at 10 o'clock. The bill for the redistricting the State has been reported on, both a majority and a minority report having been presented.—The Committee on election will make a report, I think, this week, the case from DeKalb County being the only one before them.

The State Editorial Association met last Wednesday with about sixty editors present. This association is growing rapidly, and yet the north eastern part of the State had not a representative except myself. A splendid programme has been made out for an excursion in March, south to occupy three weeks. It will come here on the 16th of March for Cairo, Memphis, Jackson, Vicksburg, New Orleans, Mobile, Savannah, Jacksonville, Columbia, Charleston Atlanta, Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, Nashville, Louisville, and home. None but Bona Fide members of the press, will receive tickets. The bill to legalize the taxes of Auburn has passed the House, and has been sent to the Senate. TOM.

GRAND FOX HUNT.

We, the citizens of school district No. 7, Richland township, having convened for the purpose of organizing for a grand fox hunt, on motion, E. S. McDowell was elected President, and Peter Shull, Secretary. After due consideration the following territory was agreed upon:

Commencing at Corunna on the North-west corner, thence East along the Air Line railroad to a point where the road, known as the Kuntzner road crosses, thence South along said road to the Baltimore railroad, thence along said road West to Garrett City, thence North to Corunna. The center to be at a point near Feglar's Corners.

On motion, E. S. McDowell was mede President of the day, and James Gbotchen, Treasurer, for the hunt.

On motion, the proceeds, after expenses are paid, to go to the benefit of the poor. The game to be sold on the ground.

On motion, it was agreed that the hunt should take place on Saturday, the 13th day of February, 1875.

On motion, the following gentlemen were chosen as Marshals:

North Line.—Joe Jones, Frank Green, Levi Trush, Amos Lower.

South Line.—T. C. Elson, Dan Swihart, Jacob Olinger, John Yard,

East Line.—Cal. Rutshner, A. Hall, John Grogg, J. B. Branden.

West Line.—Sam. Depew, Albert Morse, Henry Quince, Frank Hanes.

All officers are to meet at the Feglar School House at 9 o'clock A. M., to receive orders from Grand Marshal. No fire-arms to be allowed on the ground. All dogs to be led till the lines are closed. Lines to be ready to start at 10 o'clock A. M.,

Motion, that the proceedings of the meeting be published in the Auburn Courier and DeKalb County Republican. Adjourned.

E. S. MCDOWELL, Chairman.
PETER SHULL, Secretary.

A modern reporter, dazzled with champagne and stamps, says:

"The windows of Mrs. Fred Grant's soul, set at nob's distance apart, open wide and winningly, filled with soft green hazel lights. The door to her palate, equally capacious, is set up and down with even, milk-white teeth, which, next to her eyes make the especial beauty of her face. This, olive tinted, is set in a haze of fleecy brown hair, above which, on reception day, waved a rose pink pompon." How many windows Mrs. Fred has to her soul and whether they are provided with French plate and inside shutters, is left a matter of painful doubt. We suppose they are bay windows of the Chicago pattern, a dozen, at least, if no more—with villainous green blinds, always open on account of usual broken pulley fixtures, to shed on the interior of her soul the "soft green hazel light. Her palate door is capacious as all the windows put together, we are pleasantly assured.

If the reporter means she has a big mouth he ought in mercy, for the lady, to say so. To try to picture a mouth as big as a dozen wide open windows with "milk-white teeth" set "up and down" on the perpendicular, gives us perpetual night-mare. Our fertile imagination refuses to stretch to the extent of such a mouth. The face set in "fleecy brown hair" is also rather hazy but we can straddle that a little better when we remember the rooks of old Honor and the salary of her father-in-law, and the amount of fleece brown hair which can be purchased for the money.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

The town of Haverhill, N. H., is agitated by a tragedy of extraordinary horror, which for shocking brutality and terrible wickedness is almost without parallel. The victim was Mrs. Alma Emerson, a highly respectable lady of the town, who had been married but a month. The explosion of a gun was heard in the house, and some of the neighbors rushing in, they discovered the headless body of Mrs. Emerson sitting in a chair and a double-barreled shot-gun lying on the floor, the muzzle pointing toward her. Almost the entire head and neck were blown from the body, all that remained being a small portion of the lower jaw, which hung upon her breast. The head was almost wholly blown to atoms, and scattered on the ceiling and walls of the room. The largest portion of the head found was a piece of skull about three inches in length by two in width, which had passed through a window, breaking a piece of its exact size in the glass, and lodging in the door-yard. On the stove, ceiling, walls and floor were scattered blood, flesh and hair, forming a scene ghastly and revolting to all who witnessed it. The body rested in the chair as natural as in life. The feet were on the fender of the stove; one hand held a piece of cloth, while the other grasped a needle and thread as if to take another stitch in the work. An old man named Sawyer, who was doing odd jobs for the family, was arrested on suspicion of having committed the foul deed....A recent fire at Hartford, Conn., destroyed St. Patrick's church, valued at $150,000.

THE WEST.

A number of terrible disasters caused by snow-slides, are reported in the mines of Utah. In the Big Cottonwood canon six men were overwhelmed and killed by a slide. At the town of Alta a large number of people were covered to a great depth by the snow, and many perished. In one demolished house was found the body of Mrs. Carey, sitting in a rocking chair, with an infant clasped in her arms. Near them were the husband and a little girl. All had been suffocated by the snow. At another house was dug out one man alive; another man, who had been sleeping beside him in bed, was dead. Still another dead body was found in the vicinity....Reports from the Michigan fruit region represent that the prospects for the coming season are very flattering, the recent cold snap not having injured the buds. In some sections of Illinois it is stated that considerable damage has been done to the peach trees.

Accounts of the floods in California confirm the first reports of the vast destruction of property. One million dollars' worth of property was swept away in Marysville alone, while the farmers in the rural districts suffered much loss in fencing and stock.

Smith & Co.'s plow and cultivator works at Peoria, Ill., were destroyed by fire Jan. 23; loss $150,000. About 200 men are thrown out of employment. The origin of the fire is unknown. The firm will rebuild at once.

THE SOUTH.

It is stated that a scheme is on foot for the removal of the Louisiana capital from New Orleans to Baton Rouge.

The Conservative members of the Louisiana Legislature have asked the Congressional investigating committee "to take the returns of 1874, together with all fair and relevant testimony, and upon such returns and evidence declare what members of the Legislature were elected."....Congressmen Hoar, Wheeler, Frye and Marshall, of the investigating committee, commenced the work of taking testimony at New Orleans on the 23d of January.

Florida legislators are a bad lot. The Sergeant-at-Arms was directed to arrest absentees, and while in the pursuit of his duty he was fired upon by Senator Parlin, who, however, alleges he was first fired at by the Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms....In an affray at New Orleans, last week, George Weeks, Assistant Secretary of State, was shot and killed by George Paris, Tax Assessor. Both were colored men. A woman was the cause of the trouble.

An attempt was made a few nights ago to capture the notorious James boys at their home three miles from Kearney, Mo., a small station on the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad. Their house was set on fire and a hand grenade thrown in through the window, the explosion of which killed a child eight years of age and wounded two others. The James boys, who are supposed to have been in the barn, came out, and a regular engagement followed. It is not known how many were killed or wounded. Bloody tracks were found leading in the direction of the woods. It is supposed that the attack was made by the citizens, led by Pinkerton's detectives.

WASHINGTON.

Richard B. Irwin was again before the Ways and Means Committee of the House the other day, and accounted for $682,000 of the Pacific Mail corruption fund. The list of recipients of the fund is nearly the same as that given by Abert. Schumaker received $300,000; Wm. S. King, $125,000; and John W. Forney, $25,000. Irwin testified that King and Whiting, who received jointly $225,000, were employed to take care of the Senate, and that they performed their work satisfactorily. The company had previously expended $35,000 through ex-Postmaster-General Randall to silence the opposition in the Senate, and Randall reported that Senator Harlan was to take care of six votes, Schumaker was to influence members of the House, and all frequently compared notes. Schumaker was again summoned before the committee, but his memory was sadly at fault, for he could remember nothing about any money transactions other than he had already testified to.

Secretary Bristow's plan for raising the revenue, as outlined in the Washington dispatches, contemplates an increase of ten cents in the whisky tax, the restoration of the tax on tea and coffee, and the revival of the 10 per cent. tariff duty on a large number of articles specified by the President in his annual message. ....The Senate Republican caucus has appointed the following committee upon Southern legislation: Morton, Scott, Pratt, Mitchell, Boutwell, Hitchcock, Morrill (Maine), Patterson, Boreman and Clayton.

Ex-Senator Harlan denies Irwin's statement that he, together with Daniel Drew, constituted the Methodist bear movement in Pacific Mail stock, and were silenced by the payment of $25,000 by Irwin....The House Committee on Patents have concluded to report adversely upon the proposition to extend the Wheeler and Wilson sewing machine patent.

It is alleged that the enormous subsidy granted to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company was obtained by corrupt means, and that sufficient data have been obtained to warrant an investigation, which will be instituted before the close of the present session of Congress.... Some excitement was caused in Washington the other day by a fire breaking out in the Navy Department building. The fire was confined to the upper story, and many of the official records were damaged....The Senate Committee on Railroads have decided to report adversely on the Northern Pacific Railroad bill, and all others referred to them proposing government aid or subsidy for railroads, except the Southern Pacific Railroad bill.... It is thought that the result of the Pacific Mail investigation will be the finding to a certainty that a great deal of money was paid to Congressmen, but that it will be impossible to prove it.

The recent fire in the Navy Department building was the work of incendiaries. Trains of rope and waste paper were laid about the floor connecting with piles of chips, shavings, and broken-up kindling wood.

POLITICAL.

The Democrats of the Missouri Legislature have chosen Gen. Francis M. Cockrill as the successor of Mr. Schurz in the United States Senate.

The committee sent to Little Rock to investigate Arkansas affairs have unanimously come to the conclusion that Brooks was legally elected Governor of that State, and a majority of the committee further agree as to the validity of the Garland government.

Vice-President Wilson has written a letter on the political situation to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, in which he disclaims the belief attributed to him that the Republican party is dead. He insists it is not dead, nor hopelessly defeated; that the elements of its original strength, and proper management, will insure its continued success. He believes there should be a new policy toward the South; that the bad men in the party should be ejected, and good men outside of it invited to enter.

The Congressional committee sent to Vicksburg to investigate the cause of the troubles there have returned to Washington. It is stated that the Republican members of the committee have arrived at the conclusion that a White League exists in Mississippi, and is a very formidable organization; that the white people instigated the riot which resulted in the slaughter of so many negroes.

Judge Wallace, Democrat, has been elected United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

The Connecticut Republicans have nominated for Governor Hon. James Lloyd Greene, Mayor of Norwich; Lieutenant-Governor, Charles L. English, of New Haven; Secretary of State, Col. A. Penn, of Plymouth; Treasurer, O. D. Arnold, of Meriden; Comptroller, Geo. R. B. Crawford, of Norwalk.

Joseph E. McDonald has been elected United States Senator by the Indiana Legislature by the following vote: McDonald, 78; Pratt, 44; Buchanan, 13; Thompson, 6; Curry, 3; Holman, 1.

Henry L. Dawes has been elected United States Senator by the Legislature of Massachusetts. The vote was as follows: Dawes, 140; C. F. Adams, 98; Abbott, 10; H. L. Pierce, 1; E. R. Hoar, 9; N. P. Banks, 1; C. Devens, Jr., 10. Whole number of votes, 269; necessary to a choice, 135....Hon. Thomas F. Bayard has been re-elected United States Senator from Delaware.

A Washington dispatch states that the House Republican caucus committee has completed the work of devising a policy with regard to the South, the general features of which are: The indorsement of the President in his Louisiana action; a maintenance of the Kellogg government and a [illegible] insurrection; the passage of a modified enforcement act; and the creation of a Board of Commissioners to investigate all cases of outrage, with authority to report the evidence to the United States courts for prosecution.

The Michigan Legislature has elected Hon. Isaac P. Christiancy, at present Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State, to succeed Mr. Chandler in the United States Senate.

A. S. Paddock, formerly Territorial Governor of Nebraska, has been elected to succeed Mr. Tipton in the United States Senate.

B. G. Caulfield, Democrat, has been elected to the House of Representatives, to fill the vacancy in the First Illinois District, caused by the death of Hon. J. B. Rice. As the newly elected member has but six weeks to serve, there was but little or no opposition.

Gen. A. E. Burnside has been elected to succeed Mr. Sprague in the United States Senate from Rhode Island....The most exciting Senatorial contest in the history of the country has been brought to a close by the election of ex-President Johnson to the seat now occupied by William G. Brownlow.... The following are the names of the Republican members of the House of Representatives who voted against the proposed new rule of that body abridging the privilege, of the minority: Buffinton, Massachusetts; Burchard, Illinois; Burleigh, Maine; Darrall, Louisiana; Foster, Ohio; Hale, Maine; Kasson, Iowa; Lowndes, Maryland; Merriam, New York; Phelps, New Jersey; Pierce, Massachusetts; E. J. Roberts, New York; J. Ambler Smith, Virginia; John Q. Smith, Ohio; Willard, Vermont.... A Washington dispatch to the Chicago Tribune says: "Attorney-General Field, of Louisiana, has telegraphed here that the members of the Investigating Committee now in New Orleans are, as he calls it, quite as prejudiced as was the Foster Sub-Committee. The members of the Foster Sub-Committee are very confident that the whole committee will fully indorse their report as to the action of the Returning Board."

Hon. Theodore F. Randolph (Democrat) has been elected United States Senator by the Legislature of New Jersey, as the successor of John P. Stockton.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

The examination of Moulton in the Beecher case was concluded on Wednesday, Jan. 27. Moulton occupied the witness stand for ten consecutive days. At the conclusion of his examination, Mrs. Bradshaw and Mr. West were put upon the stand. The former testified as to the pleasant relations existing between Tilton and his wife previous to Beecher's adultery with Mrs. Tilton. The latter gave a history of the proceedings of Plymouth church at the time Tilton's name was erased from the roll of members. He stated that Beecher was very wroth at him because he insisted upon the trial of Tilton for defaming the character of the defendant, and related how the matter was hushed up.

GENERAL.

A fire occurred near Boucherville, Can., a few days since, destroying a farmhouse occupied by Pierre Dulude. His wife and eight children perished in the flames. Dulude was seriously burned in his efforts to save the family, and is not expected to live. His wife and children were literally burned to ashes, and only fragments of the bodies were found. The eldest child was 18 years old, and the youngest a baby.

FOREIGN.

Another revolution in South America—this time in Uruguay. The government has been overthrown by the rebels, and Pedro Varela, President of the Senate, has been made Provisional President of the Republic....During the recent debate in the French Assembly a strong monarchical element was developed. The Republic was roundly denounced by more than one member.....Russia, Austria and Germany have agreed to recognize Alfonso as King of Spain.

Russia and Austria back plucky little Montenegro in her quarrel with Turkey.

The dispatches from across the water are full of ominous news. Complications are growing more tangled every day, and it is evident that Europe lies in the shadow of a great war....A party of [illegible] Carlists, recently expelled from Mexico, have arrived at Havana, en route, to France....King Alfonso has issued a proclamation to the adherents of Don Carlos, in which he promises amnesty, freedom and prosperity to all who will lay down their arms and comply with his terms.

Tsung Chi, the Emperor of China, died on the 12th of January. He ascended the throne in 1861, when only 5 years of age. At the time of his death he was 19. His legitimate successor is a little boy only 5 years of age....Large numbers of Carlists are giving in their adhesion to the new King of Spain. Don Carlos has recently shot several of his officers for treason.

PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE.

President Grant's Communication to Congress Asking Money for Fortifications.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In my annual message of Dec. 1, 1873, while inviting general attention to all recommendations made by the Secretary of War, your special attention was invited to the importance of preparing for war in the arming of our sea-coast defenses. Proper armament is of vastly more importance than fortifications. The latter can be supplied very speedily for temporary purposes when needed. The former cannot. These views gain increased strength and pertinence as the years roll by. I have now again the honor to call special attention to the condition of the armament of our fortifications and the absolute necessity for immediate provision by Congress for the procurement of heavy cannon.

The large expenditure required to supply the number of guns for our forts is the strongest argument that can be adduced for a liberal annual appropriation for their gradual accumulation. In time of war such preparations cannot be made; cannon cannot be purchased in open market, nor manufactured at short notice. They must be the product of years of experienced labor.

I herewith inclose copies of the reports of the Chief of Ordnance and of the Board of Ordnance Officers on the trial of the 8-inch rifle, converted from the 10-inch smooth-bore, which show very conclusively an economical means of utilizing the useless smooth-bores, and making them into 8-inch rifles, capable of piercing seven inches of iron.

The 1,294 10-inch Rodman guns should, in my opinion, be so utilized, and the appropriation requested by the Chief of Ordnance of $250,000 to commence these conversions is earnestly recommended.

While convinced of the economy and necessity of these conversions, the determination of the best and most economical method of providing guns of still larger caliber should no longer be delayed. The experience of other nations, based on the new conditions of defense brought prominently by the introduction of iron-clads into every navy afloat, demands heavier metal, and rifle-guns of not less than twelve inches in caliber. These enormous masses, hurling a shot of 700 pounds, can alone meet many of the requirements of the national defenses. They must be provided, and experiments on a large scale can alone give the data necessary for the determination of the question. [illegible] and conveniences referred to by the Chief of Ordnance, with a liberal annual appropriation, is an undoubted necessity.

The guns ready for trial cannot be tested without funds, and the estimate of $250,000 for the purpose is deemed reasonable, and is strongly recommended. The constant appeals for legislation on "armament of fortifications" ought no longer to be disregarded, if Congress desire in peace to prepare important material the want of which in future wars must inevitably lead to disaster. This subject is submitted with the hope that the consideration it deserves may be given it at the present session.

(Signed) U. S. Grant.

Executive Mansion, Jan. 20, 1875.

The Louisiana Disorders---Reports of Army Officers.

President Grant, in response to the Senate's resolutions of inquiry, has sent to that body another large mass of manuscript copies of correspondence relative to disorders in Louisiana. The correspondence, says the Associated Press report, dates back to Oct. 25, 1874, and begins with various cipher telegrams sent by Gen. Emory to the War Department, in which he expresses strong disapprobation of Maj. Merrill's action in making affidavits against citizens of Shreveport, under which they were arrested for alleged violations of the Enforcement act. Gen. Emory informed Merrill that he considered his personal appearance as prosecutor was a departure from the established rules of the service, and mischievous in its tendency. Merrill thereupon explained that his action was due to the fact that no citizen could have made these affidavits except at the risk of his life, and submitted sundry voluminous reports detailing the lawless condition of affairs in the Red river region. These reports being all before the department, Adjutant General Townsend telegraphed to Merrill Dec. 7, 1874, through the headquarters of the army, that the department considered his action justified by the circumstances.

Among the papers is the report of Lieut. Col. Henry A. Morrow, who was detailed by Gen. Emory to make a thorough examination of the condition of affairs in the Red river country. He says that so far as relates to the United States there is not the slightest disposition to oppose the general government, but the opposition to the State government is determined and expressed, and will manifest itself in open violence whenever and wherever opportunity offers. This dissatisfaction and discontent affect all departments of business, and the whole aspect of the country has a look of poverty and neglect. The law has fallen into disregard and disrepute; United States Deputy Marshals have used United States soldiers in cases where there was no necessity for them, and in some parishes have discharged their duties in an unnecessarily harsh, if not cruel manner.

Col. Morrow gives the following as his deep-seated convictions: "The present State government cannot maintain itself in power a single hour without the protection of Federal troops, and even with this protection they will not be able to collect the taxes and perform the functions of the government. The State government has not the confidence or respect of any portion of the community." Further on, he says: "If expressions of the people are to be believed (and I do believe them), there is a very sincere desire to live quietly under the protection of the Constitution of the United States, and enjoy the blessings of the national government; but there is no disguising the fact that the protection afforded by the federal government to the government of the present State Executive is the cause of bitter personal and political feeling in the hearts of nineteen-twentieths of the white inhabitants of the State."

In forwarding this report, Dec. 27, Gen. Emory says: "For nearly two years the condition of affairs has been very precarious, and the State government has constantly shown itself unable to cope with the difficulties of the situation in which it is placed. This state of things is daily growing worse, and I commend the subject to your serious consideration. The mission of the army to keep the peace, without the power of removing the causes which disturb it, has, I think, been carried as far as practicable, and I therefore respectfully recommend that, if it can be done, the powers of the military commander be greatly increased, or that some other m[illegible] be resorted to to obtain the desired end."

Gen. Sh[illegible] the following indorsement:

[illegible]quarters [illegible] Army, }
St. Lou[illegible] 1875. }

This paper is [illegible] respectfully [illegible]ed to the Secretary of War, with the req[illegible] submit it for the personal perusal of the [illegible]. I know of no officer of Col. Morrow's rank who is better qualified to speak and write of matters like this, and his opinions are entitled to great consideration. I profess to have some kn[illegible]ledge of the people of that section, both white [illegible] black, from a long residence among them before [illegible] war, and several visits since; but I shall not intrud[illegible] my opinion in [illegible] confusion in which the subject is now enveloped.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS.

Senator Morton's Proposed Amendment to the Constitution.

The following is the text of Mr. Morton's proposed amendment to the Constitution changing the mode of electing our President and Vice-President, now pending in the United States Senate:

Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress Assembled, Two-Thirds of Each House Concurring Therein, That the following article is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States, shall be made valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution, to wit:

Article 1. The President and Vice-President shall be elected by direct vote of the people, in manner following: Each State shall be divided into districts equal in number to the number of Representatives to which the State may be entitled in Congress, to be composed of contiguous territory, and be as nearly equal in population as may be; and the person having the highest number of votes in each district for President, shall receive the vote of that district, which shall be counted one Presidential vote.

2. The person having the highest number of votes for President in a State, shall receive two Presidential votes from the State at large.

3. The person having the highest number of Presidential votes in the United States shall be President.

4. If two persons have the same number of votes in any State, it being the highest number, they shall receive each one Presidential vote from the State at large, and if more than two persons shall have each the same number of votes in any State, no Presidential vote shall be counted from the State at large. If more persons shall have the same number of votes, it being the highest number in any district, no Presidential vote shall be counted from that district.

5. The foregoing provisions shall apply to the election of Vice-President.

6. The Congress shall have power to provide for holding and conducting elections of President and Vice-President, and to establish tribunals for the decision of such elections as may be contested.

7. States shall be divided into districts by the Legislatures thereof, but Congress may at any time by law, make or alter the same.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Thursday, Jan. 21.—Senate—The Vice-President laid before the Senate a message from the President with regard to strengthening the coast defenses....Davis introduced a bill to incorporate the Washington City and St. Louis Railroad Company. ....The Civil Service Committee reported adversely on the bill to reduce the salary of the President of the United States....The remainder of the session was occupied in discussing the proposed amendment to the Constitution in regard to the election of the President and Vice-President by direct vote of the people.

House—The vote by which the Indian Appropriation bill was defeated yesterday was reconsidered, and the bill was referred to the committee of the whole....Smith, from the Election Committee, reported a resolution expelling Delegate Cannon, of Utah, for polygamy. Ordered printed....What is known as the "Little Tariff bill" was discussed and finally passed.

Friday, Jan. 22.—Senate—Scott presented a petition from citizens of Pennsylvania against a [illegible] repeal of the law of 1872, releasing foreign products of the 10 per cent. tax. Referred....West presented the credentials of P. B. S. Pinchback as Senator-elect from Louisiana for the term expiring March 4, 1879, and they were referred to the Committee on Elections and Privileges....Boutwell introduced a bill to provide a bar for the two houses of Congress. ....Lewis introduced a bill repealing the act providing a government for the District of Columbia, approved June 20, 1864....The morning hour having expired, debate was resumed on the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution and also on Schurz' resolution regarding the right of Louisiana to self-government, which was participated in by Sherman, Bayard, Schurz, West and Johnston, after which the Senate went into executive session and adjourned.

House—O'Brien asked leave to offer a resolution calling on the President to state by what authority the courts or officers of Mississippi, at Vicksburg, had been interfered with by the army. Conger objected, because that was an assumption that they had been interfered with....Garfield reported a bill appropriating $182,500 in coin to pay the interest on the 3.65 bonds of the District of Columbia, which was ordered printed and recommitted....Butler, of Massachusetts, by unanimous consent, introduced a bill to authorize Lieut.-Com. Frederick Pierson to accept from the Queen of Great Britain the decoration of the military Order of the Bath, for gallant services in the combined attack on the Japanese forts and piratical vessels, which was passed, when the House adjourned till Monday.

Monday, Jan. 25.—Senate—In the absence of Vice-President Wilson, Anthony, of Rhode Island, was elected President pro tem....The Chair laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting copies of the correspondence in relation to certain disorders in Louisiana....Robertson presented a resolution of the South Carolina Legislature asking an appropriation of $100,000 to deepen the Charleston harbor....A bill was introduced by Morrill, of Vermont, to establish an education fund and apply a portion of the proceeds of the sale of public lands to public education, and to provide for a more complete endowment and support of national colleges for the advancement of scientific and industrial education.... The bill for the relief of the Polaris sufferers was passed....Discussion of the Louisiana complications was then resumed.

House—Bills introduced: By Butler, of Massachusetts, to establish certain telegraph lines in several States and Territories as post roads, and to regulate the transmission of commercial and other intelligence by telegraph; by Williams, of Indiana, for incorporating the National Union Telegraph Co.; by Wells, for a branch mint at St. Louis....On motion of Dawes, it was ordered that Richard B. Irwin be discharged from arrest, he having answered all questions of the committee....Cessna offered a resolution providing that "the rules be so far suspended during the remainder of the present session as to prevent the Speaker from entertaining any dilatory motion pending the consideration of any public bill or joint resolution, or of any motion to bring, or the result of which may bring, before the House for consideration such bill or joint resolution; and this order shall apply to amendments offered in the House or adopted in the Senate, and awaiting concurrence in the House, or to such public bill or joint resolution and to any report of a committee thereon." The resolution was received with protests from all sides, and was rejected,—yeas, 150; nays, 19,—not the necessary two-thirds in the affirmative....A motion by Butler, of Massachusetts, to take up the Senate Civil Rights bill for consideration was defeated—yeas, 147; nays, 93....Durham presented a memorial and petition, signed by 6,000 residents of Kentucky, asking an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the manufacture, importation, and sale of spirituous liquor, such amendment to take effect Jan. 1, 1876, which was referred, and the House adjourned.

Tuesday, Jan. 26.—Senate—The Chair laid before the Senate a message from the President transmitting the report of the Commission of Engineers who were appointed to investigate and report a permanent plan for the reclamation of the alluvial basin of the Mississippi river. Referred.... Edmunds introduced a bill to provide for and regulate the counting of votes for President and Vice-President....The Senate resumed consideration of the Schurz resolution in regard to the right of the people of Louisiana to self-government.

House—Eldredge, from the Judiciary Committee, reported adversely on the bill to create a new State out of certain portions of Texas and Louisiana.... Potter, from the Judiciary Committee, reported a joint resolution proposing the following amendment to the Constitution: "Article 16. From and after the next election for President of the United States, the President shall hold his office during the term of six years, and, together with the Vice-President, chosen for the same term, be elected in the manner as now provided, or that may hereafter be provided; but neither the President nor Vice-President (when the office of President has devolved upon him) shall be eligible for re-election as President." After debate, participated in by [illegible], Butler, Garfield, Ward and others, the resolution was rejected—yeas 134, nays 104, less than two-thirds in the affirmative.... Butler, of Massachusetts, reported a resolution in reference to the [illegible] and New Idria Mining Company's claims in California, directing the Commissioner of the General Land Office to institute legal proceedings in the name of the government against the New Idria Mining Company in the Circuit Court of the United States for California to restrain further waste of property, for the appointment of a receiver, and for the recovery of possession; and also for the recovery of $7,000,000 illegitimately and wrongfully taken therefrom by the New Idria Mining Company, which was adopted—136 to 11.

Wednesday, Jan. 27.—Senate—Dorsey introduced a bill to establish certain telegraphic lines in the several States and Territories as post-roads, to regulate the transmission of commercial and other intelligence by telegraph. Referred....Morton submitted a resolution to repeal the 22d joint rule of the two houses of Congress in regard to the counting of the electoral vote....Debate on Schurz's Louisiana resolution was resumed.

House—There was no legislative business transacted. Filibustering on the Civil Rights bill consumed the time of the day and far into the night the tactics of the Republicans being to force the House to a direct vote, and the Democrats determined to prevent it. Up to 11 o'clock p. m., the roll had been called sixteen times, occupying about half an hour each time.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCE.

The demand for funds was rather light during the past week, and the money market was quiet and steady. Supply of loanable funds moderately large. Interest rates steady at 10 per cent. per annum on time and 7@8 per cent. for call loans. Government bonds firm and steady at 115@115¼ for 5-20's '62, 118⅞@119 for 5-20's '65, 116@116¼ for 10-40's, and 119¼@119½ for currency 6's. Illinois 10 per cent. school bonds, 97@98½. Latest gold quotations—New York, 112½@112⅝; Chicago, 112⅜@112⅝.

BREADSTUFFS.

The following were the receipts and shipments for the week, as compared with the same time last year:

The movement in the grain markets was not very satisfactory to sellers and holders, and the general tendency of values was to a lower range. The amount of business transacted was light, and the principal interest of speculators centered in the wheat trade, the other markets ruling comparatively quiet throughout. The general influences and governing circumstances affecting the markets were generally of an unfavorable tenor, and were naturally calculated to cause a downward movement in prices. The closing quotations show a general decline all around, although at one time wheat and corn were both considerably higher than at the opening. Liverpool was quoted firmer on wheat, and under a better speculative demand prices advanced to 89⅜c, or about 1c ⅌ bu. Corn also advanced under lighter receipts, while oats sympathized with the improvement. Later, however, the higher prices brought out more sellers, and with largely increased receipts and dull, unfavorable advices from Liverpool and New York the markets became weak and dull, and prices declined to and closed easy at the annexed quotations. Shorts were only buying moderately. Rye was quiet but firm. Barley was dull and easy, with no special demand from any source.

The following were the current quotations at the opening and closing of the week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 spring wheat, cash	88½	86⅞
No. 2 spring wheat, Feb.	89½	86⅞
No. 2 spring wheat, Mar.	90¼	89½
No. 2 corn, cash	66	64¼
[illegible]	69	68⅞
No. 2 corn, May	73¼	71½
No. 2 oats, cash	52½	52
No. 2 oats, Feb.	52¾	52¼
No. 2 rye, cash	97	97
No. 2 barley, cash	$1.25@1.30	$1.24½@1.27
No. 2 barley, Feb	1.26@1.27	1.25 @1.25½
No. 3 barley, cash	1.10@1.16	1.10 @1.11

PROVISIONS.

The movement in this market has been unusually active, and an enormous business was transacted. A combination of unfavorable influences caused a very weak market, and the tendency of prices was to a lower range. The advices from other markets were unfavorable, and holders showed a general desire to realize, while the heavy decline in the price of hogs has aided materially in the depression. Mess pork was 50@75c ⅌ brl lower, closing at $17.80 cash, $17.80 seller February, and $18.12½ seller March. Lard active at ¼c decline, closing at $13.25 for cash, $13.30 for seller February, and $13.50 seller March. Meats firm.

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle market was quite active, but the unexpected and unusually large receipts caused a weak feeling and a general decline of about 15@25c per 100 lbs was sustained, except for stock steers, which were in active request and very firm, closing steady at $2.00@4.50 for inferior to good butchers' stock; $3.75@4.00 for stock cattle; $4.50@5.50 for fair to good; and $5.60@6.12½ for choice shipping steers; extra, $6.25@6.75. Hogs were dull and weak at the opening, and with 70,000 on sale prices declined 40@50c per 100 lbs, but improved under the light receipts, and closed steady at $6.00@6.40 for common to medium and $6.50@6.85 for good to very choice; extra, $6.90@7.10. Sheep dull at $3.00@5.50 for common to choice.

DRESSED HOGS.

This market was somewhat unsettled, ruling active at times and again very dull. Prices were at one time 50c lower. Under an active competition at the close between shippers and packers the market closed firm at $6.80@6.90 for pigs, $7.00 for light weights, and $7.50 for heavy. Light weights are from 100 to 200 lbs and upward, and heavy 200 lbs and upward.

SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

Seeds were firm and there was a good demand for timothy on speculative account; closing at $2.40@2.65. Clover $6.15@6.25. Flax steady at $1.90@2.00. Hungarian and millet quotable at 80@85c. Highwines were firm and steady; closing at 94c.

GENERAL PRODUCE.

Butter was dull, the demand being light and prices were weak and easy. We quote choice roll at 22@23c, fancy 24c, packed lots 18@30c for poor to choice, 32c for fancy. Beans were dull and prices weak. Broom corn firm and in demand at 11@13c for the best. Beeswax firm at 25@26c. Cheese was in demand and firm at 15@17c for good to prime factory; new 8@14c for poor to fair. Cider firm at $5.75@6.00 ⅌ brl for choice sweet; kegs $3.50@3.75. Dried peas $1.25@1.70 for common yellow to choice green. Dried fruits were firm at 7½@7¾c for Michigan apples, 6@6½c for Southern, 8½@9c for halves peaches, and 10¼@10½c for blackberries. Eggs were in fair local demand and steady at 26c for fresh (warranted), 23@24c for ordinary consignments. Prime live geese feathers 47@49c. Prairie chickens in demand at $2.50 ⅌ dozen. Quail $1.50@1.75 ⅌ dozen. Grease 7½@8½c. Honey was quiet at 23@25c for comb, and 10@11c for strained. Hops quiet at 33@37½c for good to prime, and 25@30c for fair. Hides were in moderate demand at 8c for green frozen, 8@9c for green salted and 15c for calf; kip, 10@12c; calf, 15@16c; flint, 18@19c; dry calf, 23@24c. Hay was firmer at $15.00@15.50 for No. 2, and $17.00@17.50 for No. 1 timothy. Nuts were slow at $1.00 for large hickory, and 75c@$2.50 per bu for chestnuts. Poultry was dull; turkeys slow, at over 10c for best; fair to good 7@9c. Geese dull at 6@10c. Chickens 5@9c for poor to choice. Potatoes were firm at 85c for peach-blows and 75@85c for mixed. Tallow firm at 8@8½c. Vegetables were quiet at $2.75@4.50 for common red to choice silver-skin onions; 35@55c ⅌ bu for turnips; $1.75 ⅌ brl for parsnips, and 75c@$1.00 ⅌ doz for Hubbard squashes. Veal dull at 5@8c per lb.

A Texas Yarn.

A traveler in Texas tells the following story of how they go to sea, not in a bowl, but in a carriage: "I have traveled in all manner of modes in my time, but never before this morning did I go to sea in a carriage. Fortunately an old experienced steamboat commander, Capt. Gibney, acted as pilot, who, mounted on horseback, led the way through the briny waves. We left Corpus Christi about 9 o'clock, and proceeded up the beach until we came to the reef lying between Corpus Christi and Neuces bays, which make an invisible division of their waters. The bay here is three miles wide, but an oyster reef has formed over the whole distance, on which the water is from two to three feet deep, but has numerous holes, into which the inexperienced is likely to get "logged" with his vehicle. By crossing this reef some twenty miles is saved in the distance to Rockport, and we moved steadily on, following our guide in his winding course up and down the stream. The water on one occasion entered the floor of the carriage, though, fortunately, there was but little wind blowing, and the surface was quite smooth. It required one hour and a quarter to cross, it being necessary to move slowly and cautiously. We fortunately met Capt. Gibney and a friend just about to cross, who kindly consented to keep us on the track. There have been many accidents in crossing these reefs, by the loss of horses and damages to vehicles, and it is, under the most favorable circumstances, not a very agreeable trip. It has been staked out, but many of the poles have been blown down. In the midst of the wide expanse of water a Mexican pedestrian was met wading across, having his six-shooter strapped across his shoulder, and most of his clothing with it. To the right, Corpus Christi bay stretched off beyond the vision, and Neuces bay to the left showed a streak [illegible] the dim distance, [illegible] for fifteen or twenty miles along the boundary of a single pasture.

A Blind Man's Fall.

The Rockville (Ind.) Republican has the following: "Last Friday afternoon Harvey Fulwider, a blind man well known in this community, and who is accustomed to walking around over the country, started out to David Fulwider's, distance about four miles from town. After walking nearly three miles he lost his way and wandered around until 10 o'clock, when his calls for help were heard, and he was taken to the residence of Henry T. Martin, where he remained all night. Next morning after breakfast he left Mr. Martin's and proceeded again on his journey. Again he became bewildered, and wandered around through the woods near the coal mines. In his wanderings he found himself in a ravine. After a length of time he climbed out of it, and supposed himself to be on the road. Coming to a declivity he imagined it was the same place he had been in. After feeling around with his cane he concluded he would slide down the hill. He started on what proved to be a fearful leap. After sliding about ten feet he was hurled over a precipice twenty-five feet high by actual measurement, breaking both legs three inches above the ankle joint. The left leg sustained a compound fracture, the bone protruding through the flesh, besides having his back and hips badly bruised. This occurred about 9 o'clock in the morning, and he remained there all alone until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when his cries for aid were heard, and he was carried to the house of Mr. Martin again, and Dr. Cross and Gillum adjusted the fractured limbs."

A Walking Beer Tank.

It was a man 30 years old, five feet and nine inches high, and rather slender, who walked into a lager beer saloon in Cincinnati and opened a commercial transaction by asking how much would be charged for "all the beer which he could drink in ten consecutive minutes?" "A dime," rashly responded the Ganymede of the establishment, taking the money and drawing half a gallon of the strongest sort. Down the customer's throat the malty river ran—and then he called for more. Another half gallon! Another call for more! At the close of the fifth draught the man, with two gallons and a half of beer inside of him, handed back the half-gallon cup for more! It was too much. "Take back your pelf!" cried the indignant barkeeper; "take back your ten cents and begone! Hereafter I vow, by the memory of the great Gambrinus, never to contract to fill a walking beer tank for ten cents!" The theory of the awe-stricken bystander was that the ten cent man's legs were hollow—but that's absurd.

Divorces are not very numerous in England, all things considered. Roughly estimated, there are five millions of married couples, and, in 1860, 154 marriages were annulled, 166 in 1871, 173 in 1872, and 215 in 1873.

CURRENT GOSSIP.

Fitz-John Porter.

Another movement is on foot for securing [illegible] Gen. Fitz John Porter. Mr. Garfield has introduced a resolution in Congress looking in that direction.

A Hoax.

The report telegraphed from New York, that we are approaching the sun at a rate which will send us plump into the great central orb in something less than a thousand years, is pronounced by astronomers to be a vile canard, gotten up for the purpose of creating a sensation.

The Brooklyn Nastiness.

The great Tilton-Beecher scandal trial is the all-absorbing theme in Brooklyn and New York. The cross-examination of "Mutual Friend" Moulton has failed to elicit any information other than what is already in the possession of the public. The efforts of the counsel for the defense to corner, worry or upset the witness were not successful. Throughout the trying ordeal he maintained his story without even a symptom of weakening.

The Famous Quartet.

The four chief personages in the Beecher-Tilton trial, as they appeared in court, are thus described: "Tilton, tall, slender, stern and melancholy; Beecher, ruddy, careless, and as buoyant almost as the quickest-witted of the journalists; Mrs. Beecher, a more fitting counterpart for Tilton, fierce, haughty, and self-controlled; and lastly, poor little Mrs. Tilton, shrinking like a simple wild-flower crushed by a stone. Of the four she was the least heroic, as her husband was the most notable."

An Accommodating Witness.

Mr. Schuyler B. Ingham evidently believes in the old proverb which says that "an honest confession is good for the soul." Though unable to walk without the aid of crutches, being racked in every joint with acute rheumatism, Mr. Ingham journeyed all the way from Chicago to Washington, had himself bolstered up in bed, sent for the Pacific Mail Investigating Committee, and voluntarily confessed to them that he had pocketed $10,000 of the corruption fund. What an astonishingly accommodating witness.

Indian Policy.

It is given out from Washington that the new Board of Indian Commissioners take a different view of the government needed for the Indians, [illegible] peaceful settlements, from that held by the old board. It is now recommended that a regular Territorial government be instituted in the Indian Territory. The plan embraces the usual Territorial scheme, a Governor appointed by the President, and a Legislature and member of Congress chosen by the people. This has been the idea of the better representatives of the domesticated Indians for years.

Boss Tweed.

The New York grand jury has been making a call on that man Tweed. They found him clad in a sack coat of the misdemeanor quality, a coarse woolen fabric of reddish brown and white mixed. His trowsers, also woolen, were of a slate color. His room was a small apartment, eight by ten, partitioned off from the hospital ward, and looking out on the East river. A cane-bottomed arm-chair, a bedstead, a few books and papers, and a steel engraving of the death of Cardinal Wolsey were the only furniture and adornments of his apartment.

Too Sharp This Time.

What with Henry Ward Beecher's perplexing troubles about his mortgage foreclosure, and the suit against him to recover pay for false teeth, and his little difficulty with Theodore Tilton, a decent regard for his feelings should induce confidence operators to forego for the present any tricks which might harass him any further. But these fellows have no regard for anybody. One of them tried to pass a forged check on him the other day to get money to bury his "poor dead mother," but Beecher has had too much experience of late in letters, signatures, checks, and "blackmail," to be done for in that way, and the rogue was promptly turned over to a police officer.

Singular Fatality.

A fatality that has attended the people connected with the enterprise of the Public Library of Kentucky is rather startling. Gov. Bramlette lost his wife, and son and then died himself. Charles Briggs, his associate, lost his wife. John Hardin, a recent law partner of Gov. Bramlette, died. Cassidy, editor of the Public Library paper, lost his wife, and McCarty, Superintendent of the Library building, also lost his wife. Harris, cashier of the business office, died recently, and James Chambers, who succeeded him, had a death in his family. There were three other recent deaths in the families of those connected with the library. Altogether eleven persons who were connected in the library scheme have departed this life or been bereaved by death since its inauguration. It is a very heavy mortality in the comparatively small circle, and is pointed out as quite a singular fatality.

[illegible] the Great Trial.

A New York letter-writer says that the learned counsel who are "doing" the great scandal before Chief Justice Neilson [illegible] ally and physically [illegible] from the pen pictures given of them. Each has his own peculiar style, and a good deal of it. Evarts suggests the shadowy Georgian, Alexander H. Stephens, and would make a good model for a hatchet; Tracy looks like a Hard-Shell Presbyterian, close-cropped for a difficult encounter with the Evil One; Pryor, tall, swarthy, and straight-haired, is a man whose great-grandfather might have been nursed by Pocahontas; Shearman, sharp and wiry, is just the person whom a party of hunters would set to watch a raccoon hole; Fullerton has a bundled-up look, and his cheeks are too close to his clavicle to display a shirt-collar to advantage, while Morris, the genus loci of the group, is what he is, and more too. They are all wiser in their generation than the children of light, but you wouldn't select any of them to boss a picnic excursion.

POLITICAL MEMORANDA.

Ex-Senator Nye is prostrate with "incurable softening of the brain."

Col. A. F. Allen, member-elect of the Thirty-third Congressional District of New York, died at his residence in Jamestown, N. Y., last week.

The sum of $3,000 has been raised in Boise county to enable Fenn (Democrat) to contest the seat of Bennett (Republican) as delegate in the next Congress from Idaho.

The Connecticut Republicans, at their State Convention last week, adopted resolutions favoring hard money and indorsing the course of the administration in the Louisiana affair.

Three members-elect of the Forty-fourth Congress have died within the last few months, namely: Mr. Head, of Tennessee; A. F. Allen, of New York; and Garnett McMillan, of Georgia.

A Wisconsin editor's reason for preferring Matt Carpenter to all other men: "We like the way Carpenter has of wearing his hair, and letting his shirt boil out between his vest and his pantaloons, a feat not easily accomplished."

The fate of the members of the Judiciary Committee of the Forty-third Congress—the committee that reported the Poland gag-law—is something remarkable. Of the eleven members composing it, only one—Frye, of Maine—will sit in the next Congress.

Mr. James Parton, historian and biographer, lectured in Chicago, the other day, on "Our [illegible]." He thinks that our politics might be worse than they are, and points out how they could be improved, namely, by woman suffrage, the disfranchisement of ignorance, etc.

The Pennsylvania Legislature, just organized, holds for two years. The Lieutenant-Governor, soon to be inaugurated, will hold office for four years. A Governor will be elected next November for three years. The [illegible] elections will [illegible] to date from 1876, and terms of [illegible] will [illegible] up to date, in 1878.

The St. Louis Republican says of the new [illegible] from Missouri, Gen. F. M. Cockrell: "He has never appealed for a vote on the ground of having been an officer in the Confederate army, and upon all public questions there is no man in the State more Conservative than he. In the Senate he will be found opposing extreme or sectional doctrines and favoring all measures looking to pacification."

Hannibal Hamlin, just re-elected to the Senate from Maine, is a veteran office-holder, having served six years in the Maine Legislature, four years in the Lower House of Congress, sixteen years in the United States Senate, four years as Vice-President, two years as Governor of Maine, and four years as Collector of Customs for the port of Boston—making, at the end of his present Senatorial term, [illegible] years that he will have spent in [illegible].

Francis Kernan, who has just been elected United States Senator from New York, in place of Reuben E. Fenton, is a lawyer of Utica, upward of sixty years of age, and a Roman Catholic in religion. He was at one time a prominent member of the New York Legislature, and leader of the Democracy in that body. In 1862 he was elected to Congress, having 98 majority over his townsman, Roscoe Conkling. In 1864 the tables were turned, and Mr. Kernan was defeated by Mr. Conkling by 1,170 majority. In 1872 Mr. Kernan was the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York State, and was defeated by Gen. Dix by a majority of 53,451. It is a noticeable fact that the little city of Utica furnishes the State of New York with both its Senators.

Mathematical Amusement.

The form of the circle, the great feature of which is the exact equidistance of every point of the circumference from the center, does not convey the idea of beauty, which the freedom in the line of the oval has, by the elegance of its form, entitled it to be adopted for the head of the last and master-production of creation—man. An amusing illustration of these principles may be produced by children and very juvenile artists by tracing the variety of mathematical figures, circles, different degrees of the oval, squares also, from the most perfect to the narrowest oblong, and triangles, from equilateral to the acute and obtuse, and filling up the spaces with human faces ever so rudely. The effects are very droll.

A. D. Palmer's store, seven miles from Crown Point, was destroyed by fire last week. Loss, $5,000.

A fire at Martinsville last week destroyed four frame business houses, involving a loss of $10,000.

A colored woman living in Vevay, Switzerland county, fastened her child in a chair in front of the fire a few days ago and left it for a short time. During her absence the child tipped the chair over in some way, and, falling into the fire, was so badly burned that it died the following day.

LEGAL.

[illegible] of the Superior Court of Indianapolis, has delivered a lengthy opinion in over forty liquor cases, appealed to his court from the Marion Board of County Commissioners, and the result is that the County Auditor is directed to issue each of the applicants a license for the retailing of liquor. In his opinion Judge [illegible] rules: First, that it is not necessary that the petition should contain the signatures of those who actually vote at the election, but rather a majority of the actual voters in the ward; second, there was no evidence before him that the applicants treated the signers to their petition as an inducement or bribery for such signers, although it was shown that the signers had been treated after such signatures had been made; third, the statute prescribes no particular form, but gives in substance what it shall be.

After the failure of the First National Bank of Anderson, its President, Col. [illegible], deeded all his real estate to the receiver for the benefit of his creditors. His wife, however, did not join in the deeds, and has now brought suit to recover her dower, and the case has been sent to Henry county for trial.

The "Independents" in the Legislature have issued an address to the people on the late election, in which they say:

> You so cast your ballots that power in the State was placed in Democratic hands in October last, and now, within four months of that time, you have been basely betrayed, and the financial pledges given you by that party have been repudiated. So far as it lay in the power of that party, your rights have been ignored, its pledges to you broken, and control of your dearest interests have been by it transferred to the keeping of the same money monopoly that has so long opposed you and labored against your industry.

Organization is urged in each township, and every county is urged to send at least one delegate to the Cleveland National Convention in March next.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Wednesday, Jan. 27.—Senate—The joint committee of the last Legislature made their report on the subject of plans for a new State-House. The resolution provided that plans should be limited to [illegible], and the house to be finished within six years. Eighteen plans were submitted and three recommended—those of Chas. Epping Hauser, of Terre Haute; J. C. Johnson, of Ohio; and E. F. Cooper, of New Albany.... Bills introduced: Providing for the erection of two additional insane asylums, one to be located at Evansville, and the other at Logansport; providing for the sale of swamp lands belonging to the State at $1.25 per acre; authorizing Criminal Judges to issue writs of habeas corpus... The report of the Judiciary Committee to indefinitely postpone the bill allowing husband and wife to testify against each other, was concurred in.

House—Bills were passed in relation to the removal of line fences in certain cases, encouraging the destruction of wolves and foxes, by offering rewards of $20 for wolf scalps and $8 for those of foxes; also amending the general banking law so as to abolish the bureau relating to that business in the Auditor of State's office.... Bills were passed fixing the time of holding courts in Benton, Jasper and Newton counties; preventing the shooting of wild pigeons when nesting, and also permitting the sale of large tracts of land.

An Old Lady's Lecture on Hasty Marriage.

"Laws-a-massy! When I was young 'twas different then. Why when folks was going to get married, they took time and meditated upon it, and kinder studied each other out, and reflected and considered, and when they did get married—married from top to toe—they expected to stay married; there warn't no talk of divorces then. They knew beforehand that they was to 'hev and to hold' till grim death, and most usually did. But now a young fellow sees a pretty girl, and asks her to marry him just as he'd ask her to take a walk, and she's ready—'Yes, sir, and thank you, too'—and they go and get married, with no more realizing sense of their responsibility than Cock Robin when he twitters to Jennie Wren. Well, pretty soon they go at it—she finds she don't like tobacco smoke, and he don't like a wife that can't do anything but frizzle her hair—so it goes, from bad to worse, until at last they sue for a divorce. And they'll get it, too. For what? Why, for uncomfortability of temper. Oh, laws-a-massy! Soul's sake! Now, did you ever? Uncomfortability of temper. Oh, Lordy."

"Incompatibility of temper, Mrs. Hutchinson," the listener suggested.

"Yes, I know it; I said so; uncomfortability of temper—them's the words that does it. Well, is there not allers uncomfortability of temper in every family, and allers has been, and allers will be? Only in good old times they used to screw it down and keep it under; and so you see they managed to get along without none of your divorces."

Mr. Thomas Holloway, the celebrated pill-man, is now engaged in the erection of a college for women, near Egham, in Surrey, England, which is to cost nearly $1,000,000. He also intends to erect two more hospitals in London, and has announced his determination to devote the princely sum of $2,000,000 to such objects of charity as may be deemed advisable. So much for pills.

RECONSTRUCTION.

President Lincoln's Plan—Speech of Fred. [illegible] Seward in the New York Legislature.

In the New York Assembly, when the resolutions condemning the President and Gen. Sheridan for the action of the military in the Louisiana affair came up, Mr. F. W. Seward spoke in opposition to them, [illegible] relating to President Lincoln's policy of reconstruction as [illegible] at a Cabinet meeting on the day of his assassination. The Albany Journal pronounces it the first public and full account of that most interesting historical event. In the illness of his father, Mr. Seward was himself present on that occasion, as the representative of the State Department, and participated in the council. Mr. Seward spoke as follows:

The questions about Louisiana are not new ones. On the contrary, they are very old ones. They arose immediately upon the close of the war. On the morning of the 14th of April, 1865, when Richmond and Petersburg had fallen, and Sherman was holding Johnson's army at bay, everything betokened that peace was at hand. President Lincoln called a Cabinet meeting at the Executive Mansion, and invited to participate in it the victorious General to whom Lee surrendered at Appomattox. At such a meeting, in such a time, there could be but one question, and that a question of transcendent importance—the question of reconstruction, restoration or re-establishment of the seceded States in their former relations as members of the Federal Union. The conference was long and earnest, with little diversity of opinion, except as to details. One of the difficulties of the problem was, who should be recognized as State authorities. There was a loyal Governor in Virginia. There were military Governors in some of the other States. But the Southern Legislatures were, for the most part, avowedly treasonable. Whether they should be allowed to continue until they committed some new overt act of hostility; whether the Governors should be requested to order new elections; whether such elections should be ordered by the general government—all these were questions raised. Among many similar expressions of the President, in that terse and homely mode of speech, the memory of which still lingers pleasantly in the hearts of the American people, he said: "We can't undertake to run State governments in all these Southern States. Their people must do that, though I reckon at first they may do it badly." The Secretary of War, Mr. Stanton, produced some sheets of paper on which he had drafted the outlines of a plan of reconstruction, embodying the President's views, and, as I understood, those of most of the other members of the Cabinet. In substance it was, that the Treasury Department should take possession of the Custom-Houses, and proceed to collect the revenues; that the War Department should garrison or destroy the forts, take possession of arms and munitions and maintain the public peace; that the Navy Department should in like manner occupy the harbors, take possession of navy-yards, ships, and ordnance; that the Interior Department should send out its surveyors, land, pension, and Indian Agents, and set them at work; that the Postmaster-General should reopen his postoffices and establish his mail routes; that the Attorney-General should look after the re-establishment of the Federal Courts, with their Judges, Marshals, and attorneys; in short, that the machinery of the United States government should be set in motion, and its laws should be faithfully executed and vigorously enforced, and that everything like domestic violence or insurrection should be repressed; but that public authorities and private citizens should remain unmolested, if not found in actual hostility to the government of the Union. In a word, it was a plan based upon the Constitution of the United States. That night Abraham Lincoln passed from earth. Through the madness of an assassin, the Southern people lost a lenient judge, a just and generous friend.

St. Valentine's Day

In England the day was once observed with much interest and fervor; but of late the celebration there, as in this country, has dwindled to the mere anonymous [illegible] in prose or verse. Valentine parties have recently come into vogue here, and when the guests enter into the spirit of them, these are really very entertaining. They are conducted in two ways. The hostess invites her friends, expecting each to send at least one valentine, original verses of a humorous or bantering sort being most desirable. The writer, who need not reveal his or her name beforehand, even to the hostess, must indicate whether the missives are intended for gentlemen or ladies, the hostess addressing them as she chooses, without knowing their contents. The other way is for the hostess to furnish to each of her guests a list of those expected, thereby giving them an opportunity to write their valentines to particular persons. The valentines should be sent to her before the party, and she should be careful to provide herself with a few extra ones for such of her guests as may have been overlooked. When the guests have assembled, the lady of the house produces the valentines, and delivers them, one at a time the recipients being compelled to read them aloud, for the benefit of the company. Some of the missives will be so pertinent, and others so inapt, that they cannot fail to be amusing. If one guest finds himself good-humoredly laughed at, he has the satisfaction of laughing at others in turn, so that any petty feeling of annoyance that may be experienced will be dispelled and forgotten in the general merriment.

Persons sometimes, in sending valentines, make the innovation of inclosing gifts of small value, coupled with such graceful phrases as will insure the acceptance of the gift. Others take advantage of the occasion to give presents of considerable worth to people in humble circumstances, to whom charity could not be offered. Thus the memory of the genial St. Valentine may be perpetuated, not only by social pleasures, but by positive practical good.—"Home and Society," Scribner's Monthly.

The excitement at Nashville, Tenn., on the first day of the balloting for United States Senator, is unprecedented in the history of political contests. The House of Representatives, it seems, went into secret session in the morning, and thus left the excited people out in the cold. By noon the halls leading to the House and Senate were thronged by an immense number of people, almost desperate in their anxiety to witness the balloting. Finding the doors of the House closed against them, they were so outraged that threats were made to bolt through the doors in spite of the Sergeant-at-Arms inside. The doors once opened, the crowd made a terrible scrambling, breaking out the glass in the door, and almost wrenching the latter from its hinges, and people soon packed the House as tight as sardines in a box. Never was such a mad rush made for seats and standing room on a similar occasion. Men became so excited that they overleaped the railing and mixed with the members of the Legislature, and had to be expelled by force.

Over 168,000 Mennonites have already their homes with us, and their immigration to the United States is on the increase.

THE CHRONOMETER.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

A gentleman, who at a feast,
Was tardy half an hour at least,
When asked by those who came before
(Some hungry guests, an hour or more)
To say why he arrived so late,
And so compelled the rest to wait—
Showed his repeater in reply:
"Yourselves are out of time—not I!
'Two was the hour proposed," said he,
"And two's the time—as you may see!"
"Ridiculous!" they all replied;
"From the true time your watch is wide;
We came well-nigh an hour ago;
Your watch—like you—is clearly slow!"
"Well," said the man, "say what you will,
I trust my old repeater still;
For many a year I've proved it's worth;
There's not a better watch on earth!"
At this, of course, each other guest
Drew forth his watch the fact to test;
With what effect?—Not much, indeed;
(For of them all no two agreed!)
One plainly showed a quarter past;
Another said, "Ten minutes fast;"
Another, "Forty minutes slow!"
And yet another answered, "No!
'Tis just fourteen! as I'm alive!"
"No!" said another, "twenty-five!"
At length, the smiling host came in (A scholar who ere while had been
A student of Astronomy),
And blandly asking what might be
The point they disagreed about—
Soon put an end to every doubt,
By bringing forth an instrument
Contrived on purpose to prevent
All liability to err—
To wit, his good Chronometer.
By this—which chanced to disagree
With all the rest—the hour was three.

The Georgia negro has no more faith in banks. He lays his money out in store clothes and hair-oil, and the news of a bank suspension causes him to exclaim: "Bust away wid ye, but you can't hurt dese lavender pants."

Some of the Southern planters are going too far with their new pet theory of small farms. An Alabama nabob has cut his plantation into patches, not one of which is bigger than Rhode Island.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A school in Vermont is presided over by a cross-eyed teacher. A few days ago he called out: "That boy that I am looking at will step out on the floor." Immediately twenty-seven lads walked out in front of the astonished pedagogue.

A bald-headed, consequential Moneybags was dilating recently upon the fact of his being a "self-made man," when a by-stander remarked: "If you are a 'self-made man,' why in thunder didn't you put some hair on the top of you head?" He wilted.

"John, I saw your cousin Isaac a few weeks ago, and he had just received a fall, which cut a most horrible gash in his arm." "Ah, poor fellow, what did he fall on?" "Well, really I forget now; but it strikes me he fell on Tuesday morning."

A man went into a butcher's shop, and finding the owner's wife in attendance, in the absence of her husband, thought he would have a joke at her expense, and said: "Madame, can you supply me with a yard of pork?" "Yes, sir," she said; and then, turning to a boy, she added: 'James, give that gentleman three pigs' feet."

An aged backwoodsman was reproved by the clergyman for allowing his sons to go hunting on the Sabbath. "You ought to bring up your children in the fear of the Lord," said the minister. "Fear the Lord!" said the old man. "Jiss what I've done. Don't one o' them boys dare g'wout doors Sudday 'thout a double barrel gun."

A Catamount Drives a Family From Home.

The Sioux City Journal relates this story: "Settlers living on the frontiers are subject to Indian raids and other dangers, but we never before heard of one wildcat raiding it and cleaning it out. Such, however, was the case about ten days ago. A large wildcat entered a German's house near Granger's Woods, about forty miles up the Missouri river from this city. The inmates of the cabin comprised six persons, the mother and five children. The father was a mile distant in the timber, chopping wood. Upon the appearance of the animal at the door, which was ajar, the mother and little ones fled the house by another door, and ran to where the man was at work, while a small dog and the domestic pussy gave the intruder battle. Upon the return of the German and his family, the beast had taken refuge in a tree a few rods from the house. The old rifle was taken from its corner, and the cat was brought to the ground with a bullet through his brain. The dog and pussy were both found dead inside of the house. The cat was of a very large size, and had been frequently seen in that section."

A Deathbed Scene.

One day last week there was a queer sight around the deathbed of an old gentleman of Indianapolis. He has five or six children, and but one of this number is, to use the common phrase, any account. While he was endeavoring to sign a will, the children fairly fought, so eager were they to get the bulk of his six or seven thousand dollars. The old gentleman had his second wife, but these gracious step-sons most unceremoniously hustled her out. In fact they raised such a racket that it became necessary to call in a police officer, who stood guard until the old gentleman breathed his last. By this time the children had got into a square knock-down fight, and two of them were arrested for assault and battery.

Can it be possible that the richest silver mine in the world is in Massachusetts? So the papers now say. According to the Boston Advertiser, there has been discovered near Newburyport within the last four months a mine yielding lead, gold, and silver,—the latter to the amount of $170 per ton! The gold amounts to about $11 per ton. The vein is a bottomless fissure, and about six or seven miles long. Preparations are being made for mining on a large scale in the spring. The net profit is immense, as it costs but $1 a ton to dig and elevate it, and $20 a ton to smelt and separate it.

CHANGE.

[By Amy I. Moore.]

A change in all things may be seen,
In nature and in art;
'Tis stamped upon this earth of ours,
And written on the heart.
The snow lies white upon the ground!
Dark clouds o'erspread the sky,
The Northern winds blow dark and drear
And frosty snow-flakes fly.

A few short days and all is changed
The springtime glides along
The brooklet with its rippling flow
And birds with welcome song.
And thus the seasons come and go
And change from year to year—
Let us observe, for once the change,
Which in man's lives appear.

To-day we see the little child.
Of innocence and grace—
To-morrow, see the trace of death
Depicted on its face.
While waiting for the angel band.
To bear it o'er the stream
A bright smile plays on its face
Caught from some Elysian gleam.

To-day within these walls we meet
School-mates and teachers dear,
But who can tell what change many come
Before another year!
The teachers that we meet to-day
In other lands may roam,
And some, perchance ere that time comes
May reach that betterhome.

Our school mates too, for aught we know
May cross that crystal tide,
And friends now bound by kindred ties
Be scattered far and wide.
Then let us do the best we can
All sorrows to abate,
No matter then what change may come
Our lives we'll ne'er regret.

HINTS ON HABITS.— As the snow gathers together so are our habits formed. No single flake that is added to the pile produces a sensible change, no single action creates, however it may exhibit a man's character but as the tempest hurls the avalanche down the mountains and overwhelms the inhabitant and his habitation, so passion acting upon the elements of mischief, which pernicious habits have brought together by imperceptible accumulation, may overthrow the edifice of truth and virtue.

◆

FEBRUARY:—This is one of the months introduced into the Roman calendar by Numa Pompilius. It derives its name from the Sabine februum, signifying a purgative, hence, the Latin verb februare to purify, expiate Febona was also one of the names of Juno, the sister and wife of Jupiter, and the goddess who presided over marriages and was supposed to protect married women. Our Saxon ancestors named this month Sprout-kele from the kale-wort or cole-wort, an herb of great repute among our fore fathers.

The days are now sensibly lengthened; the cold generally begins to abate and the sun gradually resuming his former power begins to melt away the snow and ice.

February, though not decked with flowers, or supplied with autumnal fruits is not without beauty and grandure. The warm south wind, like the breath of a guardian angel, dissolves the snow and torrents of water the descend from the hills. Brooks and rills become large streams,

"The mighty river press along Resistless, roaring dreadful down it comes
Then o'er the sanded valley floating

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.—The Jackson Tp., Teachers Institute convened at Jackson Center, January 16. 1875. Number of teachers of the township present, seven; absent, two. Three teachers were present from other town ships. The programme was as follows:

Reading, Josie Gillott;
Arithmetic, Byron Grube;
Geography, Mall Keeran;
Grammar, W. H. H. Cornell:
Physiology, Simon Bybee;
History, F. E. Thomson;
Writing, J. Shilling;

James Boyles, a teacher of Concord, and D. M. Allen, of the Spencerville Schools, made some very appropriate remarks to the Institute. The question, "Should map-drawing be taught in the district schools?" was briefly discussed, most of the teachers agreeing that it placed in the hands of the teacher a most excellent means for securing good lessons, and a more thorough knowledge of the subject. The teachers all manifested a deep interest in the work and a casual observer would be led to believe that the teachers of Jackson township evidently mean something Institute adjourned to meet at the same place February 6th, 1875.

F. E. THOMSON, President.
MALL KEERAN, Secretary.

PRICES REDUCED
—AT THE—
FRUIT HOUSE.
We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. If times are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combined. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; [illegible] purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumers.
Just take teas, for instance: We save our customers on this article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the importer.
We save the profit of the jobber, 10 per cent, of the speculator, which is 15 per cent, of the wholesale grocer, which 10 to 20 per cent, or as much more as he can get. All these profits our customers have the profit of.
We still keep up the reduction of 15 per cent.

Dr. King's New Discovery!
FOR CONSUMPTION!
The unparalled success invariably attending the introduction of
DR. KING'S
New Discovery for Consumption.
Far surpasses that of any other medicine ever placed before the American people. In fact it has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. Wherever it is sold a lively and increasing demand is at once created, and why is it? Our answer is this: It is a remedy that travels on Its Own Merits and always gives Perfect Satisfaction, hence the success. We know whereof we speak and in order to prove this statement we make the following offer: Do not Ever Ask to Buy until you know what you are getting. All we ask of those troubled with consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c., is to go to

Pencilings and Clippings,

Builders are preparing for their spring work.

Mr. Eaton talks of selling out his dinning parlors.

Wm. McIntire, Esq., has purchased the Puffenberger property.

Mr. Rrobinson thinks of quiting the day boarding business in the spring.

Our agent at Butler sent us several new names to add to our subscription list.

The wood market has been pretty dull for several days past.

Protracted meetings are prevailing to quite a great extent all over the county.

Auburn will do a large amount of building the coming season, both brick and frame.

Trade was very quiet in the city last week, on account, we suppose of the cold weather.

The Band Boys appear to-night at Ensleys' hall, in the great play of "One coat for two suits."

R. H. Gilbert had a little "set-to" with a solid rubber ball, and now his proboscos lays a little to the left side.

We have just received a nice assortment of new Job type, expressly for fine work. Call and see specimens.

The wheeling has been splendid for the last week or two, but the weather has been too cold for out-door labor.

Houston & Benedict have a new and attractive "butcher wagon." They furnish Garret City in meat.

The Waterloo "Press" is improving very much in the local line. They get about all the news going, throughout the county.

The new billiard hall under the management of Al. Wells, is doing a fine business. They keep on hand the best brand of cigars.

The papers are taking up the Beecher Tilton business. The public is thoroughly disgusted with it, but the papers must keep it up, or the women well get huffy.

We are anxious to extend the circulation of the COURIER. Will the frends throughout the county assist us a little, by trying to get your neighbors to subscribe.

The Educational column does not make an appearance this week, on account of its conductor being too busily engaged in the high department of our school.

While the small-pox prevailed at Burlington, Ia., recently, it is said that nine out of twelve persons who were vaccinated died of the desease, although the virus worked well in every instance.

The merchants in our place are the best to try to suit the public, we ever saw. They sell all good articles and leave the shoddy for larger towns. Come to Auburn and buy.

F. N. Wright & Co., are selling Sash and Doors cheaper than any other house in Indiana Those in need of this material should by all means call and learn their prices.

The Logansport 'Pharos" don't exactly want the insane assylum located at Logansport. We'll take it if they put up a handsome stone building and locate it near the Baltimore road, one of the best locations in the State.

When you want a good, cheap job, call at the COURIER office. We have material for every kind of work. If you send by mail, as a great many do, you can depend on having everything to suit both in style and price.

The schools of Milwaukee will be permitted to expend during the coming year $158,400. The aggregate of the teachers' salaries will be $139,900. There are 269 teachers new employed by the board.

In a few weeks we will get an entire new dress for the COURIER, and we will purchase large enough type so that our patrons whose eyes are getting dim, by old age, can read to much better advantage than they can now.

We hope after this that when our friends are in the COURIER office while we are working off the first side they will not take it and read what we have on this page. Thursday you can have it.

Mr. M. C. Markle will erect a handsome new brick hotel in the spring. Auburn could easily support another one if it was conducted in a good style. The Swineford House is one of the best in the state, while the others are on an average with our neighbors,

Those wishing to subscribe for the COURIER at Corunna, can do so by calling on Frank Kline, our agent, and any business transacted with him will be acknowledged by us. Those wanting bill heads, letter heads, cards, posters, sale bills, or any kind of Job work can be accomodated by consulting Frank.

We were presented the other day, by John L. Davis, a fine pocket knife, which by the way, we were very much in need of, and pronounce it the best we ever have owned before. They are cheap, good and substancial. and we recommend this firm to all who are without such an article.

It is gratifying to observe the large increase of trade for 1875 over that of former years, in Auburn. Our merchants are selling goods as cheap as they can be bought elsewhere, and our grain and produce dealers are paying outside prices for the products of the farm

Game Law.—Sportsmen and all others should bear in mind that it is unlawful to shoot quails and partridges from February 1st until October 1st It is also unlawful to trap or net these birds. Turkeys may not be shot or trapped between March 1st and September 1st.

Tilton has now an opportunity of illustrating on the witness-stand the poetical musing of Sir Marmaduke, and exclaim with his own poetical imagination:

> I am now all bereft,—
> As when some tower doth fall
> With battlements and wall,
> And gate, and bridge, and all,
> And nothing left.

A certain zealous but ignorant negro preacher, in expounding to his flock as to the astonishing nature of miracles, got a little confused in the matter. He said: "My beloved friends, the greatest of all miracles was 'bout the loves and fishes. Dere were 5,000 loves and 2,000 fishes, an' de twelve 'postles had to eat dem all, and de mericle is dey didn't bust."

Coming and Going.

It is all "coming and going" in this world of ours. Yesterday your friend—dear to you from childhood—clasped your hand, and you lived over again the days of the long ago. The temptations, trials, failures and triumphs of youth were recounted with great distinctness. Your striving with Smith's arithmetic, your quarrel with that red heired Jones boy, your narrow escapes from dismissal when it was found that you put that snapping turtle in the teacher's desk, and tied the bell-rope to Deacon Smith's bald headed ram, the genteel flogging you received for pinning the teachers coat-tail to Jennima Brown's new silk dress, and your heaving for the ground tier on your first attempt to smoke a cigar.

Then comes your Sunday experience which is not unlike that of the boys of to-day. Wandering through the wood in search of bird nests, trading jack-knives, visiting the barn-yard with Sam Smith and pointing out the good qualities of your favorite colt, blacking your boots and going to a little frame church on the hill, where the gray-haired minister reeled off a theological discourse while you were counting the chances of beating Bob Jones' two-year-old in the quarter mile dash to take place in the North lane when the old people were attending afternoon service, or wondering whether Sam Smith would "see" your last nickel on a game of jack-stones.

After this, your triumphs at spelling school, where you "spell down" the entire class in the vain hope of winning the love of a fair-haired girl who was always "engaged" when you asked her to accompany you to singing school. All the incidents of your life were canvassed. You look back through the darkening years to the pleasures of boyhood, unmindful of the ravages of time; forgetting that your hair is silvered by age, losing your bearings and closing your eyes to the goal now so near—but yesterday so far away.

To-day your friend is gone. The last "good-bye" has been spoken. You cannot annihilate the space that divides 'Tis more than seeming, and from the dream of yesterday this is the sad awaking. He brought the sunshine and left the shadow, yet there is a silver lining to the cloud. There is a world of joy and sorrow in the "coming" and "going" of your friend.

The Granger's of this township, held a meeting at Ensleys' Hall last Saturday with a goodly number in attendance This is the way they are doing business now-a-days.

> Henry Simkins was his name
> Swindling Grangers was his game
> But the Grangers met in lodg one day
> And resolved all middle men away

Why are woodpeckers' tongues about three times longer than their bills? Because if their pills were long, they would not bore the tree so efficiently, and when the trees are bored, and the insects alarmed, they endeavor to retreat into the hollows of the wood, but the long, thin tongue of the woodpecker fixes them on its sharp, horny point, and draws them in to the mouth of the bird.

We are willing to say to our advertising patrons, that we thank them very much for their liberality in this particular. The COURIER has more advertisments than it can "get away with," and consequently we are obliged to take week about, in order to accomodate our numerous customers. Our circulation is fast increasing, and it will not be long in the future until we can boast of a number as large as any paper in the state. If our friends will make a little effort in the way of increasing our list, by getting their neighbors to subscribe, we will greatly acknowledge the favor

PICTURE OF LIFE.—"In youth we seem to be climbing a hill on whose top eternal sunshine seems to rest. How eagerly we pant to attain its summit! But, when we have gained it, how different is the prospect on the other side! We sigh as we contemplate the dreary waste before us, and look back with a wistful eye upon the flowry path we have passed, but may never [illegible] a portentious cloud, fraught with thunder-storm and rain; but religion, like those streaming rays of sunshine, will clothe it with light as with a garment and fringe its shadowy skirts with gold."

We are glad to learn that the foolish custom of jumping up and disturbing a congregation to let a woman seat herself in church is becoming obsolete. It is extremely vulgar, and is no longer practiced by well bred people. An Eastern paper says: "It is not considered impolite when a woman comes late into church on Sunday, if two or three men are already seated in the pew she enters, for them to move quietly along and make a place for her at the head of the pew, instead of rising and ostentatiously filing into the aisle, kicking over the footstools and steping on each others heels, to allow her to pass to the farthest sitting in the pew. The old costom yet prevails in too many churches. It is a relic of the past ages, when the men of the congregation were momentarily liable to be called to take arms against their crafty foes, the Indians, and it was important that the men should sit where they could the most quickly answer to the summons."

FRIENDSHIP.—Stick to your friends is a safe motto at all times, and in all conditions in life, political or social A man without friends is to be pitied and despised. Pitied because of his poverty; despised because he deserves no better fate; for he who merits friendship will not be friendless.

Save the love of a mother for her offspring, there is no purer, holier sentiment than friendship. It is a feeling akin to worship in its intensity It means true loyalty, self-forgetfulness, and unswerving fidelity. There are a great many men in this selfish world who will never know what true friendship is.

It is true that "selfish men are friendless," and it is equally true that friendless men are selfish. The hod-carrier may bend his knee to the selfish millionaire, that "terift may follow fawning," yet he can but despise the cold-hearted nabob. There are so many seeming friendships, so few true friends; so many proper persons, so few generous hearts. So many who are willing to barter the friendship of a wood-sawyer for the respect of a banker; so few who are able to distinguish between the diamond and the paste.

Stick to your friends. It is better to be loved than to be rich. If your friend may be wrong give him, at that, the benefit of the doubt, and stand by him until you are convinced of his unworthiness. If he be unjustly as a lad make his fight your own If in the melee a few gentle cobhouses are demolished let them go without regret, for you are laying the foundation for an enduring structure.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

THE old man Sawyer has confessed to having killed Mrs. Emerson, at Haverhill, N. H., but claims that he did it through an accident; that he was sitting on the lounge near by her, and that, while he was examining the lock of the gun, it was discharged through pure accident.

THE State of Maine declines to admit women to electoral privileges.

A DISGRACEFUL row occurred in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, at Harrisburg, last week, growing out of a dispute on a parliamentary point. The Speaker ordered a member under arrest, when his friends rushed to his assistance and rescued him from the Sergeant-at-Arms. Pistols were drawn during the melee.

THE WEST.

THE ice gorge at Cincinnati gave way last week, and played havoc with the barge fleet. Total loss about $50,000.... Three Indians froze to death at the Red Cloud Agency, during the late cold weather; also a number of ponies. They had nineteen days intensely cold weather.

WINTERMUTE, who was tried at Yankton, D. T., last spring, for the murder of Gov. McCook, and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, has been granted a new trial, and released on bail bonds of $20,000.... The cash receipts of the Kansas Relief Committee to this date aggregate $21,767.42 and the disbursements $20,712.67.

CHICAGO elevators, as per official figures, contained on the 3d inst. 3,439,768 bushels of wheat, 1,564,987 bushels of corn, 545,775 bushels of oats, 14,806 bushels of rye, and 292,395 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 5,856,731 bushels, against 5,432,387 bushels at the same period last year.

THE SOUTH.

A FIGHT recently took place on the Rio Grande between Texas Rangers and Comanche Indians, in which fifteen of the latter, including two big chiefs, were sent to the happy hunting grounds. ....A most daring express robbery was committed in Memphis, Tenn., on the 1st inst. A party of desperadoes rented, a few days previous, the basement of a building on Madison street, one of the principal thoroughfares of the city, and hung out a sign, "W. R. Parker & Co., Insurance Agents." On the morning of the 1st inst., John Brady, a messenger of the Southern Express Company, entered the place for the purpose of delivering a package said to contain $10. There were two white men and three negroes standing behind the counter, and Brady presented his receipt book, and at the same time threw his pouch, containing a large number of money packages, on the counter. At this moment a rope was thrown over his neck, and a bag thrown over his head, and he was beaten almost insensible. His cries soon attracted the crowd, as the street was full of people, but the robbers had secured the pouch and fled by the back door. The amount secured by the robbers is not definitely known, but it is thought will reach several thousands of dollars.

WASHINGTON.

THE recent fire in the Navy Department building was the work of incendiaries. Trains of rope and waste paper were laid about the floor connecting with piles of chips, shavings, and broken-up kindling wood.

THE Senate Election Committee has decided to report in favor of recognizing Kellogg as the legal Governor of Louisiana and of admitting Pinchback to his seat in the Senate.

THE Navy Department had another narrow escape from fire on Friday, incendiarism being the trouble, as heretofore. Evidently a desire to destroy the records is at the bottom of these persistent attempts.

ABOUT 500 pages of the Alabama investigation have already been printed. The testimony taken is very contradictory, some witnesses alleging that intimidation was practiced before and at the election, and others that there was no intimidation....The House Committee on Appropriations in their report on the Postoffice bill recommend an appropriation of $17,548,000 for inland mail service next year; a reduction of $514,796 from the estimate.

THE Secretary of the Treasury has issued a call for the redemption of $15,000,000 5-20 bonds of 1862, to be paid on the first of May, at the United States Treasury, at which date interest will cease. Of the amount thus called in, $12,000,000 are coupon bonds and $3,000,000 registered bonds....The national debt was increased in the amount of $1,397,870 during the month of January. The following is the official statement:

Six per cent bonds	$1,157,085,100
Five per cent bonds	562,025,200
Total coin bonds		$1,719,110,300
Lawful money debt	$ 14,678,000
Matured debt	11,343,260
Legal tenders	382,072,147
Certificates of deposit	45,405,000
Fractional currency	45,037,074
Coin certificates	24,655,300
Total without interest		497,169,522
Total debt		$2,242,301,082
Total interest		26,908,225
Cash in Treasury:
Coin	$69,465,084
Currency	10,343,050
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of redemption	45,405,000
Total in the Treasury		$ 125,213,135
Debt less cash in the Treasury		$2,143,996,172
Increase of debt during January		1,397,870
Bonds issued to the Pacific Railway Companies, interest payable in lawful money: Principal outstanding		$64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid		323,117
Interest paid by the United States		26,264,102
Interest repaid, by transportation of mails, etc		5,602,165
Balance of interest paid by United States		20,661,936

A guard of marines and an extra force of watchman for each floor of the Navy Department have been detailed to prevent a recurrence of the attempts to fire the building. Four attempts to set it on fire have been discovered and frustrated. It is evident that the incendiaries are parties who want to destroy certain documents damaging to themselves.

FROM the time of the passage of the Currency law on Jan. 14 to the 4th inst., the Comptroller of the Currency had received applications for the organization of new national banks as follows: Two banks in Maine, $150,000; two banks in Massachusetts, $200,000; two banks in Connecticut, $200,000; thirteen banks in Pennsylvania, $1,700,000; one bank in New Jersey, $75,000; three banks in Kentucky, $300,000; one bank in Illinois, $50,000; one bank in Iowa, $50,000. Applications were also received for an increase of capital from: Maine, $800,000; Vermont, $150,000; Massachusetts, $150,000; Connecticut, $355,000; Pennsylvania, $460,000; other States, $150,000. Applications were also made for an increase of circulation upon capital already paid up as follows: Massachusetts, $1,300,000; Connecticut, $300,000; other States, $241,000. Total authorized increase, $6,131,000.

POLITICAL.

A WASHINGTON dispatch to the Chicago Tribune says: The Arkansas case, it now seems probable, will not be changed by legislation at this session. It is now well known that the President, at his recent conference with the members of the investigating committee, discovered that he is not in accord with the majority of that committee. The majority, it is said, favor a disavowal of the Garland government, and a restoration of Brooks. The President is weary of slate-making, and does not wish to have his Louisiana experience renewed in Arkansas. This difference is likely to defeat any proposed legislation.

A Washington dispatch of the 1st inst. says: The Republican Senators were in caucus Saturday for about five hours on the Louisiana question. After much debate it was concluded to support the President in what he had already done relative to affairs in that State, and to stand by him in the future in the support of the Kellogg government in all its lawful authority. It is said there are eight Senators who dissent from this position of their Republican associates. ....Joint resolutions have been passed by the Minnesota Legislature calling upon Hon. Wm. S. King for an explanation of his connection with Pacific Mail or resignation.

A NUMBER of prominent colored men, including Fred Douglas, Prof. Langston, Pinchback and Rapier, have issued an address to Congress and the people, in which they say that if Congress fails to pass the Civil Rights bill the blacks of the South will be forced to act with the Democratic party.

THE Wisconsin Legislature has elected Angus Cameron, of La Crosse, as the successor of Matt Carpenter in the United States Senate. Mr. Cameron is a lawyer, a New York State man by birth, and has resided in Wisconsin since 1857. He has been a member of the Wisconsin Legislature for six years, and was the Republican Speaker of the House in 1867. His election was brought about by a coalition between the Democrats and anti-Carpenter Republicans....A Washington dispatch says: "Official information has been received here from New Orleans that the committee there entirely agree with the Foster sub-committee on the question of the Returning Board."

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

THE proceedings on the 28th consisted of—1. A decision of Judge Neilson to admit Woodruff's testimony of the interview between him, Tracy, and Moulton, touching the Beecher scandal; 2. The protest of counsel against the New York Tribune's comments; and 3. A very able and interesting speech by Mr. Evarts, on the inadmissibility of Tilton's testimony. Mr. Woodruff's testimony was strongly confirmatory of that offered by his business partner, Moulton. He testified that Gen. Tracy, several months ago, thought the case was one to justify Moulton in lying. When Theodore Tilton's name was called as a witness, Beecher's counsel interposed strenuous objections to the admission of his evidence, and the entire day was consumed in argument as to whether, under the law which prohibits a husband from testifying in a case the basis of which is a charge of his wife's infidelity, his evidence could be received.

FRIDAY, Jan. 29, was the twentieth day of the trial. Nothing was done but the completion of the arguments of the counsel on the admissibility of Tilton as a witness. These arguments consumed the entire day, and Judge Neilson reserved his decision to Monday, Feb. 1, to TWENTY-FIRST DAY.—Judge Neilson having given his decision that Tilton was competent to testify, he ascended the witness stand and proceed to tell his story, which was substantially the same as embraced in the statements of last summer. The Judge ruled that he would not be permitted to tell what his wife communicated to him relative to Beecher's adultery with her, but all the facts were wrung from him indirectly by the counsel while repeating the conversation he had had with Beecher. There was a good deal of sharp sparring between counsel during the examination.

TWENTY-SECOND DAY.—The testimony of Theodore Tilton was continued. It was devoted mainly to an explanation of the witness' relations to the Woodhull, showing that his object in maintaining them was to protect Beecher. The most revolting part of the whole case was also touched when the witness related the points of an interview held between him and Beecher for the purpose of determining the parentage of little Ralph Tilton. It is not possible to conceive anything more disgusting, yet a number of ladies sat through it all, and appeared to enjoy the recital.

TWENTY-THIRD DAY—This was one of the most interesting days of the trial. Tilton's examination was continued. The witness testified to his action regarding the Bacon letter, and toward the Plymouth Church Investigating Committee. A few of the letters which passed between Mr. Tilton and his wife before the alleged commission of the crime were introduced to influence the jury in the question of damages. The cross-examination then began, Mr. Evarts conducting it, and by him the religious views of the witness were drawn out and made to compare with those of his wife and Mr. Beecher.

GENERAL.

BISHOP WHITTINGHAM, of Maryland, refused to countenance the consecration of Dr. Dudley, Bishop elect of Southern Ohio, and refused to sign his credentials. He bases his action, it is understood, on the language of St. Paul, in the third chapter of the First Epistle to Timothy, wherein the apostle says: "A Bishop shall be the husband of one wife." Dr. Dudley having been twice married, the Bishop holds that he is ineligible to the Episcopate.

A DESTRUCTIVE fire took place at Stratford Ont., in Regent Hall, a few days ago, destroying property to the amount of $145,000.... The book relating to a member of the royal family of England, for which a reward of $5,000 has been offered in that country—against the publication of which the Lord Chancellor issued an injunction, and of which only one copy is known to be in the United States—has just been discovered to be in the possession of a young lawyer of Louisville, Ky.

THE National Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry met at Charleston, S. C., on Wednesday, Feb. 3, Master Adams, of Iowa, in the chair. All of the officers were present, making, with delegates, over 600 members. The order of business used at the seventh annual session was adopted. Master Adams then delivered an address, in which he congratulated the public on the strength gained during the past year. After the delivery of the addresses the report of the Treasurer was read and standing committees appointed. In the evening a public meeting of welcome was held and speeches delivered by prominent citizens and delegates.... Two serious disasters, resulting in large loss of life, are reported from Canada. At Cape Blanc eight people were crushed to death by a falling rock, and in the vicinity of Quebec a family of six persons were overwhelmed and suffocated by a snow-slide.

FOREIGN.

THE trouble between Germany and Spain has been settled by the payment to the former of indemnity for the Gustav outrage.

THE French Assembly has rejected the amendment to the Constitutional bill, providing that the future government of France should rest with the Senate, a Chamber of Deputies, and a President of the republic. The amendment was the last hope of the Republicans to secure even a technical recognition of the republic.... Archbishop Manning has fired another pamphlet at Gladstone—200 pages this time.... The Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath has been offered to Carlyle, and Alfred Tennyson is to be made a baronet.

RUSSIA has recognized King Alfonso....The Czar of Russia has sent a note to the Prince of Montenegro, congratulating him upon the peaceable solution of the difficulty which arose between his government and that of Turkey from the Podgoritza affair....An immense strike is on foot in the coal mines in South Wales, no less than 120,000 miners being engaged in it.

AN effort is being made in Spain to effect a compromise between the contending dynasties of King Carlos and King Alfonso. Overtures have proceeded from the latter, and if accepted will bring the present state of anarchy to an end, and result in the reception of Don Carlos at Madrid as a prince of the blood.

THE widow of the late Emperor of China, overwhelmed with grief at the death of her husband, has committed suicide. Her name was Alute, and she was the daughter of a distinguished Chinese military officer. She was wedded to Toung Chi on the 16th of October, 1872. Besides the lady Alute, the Emperor had thirty-nine other wives, who took rank after her in various degrees.

THE Marquis of Hartington has been elected leader of the Liberal party in the British House of Commons, in place of Mr. Gladstone, who, after a long and successful leadership, has retired to private life.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

THURSDAY, Jan. 28.—Senate—Bogy submitted a resolution instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire as to the expediency of repealing the act of June 1, 1872, granting a subsidy to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. Referred....Bills passed: House bill granting the right of way and depot grounds to the Oregon Central Pacific Railway Company through the public lands of the United States, from Winnemucca, Nevada, to the Columbia river, via Portland, Oregon; providing for the appointment of a commissioner to ascertain the right of subjects of Great Britain to lands in territory which was the subject of award of the Emperor of Germany under the treaties of 1846 and 1871 between the United States and Great Britain; amendatory of, and supplementary to, the act of March 1, 1872, entitled, "An act to set apart a certain tract of land lying near the head waters of the Yellowstone river as a public park."....Fenton spoke at length on the Louisiana resolution.

House—At noon the House had been in continuous session for twenty-four hours, and still the monotonous call of the roll proceeded. The voices of half a dozen reading clerks had been used up, and several substitutes were introduced. There had been no attempt on either side to come to an understanding. The last roll call at midnight showed the presence of 150 members.

FRIDAY, Jan. 29.—Senate—A large number of reports were made from the Committee on Pensions....The credentials of Kernan and Cockrell, Senators-elect from New York and Missouri, were read and placed on file....After the expiration of the morning hour Conkling took the floor and concluded his speech on the Louisiana question.

House—The lock in the House was brought to a [illegible] offered by Ward (Rep.), of Illinois, to adjourn till 12 o'clock to-morrow. Both sides were completely worn out by the protracted session of forty-six consecutive hours. In offering the motion, Ward said it was evident that the extent of human endurance had been reached, and he was unwilling to submit to torture longer. The vote was 75 against 60, nineteen Republicans voting in the affirmative. The roll was called seventy-five times during the protracted sitting.

SATURDAY, Jan. 30.—Senate—The Senate was not in session, having adjourned to Monday.

House—Nothing was done in the House save the reading of the journal of the previous day's proceedings, which the Clerk was about to do, omitting the yeas and nays in detail, when Randall raised the point of order that they must be read. The Speaker decided the point well taken, and as this reading would have consumed almost as much time as the previous session, the House adjourned at 4:30, eighteen of the roll-calls having been read out of the seventy-seven taken.

MONDAY, Feb. 1.—Senate—Logan presented the resolutions of the Board of Trade of Chicago, in reference to the bill introduced for an appropriation to establish a mint at Chicago....Pratt presented the joint resolutions of the Indiana Legislature in favor of the passage of a bill granting pensions to surviving soldiers and sailors of the war with Mexico. He sent to the Clerk's desk and had read a letter from the Commissioner of Pensions, stating that the number of survivors of that war was 35,604; number of widows of soldiers and sailors, about 12,600....Dorsey submitted a resolution instructing the Committee on Postoffices and Post-roads to inquire into the nature and extent of the operation of the registered letter system and its defects, if any exist, and to recommend such legislation as may be needed to attain greater security in the transmission of registered matter, to extend the usefulness of the system, and to procure accurate knowledge of its operation....Consideration of Schurz's Louisiana resolution was resumed.

House—Hale, of Maine, introduced a resolution to change the rules, by the adoption of a new rule, the object of which is to prevent the Speaker entertaining motions of a dilatory character. Referred.... Caulfield, who was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Rice, from Illinois, was sworn in and took his seat....The Senate bill appropriating $182,500 to pay the interest on 3.65 bonds of the District of Columbia was passed....Platt, from the Postoffice Committee, offered a resolution authorizing an amendment to the Postoffice Appropriation bill as follows: Fixing the salaries of postmasters and the mode of commuting same; authorizing the Postmaster-General to pay the expense of taking the weights of mails on railroads, and to pay experts and other employes in the preparation and publication of post-route maps; also to abolish the publication of certain postoffice advertisements in three Washington papers....Butler, of Massachusetts, moved to suspend the rules, to permit the reading of a report from the Committee on Rules, with a view of coming to a vote on the Civil Rights bill. The motion was rejected—yeas 170, nays 86. The only exception to the vote being a strict party one was that of Sener, Republican, who voted no. His vote the other way would have carried the motion....The bill directing the President to supply food and disused army clothing to all destitute and helpless persons living on the Western frontier who have been rendered destitute and helpless by the ravages of grasshoppers last summer was agreed to—yeas 170, nays 49....A recess was then taken to 10 o'clock on Tuesday.

TUESDAY, Feb. 2.—Senate—The credentials of W. A. Wallace, Senator-elect from Pennsylvania for six years from March 4, 1875, were read and placed on file....Sherman submitted a resolution instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire and report whether there is now in force any act of legislation under which the authorities of the District of Columbia are empowered to prevent and suppress notorious gambling establishments in the District, and, if there is not such legislation, to report a bill to confer such power. Agreed to.... Allison introduced a bill to authorize the construction of a pontoon bridge across the Mississippi river at or near Dubuque, Iowa....Ingalls called up the House bill to authorize the Seneca nation of New York Indians to lease their lands within the Cattaraugus and Allegheny reservations, and to confirm the existing leases.

House—The question of suspending and amending the rules was again the subject of discussion. Garfield offered a resolution preventing the Speaker entertaining motions of a dilatory character, when Randall and Cox raised the point of order that the Committee on Rules had had no meeting since it was ordered to report, which was overruled. The gentlemen then resigned any further connection with the Committee on Rules; but this was declared not in order at the present time. During the day, however, the resignations were insisted upon and accepted.... The Committee on Rules presented a new rule providing that whenever a question is pending before the house, the Speaker shall not entertain but one motion to adjourn, and one motion to fix a day to which the House shall adjourn; but the previous question on the engrossment and the third reading of any bill or joint resolution shall not be ordered during the first day of its consideration, unless two-thirds of the members present shall second the demand; provided that the rule shall not apply to House resolutions offered in the morning hours of Monday, the passage of which was advocated by the Speaker, who came down on the floor. This rule was adopted—yeas 171, nays 85.... Butler, of Massachusetts, moved to take up the Civil Rights bill, but without acting on the motion the House adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 3.—Senate—Logan introduced a bill authorizing the retirement of Gen. W. H. Emory, U. S. A., with the rank and pay of Brigadier-General....The bill appropriating $25,000 to defray expenses incurred during the visit of King Kalakaua was passed....Logan presented a resolution adopted by a meeting of citizens of Chicago in favor of the passage of a bill to establish a branch mint at Chicago, which was referred to the Committee on Finance....The Senate adjourned after executive session.

House—Preliminary questions connected with the Senate Civil Rights bill were voted upon, and the proceedings were enlivened by some unparliamentary language that passed between Butler, of Massachusetts, and McLean, of Texas. Butler referred to portions of the Southern people as banditti and murderers, who rode around at night in uniform and disguised. McLean said that the member from Massachusetts was the only murderer on the floor that he knew of; he had murdered a man in New Orleans. Butler retorted that this language was ruffianly, and could not now affect him, for which he was reprimanded by the Speaker. The House took a recess until 7:30, the evening session to be exclusively for debate on the Civil Rights bill.

INDIANA NEWS.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

THE farmers of Laporte county are holding on to their wheat in anticipation of obtaining better prices in the spring.

THE Winchester Herald says that President S. D. Bates has this year secured the addition of $25,000 to the endowment fund of Ridgeville College.

THE State Editorial Association, at their recent session in Indianapolis, elected the following officers: President, William S. Lingle, Lafayette Courier; Vice-President, H. E. Wadsworth, Laporte Argus; Secretary, E. C. Tuttle, Globe, Indianapolis; Treasurer, W. A. Bell, School Journal, Indianapolis; Executive Committee, E. W. Halford, Indianapolis; R. S. Westfall, Mail, Terre Haute; Ed. Sibley, Lawrenceburg Register; O. C. Beeson, Winchester Journal; G. I. Reed, Peru Republican. The Association will make an excursion through the South in March.

DURING the months of November and December 6,000 boxes of starch were shipped from the factory of R. Johnson & Son at Madison.

A NUMBER of the large manufacturers of Indiana met at Indianapolis last week, and resolved themselves into an organization known as the Manufacturers and Miners' Association of the State of Indiana. Officers were elected as follows: W. C. Depauw, President; B. C. Shaw, Vice President; A. T. Sinker, Secretary; John Garr of Richmond, Treasurer; Executive Committee—L. G. Mathews, Jeffersonville; Gen. M. D. Manson, Crawfordsville; William Heilman, Evansville; Clem Studebaker, South Bend; H. G. Wiles, Mishawaka; T. C. Crawford, Terre Haute; and J. W. Yeo, Richmond. A committee was appointed to secure the passage of an act by the Legislature declaring that the assessment laws now in force should in no case be administered or construed in such manner as to tax corporations engaged in manufacturing, mining, etc., at a higher rate than individuals and firms are taxed.

ONE thousand five hundred miners in the Brazil district struck on the 2d inst. because the operators proposed to reduce the pay from eighty-five to seventy cents.

PERSONAL.

GOV. HENDRICKS has appointed William W. Carson, of Fort Wayne, Judge of the Thirty-eighth Judicial Circuit, vice Judge Lowry, recently resigned.

AN Indiana legislator missed a valuable overcoat a few days ago, and started out in search of the missing garment. After visiting several pawnshops he found it ornamenting the shelf of a second-hand dealer, and with firmness and profanity walked off with his prize, leaving the disappointed Hebrew $5 out.

CASUALTIES.

J. F. WALLECK, Superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph, at Indianapolis, met with a serious accident a few days ago, while on his way from Richmond. When the train arrived at Cambridge City and stopped at the water-tank, Mr. Walleck, supposing they were at the depot stopped from the car and fell through a bridge a distance of thirty feet, fracturing his left leg about the knee. He remained in this position for some time before he could make himself heard.

A FRIGHTFUL accident occurred last week on a passenger train on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad, between Fort Wayne and Kendallville. Dr. Hitchcock, of Kalamazoo, was on the train, in company with two sisters, Mrs. Ranney, of Delphos, Ohio, and Mrs. Markham, of Kalamazoo, the latter of whom has been for some days suffering with temporary aberration of mind. The doctor stepped into another car, when Mrs. Markham, the insane woman, attempted to leap from the car, which was going about twenty miles per hour. Her sister, Mrs. Ranney, attempting to restrain her by force, both were thrown violently to the ground. The insane woman was little injured, but her sister, Mrs. Ranney, received fatal injuries.

SIX buildings, valued with contents at $12,000, were burned at Fort Wayne Tuesday last.

LEGAL.

ADAM C. POLLARD, of Indianapolis, has brought suit against Joseph Cooper for the seduction of his wife, claiming $5,000 damages, and has attached defendant's property.

DEATHS.

HON. JOHN HOUGH, an old and esteemed citizen of Fort Wayne, died at his residence in that city a few days since. He was a man foremost in all charitable and benevolent works, and his death is universally regretted.

CRIME.

A FARMER named James Brower at Wanath collected his rents at Laporte a few days ago and started home in his wagon. A person wearing lady's apparel, and bundled up in a waterproof cloak and furs, accosted him about two miles from town, asking him for a ride. He noticed the voice was too coarse for a lady, and suspicioned the motive at once. He dropped his whip and asked her to get out and get it, as he could not trust the horses in a lady's hands. He then drove off as fast as he could. A muff was left in the wagon which upon inspection was found to contain two revolvers and a dagger.

DR. HOOEN, of Indianapolis, has been arrested on a charge of malpractice which resulted in the death of a child.

DURING a drunken row last week at Middletown, Vigo county, John Nash was shot and killed by Lynch Patton.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE severe weather is said to have killed all the peach trees in Laporte county.

THE reason a Laporte man gives for his frequent sprinkling of ashes upon his sidewalk is that he "does not want to be annoyed by having a number of people sitting down in front of his door, talking religion and politics at the same time."

COL. T. W. SWINNEY, the millionaire, recently deceased, willed to the city of Fort Wayne a public park of sixty-one acres lying on St. Mary's river, beautifully situated, and worth about $200,000.

THE LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 28.—Senate—Debate on the special order of the day—the Baxter Temperance law—occupied all the time of this body. Resolutions instructing the Committee on Temperance to press a bill regulating the sale of liquor, making the seller liable for all damages to person and property, and making the seller and purchaser equally criminal, were the principal topics discussed. [illegible], the author of the present law, made the most powerful speech of the session.

House—The Ways and Means Committee reported favorably on the appropriation of $20,000 for the Kansas and Nebraska sufferers; concurred in the joint resolution for the improvement of the Ohio river, asking Congress for an appropriation....Bills were passed to reduce the fees of Recorders; to prevent the killing of small birds or quail at any time of the year....Bills were introduced to allow criminals to testify in their own behalf, and making wives and husbands competent witnesses for or against each other.

FRIDAY, Jan. 29.—Senate—The temperance question was discussed in committee of the whole, the principal features being the resolutions proposed by the Committee on Temperance. The first resolution coming up was the test question whether or not the local option feature should be retained; carried—yeas, 28; nays, 20. The second resolution, providing for personal liability, was carried—yeas, 31; nays, 16. The third resolution, making it equally criminal on the part of both seller and purchaser, in case of illegal sale, was passed—yeas, 42; nays, 6. During the debate, the lobbies were crowded to suffocation by men of all classes and opinions, while the floor was literally jammed with ladies. As the result of the vote on each resolution was announced, the lobbies cheered, and many of the ladies wept for very joy.

House—Nothing of interest or importance was done, except the passage and third reading of three bills fixing the time of holding courts in Lagrange and Elkhart counties, and also in Steuben, DeKalb and Noble counties; authorizing County Commissioners to buy or build gravel roads on the petition of a majority of resident freeholders of the township desiring the road; and providing that in suits where the defendant defaults, the bill of particulars filed and sworn to by the plaintiff at the beginning of such suits shall form sufficient basis on which to ground judgments.

SATURDAY, Jan. 30.—Senate—The Committee on Elections, in the contested case of W. S. Walker vs. John M. Larue, submitted a report in favor of the latter as the sitting member. Larue was elected as Common Pleas Judge in 1870, for a term of four years; but the office was abolished in March, 1873. His election is contested because of the Constitutional provision that a Judge will be ineligible to any office during the term for which he was elected, and not on account of not receiving a majority of the votes cast at the election in October last. The committee decides that the office of Common Pleas Judge is not a Constitutional one, and that the Legislature had a perfect right to shorten the term, as fixed by the law creating the court, which they did by the law abolishing the office. Mr. Larue was eligible to the office of Senator at the time of his election, and received a majority of votes cast for that office at the election; and the committee submitted a resolution so declaring. The report and resolution were concurred in unanimously....Further reports were made from committees on bills, which went to the files....Humphries introduced a bill instructing the Committee on Education to report a bill abolishing the office of County Superintendent.

House—A bill making abortion a felony, punishable with ten years in the State Prison, was passed....A majority of the Judiciary Committee reported affirmatively upon the resolution asking if it be in the power of the present General Assembly to redistrict the State for Congressional and legislative purposes. A minority report was made holding it to be unconstitutional. Both reports were ordered printed.

MONDAY, Feb. 1.—Senate—Nothing was done except to pass bills on second reading and introduce a few unimportant ones.

House—Bills were introduced making the salary of criminal prosecutors $1,000 in addition to that now fixed by law; providing for the prosecution of felonies not punishable by death by information; to provide for the appointment of town and city officers in case of vacancy, instead of by special election, as now; providing for order of business in Circuit Courts; and for fencing lines of railroads....Bills were passed on third reading introducing the public warehouse system and inspectors of grain, and making void printed agreements in promissory notes to pay attorneys' fees in case of suit....The Senate bill providing for the sale of trust lands in certain cases under rules, was also passed on third reading...Hopkins introduced a resolution asking the Committee on Education to investigate into the alleged difference between the cost of education in State and denominational universities.

TUESDAY, Feb. 2.—Senate—Rev. John Gay, of Bloomington, presented a lengthy memorial attacking the management of the State University, and asserting the incompetency of President Nutt....A majority of the Temperance Committee reported a Temperance bill—local option—personal liability, and making drunkenness a misdemeanor—license fee of $200 for wholesalers....The resolution in favor of two new insane asylums, one North and the other South, was laid on the table, but the vote is no indication of the feeling of the Senate, which will pass the bill, but did not want to spend the time in debate on the resolution....Bills were introduced for a pension of $18 per month to all citizens of Jennings county who lost an arm in repelling the Morgan raid in 1863, and also making an appropriation of $83,200 for the payment of the Morgan-raid claims.

House—The Speaker appointed a committee of one from each Congressional district, on the apportionment of the State. Collins, of Washington county, is Chairman. There are three Republicans on the committee, and one Independent....The bill reducing the grand jurors to seven was ordered to engrossment, with but one vote in the negative; also, the bill to abolish the Criminal Court of Floyd and Clark counties.... The bill to reduce the number of the members of the Legislature was indefinitely postponed....A discussion was provoked on the report of the Education Committee to indefinitely postpone the bill allowing colored children to enter white schools where there are not enough to form separate schools. The bill for the admission of colored children into white schools was concurred in—yeas, 50; nays, 30—a party vote....Bills were introduced for the registering of births and deaths, and for the payment of the claims arising from the Morgan raid.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 3.—Senate—A resolution was passed asking Congress for an appropriation for the survey and improvement of the harbor at the mouth of Oak river, on Lake Michigan; also, one asking for the location of the proposed mint at Indianapolis....A special committee, consisting of Messrs. Sarnighausen, Huckleman, Dykeman, Larue and Scott, was appointed to consider the report of the Trustees of the Wabash and Erie canal, and the message of the Governor on the subject.... Several bills were passed on a third reading, as follows: Allowing towns to negotiate bonds for payment of debts incurred for public buildings; providing for return of value of property taken by minors under contract before such contract can be voided; changing the boundaries of several counties; preventing the sale of deadly weapons to minors; allowing branches of the bank of the State to make assignments of real and personal property in winding up its affairs, and closing up the free banking department in the office of the Auditor of the State.

House—Bills were passed to close up the banking department in the State Auditor's office; changing the boundary of Jennings county, and prohibiting the sale of deadly weapons to minors....The bill failed changing the Game law, by adding the month of January to the time in which it is illegal to kill quail and other small game....Lyon's Temperance bill was discussed at length and laid over till to-morrow.

Billiards—America vs. England.

Chris O'Connor, of New York, has issued the following challenge to England. It is believed that one of the players referred to is Rudolphe, and the other either Cyrille Dion or Maurice Daly:

> "I will wager $5,000 that I can produce two billiard players from New York city who will beat any two English players upon the following conditions: Two games of 1,000 points each to be played. One the English game, on an English table; the other the American game, on an American table. The player who makes the greater number of points in the two games to be declared the winner. I will give or take $500 to have the game played in London or New York."

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCE.

The money market is in a quiet condition, the demand for loans being light and almost wholly from grain and provision dealers. The general wholesale merchants are not borrowing to any extent. The grain markets continue to rule very quiet and the fluctuations in prices are very limited. The past few weeks have developed no new features of interest in connection with the grain trade, the influences brought to bear on the markets being of about the same general tenor, dull Eastern advices, comparatively liberal receipts and a general lack of activity on the part of speculators. The movements of speculators are more or less restricted by the steadiness in prices, the poor chances for quick returns preventing extensive trading. The provision market affords more favorable opportunities for speculation, and many speculators who usually trade in grain are now speculating in hog products. Holders generally show considerable confidence in the future of the markets, and no disposition to force sales at the expense of lower prices. A fair business was transacted in speculative circles in the way of transferring contracts, parties selling February and buying March futures, not wanting to receive the cash property. As a general rule prices were well maintained, the long futures especially ruling firmer. At times a weak feeling would be developed, and again a firmer market, but on the whole range there was but little change to note. Flour has been very dull. The receipts of all kinds of grain were again quite large, and the figures giving the receipts and shipments published above show a further increase in the stock in store. Spring wheat was firmly held. Corn was quite firm at times, but easy at the close. Oats were steady and firm. Rye firm. Barely was dull and unchanged.

The following were the ruling quotations at the opening and close of the week:

	Opening.		Closing.
No. 2 wheat, cash	89		89
No. 2 wheat, seller March	89¼		89¾
No. 2 wheat, seller April	90¼		90¾

PROVISIONS.

The provision market has been very active, and a very large business was transacted. Speculative operators were the principal traders, although a number of orders were received for immediate delivery. A considerable portion of the trading was in the way of changing February contracts to March, operators not wanting to receive the cash property. Prices advanced 30@35c ₩ brl on pork, 20c ₩ 100 lbs on lard; closing at $18.30@18.35 for cash pork, and $18.62½@18.65 for seller March. Cash lard, $13.37½, seller March; closed at $13.57½. Meats firm.

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle market was steady, and a fair degree of activity was shown, with satisfactory prices for the best grades, but with lower figures for common and medium stock. Eastern advices were rather unfavorable in their tenor. Fair to good steers, $4.00@5.50; choice, $5.60@6.10; extra, $6.25@6.75; stock cattle were steady and firm at $2.75@4.00; butchers' cattle, $2.50@4.75 for poor to choice cows and fair fleshy steers. Hogs were active and firm, and prices were 20@30c higher. Sales at the close ranged at $6.25@6.85 for Yorkers, and $6.70@7.10 for packing grades; extra, $7.25. Sheep were firm for best; dull for common; quotations range at $3.50@6.00 for poor to extra.

PRODUCE.

Butter was dull and easy; good to choice roll in moderate request at 23@24c; packed 20@24c for fair to good and 25@30c for choice to extra. Beeswax was dull and slow at 25@26c per lb for prime yellow. Cider in fair demand at $5.75@6.00 per brl for choice sweet. Cheese was firm and in fair shipping demand. Prime Western 16@17c, good 15@15½c, common to fair 8@14c. Dried fruits were firm and in demand. Michigan apples, 8@8½c; Southern, 6½@7c. Raspberries, 35@36c. Eggs were in fair local demand and steady at 24@25c for fresh; pickled dull at 10@18c for poor to choice. Feathers quiet at 45c for prime live geese. Game dull, with prices weak at $2.00@2.25 per doz for prairie chickens, and $1.25@1.35 for quail. Apples were in large supply and dull at $1.00@2.50 for poor to choice. Hides were in good demand and price were firm at 7½@8c for green frozen, 8@8½c for heavy, and 9@9½c for light green salted. Hops dull at 33@40c for prime new. Honey was dull and quiet at 23@25c for good to choice comb. Hay dull and easy. No. 1 timothy $16.50@17.00. Poultry was in fair local demand at 8@10c for turkeys, 7@9c for chickens, and 8c for ducks. Vegetables were in moderate demand. Red onions, $2.75@3.25; yellow $3.25@3.50; silver skins, $4.25@4.50; turnips, 40@60c; celery 50@65c ₩ doz; cabbage, 75c@$1 per doz; beets, $1.25 ₩ brl; squash, 75c@$1 for Hubbard. Veal steady at 5@9c.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

Packers' goods, flour barrels, etc., are in fair demand at $1.40 for lard tierces and 50c for flour barrels. The lumber yards exhibited some activity, city and country orders being fair for the season. The supply of lumber was quite large at most of the yards, and prices were steady and unchanged at $50.00@55.00 for first and second clear, and $11.00@12.00 for common boards. Trade in wood is active, and prices remain steady at $8.50 for maple, and 7.50 for beech, delivered.

CURRENT GOSSIP.

Seacoast Armaments.

The House Committee on Military Affairs to-day agreed to report favorably upon the President's message relative to armaments of seacoast fortifications. The committee have prepared a bill appropriating $250,000 for the transformation of smooth-bore guns; also a bill appropriating $100,000 to be used in experimenting in heavy ordnance.

Pensions.

The Pension Committee of the lower house of Congress have agreed to recommend that pensions be granted to the survivors of the Mexican war at eight dollars per month. The committee estimate that there are twenty thousand such survivors, while the Commissioner of Pensions estimates the number at twenty-nine thousand. This will make an increase of $1,500,000 in the Pension bill.

Anxious to be Hangmen.

The Sheriff of Allegheny county, Pa., has received numerous applications for the hanging of Ortwein, the murderer of the Hamnett family, which event takes place in a few weeks. The bids average about $25, though a few run higher than this figure, and some fall below it. One applicant, who seems distressingly anxious, names $25 as his price, but says that if that amount will not be paid, he will do the work for nothing.

A Gold Famine Predicted.

The New York Tribune calls attention to the present unprecedented drain of gold from this country to Europe, and thinks a "gold famine" is impending. The drain is now in its third month, and has taken nearly $20,000,000 in gold coin and bullion, or about two-thirds of the annual gold production of the country. The commercial supply, as will be seen from the following statement, is much smaller than it has been for many years:

Week ended	Amount.
Jan. 23, 1869	$28,964,000
Jan. 22, 1870	39,454,000
Jan. 21, 1871	28,820,000
Jan. 20, 1872	27,695,000
Jan. 25, 1873	30,272,000
Jan. 24, 1874	24,739,000
Jan. 23, 1875	20,986,000

Postage to Canada.

Under the new arrangements between the Postoffice Departments of the United States and Canada, which went into effect January 1st, 1875, all printed matter issued from a known office of publication and addressed to regular subscribers, destined to Canada, is treated the same as though destined for offices in the United States, the arrangements being that all matter received by either country shall be delivered free of charge. The same rule applies to transient newspapers and postal cards. On and after the 1st day of February, 1875, the letter rates to Canada will be three cents each half ounce or fraction, prepayment compulsory.

The Centennial.

Gen. Hawley, President of the Centennial Board, has submitted his annual report; $5,820,000 is the amount which, it is estimated, will be needed for the expenses of the commission, including the erection of the buildings, and exclusive of the $2,500,000 appropriated by the State of Pennsylvania and city of Philadelphia. Of this sum there has already been secured two millions of dollars by subscription to the stock of the Centennial Board of Finance, and it is estimated that further subscriptions to the said stock, and receipts from other sources will amount to the sum of two million three hundred and twenty thousand dollars, leaving unprovided for at this date the sum of one million and a half of dollars. This last sum, which will cover the expenses of the United States Commission, the awards and the police service, Congress is asked to donate.

Charley Ross.

Nothing has been forthcoming in the Charley Ross case since the death of Mosier and Douglass, although in some circles much was expected; and now another reward of $5,000 is offered by a circular or letter addressed to various Justices and Magistrates throughout the country, signed by the Mayor of Philadelphia, to any person who will return the lad or give any information leading to his recovery. The circular refers to the enormity of the offense; to the sufferings of the parents and relatives arising from the uncertainty as to the child's fate; to the sympathies of the people, which have been awakened; and appeals to them again for assistance in disseminating judiciously the facts set forth in the circular or letter, and asks those to whom it is addressed to use their utmost exertions to induce persons to join in the search or in the investigation, under such circumstances, in their respective towns and neighborhoods, that would be likely to lead to success. Any information obtained is to be sent to his honor Mayor Stokley, of Philadelphia, or to George W. Walling, Superintendent of Police, No. 300 Mulberry street, New York.

Exit Moulton.

The cross-examination of Moulton is at last over. During eleven days, five and a half hours each day, says the Chicago Times, this witness has sat in his chair exposed to the most sifting, rigorous, and inquisitorial cross-examination that six of the ablest lawyers of New York could bring to bear upon him, who came into court with 4,000 written questions prepared beforehand, and added to them constantly. These questions turned largely upon dates, and places, and chronological order of events, where the human memory is always weakest. In addition to this searching and voluminous interrogation, which was of the most exasperating charactr at times, he was exposed to the united wit, scorn, and sarcasm of these able lawyers and the intimidation of the scowling and sneering mass of spectators. Notwithstanding all this, which would have broken down any man of ordinary mold, he maintained his equanimity and story so completely that, when the redirect examination was made, it was only necessary to ask half a dozen questions.

POLITICAL MEMORANDA.

They call A. H. Stephens "Ninety pounds of dried Confederacy."

Hon. John Morrissey, of New York, has opened a club-house at Jacksonville, Fla.

With A. J. in the Senate, we can afford to dismiss all fears for the safety of the Constitution.

The new Indiana Senator, Hon. Joseph E. McDonald, is a graduate of the shoemaker's bench.

A. S. Paddock, the new Senator from Nebraska, has lived in that State since 1856. He is classed as a conservative Republican.

In the contested election case of Ward against Harrison, in the Second Illinois Congressional District, the contestant has withdrawn, the recount of the ballots having only served to increase Harrison's majority.

Andy Johnson has commenced again. He will be in Washington on the 4th of March with a fresh supply of flags and constitutions. As a disturbing element there is no question that he will prove a success. Andy will feel prouder of this success than of the round of glory from Alderman to the Presidency.

A Washington letter-writer says: "There is no man working harder for the Speakership than Fernando Wood. He is constantly entertaining his Democratic friends, and carefully working them up for the coming situation. He is very confident of success, and, in conversation with a friend yesterday, said he was now sure of a two-thirds vote in the caucus upon the first ballot."

In the Senate, the other day, while the Louisiana question was under such lively debate, Mr. Thurman spoke with his usual terse, energetic manner, and moved out his hand in a sudden jerk, which, striking the glass of water on his desk, threw its contents into the face of Senator Stevenson, sitting near by, who laughed heartily over the occurrence, as well as the cooling off of Mr. Thurman's enthusiasm.

Henry L. Dawes, the newly elected Massachusetts Senator, is a native of Cummington, in that State, where also were born William Cullen Bryant, the poet, and Luther Bradish, a former Lieutenant Governor of New York. Mr. Dawes is a relative of Hon. Tristam Burgess, a distinguished Congressman from Rhode Island, who was said to be the only man in Congress of whom John Randolph stood in fear.

Andy Johnson has been elected United States Senator from Tennessee after a most bitter and exciting contest. When it was found that Johnson had secured sufficient votes in the Legislature, says a correspondent, "even before the Clerk announced the result of the ballot, a deafening yell effectually put a stop for the present to all proceedings. Hats were thrown up, and handkerchiefs waved all over the floor and galleries, while shout after shout succeeded the first burst of applause. For fully two minutes it seemed pandemonium was let loose."

The terms of twenty-five Senators expire on the 3d of March, and elections have been or are to be made for the succeeding terms as follows:

Not long since, a German was riding along Sansom street, near Sacramento, when he heard a pistol-shot behind him; heard the whizzing of a ball near him, and felt his hat shaken. He turned and saw a man with a revolver in his hand, and took off his hat and found a fresh bullet-hole in it.

"Did you shoot at me?" asked the German.

"Yes," replied the other party; "that's my horse; it was stolen from me recently."

"You must be mistaken," said the German, "I have owned the horse for three years."

"Well," said the other, "when I come to look at him, I believe I am mistaken. Excuse me, sir; won't you take a drink?"

THE GREAT SCANDAL.

Court Scenes and Trial Items.

A Salacious Group.

[From the New York Star.]

A salacious group in the corner at the right of the bench (Beecher trial) would afford a subject for a Hogarth. The slightest approach of counsel or witness to smut or dirt puts them on edge, and suffuse their countenances with expectant glow

Thus it Was.

[From the New York Sun.]

Mr. Tracy stood as firm on his legs and about as stiff in posture as a wooden Indian, but far too dignified to admit of imagining a bunch of cigars in the hand that was held before his broad breast. He looked straight at Mr. Moulton for a moment, and Mr. Moulton looked back as fixidly from under the shaggy hair that hangs over his forehead like a Shetland pony's mane. There was personal enmity showing plainly through their meshes of politeness.

Tantalizing Tracy.

Moulton seemed to delight in bringing Gen. Tracy's name within the pale of the scandal. Thus, when Tracy asked him to fix the time when he (Moulton) heard Mr. Tilton's "true story" read, the witness said: "It was the winter of 1872. You'll remember it, Mr. Tracy; you were there and went to sleep." Also, when Tracy wished to know how thick a certain roll of manuscript was, he said: "I can't remember; you saw it, General, and perhaps can tell."

Judicial Levity.

[From the New York Sun.]

Judge Neilson was in excellent humor this morning. It was known that several ferry boats from New York were delayed in crossing by ice, and Mr. Evarts was so detained for some time. While they were waiting for him, the Judge asked Mr. Tracy, "Do you wish to wait for your associate?" "We do," answered the counsel. The Judge then asked Messrs. Fullerton and Beach, "How did you cross—by bridge or ferry boat?" Fullerton was taken in by the suddenness of the question, and answered "By ferry, sir." "I thought so," remarked the Judge triumphantly, and the audience laughed. Of course, everybody knows that the Brooklyn bridge is not yet built.

Beecher.

[Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

Beecher's unwholesome redness looks to me like a dreadful menace of apoplexy. The slightest personal allusion to himself, during the proceedings, invariably deluges his face with blood. He seems to swell in moments of nervous irritation, and the veins upon his forehead dilate to the very point of rupture. Once to-day I was alarmed by his fearful appearance. His throat and neck were just as crimson as his cheeks, and his heart kept pumping the dangerous flood into his brain, until I thought to see him complete the tragedy by falling out of his chair dead. Whether these acute congestions will not be aggravated by his helpless and terrible condition in the witness-chair, I am not learned enough to declare. To my laic judgment, the possibility of a death-blow that will tear the filaments of his brain, and smite him with the stroke of paralysis, does not seem too remote to be conjecturable.

The Jury.

[Cor. Chicago Times.]

"A good, contented, well-breakfasted juryman is a capital thing to get hold of," said Counselor Perker in a burst of confidence to his client, Mr. Pickwick. Mr. Perker, growing more confiding, added, "and a discontented or hungry juryman always finds for the plaintiff." This remarkable opinion does not appear in Blackstone or Coke, and for this reason the counsel of Mr. Beecher need not attach much importance to it. Yet it is a notable fact that Mr. Evarts daily insists that the Court shall adjourn as soon as the hour for recess arrives. The jury, as a consequence, have come to look upon him in a very grateful way. With but one or two exceptions the jurymen are very attentive, and their manner indicates a determination to weigh all the evidence presented fairly. On Tuesday afternoon one of the jurors indulged in a short nap, but yesterday they were all awake and careful listeners.

Beecher's Defense.

The Beecher line of defense, judging by the trial so far, seems to be based upon one prominent theory. That theory can be condensed in this wise: Moulton and Tilton, at the very outset of the trouble between Beecher and Tilton—a trouble generated by some slight impropriety in Beecher's behavior toward Mrs. Tilton—engaged in a conspiracy against Beecher. To carry out their joint design to ruin Beecher, Moulton became Tilton's agent in securing Beecher's confidence, in harassing Beecher with menaces of publicity, in causing the publication of certain recondite documents, in connecting Mrs. Woodhull with the case, and in generally promoting the exposure and fatal distortion of an incident in Beecher's relation to the Tiltons not criminal in its intrinsic character, but out of which both Moulton and Tilton managed to evolve profitable consequences for themselves, and death and destruction for Beecher. In other words, the theory of the defense, as prefigured in the cross-examination, is the familiar "conspiracy to blackmail," amplified, elaborated, and bristling with detailed proofs. All the proceedings in Beecher's behalf so far have been tuned to this key-note, and all the future proceedings in the same interest are likely to be little else than variations of the same theme.

The Woodhull.

[Moulton's Cross-examination.]

The witness went on to state that it was at the suggestion of Beecher's counsel, Gen. Tracy, that he held back the balance. Tilton was never told, directly or indirectly, that the money was coming to him from Beecher, and neither was Mrs. Tilton. What led to his acquaintance with Mrs. Woodhull, and its continuance was a desire entirely to suppress the adultery stories against Beecher, and he invited her to his home, so that he might the better influence her in suppressing these stories. His wife objected to Mrs. Woodhull, and consulted Beecher, and the latter told witness she ought to co-operate with her husband in suppressing these stories, and that her acquaintance with Woodhull couldn't hurt her. Witness was here asked to state what Tilton said, when he introduced Woodhull at Steinway Hall. Witness said: When Mr. Tilton introduced Mrs. Woodhull to the audience in Steinway Hall, on the evening of her lecture, he came forward with the lady on his arm, and said, as nearly as I recollect it:

Ladies and Gentlemen: It is quite unusual for me to be in town during the lecture season, and I unexpectedly find myself in here to-night. I find that several representative men have been asked to introduce the lady who will address you to this audience. Some have refused on the ground that they knew nothing of her character, and others on the ground that they are in doubt as to her views. As to the first, I think I know it, and will therefore take the responsibility of vouching for it; and, as to the second point, I do not know what her views are, and I have never heard her express them. She may be a fanatic or a fool, but I would rather be either or both than lack the courage to ask from an American audience for a woman the right of freedom of speech. [Applause from gallery.]

Q. Was that the substance of it? A. That was the substance of it, except the applause given.

A Poem by Tilton.

The following poem by Theodore Tilton was put in evidence and read by Judge Fullerton in the second week of the trial:

SIR MARMADUKE'S MUSINGS.

I won a noble fame,
But, with a sudden frown,
The people snatched my crown
And in the mire trod down
My lofty name.

I bore a bounteous purse,
And beggars by the way
Then blessed me day by day,
But I, grown poor as they,
Have now their curse.

I gained what men call friends,
But now their love is hate,
And I have learned too late
How mated minds unmate,
And friendship ends.

I clasped a woman's breast,
As if her heart I knew,
Or fancied, would be true,
Who proved—alas, she too!
False like the rest.

I now am all bereft—
As when some tower doth fall,
With battlements and wall,
And gates and bridge and all—
And nothing left.

But I account it worth
All pangs of fair hopes crossed—
All loves and honors lost—
To gain the heavens at cost
Of losing earth.

So, lest I be inclined
To render ill for ill—
Henceforth in me instill,
O God, a sweet, good will
To all mankind.

Sleepy Hollow, Nov. 1, 1871.

Legal Strokes and Counter Strokes.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Perhaps the highest point to which the evident though stifled excitement arose was when the fact of the publication of an article unfavorable to Mr. Beecher, printed in a Brooklyn Sunday newspaper, was broached. Having shown that the article was printed from the Golden Age proofs, Mr. Tracy drew himself up to his full height, advanced toward the witness, and stretching his arm above Mr. Beach's head and pointing his finger straight at Mr. Moulton, he asked in loud, grating tones, "Now, sir, how long after that publication did you receive the $5,000 from Mr. Beecher?" There was a breathless pause for a moment, during which the witness was twirling about in his revolving chair and stroking his mustache with one hand, while the other was in his pocket. Then, with the utmost placidity of manner, the witness replied that he could not recollect.

The first step toward the impeachment of Mr. Moulton's testimony was taken at the afternoon session by the aid of affidavits of many prominent members of the Produce Exchange and others, who had sworn that Mr. Moulton, after the Woodhull publication, had said that the story was false, and also that since the Plymouth investigation he had shown violent hostility toward Mr. Beecher. With those affidavits in his hands Mr. Tracy put his questions. Among the first queries was this:

"Did you say to Mr. Wallace Caldwell that Mr. Beecher was a liar and a libertine, and that if personal violence would do any good that you would cut him down?" "No, Sir!" emphatically replied Mr. Moulton.

The witness was asked if he had made similar statements to Mr. Storrs, Mr. Tenny, and many other gentlemen, and although he remembered having talked with these persons, he seemed to have forgotten entirely what he said. In one case, when asked whether he had said to W. D. Barbour that Mr. Beecher was a perjurer and a libertine, he answered, "I may have said that Mr. Beecher was a libertine and a perjurer—as he is."

Mrs. Woodhull's notorious paper, which has been dragged into the controversy, has been the cause of serious dispute. The crevice through which it crawled will show the ingenious character of the warfare carried on by the lawyers. Mr. Fullerton last week introduced the Woodhull statement of Jan. 1, 1872, to show that Mr. Beecher was accused and did not deny the crime therein charged. Mr. Beecher's lawyers thought they saw a weak spot there, and on Friday tried to introduce various parts of the same article giving Mrs. Woodhull's views regarding the marriage relation, and further asserted that Messrs. Moulton and Tilton were also charged with heinous crimes by the same paper, which they had not denied. This step immediately aroused all of Mr. Tilton's lawyers, and they fought the motion so fiercely that the matter had to be adjourned until yesterday, when the engagement was resumed. Mr. Beach ridiculed the idea advanced by his opponents, but Mr. Evarts neatly turned the point by saying that the argument of Mr. Beach was a satire on the old proverb that "what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." That thrust gave Mr. Fullerton an opportunity to say to Judge Neilson that "the fact that the decalogue contains the commandment, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery,' does not justify their reading the story of Ananias and Sapphira."

The result of the contest was that Judge Neilson ruled out nearly all the parts read, exceptions being taken to those portions admitted.

The greatest coal mine of the age has been found in Skagit Valley, Wyoming. It is an extensive field, where coal can be obtained to an unlimited extent on the surface without going to the usual expense of underground tunneling.

Leith, Scotland, has resolved to fine a man twenty cents every time he swears in public.

FARM AND HOME.

Sawdust for Celery.

The editor of the London Journal of Horticulture says sawdust is a good thing for earthing celery, placing it between the rows and around the plants after the leaves and stalks have been brought together, pressing the sawdust about them, so as to lie compact and insure blanching perfectly. It is better, he thinks, than soil, not being so liable to cause the stalks to rot, and is a good protection against frost.

Care in Horse-Shoeing.

Never touch the bars, frog, sole, or outer surface with a knife or rasp. Shoe with light, thin shoes that allow the sole bars and frog to be brought in contact with the ground, and thus bear their due proportion of the horse's weight. Use small nails, and not over five of them. Never allow the points to be driven high up the wall of the hoof. For ordinary service in the country during the summer months, use only tins which protect the toe, but leave the entire ground surface of the foot unprotected.

Warm Bedding for Cattle.

It is quite important at this season of the year to provide a sufficient amount of warm bedding for stock, and the "orts" and coarser hay and straw that are rejected by the cattle may be used for this purpose. At other and warmer seasons sand makes a very clean and useful litter, and we like to use it freely, but it does not impart that warmth that is needed in extreme cold weather. Leaves that were collected in the fall are excellent for this purpose, and they have the advantage that they are not so full of weed-seed as the coarse hay from the mangers. If we had plenty of leaves we would use them freely for bedding now. They make capital manure also, and if any farmer neglected to store up a lot of them it was a mistake that ought to be borne in mind to correct next year.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Profits in Grape Culture.

We are often asked the question as to whether grapes will pay. Good varieties certainly will. If a man is prepared to lay out of the use of his land for three years, at the end of that time the money will begin to come in. There is not a great deal of labor or expense attending the planting of a vineyard, and in this part of the State no irrigation is needed, as in the lower counties. New wine sells at from 40 to 50 cents per gallon. The mountain sides, so far as tested, produce the very best fruit. A large cluster on the table where I write grew on the range in sight near Calistoga, and sold for a cent a pound. If hung on the plate glass window of some Eastern city this cluster would attract a crowd on the sidewalk. There are numerous places where the crop may be sold. Land for vineyards can be purchased in the hills at reasonable rates, say from five to fifteen dollars an acre, depending upon the location.—Sacramento Valley Agriculturist.

Average Wheat Crops of England.

Mr. Thos. C. Scott, King's Arms Yard, Moorgate street, London, writes as follows to the leading journal: We have now sufficient data to enable us to come to a safe conclusion as to whether or not the wheat crop of this year is under or over an average crop? In regard to wheat, thirty bushels an acre is the rate usually adopted; but it is only an assumption, based upon individual observation and experience over very limited areas. To arrive at a sounder solution of the question, I have taken the areas under wheat in each county in England, multiplied them by the generally admitted normal rate of produce of each county respectively, and the aggregate number of bushels thus obtained, divided by the number of acres to which they apply, gives the nearest approach our present data admit of to a satisfactory answer to the question, "What is an average crop?" and, thus tested, it turns out to be 29.1 bushels an acre.

Clover Hay for Horses.

The New York Herald says: "Many farmers are strenuously opposed to red clover as feed for horses of any kind, as they contend the poisonous dust which rises from the dead stalks and dry leaves frequently causes the heaves. For many years we have kept horses exclusively on clover hay throughout our long winters, and if the clover was cut when about one-half the blossoms had turned brown, and the hay mostly cured in the cock in good weather, so as to retain most of its leaves and heads, and green appearance, we have never known it to produce cough or heaves. We know of no reason why it should produce a cough in horses, any more than red top or herds grass. Clover, when cut early for hay, as it generally should be, from succulence, if not well dried before being carried to the barn in large quantities, is very liable to heat in the mow or on the scaffold; this process produces some injurious chemical changes in the hay. The starch, sugar, gum, etc., first assume the vinous fermentation, producing a saccharine quality in the hay. If the change here be arrested no bad results would follow, the nutritive and healthy quality of the hay would not be lessened—but generally the vinous runs into the acetous fermentation—this is followed by sourness, moldiness, and dust. Such musty hay, fed to horses, made from clover or any other kind of grasses, would be very likely to produce a stubborn cough, frequently ending in the heaves. It is no wonder that some farmers have a prejudice against such clover hay."

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Drop Cake.—One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, three eggs, six cups of flour, one cup of milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one tablespoonful of essence of lemon. Drop into a pan with a spoon and bake in a quick oven.

Muffins.—One quart of flour, one cup and a half of sweet or sour milk, two eggs well-beaten, one egg will not do, one tablespoonful of lard, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar, one teaspoonful of soda in the milk. Rub the lard and cream tartar in the flour. If the milk is sour, put only one teaspoonful of cream tartar in the flour, bake in rings.

Good Hints for Everybody.—The way to get credit is to be punctual; the way to preserve it is not to use it much. Settle often; have short accounts. Trust no man's appearance; appearances are deceitful, perhaps assumed for the purpose of obtaining credit. Beware of gaudy exteriors; rogues usually dress well. The rich are plain; trust him, if any one, who carries but little on his back. Never trust him who flies into a passion on being dunned, but make him pay quickly if there be any virtue in the law. Whenever you meet a man who is fond of argument, you will meet one profoundly ignorant of the operations of the human heart. Mind your own affairs. Let all the errors you see in other management suggest correctness in your own.

Excitement Over the Election of A. J.

[Nashville Cor. Cincinnati Commercial.]

The Speaker tried to announce the vote, as he is required to do, but his words could not be heard two feet from his nose. He rapped and pounded with his gavel, but the noise of that was drowned in the deafening yells. He then sat down and calmly awaited for the crowd to exhaust itself. Meanwhile the members were waving hats and handkerchiefs, trying to quiet the excited throng, but without speedy success. Altogether it was a scene at once ludicrous and dramatic.

Finally the cheering ceased from sheer exhaustion, the vote was announced, and Andrew Johnson declared to be elected to the United States Senate for the term of six years from the 4th of March next.

Now more yells, cheers and confusion, and a rush for the streets to carry the news to Johnson at the Maxwell House. About two thousand men undertook to bear the joyful intelligence. The first to get to Mr. Johnson's room (No. 5) was a Mr. Taylor, of Clay county. When Taylor got to the door he was so exhausted he could not say a word, and another man, with more enduring wind, rushed in, gave A. J. the news, and with it an affectionate hug, bear fashion. Mr. Johnson could not speak for some seconds, but tears followed each other in quick succession down his pale and furrowed cheeks. He had won the great fight, one in which his heart was more deeply engaged than any other of his life.

In a minute his room was full of overjoyed friends. When his room would hold no more, the stream overflowed into the corridors, passages, stairways, rotunda, and out into the streets.

The scene in his room was affecting. Many of the old white-headed Democrats cried, as they clasped him whom they call the "great Commoner" by the hand. Many were so choked with emotion that they could not say a word; they could only shake hands and then sit down in a corner and wipe away the tears with their coat tails.

An Irishman wedged his way in, grasped A. J. by the hand, and saluted the "next President."

Elias Polk an aged colored man, the trusted body-servant of President Polk, came in, saying that he had not felt so happy since 1844, "when master beat Clay."

Meanwhile there was an immense throng outside calling for "Andy." He was brought forward, bowed his acknowledgments, but said not a word. His face beamed as it never has before in all these hard-fought Tennessee battles. He was the happiest man in the State.

The Fight with the Notorious James Brothers.

A reporter of the Times had an interview to-day with Mrs. Samuels, mother of the James boys, and obtained a full statement of the tragedy enacted at her house yesterday morning. She emphatically denies that either Jesse or Frank James or any of their comrades were at the house on the night of the tragedy. The grenade-shell which exploded and killed her little boy, was seven inches in diameter. The house was fired in four different places by means of tubes like Roman candles, filled with cotton, saturated with turpentine. All the members of the family agree in saying that neither of the James boys was present. On the other hand there are unmistakable evidences of a severe fight, the fence being riddled with bullets, and the ground covered in places with blood. It is well established that an extra train went over the Hannibal and St. Joe railroad, stopping at Kearney, on the night of the tragedy, and the train men say that eight men aboard had two prisoners. It was impossible to ascertain where the train went, but the supposition was that it had gone to Chicago. It was said at Kearney to-day that a wounded man was in the neighborhood, and the Sheriff summoned a posse of twenty for duty to-night, it is supposed, to capture him. Every one condemns the barbarous method used by the detectives, and the belief is gaining ground that it was a desperate and revengeful vendetta of Pinkerton's men for the murder of one of his detectives last summer.—Kansas City Times, Jan. 28.

Chinese Books.

Printing a book in China is done as follows: two pages are written by one trained to the business on a sheet of thin paper, divided into columns by black lines, and in the space between the two pages are written the title of the work and the number of chapter and page. When the sheet has been printed it is folded down through this space, so as to bring the title, etc., partly on each page. The sheet, when ready for printing, is pasted face downward on a smooth block of wood, made usually from the pear or plum tree. As soon as it is dry the paper is rubbed off with great care, leaving behind an inverted impression of the characters. Another workman now cuts away the blank spaces by means of a sharp graver, and the block, with the characters in high relief, passes to the printer, who performs his work by hand. The two points he has to be most careful about are to ink the characters equally with his brush, and to avoid tearing the paper when taking the impression. From a good wooden block some 15,000 copies may be printed, and when the characters have been sharpened up a little, it is possible to obtain 8,000 or 10,000 more impressions.

The Baptists.—During the past year the Baptist denomination has acquired 50 associations, 990 churches, 756 ordained ministers, and 127,632 members, making the present grand totals 948 associations, 21,510 churches, 13,354 ordained ministers, and 1,761,171 church members, of whom 102,496 were baptized during the present year. Mr. Macarthur, of the Calvary Baptist Church, New York, states that the Baptist denomination has to-day about 8,000 more churches than there are ministers, and makes a strong appeal for aid for the theological students at Rochester, Hamilton and Greenville, S. C.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., FEBRUARY 11, 1875

Andy Johnson seems to be the favorite choice of the people everywhere and we hope he will set a good example before those under him.

☞The Hon. Wm. A. Buckingham United States senator from Connecticut, died at his home in Norwich, a few minutes after midnight on Thursday night.

☞The New Jersey Legislature passed a resolution congratulating the Tennessee Legislature upon the election of A. Johnson to the U. S. Senate. This shows that the popular heart beats warmly for old Andy.

☞The list of bad debtors and dead beats in Chicago contains 4,000 names These estimable citizens would make a nice lively town if settled some place by themselves. It would not be a bad idea to locate them in the track of the festive grasshopper.

☞Hon. Dan Voorhees was implicated in the Pacific Mail subsidy grab through dispatches from Washington, and promptly demanded a hearing, which was granted, and which clearly proved him entirely innocent in the matter.

☞The prospects seems to be good that pensions will be granted to the soldiers and sailors of the Mexican war, at this session of Congress. It is estimated that about one million five hundred thousand dollars per annum be required to pay them.

Mrs. A J. Ranney of Delphi, Indiana, who was pulled off the cars of the Grand Rapids railroad by a partially insane friend with whom she was traveling, day before yesterday, died yesterday in Ft. Wayne, from her injuries.

☞Forty five years ago, or in '30 Andy Johnson crossed the mountains as a member of the Legislature of Tennessee. What a chasm of time does this man's extraordinary history bridge! He has held all the high offices of his town, county, State, and Nation, and will, at the expiration of his new Senatorial term, had more political experience than any man who ever lived in the United States— Cincinnati Enquirer.

With military governments in Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina, and a new batch of senators from Colorado, and New Mexico, the republican party can stand it through the next two years, and give their enemies a stubborn tussle of it for the balance of power in 1876.

In response to a resolution of the senate, M. E. Henderson, auditor of state, reported to that body on Friday last that during the term of two years in which his predecessor held the office of auditor of state, he received for fees from foreign insurance companies $24,423, or 12,212, per annum This with his regular salary and other fees, ought to be satisfactory.

☞The proposed amendment to the constitution, limiting the president to one term of six years, was debated and defeated in the house of representatives in congress by a vote of 124 yeas to 104 nays—requiring a two thirds vote in its favor before it could be submitted to the people of the several states.—The democrats voted for it solid and it was defeated by the republicans who want Grant for a third term.

☞Laura Ream the well-posted and piquant Indianapolis correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, thus prepares the slate for the Democracy of Indiana: Hon. W. S. Holman Governor in 1876; Hon. D. W. Voorhees, successor to O. P. Morton, in the U. S. Senate; Gov. T. A. Hendricks, successor to Grant as President. It would be difficult to map out a better programme than this—always provided that Daniel recant his financial heresy and properly atone for that grab.

☞That the Michigan Democrats have gained something by the election of Judge Christiancy to the Senate may safely be inferred from the following remarks which he makes:

"The manner of my election leaves me at liberty to support or oppose measures upon their merits, according to my convictions of right; and with reference to the interests of the whole country, rather than for any partisan ends; and I propose to to avail myself of that liberty on all proper occasions.

☞Ten of the United States senators whose term expires next March took and kept the back-pay and have not been re-elected. In fact, they unanimously been permitted to stay at home. This may be taken as evidence that corruption in public life is not necessarily an indication that we are departing from the honest simplicity of the fathers. There is a good deal of honesty in the country, after all and the very fact that salary grabbers will not figure conspicuously in the next congress is a hopeful sign.

☞Affairs in New Orleans are once more in a state of excitement. The cause of the present trouble is the compromise said to be suggested by the congressional committee. It is not easy to understand from the terms of the telegraphic report, however whether the compromise was merely submitted to the committee, or whether it originated from them. Be that as it may, it is clear the people of New Orleans are indignant at the proposition made to acknowledge the present state government, and in mass meeting, held the Clay Statue, on Canall street, Saturday night, they adopted a series of ringing resolutions denouncing the compromise as a betrayal of their cause. No such scheme will be of any avail

☞The first act we note as [illegible]ing been performed by Senator [illegible]lin after the announcement of his recent election, is recorded in the following brief extract from the report of Congressional proceedings:

Mr. Hamlin (Rp, Me), from the committee on Civil Service and Retrenchment, reported adversely on the bill to reduce the salary of the President of the United States, with the request that it be placed on the calendar with the adverse report. So ordered."

There is a practical sarcasm here that we trust will not be overlooked. Let it be observed that this model report comes from the committee on Civil Service and retrenchment!

It is such little tell-tale records that give us our only intimation of the character and acts of some of our still public men. They never throw themselves boldly across the current of public sentiment, or provoke censure by conspicuous action of any kind. But when a chance offers to put an extra hundred thousand dollars into the pockets of a President who has an itching palm, and they can thereby secure his favor and the control of his patronage, this is the way in which it is done.

☞The Baxter law has been superceded by a license law in the House and will probably pass the Senate, and be signed by the Governor, it is in accordance with the message to that body. Regulating the traffic in intoxicating liquors by legislation, always has been and still is, a difficult matter as statute on that subject usually conflict with constitutional and personal rights.

A vigorous effort was made in defense of the Baxter law. Over 20,000 ladies petitioned, and several appeared on the floor of the House and made personal appeals to the members, but it seems their labor was in vain.

The leaders of the temperance element have only themselves to blame, they inserted a temperance plank in the Republican platform, and forced the issue upon the people; they called it the temperance crisis in Indiana, and claimed that the Republicans were the temperance party, bound and pledged to sustain the law.

Mr. Baxter as Presidence of the State temperance Alliance in his address to votres previous to the election said, "that in order to sustain and forward the glorious cause of temperance they must vote the republican ticket that the democratic party was the whiskey party.

It strikes us very forcibly that his zeal was not so much according to knowledge, as to further his ambitions notoriety.

Campaign documents are scattered all over the State of a partizan and and abusive character.

The legislation accepting the expression of the people at the ballot box, would be justified in repealing the Baxter law, notwithstanding numerous petitions to the contrary; which by the way under such circumstances, are about as efficient as a chunk of bologna susage, it is true they are received, referred, but scarcely ever opened, and eventually sold for paper rags, at two cents a pound.

Should the Bill which has passed the House become a law, we will publish it entire, for the benefit of our readers.

One of our subscribers stopped his paper, because money matters was so tight, and then went to the Doctor's 'round the corner and spent two dollars for somethin' "to take." Fare thee well, thou essence of economy.

I wish to gracious, I had left my order with W. W. Humes for a pair of boots at J. E. Woodford's. If I had I should never been troubled with these confounded corns, and been obliged to walk with crutches.

Mr. Joe Link has associated with him Mr. John Weaver. They intend running a first class tobacco and cigar store in a short time. Dry goods can be purchased cheap at this establishment, as they are going to quit selling this kind of goods.

While walking around the city, and "gawking" here and there, we noticed the show window of M. E. Martin & Co. in Fords new building, and think it is shaped about as neat and tasty as any on 'em. This firm has a fine room, and they spare no pains in making everything show to a good advantage.

At a German party the other evening, one of our town bloods took the liberty of "giving the folks a call," without an invitation. He seated himself and remained in this condition for an hour without an invitation to any of the frit ones when he arose and left the house saying "d—the Dutch.

David Weaver, living west of Auburn about one and a half miles, will sell his stock, grain, etc., at public auction, on the 24th of this month. He has some of the finest horses and cattle in the county and it would be a splendid chance to purchase. Mr. W. thinks of trying city life in the spring and will locate among us.

We are informed that several "old coons" had a pitch battle, South of town last Saturday, and it all resulted from an argument in regard to politics. One fellow said that the President was drunk all the time, and the other fellow said he (hic) lied, and the latter was shoulder bumped until he cried for help. Why didn't Grant send troops?

Our devil melted the rollers last week and he didn't take them home, either; but he done it just as easy as it would be for him to "get away with a dish of stewed oysters," He just set them down beside the stove, and seated himself on an arm chair, took off his left boot, and played Mollie Darling with his toes and fingers until the job was done.

MAX ADELER.

This popular writer is well known all over the country, and everyone speaks in high praise of his plendid productions.—Mr. Lev. Yandes is agent for one of his best and most interesting books, entitled Out of the Hurley-Burley," and is ready to furnish the work to those who wish it.

The German Methodists, will dedicate their new church, on South Jacksons st. Sunday Feb., 14th 1875. There will be English preaching in the afternoon, Prof. Robbinson, of Fort Wayne, officiating.—The church is of good size, and all that wish to attend can be comfortably seated We hope our citizens generally will turn out, and the occasion one long to be remembered.

Last Saturdey afternoon Sam George's dog made a dive through Joe. Abright's store window, taking the whole pane out "slick and clean." Mr. G. forked over a two dollar note, and every thing was satisfactory. The tax was paid on the dog and he'll probably get through unmolested until 1876 dawns upon him, when his photograph can be used in groceries, "Poor trust is dead."

During the last week we have received several jobs from our school teachers throughout the county in the shape of reward cards as a memento of good conduct &c. This is a very good idea, and it should be made a general rule by our teachers every where. Some have the names of each scholar, teacher and trustee upon the cards. If you want a neat tasty Job call at this office.

The calico dance to be given on the 22nd of this month is attracting very much attention among the fair sex. We have seen at gatherings like this, some who would not go according to "directions" because they had got hold of the wrong lad. If everything is conducted as the managers have arranged it the whole affair cannot help but be a success and we hope that each will go with right intentions.

We listened to a sermon from Rev. B. W. Seagle, of Defiance Ohio, last Sabbath evening. He took for his remarks, the 18 chapter of John, 8 & 9 verses, which he handled in good style and made some very true and touching points. Mr. S. is filling the Rev. Mr. Fisher's place. The choir composed of nine singers discoursed some splendid music which is much nicer that to have the whole congregation "smashing notes."

The young people have organized a literary society at the school house west of town. This is a step in the right direction, and we think if more of our country boys and girls would pass their idle waste in this manner, it would benefit them a great deal more, than "hoe-downs and taffey-pulls," do. This society meets once a week and has two "news papers," edited by Messrs. Weaver and Rakestraw.

Had we been at home we would have had the pleasure of announcing the marriage of our excellent friend, Col. George J. E. Mayer, of Ft. Wayne, and the charming Miss Clunchill, of Rockford, Ills. It was one of them neat, tasty affairs, so much in accord with refinement and good sense, to which fashionable snobbery is a stranger, and is delightful to know that the participants may be ranked as your especial friends. We wish the loving pair, a full measure of happiness and prosperity through the fitful drama of life.

Dots goot—Our popular saloonist John Hebel, has got some most excellent rum, that he brought with him in his recent visit to the old country. He does not deal it out by the glass at ten cents a "shot," but gives it away to those who are troubled with a gnawing at the stomach. Several of our citizens have tasted it and pronounce it to be a "stunner." We tried our best to get it down but it went back on us, because we'd "sword off." It would be a fine thing to have in the President's family.

Fox Hunt.—Last Saturday disagreeable as it was, the fox hunt in Richland and Fairfield townships was largely attended some estimate the crowd at from two to three thousand. Like the one two weeks ago, it was not well managed, and a number of the sly and festive barkers passed through the ring. After cracking their shins and taring their breeches climbing fences, freezing their ears, and all this and that, they succeeded in gobbling in three of the animals above named.—The game was to be sold at auction and the proceeds therefrom given to the poor. Please count us out.

Wanted—5,000 large White Oak Trees —1,000,000 Staves—I will pay the highest price in cash for 5,000 oak trees, suitable for heading for all barrel staves. Will pay the following cash price for staves:

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY.

Cures all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs. Never known to fail. Every bottle warranted to give satisfaction or money cheerfully refunded. For sale at Davenport's drug store. Sample bottles free. Try it.

We would be obliged to our subscribers if they would drop in the office next week, while attending court, and pay us a dollar or two on their paper. We have been laying out quite a neat little sum, in the last two weeks, for new type and other material needed about the office, and it has played havoc with our "fat pocket book." We anticipate getting a new dress for the Courier as soon as we can get the script together, and hope our friends will pay fast as is convenient. We don't mean those living in the county, but a few who reside in city might just as well fork over a little as not.

We have a family located among us purporting to have come from the grasshopper regions, who, to all outward appearances, are in very destitute circumstances. The rumor circulating that they were in want, the Young Folks' Society concluded to distribute their extra funds. Accordingly on last Monday morning one of our prominent young ladies and gentleman paid them a visit to ascertain if what they heard was true. Finding "that the half had not been told," they returned and procured the necessaries of life in the shape of food and clothing, and thus they were made comfortable and happy for a short time at least.—The conduct of our young people is worthy all praise and emulation.

In the matter of schools we have been unusally blessed this winter, it has been under the supervision of Prof. A. R. Huffman, who together with his corps of able and efficient teachers have as far as possible made it a perfect success. To-morrow being the last day of the present term our citizens should make it convenient to attend, and thus by their presence encourage both teacher and pupil in their noble work of educating the mind. After one week of vacation there will be another month of free school after which the select term will commence. Take advantage of the passing moments children, and stamp improvement on the wings of time,

Jurors.—The following are the Grand Jurors, summoned to appear on the second day of February term of the DeKalb Circuit Court, William Gurrell, George W. Draggoo, John Platter, Joseph Wilson, Franklin Reynolds, William Clarie, David Lawrence, John Houser, George H. Duncan, Andrew Baxter, Daniel D. Knisely Isaac Cool. The regular Petite Jury will be composed of the following gentlemen, who will appear on the 3d day of the term: Jacob F. Fisher, Jeremiah Plum, Sidney P. Jones, Hartsel Wannemaker Martin V. Heffelfinger, J. J. Imhoff, John Seiler, George W. Downs, Simone J. Aldrich James DeLong, George Essig and John Shugras.

Don't fail to call and examine F, N. Wright & Company's stock of thoroughly seasoned doors and sash, we know we can suit you, both in quality and price. Parties that have been in the habit of going out of Auburn for their building material can find a home market that defies competition from its neighboring towns. Mr. Berry the boss mechanic at his trade, is getting everything in running order for the coming season, his work speaks for itself. Our Excelsior hardware man, is preparing to supply your wants in his line of trade, he is worthy of your patronage.

PROGRAMME FOR THE DANCE.

All ladies are to wear calico dresses and each lady to bring with her, to the dance a necktie of the same material as the dress worn. The gentlemen will draw the neckties by lot and will wear the tie during the dance.

The neckties will be numbered by the door-keeper. each lady receiving a number corresponding with the number on the necktie brought by her.

At 9 o'clock gentlemen will draw the neckties from a box and each will escort to supper the lady holding the number corresponding to the number drawn by the gentlemen.

No gentlemen will be admitted without a ticket of invitation. No gentleman is expected to attend without a lady. To meet promptly at 8 o'clock.

THE TWO TRAVELERS.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

'Twas evening, and before my eyes
There lay a landscape gray and dim;
Fields faintly seen and twilight stars
And clouds that hid the horizon's brim.

I saw—or was it that I dreamed?—
A waking dream?—I cannot say;
For every shape as real seemed
As those that meet my eye, to-day.

Through leafless shrubs the cold wind hissed;
The air was thick with falling snow;
And onward, through the frozen mist,
I saw a weary traveler go.

Driven o'er that landscape bare and bleak,
Before the whirling gusts of air,
The snow-flakes smote his withered cheek,
And gathered on his silver hair.

Yet on he fared through blinding snows,
and murmuring to himself he said;
"The night is near, the darkness grows,
And higher rise the drifts I tread.

"Deep, deep each autumn flower they hide;
Each tuft of green they whelm from sight;
And they who journeyed by my side
Are lost in the surrounding night.

"I loved them; oh, no words can tell
The love that to my friends I bore;
We parted with the sad farewell
Of those who part to meet no more.

"And I, who face this bitter wind,
And o'er these snowy hillocks creep,
Must end my journey soon and find
A frosty couch, a frozen sleep."

As thus he spoke, a thrill of pain
Shot to my heart; I closed my eyes,
And when I opened them again
I started with a glad surprise.

'Twas evening still, and in the west,
A flush of glowing crimson lay;
I saw the morrow there, and blest
That promise of a glorious day.

The waters, in their glassy sleep,
Shone with the hues that tinged the sky,
And rugged cliff and barren steep
Gleamed with a brightness from on high.

And one was there whose journey lay
Into the slowly gathering night;
With steady step he held his way
O'er shadowy vale and gleaming height.

I marked his firm though weary tread,
The lifted eye and brow serene,
And saw no shade of doubt or dread
Pass o'er that traveler's placid mien.

And others came, their journey o'er,
And bade good-night with words of cheer;
To-morrow, we shall meet once more;
'Tis but the night that parts us here."

And I," he said, "shall sleep ere long—
These fading gleams will soon be gone—
Shall sleep, to rise, refreshed and strong,
In the bright day that yet will dawn."

I heard; I watched him as he went,
A lessening form, until the light
Of evening from the firmament
Had passed, and he was lost to sight.

WORTH OR WEALTH.

"I tell you, no, Agnes! I won't have it. The fellow only wants my money. I know him—I know him. I know all of these dandified jimcracks. They hang around a bag of gold as crows do around carrion. I won't have any such thing. Now you know."

"Father, you judge Walter too harshly. He is a good man—honest and industrious, and—"

"Industrious, say you? I'd like to know what he's got to show for his industry."

"He has a superior education, father."

"Education! Fiddlesticks! Can he live on his education? Can he make money of it?"

"Yes, he can live on it! He has already obtained a good situation as clerk."

"And will earn just enough to keep him in the fine clothes he wears. I know these fellows. But there's an end on't. If you choose him rather than your poor old father you can do so. I can live alone—I shan't live long—you can—"

"Stop—stop, father. You have no right to talk so. You know I could not leave you." And Agnes Bremen threw her arms around the old man's neck and kissed him, and left the room.

"It's curious how these young fools act," the miser muttered to himself after he had seen his child depart. "There's been twenty of the sharks after that girl—all of 'em hovering around her like man-eaters after a dead body. Don't I know what they want? Can't I see? Aha! can't I though? It's my money! But Agnes has never loved one of 'em till this Adams came along—the jackanapes! And now she wants to get married at once. Nonsense!"

The old man bowed his head as he spoke, and he saw a drop upon the back of his hand. It was a bright drop, and the rays of the setting sun were playing on it.

"She cried when she kissed me," he whispered, wiping the tear from his hard hand. "I don't see what makes her so tender-hearted. She never took it from me. But she may have taken it from—"

The old man stopped, and a cloud came over his wrinkled brow, for there was a pang in his heart. He remembered the gentle, uncomplaining being who had once been his companion—the mother of his child. He remembered how she became his wife, even when the bloom of manhood had passed from him; how she loved him, nursed him, and cared for him, and how she taught her child to love and care for him, too. And he remembered how she never had complained even while suffering, and how she had died, with a smile and a blessing upon her lips, though the gold of her husband brought her no comforts.

Noah Bremen bowed his frosted head more low, and in his heart he wished that he could forget all but the few fleeting joys of his wife. But he could not forget that it had been whispered how his wife might have lived longer, if she had had proper clothing and proper medical attention.

"But it would have cost so much! I saved money!"

Ah—the reflection would not remove the pang. The other memory was uppermost.

Noah Bremen had passed the allotted age of man, being over three score and ten, and all his life had been devoted to accumulating money. He had denied himself every comfort, and his heart had been almost as hard as the gold he had hoarded. But as his hair grew more white and spare, and the years grew more heavily upon him, he thought more—reflected more. The sweet smile of his dead wife was doing its mission now, and the pure love of his gentle child was a continual remembrance to him that there were better hearts than his own.

At length the miser rose and passed out from the room. He would have left the hut; but as he reached the little entry-way he heard a voice from the garret. It was his child's. He crept up the rickety stairs and looked through a crack in the door. He saw Agnes upon her knees. Tears were rolling down her cheeks, and her hands were clasped toward heaven. And she prayed:

"Oh, God! be good to my father, and make his heart warm and peaceful! Make me to love him with all tenderness, and enable me to do well and truly the duty I pledged to my sainted mother! I promised her I would love and care for him always. Father in heaven, help me! oh, help me!"

The old man crept down the stairs and out of doors, and for a whole hour walked alone among the trees. He thought again of his wife, again of his child, and then of his gold. And this was not the first time he had walked alone there. He did not himself know how great was the influence his child was exerting over him.

Agnes—pure, good, beautiful Agnes—wept long and bitterly in her little garret; and when she had become calm, and her cheeks were dry, she came down and got her supper. But she was not the smiling, happy being that had flitted about the scanty board heretofore.

A few days after this, as Noah Bremen approached his cot one morning, he heard voices from within. He peeped through a rent in the coarse paper curtain and saw Walter Adams with his child. Her head was upon Walter's shoulder and his arm was about her.

Walter was an orphan, and had been Agnes' schoolmate and her devoted lover through all the years of opening youth. He was an honorable, virtuous man, and loved the gentle girl because she was so good, and so gentle, and so beautiful. And she loved him not only because he had captured her heart in bygone time, but because he was, of all her suitors, the only one whose character and habits promised joy and peace for the future.

"I can not leave my poor old father, Walter," the old man heard his daughter say. "I must live to love and care for him. It is hard. My heart must break. But the pledge of love I gave to my dying mother must be kept."

"And so the great joy-dream of my youth must be changed to this sad reality," exclaimed Walter, sorrowfully. "I can not ask you to leave your father, sweet Agnes, for the truth in you, which I worship, would be a lie could you do so. But I have a prayer—an earnest, sincere prayer. I pray that God in his mercy may remove that curse from your father's stooping form!"

"The curse, Walter?"

"Aye; the gold curse!" rejoined the youth fervently. "I hope that God may render him penniless."

"What! penniless?" repeated Agnes, with a start.

"Aye, penniless; for then he would be far more wealthy than he is now. Then he would know how to appreciate the priceless blessing of his sweet Agnes' love, and then the curse might be broken and his heart grow human again. And more than all," Walter continued, twining his arm closely about the fair form of his companion and speaking more deeply, "then I could prove to him my love. Then I could take you to my home, and we could both love him and care for him while he lived."

Noah Bremen stopped to hear no more, and as he walked away he muttered to himself:

"The rascal! He'd do great things! Me penniless, and he praying for it! The young villain!"

When the old man gained his accustomed walk among the great sycamores, he wiped something from his eye. He acted as though a mote had been blown in there.

Two weeks passed on, and Agnes grew pale and thin. She did not sing as she used to, nor could she smile as had been her wont. Still she mourned not, nor did her kindness to her father grow less.

"O God! help me to love my father," she prayed one night. "Let not my grief make me forget my duty."

And the old man heard it.

One night Noah came home from the city, and in his hand he brought a small trunk. He barred the door, and drew the tattered curtains close.

"See," he says, as he opened the trunk and piled the new bank-notes upon the table. "Look there, Agnes, and see how I have worked in my lifetime. I had no education, but I've laid up my money—money—money! How many men would sell me all their brains to-night for this? See—one thousand—two—three—four—five. Count them, Agnes; there's a thousand pounds in each package."

Agnes counted them over, for she thought her father wished it, and she made fifty packages.

"Why have you taken it from the bank, father?" she asked.

"To let it, my child—to let it at a pound interest, Agnes. I shall double it, darling—double it—double it."

And while the old man's eye sparkled with evident satisfaction, his child wore a sad sorrowing look. And long after that she sat and looked at the working features of her father, and prayed that the gold-fiend would set him free.

When Agnes retired she left her father up; but ere long she heard him put his little trunk away and then go to his bed. And then she slept.

Hark! what sound is that? Agnes starts up in affright and listens. But see! a bright light is gleaming out into the night, and thick volumes of smoke pour into the garret.

"Fire! fire!" sounded a voice from the entry, and she hears the sharp crackling now, and feels the heat. "Agnes, my child!" And in another moment she meets her father upon the stairs. He is dressed, but she is not.

"Take your clothing, Agnes, and you can put it on in the entry. The house is all on fire."

In a few minutes more the father and child stood in the road, the latter with a bundle of clothing in her hand, while the former held a small trunk. They gazed upon the burning building, but neither of them spoke.

And others came running to the scene, but no one tried to stay the flames. And the effort would have been useless had it been made, for the old shell burned like tinder. But more still—no one would have made the effort, had success been evident, for the miserable old hut had too long occupied one of the fairest spots in the village. There were no other buildings to be endangered, so they let the thing burn.

"You have your money safe," said Agnes.

"Yes. See, I took the trunk. I left the candle burning so that I could watch it. But I got the trunk!" And as he spoke he held it up and gazed upon it by the light of the flaring ruins.

"That is not the trunk!" whispered Agnes in affright.

"Not——." But the old man spoke no further. He saw that he had taken the wrong trunk. This was only filled with old cards and dusty receipts.

"Ruined! Lost!" groaned Noah Bremen, as he turned from the smoldering embers. "I had £50,000 pounds in that trunk! and where are they now?"

"Never mind," said Agnes, winding her arms about her father's neck, "we'll be happy without it."

"What?" uttered Noah Bremen, gazing into Walter Adams' face. "Do you mean to say that you will give me a home, too? That you will provide for me, and keep me?"

"Yes," returned the youth hopefully, "I never could be happy with Agnes, much as I love her, if I thought her poor old father had no home. Come, we'll all live together, and be as happy as the days are long."

"But your salary, young man?"

"Is sufficient for us, sir. I have £100 a year. We can live on that, and lay up something, too."

Well, well—take her, love her, be good to her, make her happy, don't never——"

When the old man saw the joyous tears leap from his child's eyes he turned away and walked quickly from the house; but he was not so quick but that he heard the blessing that followed him. And when he walked alone beneath the starry heavens he wiped his eyes as though something troubled him.

Gay as a lark was gentle, beautiful Agnes when she became the wife of Walter Adams. The rose bloomed again upon her cheek, and the smiles were upon her happy face, like sunshine, all the day long.

"Do you pray God to help you to love me now?" the old man asked, after she had lived with Walter Adams some months.

"Why—what do you mean?" said Agnes, in surprise.

"You used to pray so, for I have heard you," returned Noah.

A moment the young wife gazed into her parent's face, and then she answered, while she threw her arms around his neck—

"Oh! I pray that you may be spared to us for long years in peace and happiness; but—love you? Oh! I could not help it if I should try. And Walter loves you, father—he loves you very much, for he has told me so many times."

There was something more than usual in the old man's eye now.

One evening, as the happy trio sat at the tea-table, Walter looked more thoughtful than was his wont.

"What is it, love?" Agnes asked.

"Oh!—nothing," the husband said, with a smile, "I was only thinking."

"But of what?"

"Only castle-building—that's all."

"In the air, Walter?" asked Noah.

"Yes—very high in the air," the young man remarked with a laugh.

"But tell us what it is."

"Well, I'd as soon tell you as not. Mr. Osgood is to retire from our firm in a few days. He is well advanced in life, and has made a fortune in the business, and he will live now for comfort and health alone. He has not been very well of late years."

"And is that all?"

"Yes."

"But what castle in the air is there about that?"

"Oh, that isn't the castle."

"Then what is the castle?" urged the old man, playfully.

"Why, simply this," said Walter, laughing, but yet almost ashamed to tell it; "this noon Mr. Osgood patted me on the shoulder and said he—in his playful way—'Walter, I'll sell you all my interest here for £50,000.'"

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed Noah Bremen; "and you thought he was in earnest."

"No, no!" quickly returned the young man. "I did not think that—though I know that the other two partners would willingly have me for an associate."

"But it seems to me that old Osgood holds his share in the concern at a high figure."

"Oh, no. It is a very low one. There is a clear capital of £150,000 in the business at this very moment; and then think of all the standing debts and good will which goes for nothing."

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed the old man again.

Then Walter laughed; and then Agnes laughed; and then they finished their supper.

On the next evening Walter Adams came in and sank down upon the sofa without speaking. He was pale and agitated, and his eyes had a vacant, wandering look.

"Walter," cried Agnes in terror, "what has happened?"

"He's sick," muttered Noah Bremen without turning round.

"No, no—not sick," returned the young man, starting up; "but I am the victim of some miserable trifling."

"Eh? how so?" asked old Noah, turning his chair.

"I'll tell you," said Walter, with a spasmodic effort. "I had some long entries to post this evening, so I remained in the counting-room after the rest had gone. I was still at work when Mr. Osgood came in and placed some papers on my desk, saying as he did: 'Here, Walter, these are yours,' and then he went out. When I had finished my work I opened the papers. The first was a sort of inventory of what Osgood had owned in the business, and mounted up in square numbers to £49,875. The next paper was a deed conveying the whole vast property to me, and making me a partner in the concern upon equal footing with the other two!"

"Well," said the old man, thumping his foot upon the carpet, and keeping time with his hands, "I don't see anything very bad in that."

"But I do," replied Walter. "It is cruel to trifle with me thus."

There was something in Noah's eye again, but he managed to get it out, and then he spoke thus:

"Walter Adams, when young men used to hover about my child, I believed they were only after my gold; and I knew that in most cases I was correct. I believed the same of you. I knew nothing but the love of money that could influence human action. My heart had become hardened by it, and my soul darkened. But it was for my sweet child to pour the warmth and light into my bosom. It was for her to keep before me the image of the gentle wife whom I had loved and lost, but, alas, who occupied a place in that love second to my gold? It was for my child to open gradually, but surely, the fount of feelings which had been for a life-time closed up. I heard her pray for me—pray that she might love me; and that was after I had refused to let her be your wife. I saw her grow pale and sorrowful, and I knew I had done it—and she loved me still. And still she prayed God help her—help her to what? Help her to love her father! I was killing her, and she tried to smile upon me. One evening I heard you both conversing in the old hut. My child chose misery with duty to her father rather than break that duty in union with the man she loved. And you uttered a prayer. You prayed that I might be made penniless—stop! hear me through! You would then show your disinterestedness. I walked away and pondered. Could it be that I had found a man that would love an old wretch like myself with no money? If it was so then that would break the last layer of crust from my soul. I determined to test you. I had gained a glimmering of light—my heart had began to grow warm—and I prayed fervently that I might not be disappointed.

"I went to the bank and drew out £50,000 in bills. That night my miserable hut was set on fire—or—caught fire. I always think my candle did it. But the old shell burned down, and room was made for a better building. I came out with a wrong trunk and the other trunk was burned up. But the money wasn't in it. No, no, I had that safely stuffed into my bosom and deep pockets, and all buttoned up; and the next day I carried it all back to the bank, and had it put with a few thousand more which I had not disturbed. And so my experiment commenced; and I found the full sunshine at last. Aye, Walter, I found you the noble, true man I had prayed for. You took me into your house and loved me when you thought me penniless, and you took my child to your bosom for just what God had made her. And now, my boy, I've been doing a bit of work in the dark. I've paid Mr. Osgood £50,000 in cash for his share in the business, and it is all yours. And let me tell you one more thing, my boy, if your partners can raise £50,000 more to invest, tell 'em you can put in £25,000 more at twelve hours' notice. Tell 'em that, my boy! Come here, Agnes—come here, Walter. Gold bless you both—bless you as you have blessed me!"

Nobody pretended that they had motes in the eye now, for the occasion of the weeping was too palpable.

Paris' Oldest Inhabitant.

The Boston Post says: "The oldest inhabitant of Paris, the Comte de Waldeck, now in his one hundred and eleventh year, is still seriously considering the subject of taking out an insurance policy on his life, and will no doubt try it next year. Three years ago M. de Waldeck was enthusiastic over the project of a new theater near the Madeleine, he having applied for the position of director, although he would be about one hundred and fifteen years of age if he lived to see the building completed. He still wants the place, as he was director of a theater bearing the name proposed under the first republic. A correspondent who saw the old man coming down the Rue des Martyrs the other day thought him looking remarkably well. On the Empress' birthday he sent her a bouquet, saying in a note that he was in the world before the founder of the Napoleonic dynasty. He was an officer under Napoleon, and was wounded at Austerlitz. During the reign of terror he was, like Sieyes, 'occupied in living,' no easy thing when one had the title of Count, and when there was a permanent guillotine on the Place de la Concorde; but he succeeded by becoming a purveyor of public amusements. He said the other day that there was only one thing pertaining to that time that he now regretted—the costumes of the women. There is nothing, he thinks, which shows off the female form so well as the dresses worn under the Directory, and, one may add, or so much of it. There is no doubt about the Count de Waldeck's age, he having authentic documents and the records of the army to show that he must be considerably over a century."

Origin of the Coroner's Inquest.

A gentlewoman in London, after burying six husbands, found a gentleman hardy enough to make her a wife once more. For several months their happiness was mutual, a circumstance which seemed to pay no great compliment to the former partners of her bed, who, as she said, had disgusted her by their sottishness and infidelity. In the view of knowing the real character of his amorous mate, the gentleman began frequently to absent himself, to return at late hours, and when he did return to appear as if intoxicated. At first reproaches, but afterward menaces, were the consequences of this conduct. The gentleman persisted and seemed every day to become addicted to his bottle; one evening when she imagined him dead drunk, she undersewed a leaden weight from one of the sleeves of her gown, and, having melted it, she approached her husband, who pretended still to be sound asleep, in order to put it into his ear through a pipe; convinced of her wickedness the gentleman started up and seized her, when, having procured assistance, he secured her till the morning, and conducted her before a magistrate, who sent her to prison. The bodies of her six husbands were dug up, and, as marks of violence were discernible upon each of them, the proof of her guilt appeared so strong upon her trial, that she was condemned and executed. To this circumstance are we indebted for that useful regulation, by which no corpse can be interred without a legal inspection.

A MIXED-UP ROW.—Near to Colombo, in India, a snake, seeing a parrot in a cage, had made its way to a place where it could make an attack upon the parrot. A child, seeing this, and not knowing the danger, grasped the snake by the tail, while the snake and the parrot attacked each other. Just then an elder sister, observing the little one in danger, snatched the child away, and, in so doing, pulled the snake out of the cage. At this moment a dog came up, and among them all they soon dispatched the snake. The dog, the snake, and the parrot all died from the effects of the encounter, but neither of the girls received any injury.

A Lovely Meeting.

The stockholders of the Great Western Telegraph Company had a spirited meeting in Chicago the other day. The following passage in their proceedings we copy from the Times' report:

A Stockholder—I would like to hear from Mr. Stark in regard to this matter.

Mr. Harding—He has not stated a word of truth. I say he is a liar.

Mr. Reeve—He is not a liar. I will take the matter up.

Mr. Reeve rose from his seat as he made this remark and assumed a menacing attitude. He was saluted with cries of "Sit down and behave yourself."

Judge Van Buren—There is evidently going to be a fight here.

Mr. Harding—I repeat that Sutherland is a liar.

Mr. Reeve—Shut up. We ain't going to take any more of your chin music.

Mr. Harding—You are an adjudicated fraud.

Mr. Reeve—And you are a damned fool.

Mr. Harding—I maintain that he is a liar.

Mr. Reeve jumped up hastily and shook his fist in Harding's face, threatening to give him "particular hell." He worked himself into a rage as he capered round Harding, and proceeded in the midst of his gymnastic performances to divest himself of his coat, as preliminary to pitching into the object of his fury.

The scene then became one of the utmost confusion, and never was equaled for rowdyism by any outburst on the Board of Trade.

The Biter Bitten.

A dried-up old man, of apparently about sixty years, strolled into a billiard parlor in this city yesterday afternoon, and taking a seat watched the players with some interest. After he had remained in the chair for some time he was approached by a hanger one, on the outlook for a greenhorn with whom to play and save the cost of playing. "Hello there, old man, do you ever swing the cue?" said he. "Wal, stranger, I used to prance around a little on a three-cornered table fifteen years ago, but I don't s'pose I could hit the first ball on this new-fangled thing," said the old man. "Well, I'm no player myself; you'd beat me easy enough, I know; just take a stick," replied the accomplished "beat." "Wal," said the old innocent, "I'll play just one game to see if I can 'scratch,'" and they both "banked" for the first shot. The old man had singularly good luck, for he got the first shot and made a run of fifteen points. The other looked on in astonishment while the player of "fifteen years ago" was at work, and when he ceased and counted up the challenger muttered an oath, took off his coat, and went to work in earnest. He made five points only, and the next time the old man ran out the game. "I swow," said he, "I've had the allfiredest luck; will you try another?" "No, not by a darned sight, you old fraud," said the sport, and he walked off to pay for the game, amid the roars of his companions and a smile from the old man, who remarked, "It is strange how I remember to play so well."—Binghamton Republican.

"Gwine fur to Jine the Band."

The other night a Fayetteville gentleman was greatly disturbed by a dismal howling in his kitchen, which he first supposed was the sad refrain of some low-spirited tom-cat dying with the bronchitis. Tracing up the noise, he found it proceeded from an old negro woman that was rocking backward and forward in a chair, singing as vociferously as her feeble lungs would allow.

"What are you doing, Aunt Peggy?" exclaimed the irate Fayettevillian.

"I'm a singin' of a hime, honey."

"The d—l you are; what 'hime' are you singing?"

"I'm a singing, 'I'm gwine fur to jine the band.'"

"Well, I'd like to know what band you are 'gwine fur to jine?'"

"De angel band, honey—de Lord's band!"

"Now, you'd make a nice angel, wouldn't you, with the dirt an inch thick on your hide."

"Nebber mind about de dirt, honey," piously ejaculated Aunt Peggy, "nebber mind about de dirt—de Lord he got plenty of soap, he has, and he runs de ribber Jordan, he does—nebber mind about de dirt—I'm gwine fur to jine—!"

Here Aunt Peggy's tormentor fled, and she was left to exercise her vocal powers at discretion.—Fayetteville Express.

Expenditures of the Government for Public Improvements.

The expenditures of the United States for public buildings at Washington, from the time the capital was located to the end of fiscal year, June 30, 1873, have been—

For the Capitol	$12,000,000
Treasury	6,000,000
Interior	4,000,000
Postoffice	2,000,000
President's House	300,000
Agricultural Department	200,000
New State Department (unfinished)	1,300,000
Total	$25,800,000

The total amount expended during the same period for the improvement of rivers and harbors was $32,680,340. This sum was distributed as follows: On the Atlantic coast, $9,587,173; Gulf coast, 579,706; Pacific coast, $638,003; Northern lakes, $10,437,158; Western rivers, $11,438,300. Of the total expended the sum of $21,242,040 was for the improvement of harbors.

THE PERILS OF SERENADING.—Serenading in Lewiston, Oregon, has ceased to be popular. The following extract from a recent police report will explain why: "The too melodious nocturnal band was brought before his honor Recorder Vincent, who, after hearing the facts in the case, recorded a fine of $5 and costs, which amounted to $7, making a total of $12 against the E-flat cornet, which was paid by Charles Willis (contraband); the trombone was mulcted in the same amount, and made good by Billy Duffy. The snare drum and bugler not having the necessary amount to satisfy the insatiate maw of the offended dignity of the city in the person of the Recorder, Martin Williams and 'Bricktop' took it upon themselves to offer themselves as hostages in the city jail until the expiration of the alternative, six days."

THE latest conundrum is, Why is the Fourth of July—? That's all. An interval of fifteen minutes is here allowed for guessing the answer. Then the conundrum is put again, in this form Y is the ¼ of July.

MCGEACHY, late editor of the Danbury News, is about to start a rival paper, the Danburian. There is a prospect that the new paper will cut painfully into the field of the older one, as McGeachy is popular and awfully in earnest.

FOR the first time in her political history (and she's as old as the most of us), China is in the money market asking a loan. She wants $3,138,375, is willing to count 95 cents a dollar, and give 8 per cent. per annum as interest. But there are no takers.

THE Bank of England suspended specie payments in 1797, during the first war with Napoleon, and did not resume for twenty-four years. It passed an act in 1819, directing complete resumption in 1823, and the notes in anticipation of this event reached par in 1821.

A PENNSYLVANIA tombstone reads: "John L. Wilson's wife, Took sick on the 15 November with a chill her sickness had been dropsy and lung fever or the consumption Died June 4 1872 her age is 71 year 9 mos & 4 days her youngest brother had to HANDLE her for 7 mos & 24 days and nights."

THE Oregon Statesman says: "The most heroic feat witnessed at the fire in Salem was performed by Dan. Murphy, who picked up a two-hundred-and-fifty pound anvil and carried it from Kelly's shop to the middle of the street, with the remark that he was bound to save something. The anvil was saved."

GEN. FREMONT is described as old and bent, with a face deeply chiseled by the furrowing hand of time. His style of dress is antiquated, and he looks little like the hero of the Rocky Mountains as pictured during the Presidential campaign of 1856. He is said to be seeking an allowance from the government for his past services in the West.

IN twenty-one large cities and towns in Great Britain the aggregate deaths exceeded the births by twenty-one. The annual death-rate in London was 25; Edinburgh, 31; Glasgow, 50; Dublin, 27; Sunderland, 19; Leicester, 29; Wolverhampton, 29; Bristol, 29; Sheffield, 30; Birmingham, 31; Leeds, 33; Newcastle, 35; Liverpool, 36; Nottingham, 37; Bradford, 40; and Manchester 41.

A Desperate Defense.

A most terrible affair has just occurred at a place near Saintes, in the Charente Inferieure, where a man named Tarin, after shooting at his father and his brother, set fire to their farm, and burned cattle and brandy to the value of 30,000 francs. He then retired to his house, loopholed the walls, and prepared to stand a siege. He had three guns and quantities of ammunition. Five gendarmes arrived at full gallop, and Tarin killed one and wounded two. The other two gendarmes, aided by the peasantry, surrounded the house, reinforcements were telegraphed for, and before long brigades of gendarmes arrived from Pons, St. Genis, and Saintes, under the command of a captain; the sub-prefect also repaired to the scene of action. For ten hours a force estimated at 1,000 strong kept up a fire on the house, Tarin replying incessantly. Corporal Boucherie exposed himself for a moment, and was shot dead. At last a navvy, an old soldier, volunteered to storm the place, and he managed to get on the roof, and to pour a bucket of petroleum into the house; while accomplishing this Tarin wounded him slightly in the forehead. The house was soon in a blaze, and the assassin perished in the flames. The two gendarmes who fell were buried with great pomp and solemnity, and a subscription has been opened for their widows and children.

DEATH FROM FRIGHT.—A lady in Paris attended the last bal masque out of mere curiosity. She wore a pretty pink domino which made her particularly conspicuous. She supped, and when she left the ball she found she had drunk too much champagne. A policeman put his hand on her shoulder, and she sank down horrified at the idea of being taken off to the station-house. When they picked her up she was dead; she had died from fright. So the body was taken off to the morgue clad in its carnival finery, and there it was recognized the next day by the husband.

LION'S HEART.—A banquet has lately taken place in Paris, at which Firmin, the eminent publisher, presented a sirloin of lion, a leg and heart of the same animal, artistically cooked—that is, disguised. The flesh, though firm and close grained, could not be ranked higher than with that from the horse. The heart was not at all "tender," but rather tough. The meat was not of a nature to justify the opening of a special butcher's shop, or the formation of a philanthropic joint-stock society, to encourage the consumption of the delicacy.

ENGLAND AND CHINA.

These Two Great Empires Contain About One-Half the People on the Globe.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

In noticing the death of his Majesty Tsai-Shun, the late Emperor of China, we stated that he had ruled over the largest number of subjects of any monarch of the present day, as the population of China numbered 300,000,000 of people, being superior even to the great British Empire, whose subjects numbered 220,000,000. Whilst our statement is correct that the Chinese Empire is the most populous in the world, we find we have considerably understated the populations both of the Chinese and British Empires. It is exceedingly difficult to form correct estimates of the population of Asiatic countries, and in computing the population of the British Empire we adopted the figure which up to the late census of British India was generally assumed to be the population of that country. These figures were up to 1865 variously estimated at from 150,000,000 to 180,000,000 of souls. From that period several provincial enumerations established the fact that the actual figures were considerably in excess of previous estimates in the case of every province; and the general census of 1871 has given the population of British India at the enormous figure of 239,000,000 of souls, or 19,000,000 in excess of what was previously believed to be the population of the entire British Empire. The subjects of Queen Victoria are, therefore, almost as numerous as what we had before quoted the subjects of the Brother of the Sun and the Moon, as will be seen from the following table:

British Isles, with other possessions in Europe (nearly)	32,000,000
Empire in India	239,000,000
Colonies in Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania	5,000,000
Dominion of Canada, possessions in British North America	5,000,000
Colonies of Ceylon, Cape of Good Hope, Port Natal, Singapore, Straits Settlements, West India Islands, all other numerous colonies, at least	9,000,000
Total	290,000,000

As to China, we have no reliable official census of that country, like that of India, and any estimate is, consequently, liable to be more or less inaccurate. We know, however, that China proper, especially the eastern portion of it, those provinces intersected by the rivers Yang-tse-Kiang, Hoangho, Si-Kiang, in their lower course, and the great Imperial Canal, contain a population so closely herded together that travelers often express surprise how food can be raised sufficient to feed them. In Lower Bengal, in the agricultural districts of the countries of Hooghly and Jessore, the population exceeds the enormous number of 1,000 per square mile. But even this figure is exceeded by China. Some partial and local enumerations have been made, and on the strength of the figures thus obtained, and with the best information available, English and German geographers assume the population of the Chinese Empire at 450,000,000 to 500,000,000 of souls.

We have thus the remarkable and interesting fact that the joint population of these two great empires (the British and the Chinese) amounts to the enormous sum of 700,000,000 or 750,000,000, or about one-half of the entire population of our globe. We believe there is no parallel to this wonderful fact in the history of the human race, as far as we have authentic record or tradition.

Waked Up the Wrong Passenger.

A Chicago gambler waked up the wrong passenger in the person of a muscular young man who had come from Iowa to attend the Universalist convention. The gambler was a "steerer" for a bunko den, and having decoyed the young man to the place, sought to induce him to play. The latter, however, had read the papers, and, besides, had principle enough to decline. On this the gamblers, three in number, locked the door, and were about to "go through" their victim, when he proceeded to lay about him with his red right arm, and in the space of a minute or two, knocked the three ruffians senseless on the floor. Leaving them all in a heap, he unlocked the door and went on his way rejoicing.

Bergh After Horse-Clippers.—In New York, the other day, Mr. Bergh made a little breeze in high life by a raid on clipped horses belonging to fashionable owners standing about A. T. Stewart's retail store. Among them was a span belonging to one of the Appletons, the book publishers, whose driver was arrested, and, after a long examination, held for trial. It was only last Sunday that out of seventy-eight carriage teams standing in front of churches examined by Mr. Bergh's officers, forty-one had been clipped, and the blankets provided by the owners for the animals were found wrapped around the drivers' legs and feet.

Railroad Frauds in Hungary.—All the railroad frauds in the world are not perpetrated in the United States, as some people suppose. The manager of the Lemberg Czeruswitz Railway Company in Hungary has been detected in a series of swindles against the company, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars. A plot has also been detected on another Hungarian railroad company, to defraud it by printing and issuing forged coupons of the preferred bonds. The plot was adroitly worked, and based on the calculation that there are always coupons which are not presented at the time they become due.

Wilhoft's Fever and Ague Tonic.—This medicine is used by construction companies for the benefit of their employes, when engaged in malarious districts. The highest testimonials have been given by contractors and by the Presidents of some of the leading railroads in the South and West. When men are congregated in large numbers in the neighborhood of swamps and rivers, Wilhoft's Tonic will prove a valuable addition to the stock of medicines, and will amply reward the company in the saving of time, labor and money. We recommend it to all. Wheelock, Finlay & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans. For sale by all druggists.

Capt. Charles Sager, who keeps a superb stock of livery horses in Portland, Me., informed us recently that he uses Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders regularly in his stables, and that the expense is more than offset by the diminished amount of grain necessary to keep his horses always in good order.

A splendid map of the United States, size 38x52, is given to every mail subscriber to the Daily Post and Mail, of Chicago, who pays $7.80 for one year—without map $6.80. Canvassers wanted in every town. Send for sample paper.

The good name of the old Sherman House, Chicago, is being nobly maintained by the new. There is not a better hotel on the continent. Its prices, too, have just been reduced.

A Nation of Dyspeptics.—We live fast—dissipate in everything except righteousness, and fill early graves. We drink all kinds of poisoned alcoholic spirits, and swallow, without mastication, pork, grease, and every conceivable carbonaceous, soul-dwarfing, life-destroying, system-clogging, indigestible food. Dr. Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters cannot stop this in a radical manner—but it will remove the evil effects, and the recovering patient, with fresh, pure, vitalized, electrical blood flowing through his arteries and veins, will have a clearer head and a cooler judgment, which, coupled with experience, will cause him to abstain in the future. Good, nutritious, digestible diet, which the most delicate stomachs may take, can be found in cracked wheat, corn bread, tomatoes, raw or soft-boiled eggs, baked apples, boiled rice, plain rice pudding, corn starch, rare beef, mutton and poultry. With Vinegar Bitters and moderation in eating and drinking, there is no incurable case of dyspepsia. 21

Bleeding from Lungs, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption—A Wonderful Cure.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 13, 1874.

R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I had suffered from Catarrh in an aggravated form for about twelve years and for several years from Bronchial trouble. Tried many doctors and things with no lasting benefit. In May, '72, becoming nearly worn out with excessive editorial labors on a paper in New York city, I was attacked with Bronchitis in a severe form, suffering almost a total loss of voice. I returned home here, but had been home only two weeks when I was completely prostrated with hemorrhage from the lungs, having four severe bleeding spells within two weeks, and first three inside of nine days. In the September following, I improved sufficiently to be able to be about, though in a very feeble state. My Bronchial trouble remained and the Catarrh was tenfold worse than before. Every effort for relief seemed fruitless. I seemed to be losing ground daily. I continued in this feeble state, raising blood almost daily until about the first of March, '73, when I became so bad as to be entirely confined to the house. A friend suggested your remedies. But I was extremely skeptical that they would do me good, as I had lost all heart in remedies, and began to look upon medicine and doctors with disgust. However, I obtained one of your circulars, and read it carefully, from which I came to the conclusion that you understood your business at least. I finally obtained a quantity of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets, and commenced their vigorous use according to directions. To my surprise, I soon began to improve. The Discovery and Pellets, in a short time, brought out a severe eruption, which continued for several weeks. I felt much better, my appetite improved, and I gained in strength and flesh. In three months every vestige of the Catarrh was gone, the Bronchitis had nearly disappeared, had no cough whatever, and I had entirely ceased to raise blood; and, contrary to the expectation of some of my friends, the cure has remained permanent. I have had no more hemorrhages from the lungs, and am entirely free from Catarrh, from which I had suffered so much and so long. The debt of gratitude I owe for the blessing I have received at your hands, knows no bounds. I am thoroughly satisfied, from my experience, that your medicines will master the worst forms of that odious disease Catarrh, as well as throat and lung diseases. I have recommended them to very many, and shall ever speak in their praise.

Gratefully yours, WM. H. SPENCER.

Again our advertising columns exhibit the rapid growth and substantial condition of the National Life Ins. Co. of the United States of America, the largest and strongest life insurance company of the world upon the low rate stock plan. Its loans upon bond and mortgage and United States bonds, amounting to $2,531,916, largely exceed its total liabilities. The low rates, the large capital, the definite contracts, and the liberal policies of the National, render it worthy the confidence and patronage of the public.

Important to Consumptives.—The long-looked-for specific for the cure of Pulmonary diseases is found at last. Allen's Lung Balsam has proved to be the most extraordinary medical preparation for curing Consumption. It not only cures Consumption, but relieves immediately the incipient stages, such as Coughs, Colds, Oppressions, etc., Pains in the Chest. It breaks up the most distressing cough in an incredibly short time. For sale by all medicine dealers.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE
FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with Vinegar Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Under the Gas Lamp.

BY M. QUAD.

I sometimes wonder if when I am old and helpless, my children will look upon me as a shadow cast over their happiness? I wonder if Fortune will not play some bad trick by which I may be thrown upon the charity of the world, and be treated as the world's charity treats other old men? I wonder if youth will sneer at my gray locks and trembling limbs, and if people will say that I have outlived my usefulness, and should be glad of a place in the poorhouse and a grave in the potter's field?

From my window the other night I watched an old man as he crept up the street and stood under the gas-lamb. He was gray and bent and feble, and his fluttering rags were the leaves of a book, in which one could read of poverty, sorrow and woe. He looked around like a child, as if he knew not which way to turn. No home no friends—no one to care whether he lived or died.

By-and-by he sat down on the step and rested his head on his hand. I knew what he was thinking of. His face was in the shadow and I could not see it, but I knew that tears were falling down those wrinkled cheeks, and that his old heart was sad and sore. There is nothing so lonely as an old man without a home or friends. He felt it. He saw the old and the young go by, heard the laughter of happy children, and he bent his gray head still lower. His life has been a dreary struggle with poverty and grief, and those who had once cared for him had slept the long sleep for years past.—He was alone—old and weak, and the world had no pity. No one stopped to ask if he was cold or hungry—no one cared whether his heart was heavy or glad.

The bleak wind whistled around the corner, and I saw the old man shiver He had been a child once, perhaps petted and loved, and his mother had read to him from the good book: "Honor thy father and mother that the days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God, giveth thee." Had his children honored him? He hath grown to manhood and battled with the world, and planned and hoped and pictured a bright future, as well as all do Men might bowed to his eloquence and respected his talents once, and in his sunshiny hours men might have flattered him and made him believe that their friendship would never die. Old age had crippled him friendships had flown, and he was left alone to bear a double burden.

He was waiting for death. He would have welcomed its coming long ago but the grave was not ready to receive him until his heart had felt more strongly the coldness of man's natures, and until his burdens had quite crushed him down.

I went to call him in, but he had disappeared. I looked up and down the streets through the darkness, but he had vanished like a shadow.

Yesterday, as I looked into the morgue I saw him resting on the cold stone slab, his hands folded across his breast and a look of relief on his pale face. They had found him floating in the river, and he had found a home at last.

FRUIT HOUSE.

We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. If times are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combined. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; no secret in it, simply purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumers,

Just take teas, for instance: We save our consumers on that article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the importer.

We save the profit of the jobber, 10 per cent, of the speculator, which is 18 per cent, of the wholesale grocer, which 10 to 20 per cent, or as much more as he can get. All these profits our customers have the profit of.

We still keep up the reduction of 15 per cent.

KING'S NEW DISCOVERY FOR CONSUMPTION
DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY

The unparalled success invariably attending the introduction of

DR. KING'S

New Discovery for Consumption.

Far surpasses that of any other medicine ever placed before the American people. In fact it has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. Wherever it is sold a lively and increasing demand is at once created, and why is it? Our answer is this: It is a remedy that travels on Its Own Merits and always gives Perfect Satisfaction, hence the success. We know whereof we speak and in order to prove this statement we make the following offer: Do not Ever Ask to Buy until you know what you are getting. All we ask of those troubled with consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c., is to go to ☞A sad accident occured on the Grand Rapids & Ind., Road last Monday, ten or twelve miles this side of Ft. Wayne. Dr. Hitchcock, of Kalamazoo, Mich. in company with his two sisters,—Mrs. Ranney, of Kalamazoo and Mrs. Renney, of Delphos, O.,—were on their way to Ohio, accompaning, Mrs. Ranney to her home—the sister living in Kalamazoo being partly deranged. When near Wallen the two ladies went to the rear of the cars and got a drink of water, and the one deranged, quickly opened the door and stepped out upon the platform. Her sister immediately followed to prevent her leaping from the train, and grabbed so firm a hold of her that both were hurled from the car together.—The train was running about 20 miles an hour, and as quick as possible it was stopped and backed up, to the scene of the catastrophy. It was found that the lady who was insane, was not perceptably injured, but that her sister was insensible and evidently mortally injured. She was taken to Ft. Wayne and recovered her senses for a short time, but expired during the night.—Her husband was telegraphed for, and the party—with the corpse passed through this city yesterday, on their way to Kalamazo.

We learn the above facts from Capt. Iddings, who was on the train, and witnessed the sad accident.—Kendallville Standard.

THE NISKAYUNE SHAKERESS.

It was a gentle Shakeress,
Just in from Niskayune,
Five miles beyond the turnpike gate,
One pleasant afternoon.

Aloft upon the wagon box,
She sat in virgin state;
The spirit moved me to draw near
And hold with her debate.

I asked of her the price of eggs;
She raised her eyes, and then—
"If brother Jesse were but here"—
Then she looked down again.

She raised her eyes once more, at length,
"You seem a modest youth"—
"Too much so for my good," I said;
"My greatest fault, in truth."

"Oh say not so," she made reply,
"The fault becomes thee well;
The heart that harbors such a fault
Is virtue's citadel.

"Oh, heed," said she, "the earnest call
That comes to such as thee,
And be a bright and shining light,
In our community."

Before my eyes a vision passed;
I stood as in a swoon,
And saw myself in Shaker garb,
At peaceful Niskayune.

My hair cut short upon my brow,
In long, straight locks behind;
A broad-brimmed hat upon my head,
And nothing on my mind.

I saw the barn-like meeting house—
It was the Sabbath-day—
A crowd from Albany and Troy,
But I had come to stay.

I saw myself upon the floor,
A leader in the dance;
First on the heel, then on the toe,
I saw myself advance.

Then brother Jesse spoke awhile,
And when he reached the close
I sang an edifying strain—
I sang it through my nose.

The vision passed, and there I stood
Once more upon Broadway.
"Wilt go?" inquired the Shakeress;
"Wilt go?" I faltered, "Nay!"

A teardrop trickled down my cheek,
And fell upon my hand;
A sudden hope shot through my soul;
Almost I was unmanned.

"But thou wilt go with me?" I cried;
"Fair virgin—let us be
In holy bonds, by solemn rites,
Our own community."

"My life, my fortune, all I have
I tender now to you;
I live in a three-story house,
And I am well-to-do.

"Wilt go with me?—you hesitate?
A brown-stone front, you know—"
Down came she from the wagon-box
And answered me, "I go."

—Albany Journal.

"NAP."

"Lie down, lie down, sir."

"Oh, never mind him, Frank; he won't hurt you; go right in."

"Oh, yes," said I, "it's all well enough for you to say 'never mind him,' but, by George, he looks as though he would bear a good deal of minding."

"Nonsense," said Alick, laughing; "I tell you the dog will not touch you; but if you will not believe me, wait a moment and I will go with you."

I certainly was afraid to go into the room alone, and I think you, my reader, would have thought discretion the better part had you been in my place,

Alick was talking with his agent as I came to the hall door, and I had walked toward his library to await his pleasure; but when I opened the door, a large black dog that had evidently been lying on the floor, started to his feet with a growl, and exhibited a row of teeth that would have made a good stock in trade for a first-class dentist. He was a villainous looking brute, and I declined trusting myself to his mercy, as I told above.

Alick finished his business; then took me by the arm and led me into the room; the dog slowly dropped on his haunches when he saw his master, and paid no more attention to him until I had finished the business in hand.

"What in the world do you want of such a vicious dog?" I inquired, as I lit the cigar my friend gave me.

"I don't think much of your judgment if you call him a vicious looking dog," was the answer.

"What breed is he?"

"He is a cross of several breeds."

"Yes, I should think from the way he showed his teeth that he was all cross."

"Come, come, you must not run down my 'Nap.' He has been too good a friend for me to listen to anything but praise for him."

"What did he ever do that was particularly friendly?" I inquired.

"Nap? I'll tell you what he did; he saved me $50,000 during the war times."

I was about to give an unbelieving chuckle, but a glance of Alick's face told me he was in earnest, so I begged for the story.

"It was about the middle of the war," said Alick, "when I was Treasurer of the Grafton Drilling Company. Our office was unsafe as a pine box would have been, and I disliked to leave a dollar in it. There were several burglaries about the place, all of which were skillfully planned and executed.

"One night our office was visited, the safe pried open with wedges and the contents carried off. The burglars found but a few hundred dollars, but the worst feature of it was that they hit upon a night when there ought to have been a large amount of money there. We had received a large cash payment the day before, but instead of trusting it to our old safe I had taken it home with me.

"We wondered if the burglars had any knowledge of this payment. If they had, then they must have extraordinary means of gaining intelligence, and would know whenever we received any large amounts again, and would they not come at once to my house now that they had seen I did not trust the safe? The question was a very perplexing one, and I had an angry debate over it with some of our directors. I was in favor of getting a reliable safe and employing a night-watchman, but I was out-voted.

"Old Evans, indeed, went so far as to say that lightning never struck twice in the same place, neither did burglars visit old safes the second time. And he was inclined to think our money would be safer if left in the office than if carried to my residence. And he talked so many of the others into his way of thinking, that a resolution was passed declaring it against their wishes to have any of the company's funds kept anywhere except in the office safe!

"Of course the effect of this was that if I carried the money home and lost it, the loss would fall heavily on me individually, and not on the company.

"I was angry enough to have resigned my place, but my interest in the concern was too large to be trifled with, though I determined there should be a change in the board of directors another year.

"About a week after this our Secretary returned from Boston on the evening train, and brought with him $50,000, all in greenbacks, the proceeds of our monthly bills receivable. He brought the money in bills because the following day was our pay day.

"I was in the most perplexing state of mind when he handed me the money. I knew the office safe was no protection whatever, and yet if I carried the money home I was assuming a great responsibility. Without saying a word to any one, I determined not to keep the money in the office, and carried it home in that ottoman.

"You may be assured that I did not feel very comfortable that evening. I thought of every nook and corner in the house, and wondered where it would be the safest. At last I determined upon dividing it, leaving half here and the rest in my room. I did not mention the matter at home, not even to my wife, but plead a headache when reminded of my preoccupied air.

"I came in here and placed $25,000 in that ottoman at your feet. See! the top is on hinges, and is fastened by this hook on the side. This ottoman I pushed near "Nap." The balance I carried to my own room and put in the stove, thinking it to be the last place where any one would look for it. I went to bed, but it was nearly midnight before I fell asleep.

"I was awakened by a man's hand on my mouth, and to be informed that he did not intend to hurt me if I kept quiet. My hands were then tied behind me, a towel fastened in my mouth and the muzzle of a pistol placed against my head. Another man was treating my wife in a similar manner. They had a dark lantern and wore masks.

"After securing us they began to search the room. First my clothes, then the bureau drawers, under the bed—everywhere but where the money was. I began to think I had outwitted them, when one said to the other, 'How's that stove?' Another minute and they were pulling out the money.

"Imagine my feelings if you can. Even if they left with this amount, it was no small sum to lose. I could almost have cried then and there. One ran over the amount and said to the other, 'only half here.' My heart grew colder than before. They went to the easy chair and cut open the stuffed seat; they picked up the ottoman, examined it, and went out of the room.

"I was trying to get up, when one came back—the other had the money—he pushed me back into the bed, saying I had better be quiet. I heard the other man walk down stairs, and I knew my money was gone. They evidently knew how much money I had, and from the way they ripped open chairs and cushions in my room, they would not be long searching for that which was down stairs.

"The fellow must have come straight to this door. I heard him turn the latch and then a most unearthly scream! I knew that 'Nap' was doing his duty. In a flash I jumped to the floor, and in doing so gave a wrench to the band about the wrists that broke it, and then, before the man on guard could fire, caught his revolver. He made a stroke at me; I dodged it, caught him by the legs and threw him. As he fell he gave up his hold of the revolver.

"I cared nothing for him. I wanted the man who had the money; so I rushed down stairs only to see him going out the hall door; I fired but missed him; fired again, and heard a sharp cry of pain; I fired once more and broke his ankle, and down he dropped. The other man jumped out of the window and escaped.

"Of course I secured my man, recovered my money, and old Evans had to admit that he had been wrong, for the robbers had first gone to the office, and came to my house when they found the safe empty. Another revelation that the morning brought was a confession from my prisoner that our bookkeeper was one of their gang, and posted them about our affairs. The bookkeeper did not come to work that morning, nor have we ever seen him since."

"And the dog?" I asked.

"Yes, the dog got all the credit. You see the thief supposed by the silence that there was no dog about the premises, and he thought he was done for when he opened the door and Nap sprang at him."

"But," I said, "he was frightened rather easily; these fellows do not usually care much for a dog."

"I guess he never saw quite such a dog as Nap was that night," said Alick, laughing, "I had rubbed his eyes and mouth with phosphorus, and put on the strong spring. I don't blame the fellow for imagining the evil one was before him."

"Phosphorus and strong spring? What are you talking about?"

"His eyes are glass, you know."

"Glass? Have you been drinking, or have I?"

"Why, old fellow, don't you see that Nap is a fraud?"

I jumped to the dog, and sure enough had been badly sold—the dog was India rubber! Alick laughed long and loud at my sheepish face.

"Oh, the story is as true as preaching. I bought 'Nap' when I was in Paris; I have springs fixed on the floor and on the door, so when the door is open the dog stands up, and when he is up there is an arrangement in his throat that makes the growl you heard. By putting on that upper lever he is made to jump as high as a man's head, and that jump was what frightened the burglar."

I sympathized with that burglar, and I hope he did not lose caste among his professional brethren, for certainly the dog was a most unmitigated swindle.

Lion Eaters.

Recently (says Galignani) some score of contributors and draftsmen of the Chasse Illustree dined together at Magny's Paris restaurant, under the presidency of M. Firmin-Didot, to taste the ham and heart of the last lion killed in the environs of Philippeville, Algeria, by Constant Cheret. The flesh of the lion was found to be particularly firm and close grained, like that of a horse, but, nevertheless, quite palatable. However, the ham, though especially cooked, seems to have met with a succes-d'-estime; and the heart, skillfully prepared with truffles, was found somewhat tough and difficult of digestion.

TILTON-BEECHER.

Progress of the Suit—Court Scenes and Trial Incidents.

Rumors and Speculations.

[Cor. Springfield Republican.]

Gen. Pryor, of Tilton's counsel, thinks there will be as many as eighty witnesses in all on both sides, and that the case will not get to the jury before April. Rumor says that Beecher's lawyers will put the Woodhull on the stand, to testify that Tilton secretly inspired the publication in her paper. It is hinted that Gen. Butler will be found sitting with Tilton's lawyers before the case is ended, and that he will join ex-Judge Fullerton in bringing Gen. Tracy to account for his alleged unprofessional conduct toward Moulton. Mr. Tracy was associated with Mr. Evarts as Moulton's counsel in Woodruff & Robinson's suit with the government, and it is charged that he made use of information he gained in that capacity to aid in the cross-examination of Moulton.

Little Ralph's Parentage.

[Dr. Syntax's Letter.]

Tilton's testimony was continuously dramatic. There was a deathly hush when the witness, with a jerky voice, unfolded the history of the terrible meeting with Beecher to decide the question of little Ralph's legitimacy. A cynical incredulity, if it can be so called, possessed every face as the details of that unparalleled interview were related. Beecher looked palsied by shame and anguish, a crimson flush as usual on his features, and he sat bolt upright, in deviation from his ordinary leaning, negligee posture. Mrs. Beecher smiled with clenched teeth. Mrs. Tilton screened her face with a fan; the other ladies bent their heads. A general sigh of relief ran around the audience when the description of that fearful debate was finished.

Bad Effect of the Women on the Jury.

[Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

The absence of the Beechers and of Mrs. Tilton, was the result, I fancy, of a solemn council of war held on Sunday, at which Evarts presided. The injurious effect of their presence upon the jury seems to have struck everybody but Shearman, who revels in the sort of theater display which surrounds a man on trial for murder with his weeping wife and children. Mr. Beecher's palpable anxiety, the feverish interest he took in the smallest contention between counsel, the terible indications of mental distress which hung their crimson on his cheeks—all these things produced impressions the very reverse of those desired by the crafty little lawyer who is mainly responsible for the equivocations of this trial—who never comes to the surface except to emphasize a technical point or discrepancy in debate or punctuation. Had our blessed Lord depended upon such an attorney before Pontius Pilate, Shearman would have concentrated the defense of Christianity in the plea that the Roman authorities had no jurisdiction, or dexterously argued that Caiaphas' title to the High-Priesthood was imperfect.

The Woodhull—Some Very Decided Opinions from the Boss Free-Lover.

[From the Leavenworth (Kan.) Times.]

Mrs. Woodhull arrived in this city yesterday afternoon, and took rooms at the Planters' House. Early in the evening our reporter sent in his card, and was in a few moments received in the parlor by the most distinguished woman in the world. Knowing that the Beecher business is the subject uppermost in the public mind, and that Mrs. Woodhull knows more about the great scandal, from beginning to end, than anybody else in the world except Henry Ward and Elizabeth, he at once broached this somewhat delicate subject in the hope of drawing out some new facts:

Reporter—How do you think the trial will go, Mrs. Woodhull?

Mrs. W.—It will go against Beecher. No human power can prevent a verdict against him.

Rep.—Will the whole truth be brought to light?

Mrs. W.—No; not a tithe of it. They are not trying to bring out the truth. Tilton is just as much afraid of the truth as Beecher, and is trying to see with how small a part of the truth he can carry his case.

Rep.—That seems strange—why should he not want to bring out everything?

Mrs. W.—Not at all strange. They are all in the same boat with Beecher. The whole crowd have been living in the same way—in accordance with that they believe—for years past, and the truth would expose the whole lot.

Rep.—Do they all believe as you do on these matters.

Mrs. W.—Certainly they do, but they haven't moral courage enough to say so.

Rep.—It would seem, from the very severe examination Moulton went through, that he must have been obliged to tell all he knew?

Mrs. W.—All! Why he has told nothing, from beginning to end, but what has been just ground out of him by the attorneys, a word at a time. He hasn't been there to tell the whole truth, but to see how much he could keep from telling.

Rep.—So you include Moulton among those that believe in your theories?

Mrs. W.—Frank Moulton! Of course I do. The whole lot of them indorse my theory in every particular, and nothing keeps them from saying so publicly but their hypocrisy and moral cowardice. Just as Mr. Beecher said when he was on his knees at my feet, and in tears; when I advised him to come out like a man, and make an open confession of the whole thing, said he, "I know I ought to do it, but I can't—I'm a moral coward!" If he had made such a confession at that time the whole thing would have been over and forgotten long ago, and everybody would think better of him to-day.

Tilton on the Witness Stand.

AN EXTRAORDINARY NARRATIVE OF SCANDAL.

[Cor. Cincinnati Commercial.]

The testimony was as extraordinary as any ever given in any court. Tilton spoke in measured, moderate, distinct, and carefully selected language, with a clear, deep, bass voice. His manners, ways and expressions were at times very Tiltonian.

He was asked to state what occurred at his first troublous interview with Beecher, on December 30, 1870, but Mr. Evarts objected to his telling what might be derived from confidential communication with his wife, and an argument between the counsel ensued.

When it was over, Tilton began his long narrative, which was exceedingly minute in all its details, and which, admitting the brief arguments and interruptions of counsel, lasted nearly four hours continuously. At the interview he told Beecher Bowen's stories about his (Beecher's) numerous adulteries for twenty-five years, which witness had previously mentioned to Mrs. Tilton, on which she made confession to him of her own guilt in a written paper addressed to Beecher, which is now destroyed.

He said that Mrs. Tilton had come home unexpectedly from the country to tell witness the secret between Beecher and herself. That her feelings had grown from friendship to love, and from love to sexual intimacy, which first occurred on October 10, 1868, was repeated the following Saturday, and was subsequently repeated at Beecher's residence, at Tilton's residence, and other places, from the fall of 1868 to the spring of 1870. She had resisted Beecher's advance, but had at last given in, and though often solicited in a violent way had not often yielded. Beecher told Mrs. Tilton that his own wife was not a "satisfactory wife" to him. Witness told Beecher that Mrs. Tilton's heart was broken, and at the close of his narrative to Beecher, Beecher said, "I am in a dream. This is Dante' Inferno. It all a wind whirl." Witness then permitted Beecher to make a last visit to Mrs. Tilton, saying, "I have heretofore spared your life, but if you reproach her I will smite your name." Beecher staggered out, saying, "This will kill me." It appeared during this narrative that, though Tilton had summoned Beecher to answer for adultery, and though Beecher came to meet the charge, the stories of Bowen were the first subject of their interview, and Bowen's threats to drive Beecher from Brooklyn. They exchanged views about Bowen's programme, and then took up the other matter in hand. Witness then recounted the interview with Beecher at Moulton's house, Jan. 31, 1871, when Tilton did not want to speak to a man who had ruined his wife, and when Beecher offered to commit suicide, being on the brink of hell. But Beecher asked no mercy for himself, though his brief sexual intimacy with Mrs. Tilton had been for love, not lust. The interview ended with a violent outburst of grief by Beecher. Witness then narrated the interview between himself, Beecher and Moulton, at the latter's house, about his separation from the Independent, and the public explanation to be given of it, by telling Bowen's stories about Beecher, but Beecher did not want the stories published, though he declared them false, while admitting there was some truth in one of them, though he had used no violence upon the woman referred to, or any other.

He then told about another interview between Mr. Beecher and himself, at Moulton's house when Beecher took the head of witness in his hands and kissed him on the forehead. He told about yet another interview with the same parties at the same place, when Mr. Beecher asked witness if he had told twelve persons of his (Beecher's) criminal relations with Mrs. Tilton. Witness had told some persons, and possibly twelve persons knew it. Beecher then asked witness if he had ever said that he (Beecher) preached to forty of his mistresses. Witness was not sure but he told Beecher that Mrs. Morse was a dangerous woman. He next told about the 7th of February, when he bore a letter from Beecher to Mrs. Tilton, and another from Moulton to Mrs. Tilton, the former being written with the knowledge of witness.

The moral spectacle which in itself this recitation of Tilton presented was simply appalling, and produced the strangest fascination, mingled with expressions of horror all over the court.

A husband was testifying in full, with circumstance, with fluency, and with almost oratorical manner, to statements which he swore his wife, in a moment of supreme remorse, made to him. Those statements were of a kind involving his honor, her honor, and their children's honor. Not far off in the court sat the wife herself; not far from her sat the clergyman with whom she is sworn by her husband to have accused herself of criminal intercourse.

A shade of comedy relieved it now and then when Tilton told of the marital relations between Mr. and Mrs. Beecher. Both parties seemed inexpressibly amused, and when telling how he saved Beecher, Beecher seemed to be "feeling his muscle." But independent of the merits of the controversy, the social phase of it was horrible, simply horrible. Lawyers say the law making this form of action possible, will not survive this case

Pryor as an Orator.

[New York Telegram.]

It did not take many moments to see that he (Pryor) was an eloquent orator. His declamation is eccentric, his gesticulation earnest and profuse, and his temperament evidently is nervous and excitable. At times he bends forward and lowers his voice almost to a whisper; then, suddenly, as he becomes aroused, his Indian-like figure straightens; his face lights up with intense earnestness; his voice rings out clearly as a bell. Sometimes he speaks very slowly, long pauses occurring between his sentences, but at other times words flow from his mouth without effort, and his delivery is wonderfully rapid. One of his eccentricities is to play lightly with his eye-glasses, swinging them round his finger, then putting them on his nose and peering cautiously over them; next wiping them with his handkerchief, and finally dropping them and flinging his handkerchief with a quick motion across the table. Gen. Pryor was plainly very familiar with his subject, and it was not necessary to be a lawyer or Judge to understand him, so clearly did he embody his argument.

Moulton an Extraordinary Man.

[From the Chicago Times.]

In hunting for salient and admirable points in this trial, the case of Moulton should not, cannot, be overlooked. His case may have had precedents in the matter of duration, skillful inquisition, and searching analysis; but if so, they are few in number, and still fewer in instances in which the result is so harmonious in respect of the facts elicited, the complete absence of contradiction, and the patient, unruffled demeanor of the witness. The case of Mrs. Tilton's heroism is probably only a result founded upon a few, and these not the highest, qualities of the human character. That of Moulton is grander, in that it rests mainly upon an intellectual basis—a vast memorizing power; a critical and instant appreciation of the bearings of every question; the prompt discovery of each pitfall dug for him by opposing counsel. During a period of eleven days he has sustained without a hesitation, a contradiction, or an equivocation, an examination without a parallel for comprehensiveness and searching analysis. During all this time, he has never lost his temper, his presence of mind, or became involved in obscurity.

In estimating his position, it should be understood that there is not one man in ten thousand who, desirous only of telling the truth, and possessed of an exhaustive knowledge of all the facts pertinent to the point at issue, could sustain such an examination as that just undergone by Moulton without being swamped and lost a thousand times under the delusive lead of such opposing counsel. This fact serves to demonstrate that Moulton is no common man.

Theodore and Elizabeth.

[Tilton's Cross-examination.]

Mrs. Tilton left on the 11th of July, 1874, I should think about 6 o'clock in the morning, possibly a little later. She woke me up and bade me good-by, and said she was going to Mr. Ovington's. I went down there, and took breakfast with the family. So far as I have heard she has been there and at other places, but I don't know that that was her residence. I have heard of her being in Connecticut and in New Jersey. I don't understand that her residence is at Mr. Ovington's. I understand it is at my house. [Sensation.] I have never heard of her residing at any other place but Mr. Ovington's. When I said I was about 39, I meant what I said. I was born Oct. 2, 1835. At the time of my marriage I was connected with the New York Observer, and my wife resided at No. 48 Livingston street with her mother, who was then a widow, and had no other employment than as a member of that household. I was married when 20. Mrs. Tilton was one or two years older. I became acquainted with her when she was 10 years of age. We were familiar with each other, but I was more familiar with her brother, who was my schoolmate. My attentions to her began when I was 18, so I was well acquainted with her when I married. Up to the time she left me our intercourse was as close and intimate as possible in human affairs. I think my wife had more than a common brain. I was about to say that she had more than an ordinary education.

She was educated at Packer Institute. Regarding literature, etc., she was always fond of books; was the constant patron, and fond of poetry and music. Her opportunities during married life were many. People of cultivation visited the house. She was of a kindly nature, and charitable disposition. My career was that of a journalist and public speaker. My wife participated in my labors, acting as amanuensis for me. She knew all my thoughts, and in earlier years I knew all her thoughts. Her domestic affairs absorbed her time and attention. She was a very liberal, good-hearted, and lovely woman. We were both members of Plymouth Church, she joining in 1851 and I in 1853. We were married in 1855. In the earlier years we entertained the same general religious convictions. We were both teachers in the Sabbath-school. She was connected with the Bethel school in Plymouth Church. Had a mother's class in the same. This extended over a period of several years. She was there for a series of years, but I cannot say how many years; I should not like to give any dates, but it was a long period. The teaching was given Sunday, but she gave more time by way of preparation. Occasionally some of her class would call and see her. She was very notably of an affectionate and sympathetic nature. Regarding her opinions concerning feminine chastity, I think she loves everything good, and hates everything bad. I believe to-day she is a good woman. I have never blamed her, but her betrayer. I have said she was a great champion of the purity of her sex. All that is included in dignity and purity.

Guilty or Innocent?—A Dramatic Picture.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

It may well be doubted whether the court annals of any country have produced a scene which in impressiveness, solemnity, and absorbing personal interest, can equal that which occurred when Theodore Tilton entered the witness-box and confronted Henry Ward Beecher and Elizabeth Tilton to testify for the first time under oath before the judicial tribunal to the truth of that terrible statement which has traveled over the whole Christian world on the wings of rumor and in the columns of the press. Look at the group! On the one hand, Mr. Beecher, ostensibly a servant of God commissioned to save the souls of men, the foremost preacher of his time, arrived at that age when the passions cool and men give their thoughts to the great change which is so near them, standing at the bar of justice, charged with the seduction of a woman whose marriage ceremony he had celebrated, whose children he had baptized, and who had looked up to him for spiritual consolation and guidance; Mrs. Tilton, the alleged victim of his seductive art and eloquent persuasion, whom he led to ruin; Mrs. Beecher, stern and silent, as she has been ever since the black cloud of this scandal first darkened her household; Mr. Beecher's sons, who have grown old enough to know the nature of the charges against their father in their full bearing and to feel the keenness of the disgrace which threatens their home; and, fringing this memorable group, their friends and the members of that powerful organization on Brooklyn Heights whose probable existence hangs upon the verdict, and who, therefore, bring to Mr. Beecher a moral support nearly irresistible and overwhelming in its power and influence. On the other hand, a young man of bright intellect and brilliant promise, whose life began full of hope, but upon whose head the curse of Mephistopheles has fallen, for every flower that he has touched has withered, and he sits in the desolation of a clouded home. This young man stands alone in the witness-box, with few and feeble friends about him save the man who held his secrets so long and vainly sought to shield him from the storm, and tells the story of his wrongs, pouring it into the ears of the woman who has deserted him, and the man whom he charges with having wrecked his life, like a stream of molten lava, with his eyes fastened upon those two who dare not or will not meet his gaze. Has justice ever looked down upon such a scene before, and will justice triumph at last in this contest which we may well believe is watched with eager interest even by the powers of Good and Evil?

The spectator of this struggle, whose issues must be so momentous to one or the other party, can now only assume that either Mr. Tilton is telling the truth or a falsehood. There is no middle course; no decision which can be arrived at by compromise; no ground for the possibility of a hallucination. The terrible narrative, given slowly and deliberately, and with the nicest circumstantiality in detail, of the interview between Beecher and Tilton; of the reading of the confession of Mrs. Tilton giving the details of the manner in which her pastor accomplished her ruin; of the interview at Moulton's house; the offer of Beecher to go out of public life; his violent outburst of poignant grief; his statement that he was on the edge of hell—all this black picture is either awfully true or awfully false. It passes the bounds of human comprehension to believe that it is part true and part false, or that Theodore Tilton is laboring under some dreadful mistake. If it is true, then never was man more wronged than Tilton; never was man more cruelly outraged, and never was there such a wolf in sheep's clothing; such a sleek, consummate hypocrite and arrant knave as this silver-haired priestly prowler in the folds where he has charge. If it is false, then is Mr. Beecher most cruelly, horribly wronged, and infamously, wickedly slandered; then in all suffering womanhood there has never been a victim so foully injured, so basely and cowardly smitten down as Elizabeth Tilton; then never has man before so nearly allied himself to the foul fiend as has Tilton. The wanton, insidious Mephistopheles himself, sneering at virtue and making wreck of innocence, might stand abashed, and acknowledge himself surpassed in vileness and baseness.

Upon what possible theory can this testimony be explained except either that it is true or false? It passes belief that all this complicated network of statements is a dreadful hallucination which has sprung up in Mr. Tilton's brain—a chimera of his imagination, a dreadful dream which has imposed itself upon him as a reality and impels him to make these charges against an innocent man and pure woman? When Mr. Tilton says under oath:

"I told him, when he came, that I wanted to know if he could tell me with reference to the little boy Ralph, and he said that the date fixed by Mrs. Tilton was the correct one. Mr. Beecher asked me the date. I told him that Elizabeth had told me that the date at which their criminal intimacy had begun was the 10th of October, 1868; and he said he had no remembrance of it, but he thought she was right."

When Mr. Tilton makes an assertion like this of an occurrence which occurred in the presence of a witness, is it a hallucination? Is it the vision of a disordered mind? If so, will some one explain the theory so as to account for this wonderful fabric of statement which he has constructed and into which other statements fit so accurately? That testimony is either every word true or every word false. Mr. Beecher is either entirely guilty or entirely innocent. No other hypothesis is possible. The toils which have been gathering about him heretofore are tightening every day. The plot deepens and grows more interesting. What denouement will come from this complicated story of misery and suffering? Will his own testimony explain all and dispel the horrid cloud that lowers around him?

Probable Cost of the Trial.

[From the Brooklyn Argus.]

What will the trial of the famous pastor of Plymouth Church cost Kings county? All sorts of speculations have been entered into on this subject, hardly any one of which have approximated the truth. Some modest arithmetic men have put the sum total at $50,000; others, of a bolder stamp, at $500,000. With the view of enlightening them, and the rest of the public, the Argus has made an estimate of the cost of the trial to the county with the following result:

Serving notices on 1,650 jurors, and expenses, say	$ 1,000
Serving notices on 53 jurors fined for non-attendance	20
Jurors in court who answered to the call of their names, 603	2,174
Printing jury notices	15
Fees of two associate Justices who drew the jurors	28
Court-room cleaners	20
Court-room cleaner, additional	10
One week's salary of Commissioner of Jurors and his clerks	135
	$ 3,402
Salary of Judge Neilson, per week	300
Pay of 12 jurors, per week	120
Salary of court stenographer, per week	100
Salary of court officials and clerks, per week	340
Salary of detailed police under Sergt. Rogers per week	275
Rent of court-rooms, per week	250
	$ 1,385
If this trial lasts twelve weeks the salaries will amount to	15,420
Add expenses as above	3,402
Total cost	$ 18,822

WHAT IT COSTS THE NEWSPAPERS.

In the court-room, daily, are fifty reporters and correspondents reporting and describing the proceedings. A careful estimate of the salaries paid to them gives the following results.

Five Brooklyn papers, per week	$ 1,000
Fifteen New York papers, per week	3,000
Correspondents and telegraphing	6,000
Type-setters, 300, $20 per week	6,000
Extra paper and ink, per week	3,000
Total	$ 19,000
Cost of a twelve weeks' trial	$228,000

WHAT IT MAY COST TILTON AND BEECHER.

Lawyers' fees and expenses	$ 50,000

WHAT IT COSTS SPECTATORS AND WITNESSES.

As is well known by this time, a number of the solid men of Brooklyn and New York attend to witness the proceedings, whose weekly loss may be estimated at $30,000.

Total cost in twelve weeks, $360,000.

An old bachelor says: "When I remember all the girls I've met together, I feel like a rooster in the fall exposed to every weather; I feel like one who treads alone some barn-yard all deserted, whose oats are fed, whose hens are dead, or all to market started."

CLEVELAND will have a dog-fair on the 8th of June.

FARM AND GARDEN.

The Farmer Feedeth All.

My lord rides through his palace gate,
My lady sweeps along in state;
The sage thinks long on many a thing,
And the maiden muses on marrying;
The minstrel harpeth merrily,
The sailor ploughs the foaming sea,
The huntsman kills the good red deer,
And the soldier wars without e'en fear;
But fall to each, whate'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.

Smith hammereth cherry red the sword,
Priest preacheth pure the Holy Word;
Dame Alice worketh 'broidery well,
Clerk Richard tales of love can tell;
The tap-wife sells her foaming beer,
Dan Fisher fisheth in the mere;
And courtiers ruffle, strut and shine,
While pages bring the Gascon wine;
But fall to each, whate'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.

Man builds his castles fair and high,
Wherever river runneth by;
Great cities rise in every land,
Great churches show the builder's hand;
Great arches, monuments, and towers,
Fair palaces and pleasing bowers;
Great work is done, be it here or there,
And well man worketh everywhere;
But work or rest, whate'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.
—Charles G. Leland.

Winter Feed for Hogs.

Store hogs can be wintered thriftily on finely cut clover hay, corn, fodder, and potatoes, if these articles are steamed or scalded with hot water, and a little bran or meal sprinkled on. The fodder will be greedily eaten if prepared in this way.

A Novel Way to Test Seeds.

The Indiana Farmer says: "In a portion of Denmark, where one-fifth of the land is cultivated to clover, the vitality of the seed is tested by placing a quantity on a knife blade, and heating it over a lighted candle. The good seed will pop open and hop off, while the worthless remains and carbonizes on the blade. Mr. Christopher Bagge, of Oakland, reminds us of this fact in response to an inquiry for practical tests for seeds."

Spontaneous Combustion of Hay.

We frequently hear of conflagrations caused by the spontaneous combustion of hay. The prevention in such cases is simple and cheap. Combustion in hay can arise only from one cause—the dampness thereof. This may arise from the condition of the hay when put into the barn or warehouse insufficiently cured, or by being wet by exposure to rain. The precaution is a liberal quantity of coarse salt, sprinkled through the mow, which will invariably prevent the heating which causes combustion. The same method will save hay put on board a ship, partially wet. This experiment was tried on board the ship Lancashire in 1847 with perfect success.—Traveler.

How to Varnish.

Varnish should always be applied in a warm room, as warm as a person can work in comfortably. At a lower temperature there is always moisture in the air, an invisible dew, which gives the varnish a milky and cloudy appearance. This will happen even on a fine summer day, and the only preventive is to employ artificial heat to produce a temperature of at least seventy-five degrees. At this temperature the moisture is not precipitated until the alcohol of the varnish has sufficiently evaporated to leave a thin and smooth film of shellac. The gloss and durability are entirely dependent upon this. The article to be varnished should be brought into the workshop a few hours before the work begins, so that it may get warm. The surface is smoothed, washed, and rubbed dry with chamois leather, or a piece of silk, and every trace of dust, moisture and dirt removed with a clean, soft brush, but no oil or grease must be used. The varnish is now lifted lightly with a flat brush not immersed too deeply in it, and a thin coating applied. It is well to begin in the center or at the highest part, and approach the edges with long, straight, rapid and even strokes, and a gentle pressure. Care must be taken at the corners and edges. The film of varnish should be about as thick as a sheet of paper. When finished it should be exposed to the sun's rays or artificial heat, and carefully protected against draft and dust. Cold air or a draft over the article gives the varnish a dull look. When this happens, the only remedy is to apply a second coating, and hold it near the fire so as to dissolve the previous coat, but not so near as to blister it.

Spontaneous Combustion in Hay.

There are doubtless many farmers who have experienced sudden and destructive conflagrations in their hay-lofts, which could not be ascribed to any exterior agency. Barns have been known to burst into flame, almost without warning, save perhaps a significant odor, for a few days previously, around the places where the hay was stored, and a summer's harvest is swept away in as many minutes as it had taken days to gather it. These pected conflagrations are generally unexaccredited to tramps who have made the hay-loft their sleeping resort, but it is now asserted that such calamities are frequently due to the spontaneous combustion of the hay, a circumstance theoretically quite possible, but rarely considered. Abbe Moigno in Les Mondes, gives the following as the theory of the phenomenon: Hay, when piled damp and in too large masses, ferments and turns dark. In decomposing, sufficient heat is developed to be insupportable when the hand is thrust into the mass, and vapors begin to be emitted. When the water is almost entirely evaporated, the decomposition continues, and the hay becomes carbonized little by little; and then the charred portion, like peat, peat cinders mixed with charcoal, sulphurous pyrites and lignite, etc., becomes a kind of pyrophorus, by virtue of its great porosity and of the large quantity of matter exposed to high oxidation. Under the influence of air in large amount, this charcoal becomes concentrated on the surface to such a degree that the mass reaches a temperature which results in its bursting into flames. The preventives for this danger are care that the hay in the lofts is kept perfectly dry, that it is well packed, and that it is stored in small heaps rather than in large masses.

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

Grandmother's Gingerbread.—Cup and a half of molasses, cup of rich sour cream, teaspoonful of saleratus, teaspoonful of ginger; mix a little stiff.

Sausage.—Good sausage can be made better by mixing, thoroughly, one teacup Indian meal to four pounds sausage. Mix only enough to last four or five days at a time, as it might sour.

German Toast.—To one egg, beaten well, add one cup of sweet milk or cream, season with a little salt and pepper. Cut in slices and fry in butter on a griddle. This is a nice dish for breakfast.

Beef Stew.—Six pounds of the flank of beef, cut in small pieces; boil in two quarts of water until tender. Then put in a dozen potatoes, a dozen onions and four turnips; cover it so that the steam shall not escape; salt and pepper to the taste.

Bedbug Destroyer.—Although these pests do not annoy one in winter, still it is well to look after them. Boil in one gallon of water one-half pound of alum. Wash the bedsteads with the mixture while hot, twice or three times during the season, and you will exterminate them.

Baked Indian Pudding.—Four eggs; one quart of sweet milk; five large teaspoonfuls of Indian meal; nutmeg and sugar to the taste. Boil the milk and scald the Indian meal in it, then let it cool before adding the eggs. Bake three-quarters of an hour. Eat with butter or sweet sauce.

Bird's Nest Pudding.—Pare and core six rich, tart apples. Set them in a pudding dish, filling the cavity of each with blanched raisins, two blanched almonds and a teaspoonful of sugar. Then pour over it tapioca, prepared by soaking for three hours one cup in two cups of boiling water and two cups stewed apple, sweetened. Bake until the apples are tender and serve cold.—Science of Health.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCE.

The inclemency of the weather interfered somewhat with the general wholesale trade, and consequently with the movement in financial circles. Money in good supply and in moderate demand. The course of the grain markets since our last review has been steadily downward, and a general reduction has taken place in current prices. At the same time an active business was transacted, the speculative element of the trade taking hold quite freely. The principal cause of the prevailing weakness was the heavy deliveries—on Monday and the succeeding two days—of property on February contracts. Shorts had made liberal provisions for their trades on a declining market, and when their contracts matured they were ready to make their deliveries. As had been anticipated, the parties having grain coming to them on contracts did not want to receive pay for and carry the property, and their only alternative was to force the grain on the market and sell out, or transfer the trades to March. Of course the heavy offerings weakened the market and were the principal cause of the decline. The usual governing influences were also of an unfavorable tenor, and calculated to assist in producing a weak feeling. The New York and Liverpool advices were indicative of unfavorable markets and lower prices, consequently there was no encouragement for shippers to do anything in the way of buying. The receipts were lighter, owing largely to the prevailing inclement weather. This fact had no influence, however, as the stocks in store are still quite large, and there is, of course, no probability of any reduction until after the opening of navigation. Spring wheat declined about 2½c, corn 1⅛@1⅜c, oats ⅝c, and barley about 6@8c. Toward the close of the week an improved feeling was shown all round, and a slight reaction was shown in prices. Speculators had generally settled their February trades, and were ready for a new deal. Regarding the future of the leading markets speculators differ widely in their opinions, and both parties are backing their expressed statements by liberal trading. It is generally conceded that wheat will not go much lower; that corn is too high, and that oats will rule firm. These are only speculators' views, however, and are not based on any positive statement of facts and figures: although it is difficult to see how any of the grains named can sell higher unless the markets at the East improve materially.

The following were the current quotations at the opening and close of the week:

PROVISIONS.

The market throughout the week was active both for present and future delivery. Prices were somewhat higher, though the advance was not maintained throughout, the market closing at $18.30 for cash pork, $18.40@18.42½ for seller March, and $18.80 for seller April. Lard closed at $13.65 for cash, and $13.75 for seller March; seller April $13.95. Green meats were firm and in fair demand. Bacon meats in fair demand for small lots.

LIVE STOCK.

There was a fair degree of activity shown in the cattle market, and prices were steady and firm at $4.75@5.00 for fair, $5.00@6.25 for good to choice, and $6.25@7.00 for extra shipping steers; stockers, $2.70@4.00; butchers' cattle, $3.00@4.75 for common to choice cows and fair steers. Hogs were fairly active and prices were firm; weather unfavorable for handling; closing at $6.50@6.90 for Yorkers, $6.70@6.90 for poor to fair, and $7.00@7.30 for good to choice heavy grades; extra sold at $7.40@7.50. Sheep steady and in fair demand at $4@6.

DRESSED HOGS, SEEDS, HIGHWINES, ETC.

Dressed hogs were somewhat irregular, although ruling fairly active. Demand mainly for light weights. Closing at $7.55@7.60 for 100@200 lb averages, and $8.00@8.10 for heavy weights. Pigs, 7.25@7.50. Seeds were firmer and fairly active, closing at $2.40@2.75 for fair to fancy timothy, $6.75@6.85 for clover, 85c for Hungarian and 90@95c for millet. Highwines were quiet but steady, closing firm at 93c.

PRODUCE.

Demand very light and market dull, and shippers and local dealers only buying sparingly. Fair to choice roll butter 20@24c; common 18c; packed slow at 18@27 for common to choice. Beans dull. Broom corn in good demand and firm at 11@13c for No. 1 to extra. Beeswax steady. Cranberries dull. Cider steady and firm at $5.75@6.00 for choice sweet. Cheese in active local and shipping demand, and prices were firm at 15@17c for good to choice factory. Dried fruits steady and firm. Eggs were in moderate request and prices steady at 24@26c for fresh; pickled dull; 20c for good to choice. Poultry in fair demand and steady; prices: geese, 45c; chicken, 35c. Game was quiet; shipments from neighboring States sell readily at $2.00@2.50 for prairie chickens; $1.50@1.62½ for quail; 12½@15c for venison. Green fruits in moderate demand; apples, $1.50@3.00 for fair to choice. Hops were dull and slow at 30@40c for fair to good prime. Honey steady at 23@35c for comb. Hides met with a good local and shipping demand at 8@9c for green salted, dividing on 60 lbs; green frozen, 7½c; kip, 10@11c; calf, 15c; dry flint, 18@19c; dry calf, 19@21c. Nuts were offered freely, and were slow of sale at $2 for shell-bark hickory, and $1 for large. Poultry was firm, with a good demand for good dressed lots; dry picked turkeys, 10@12c; chickens, 9@11½c for fair to choice; geese, 7½@9c; ducks, 12c. Potatoes in fair local demand; peachblows, 75@90c for Western and 90@95c for Eastern; early rose, 80@90c. Tallow was firm and higher at 8½@8⅝c. Veal was firm, with a good demand for good lots at 7@10c. Vegetables in fair supply and quiet; red onions, $3.25@3.75; yellow, $4.00@4.50; turnips, 40@60c; cabbage, 75c@$1.00; carrots, 40@50c ℔ bu.

LUMBER, COOPERAGE AND WOOD.

The yard trade in lumber is light, but fair for the season, and prices were steady. Common boards, joists and scantling, 12 to 16 ft, $11.00@12.00; fencing, $12.00@13.00; long joists, $12.00@16.00; shingles, $3@3.25; lath, $2.10@2.20. Cooperage steady and in fair demand at $1.15 for pork barrels; $1.40 for lard tierces; 48@50c for flour barrels; and $1.90@2.00 for whisky barrels. Wood was firm and in fair demand; sales in the yards at $6.50, $7.50 and $8 for beech, maple and hickory respectively.

A New Dish.

Up to the time when those superb palaces, the "Southern Michigan" and "Northern Indiana" were afloat on Lake Erie, no man was better known or more highly esteemed by the tens of thousands of travelers who went up and down its waters than Capt. A. D. Perkins. In every port from Chicago to Buffalo, his broad, sunny face was well known and always welcome. He loved a joke, and used to tell this one on himself:

His career as a commander was commenced on a schooner. During one of his trips he had been so long baffled by adverse winds that the provision chest had got quite too low for comfort. A few chickens were still left in a coop on deck. These he told the cook to prepare for dinner, but soon after, meeting a fishing-smack, he purchased some fish, merely saying to the cook:

"Sam, we have got fish now; so you may postpone the chickens."

After dinner a strange looking mess was placed before the captain, who said:

"Sam, what is this?"

To which Sam replied:

"Oh, dem's de postponed chickens, mass' cap'n.—Detroit Free Press.

China.

The late Emperor of China left an heir, three years old. The heir presumptive will in all probability be placed in the care and keeping of Prince Kung, who also acted as Regent to the late Emperor. Prince Kung is—or was, during Mr. Burlingame's ministerial residence in China—an especial friend of Americans, and for this, among other reasons, secured to himself the especial hatred of the dowager Empress who tried very hard to behead him and came near succeeding. Since Mr. Burlingame left China we have lost, to some extent, the favor and confidence we enjoyed then, which was transferred to the English through Mr. Wade, their Resident Minister, at Peking. It is not improbable that the dowager Empress, who is a very lively old lady in a scramble for power, will cause some trouble to Prince Kung if he is made Regent, or she may succeed in having one of her appointees made Regent. With the late Emperor's progressive views, his death is a serious loss to China.

Will Wonders Never Cease?—When Dr. Walker proclaimed that he had produced from the medicinal herbs of California an Elixir that would regenerate the sinking system, and cure every form of disease not organic, the incredulous shook their heads. Yet his Vinegar Bitters is now the Standard Restorative of the Western World. Under the operation of the new remedy, Dyspeptics regain their health; the Bilious and Constipated are relieved of every distressing symptom; the Consumptive and Rheumatic rapidly recover; Intermittent and Remittent Fevers are broken; the hereditary taint of Scrofula is eradicated! Skepticism is routed, and this wonderful preparation is to-day the most popular Tonic, Alterative and Blood Depurent ever advertised in America. We don't sell Rum under the guise of medicine. We advertise and sell a pure medicine, which will stand analysis by any chemist in the country. 22

Carpenters, read the advertisement of Simmons' Sash Supporters.

It is now generally admitted by honest physicians that when once the consumption is fairly fastened upon the lungs, no human power can save the patient from death. They also say that about fifty per cent. of those who die from this disease can trace the cause to a neglected cough or cold, which might have been cured by a small bottle of Liquid Opodeldoc, or what is the same thing, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

Cut this notice out and bring it with you. We are authorized to refund the cash to any person or persons who shall buy and use Parsons' Purgative Pills and fail of relief and satisfaction.

Treating the Wrong Disease.

Many times women call upon their family physicians, one with dyspepsia, another with palpitation, another with trouble of the breast, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent doctors, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when in reality, they are all symptoms caused by some uterine disorder; and while they are thus only able perhaps to palliate for a time, they are ignorant of the cause, and encourage their practice until large bills are made, when the suffering patients are no better in the end, but probably worse for the delay, treatment, and other complications made, and which a proper medicine directed to the cause would have entirely removed, thereby instituting health and comfort instead of prolonged misery.

From Miss Lorinda E. St. Clair, Shade, Athens Co., Ohio:

"Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.—Your Favorite Prescription is working almost like a miracle on me. I am better already than I have been for over two years."

From Ella A. Schafer, Zanesville, Ind.:

"Dr. Pierce—I received the medicine you sent me and began using it immediately. As a result of the treatment I feel better than I have for three years."

From Mrs. John E. Hamlin, Odell, Ill.:

"Dr. Pierce—The Favorite Prescription has done me good, which I am very thankful for."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sold by dealers in medicines.

Wilhoft's Fever and Ague Tonic.—This medicine is used by construction companies for the benefit of their employes, when engaged in malarious districts. The highest testimonials have been given by contractors and by the Presidents of some of the leading railroads in the South and West. When men are congregated in large numbers in the neighborhood of swamps and rivers, Wilhoft's Tonic will prove a valuable addition to the stock of medicines, and will amply reward the company in the saving of time, labor and money. We recommend it to all. Wheelock, Finlay & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans. For sale by all druggists.

No Time to be Lost.—In the incipient stages of Consumption, the first symptoms are generally a hacking cough—pains in the chest—difficulty of breathing—or oppression of the lungs. Something should be done at once to check the cough, allay and heal the irritated parts. Allen's Lung Balsam will break up the cough in an incredibly short time; also prevent the formation of tubercles. Where tubercles are once formed the disease is hard to cure. For sale by all medicine dealers.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE
FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

R. H. McDONALD & CO.,
Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, California, and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., N. Y.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with Vinegar Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., FEBRUARY 18, 1875

☞ The "Coburn claim" amounting to over $20,000, was introduced into the House and refered to the committee on claims last week.

☞ The last of Governor Hendick's receptions took place last night. There is no further use for the 'store clothes' of the members now. Jeans and plain cassimere will answer all purposes.

☞ The people of Cincinnati have laid up a large store of whiskey, and now they are making a heroic effort to drink it all before the new tax of 15 cents per gallon is levied upon it.

☞ The Chicago Times has been foolish enough to get up a bogus sensation after the manner of the Herald's wild animal scare. It is curious how such first-class newspapers are willing to risk their reputation by perpetrating such miserable follies.

☞ State Auditor Henderson wants no foolishness and he crushed three dollars per day out of the employs in the senate that was "going to have eight, or he would resign," That fellow resign? Never.

☞ The cities of this state should not be like spoiled children, who when one of them gets a gift, all set up a cry for a similar present. If they do act so foolishly the legislature should play the part of the wise parent, and refuse to be extravagant to humor them.

☞ If there should be an extra session of congress after the 4th of March next, it may be advisable to extend the powers of the executive in a way he has scarcely dreamed of. That career of this newly fledged Caesar should be checked by a few constitutional limits. Andy Johnson might suggest what ought to be done in the premises.—Fort Wayne Sen.

☞ The members of the house yesterday were almost unanimous in the opinion that county officers chould furnish their own fuel and stationery except books of record; also that attorneys should furnish their own stationary. The committee on fees and salaries was instructed to incorporate such features in the bill to be reported 71 to 17.

☞ A corespondent of the Chicago Tribune accuses Mrs. Tilton of writing little notes to Mr. Evarts containing points against her husband. A woman who is capable of such things after all the sentimental gush attributed to her in her former marital correspondence, it is easy to believe may be an adultress.

☞ Procter, the astronomer, has added to the perplexing question of the nearer approach of the earth to the sun a new difficulty, by showing that the decrease in the distance said to have taken place would have shortened the length of the old year by 18 days. All the old maids in the country stoutly protest against the change in the sun's parallax if it is going to multiply their years in this fashion.

☞ The Indianapolis Sentinel announce that Hon. Peter Kiser, of Ft. Wayne, lecture in the hall of the House of Representatives on Friday night, and exhibited his celebrated scrap-book, containing among other things the veritable hatchet wherewith G. W. cut down the cherry tree, &c. Hon. Peter Kiser is one of the most remarkable men of the age.

☞ The New York Tribune does not take kindly to the proposition for an increase of $30,000,000 in the revenues. It asserts that the figures used to justify the increase are not reliable, differing like they do from the estimates made in the last report of the secretary of the treasury. In fact the newspaper founded by Horace Greeley boldly asserts that the money to be raised by the advance in taxation is simply to be squandered.

☞ Mr. Evarts is putting in his best licks to show that Tilton is a person of loose morals. He wants to prove that he had associated with Victor Woodhull, and that he had been highly improper in his conduct at the time of the Winstead lecture. This is all well enough, but isn't it about time to inquire whether Henry Ward Beecher is guilty of the crime charged against him? That is what is to be proved or disproved. Six weeks have already been spent in going over all the ground ajacent to the scandal, but the subject proper has hardly been touched upon.

BE A MAN.

What a noble thing it is to be a man! The word is full of counterfeits. It is a grand thing to stand upright in defence of truth and principal. When persecution comes, some hide their faces until the storm pass by, others can be bought for a mess of pottage. From such turn away. Stand by a friend. Show yourself a man. Do not run away when danger threatens to overwhelm him or you. Think for yourself. Read books and read mens faces. Remember the eye is the window of the soul. Use your eyes and hold your toung, when men court favors. Select some calling. When you have espoused a cause maintain it at all hazards. Make up your mind to succeed. Brush the difficulties away one at a time. If opposition comes, meet it manfully. If success crowns your efforts, bare it quietly. Hasten not into a quarrel, but when you are compelled to accept an alternative, stand up and show yourself a full grown man. Do your own thinking; keep your own secrets; worship no man for his wealth. Do not live for yourself alone. The world needs reformers as much today as ever. If you have a new idea endeavor to develop it into words and deeds, be sober; be honest; be true. Policy men are dangerous. They will sell you for money, or popularity—don't trust them. Wear but one face, and let that be an honest one.

☞ The proposition of a compromise made by the consevatives of Louisiana to the congressional committee was not accepted. It was certaily a remarkable concession on the part of the conservatives and the fact that they offered it will not streghted their cause, while the fact that the committee rejects the compromise augurs ill for the character of the report which they are about to make to congress. It was proposed to leave the disputed election of 1872 untouched and to organise the Legislature anew, admitting those members who recieved both the sancton of the Kellogg returning board and the conservative committee, and such others as Mr, Hoar and his associates should deem legally elected. The legislator would then bind its self to transact in connection with Kellogg, and make no effort to unseat him, so long as he is recognised by the president. Such a compromise would simply give the democrats full controll of the House of Representatives, which is a very small prize after such a victory as was won last fall. The congressional committee passed through Indianapolis on their way East and visited the legislature. The members were by no means communicative in regard to their conclusions, and seemed determined that their report should not leak out beforehand as that of the sub-committee had.

From the Capital.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 15, 1875.

Dear Courier: A large amount of formal work has been done by the Legislature during the last ten days, especially in the House; when the presiding officer evinces a faculty for the rapid dispatch of business, not found in the Senate. It is universally conceded that we had better order in the House, although the larger body than usual, all from the prompt and decisive manner, in which Speaker Turpie interprets parliamentary law.—He is not the most polished presiding officer, but then he is efficient and can get through with about twice the amount of business ordinarily transacted by legislative bodies. It makes hot work for the clerks sometimes, and the midnight lamp frequently finds them busy at their tasks. As to the quality of the legislation it will compare favorably with the membership which is somewhat incongruous. Some say good bills are being passed, but there is a great amount of chaff also, and not a little bumcombe along with them. You see, when a new man is sent to represent you, he must put himself upon the record by a powerful speech, or his constituency will think him a "stick," and their vanity could never stand that well; it would make you smile to hear the masterly efforts put forth by a new member, and when they get through they seem as tickled as a boy with a new jack knife.

Mr. Waterman's bill providing that owners of dogs killed or maimed, shall not obtain judgment for such killing or maiming, unless such dogs are listed for taxation passed the House last Thursday. The bill legalizing the tax levy of Auburn passed the Senate last Saturday, is signed and is now a law.

Four hundred and thirteen bills have been introduced so far in the House.

Yours, TOM.

The republicans are very much out of temper with William Walter Phelps, and that gallent young gentleman might just as well shake the dust of the organization from his feet at once. His enemies say that he aspires to succeed Frelinghuysen in the Senate by means of democratic votes and certainly the prize is fairly within his reach. He is young, rich, honest, wise and bold, and should he cast his fortunes with the democracy, he may rest assured of the attainment of whatever prize he aims at. It is well for a new man to be on the side of the wheel that is turning upwards.

The famous "French Academy," composed of forty members, to become one of which is the highest ambition of French literary men, only cost's the state $33,000 expenses yearly.

We received a weather record from some friend out west, but the "real name" was not signed, and, of course, its against our rules to publish it: There is but very little difference between the weather here and in the west, according to the report we received.

The report circulating through the newspapers, that Billy Rainier, of Waterloo, was taken to the asylum, at Indianapolis, is all a great mistake. We received our information from what we thought a reliable source, but have since found out that we got the "cod," and stiff at that. There was however, a person taken to the asylum from this county by the name of Wm. Rainer, and the names being so near alike that Billy, of Waterloo has lit a whole box of parlor matches trying to find him self.

Lost—Mrs. Picker, dropped a pair of spectacles, a week ago last Monday, between the Presbyterian church, and her residence. A liberal reward will be given the finder, by leaving the same at this office.

There will no doubt be a large crowd of people in the city this week attending court, and would be glad to have them call in and subscribe for the Courier. A great many Democrats in the county do not take our paper and we think its about time some of them were "coming up to scratch."

A man from LaGrange county went through the city last Sunday evening with a load of corn. He said they had no feed in the above county, and were compelled to come to DeKalb for corn.—The cold weather must have been hard on both the man and horses, as he traveled about forty miles a day.

We are compelled to leave out a great deal of original matter, and also "cut down" our correspondents this week. One of our hands has been suffering from a festered thumb, and it is almost impossible for him to set type, as it is done with the thumb and fore finger. We hope, however, to be in good shape next week.

Strange it is that the necessaries of life do not sympathize with the general decline of wages, but such is the case. Flour butter, eggs, meats, poultry, vegetables, all command the oldest rates, and people appear to pay them as willingly as though the country was flooded with greenbacks and financial affairs generally were prosperous.

Sheriff Means, had some bad luck the other day. One of his horses got loose in the stable and commenced kicking out behind at a colt in the next stall. He gave it several bad wounds about the legs Mr. M. is very much in need of his horses just now, as it is court week, and we are sorry for this accident.

The Hicksville Independent man ought to be ashamed to send such a poor looking sheet as he did last week for an exchange. Part of the inside was printed on one corner; the Chicago side, however, was all right, but we have this at home, and our friends can either send something else or not put themselves to any trouble at all.

Our enterprising farmer J. Stamets, has just completed a very neat hotel, near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which is 60x40 feet, and two stories high. This will help considerable in inducing others to erect buildings at this part of the city.—Mr. S. has some valuable lots which he intends selling at quite low figures, and those desiring land cheap should call and learn his prices.

Examination of Teachers.

No further regular examination will be held until March, as the the teachers for the winter schools are nearly, or quite, all engaged; and I wish to have all my time for institute work. But should any require examination, time and place can be settled by applying to me.

The Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago and the Eel River railroads make good connections at Denver, and persons visiting Indianapolis will find this a most direct route. By leaving Auburn at 10 o'clock in the morning, you reach the Capitol at six in the evening, and returning, you leave there at 6:30 a. m., and get here at 2 p. m. There are also night trains making close connections. Look for time table next week.

Since the abduction of Charley Ross, young america is getting smart. A young lad in N. Some fellow sent us a communication, giving the Republican "hail columbia" for leaning its editorials towards the Democracy, and accusing them for all the trouble in the South. Again we say, sign your original name, if you want your matter published. Tell us who you are, and then we have no excuse for not publishing your article, unless they be of not sufficient interest to our readers.

The German Methodist church, at the lower end of town, which was dedicated last Sabbath, raised $900 from the audience. The weather was so cold that not a very large crowd attended, but it shows plainly, that a liberal audience were present. The edifice, cost $2,500. Professor Robbinson of Fort Wayne, officiated in the afternoon. It is a very neat looking strucure on the out side, and the insided is tasty and very comfortable. We are glad to see this step of enterprise among our German friends.

The theater last Thursday and Friday evenings, given by the band boys, was acknowledged by every one that was there to be a first class entertainment. The attendance was not at all large, the first evening drawing the largest house.—What the duce is the matter with this town lately, that you can't raise a "corporal's guard" at any kind of a performance. There is no panic now, but then its no telling how soon we may have one Don't patronize our home talent, but wait for some bogus traveling concern and in this way you will be fixed in the panic line.

Two great big stout looking fellows, came in town last Monday evening inquiring for the trustee, saying they had no place to stay over night. They were sent to the Sheriff's, commodious hotel, where they, of course, had a comfortable nights rest. His being a tramp should not deprive him of all sympathy and charity. To turn him away hungry does not lessen your responsibility to God. He is a human being, and because perchance his own worthlessness has made his path a rugged one, he should not be left go without a word of kindness or good advice, and a—hot punch or a pocket full of doughnuts. "Kiss him for his mother."

Discussion Between Farmers—B. and C.—C. Neighbor B. can you tell me why Pine Lumber is so much cheaper in Auburn than it was a year ago? B. Neighbor C. I discover that you are in the dark yet in regard to pine lumber and shingles being so much cheaper in Auburn. It was a mystery to me until I called at the office of F. N. Wright & Co., and had it explained to my satisfaction. Look at it neighbor. Last season I built me a barn, my siding cost me $24, my shingles $5, but to-day I can buy the best B stock boards dressed, of F. N. W. & Co., for $17 that has been cut and pilled two years and their 18 inch Star shingles that was cut last summer when the timber was in the best shape for them to detect all defects, which is a great advantage. I can get them for $4 inspected and warranted. C. what is the cause of all this? Is it the decline of prices at the manufacturers, or have we been paying unreasonable prices? B. You have hit it neighbor, that is just the point I have studied out, but find the manufacturers hold the same prices on lumber and shingles as they did two years ago, with the exception of some low grades, such as culls and coarse common that the manufacturers yards has a surplus stock on hand. That quality has declined from one dollar to $1 50 per M. only from a stock board to a first clear, is just as firm as they were in 73 and 74. shingles a shade firmer than the winter of 74. Neighbor, it is surprising to see such a change in prices in Auburn. It will pay you to examine this company's variety of Lumber, Lath, Shingles' Doors and Sash. For further explanation, call at the office of F. N WRIGHT & CO.

The Waterloo Press takes exception to our remarks in regard to the location of the new Jail, which is nothing more than we expected, as Waterloo always takes a lively enterest in anything tending to deteriate either the appearance, or interest of our village.

It was well known to the citizens of the county, that the commissioners had purchased ground for the Jail building, and all were satisfied, but the change being made without notice, no opportunity was given to remonstrate against it.

The Press presumes too much when it says that a majority of the citizens of Auburn approve of the public square as the proper location; we venture the asserion that the unprejudiced judgment of a large majority of the citizens of Waterloo, or any other place would be against it.

The public square is not the place for a Jail, with all the appertinances thereunto belonging, and every man of good tast and sound judgement knows it, no matter in what part of the county he lives

There are no precedents in the present age of improvement for such a location, and even other cities are supprised at the decision of our Commissioners

Among other expressions, we copy the following from the Columbia City Post:

The Auburn Courier protests against the Commissioners locating the new DeKalb county Jail in the court house square. A board of Commissioners who would locate a jail, stable, pig pen, wood house and all other fixings necessary for a Sheriff's residence in a court house square have but little taste and a darned sight less judgement.

The Press says that it will be the most showy, and elegant building in the county and should be placed where people can see it.

However beautiful and showy the front may be, the rear will be on a business street, and not only injure the sale of lots but prevent business houses being built thereon.

In regard to the syndicate mentioned by the Press, it is simply imaginary; we spoke of Baldeck's corner because the ground is unobjectionable for a good foundation, and the Commissioner could exchange the lots already purchased for that corner, it being on the same street or they could sell and purchase others without much additional expence to the county.

Chas. Clotz, Esq., has just received a large and splendid stock of clothing, which he intends selling lower than any other house in the state of Indiana. Charley always gets the best of goods, and we advise our readers to call on him when they want clothing.

BUTLER ITEMS.

Mrs. Bell Ocher is suffering dreadfully from the inflamatory rhumatism. She has been confined to her bed for several weeks.

These icy roads makes a harvest for blacksmiths, especially them like the old reliable Jno A Moore, that knows how a shoe ought to be and, how the foot should be fixed to receive it.

Uncle Ed. Seargeant is kept so busy waiting on his numerous customers at the Eel River Hotel, that he don't get time to go to town once a month. He is one of those men who believe in business before pleasure. I think he is standing in his own light. The time is coming, when he gets through with the toils of earth, that he will have business—red hot, too. My advise is for Uncle to take pleasure while he can controll it himself.

It was a very good thing that the Republican had the announcement of the dedication of the Deciple church so dreadfully botched up. Had the announcement appeared as it was sent probable would have been more here than could have got in the house, but as it appeared it divided the thing up Some went to Monroeville, others will be here the 20th to attend and some have not got the thing figured out yet, &c. It is very difficult to find out what the editors did mean. We hope they will be more careful hereafter in such items.

Died on Thursday Feb. 11th, 1875 5:50 a. m. of lung fever, Mrs. Greenamyer. wife of Samuel Greenmyer, of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind., aged 56 yrs 1 month and 11 days.

The funeral services took place at the Dsiciple church on Friday last at 3 o'clock P. M. Many of our citizens greatly deplore her loss. To the bereaved husband we can say that the sympathies of the community is with him to help bear the afflictions and troubles. The children are deprived of a kind mother's advice, but I hope they will follow her teachings, and always think of them at times of temptation.

The dedication of the Deciple church took place on the 7th inst., attended by a large concourse of people. It was presided over by Elder Sutton, of this place, and Elder Carpenter, of Wabash, Ind. After preaching the financial situation of their new church was taken into consideration, and found to be about $1100 in debt. As soon as the opportunity was given to the audience the amont was raised, and the house was dedicated free of incumberance. The edifice cost about $3,000 Great credit is due Elder Sutton and the Trustees of the church for their energy and untiring efforts in pushing such a noble work. Bro. Carpenter looks like one of those wholesouled kind of fellows and I should judge had a good mouth for chickens. If he is as good in hanging on a chicken leg as he is getting subscriptions to pay for the church, I tell you I would'nt give much for the leg after he got through with it.

The great Fox Hunt comes off next Saturday. The territor designated for the occasion, is bounded by lines commencing at Butler and running north three miles, thence east along Fish Creek road three miles, thence to a point on the Butler and Edgerton road at Dead Run, near Lewis Pepper's and thence west to Butler. The Marshals are all requested to meet at New Beech school-house at 9 o'clock a m to receive instructions from the Chief Marshal, H S. Madden. No fire arms are allowed to be carried only for signal purposes. The hounds are to be led until the ring is closed. Cowbells, tin-pans and horns are to be the weapons. The "fetching up" place will be about a half mile north of Mr James Cather's, in a swamp. People are busy cutting roads to the spot where this great slaughter takes plase so they can get the dead carcasses out. We have the names of 30 sports from Toledo that will participate and will be here on No. 5. This will undoubtedly be the largest fox hunt on record. Ten thorough bred imported hounds that can be heard bellow nine miles distinctly. The hounds were brought to this country in Sept last at a cost of $1600. and a great many are coming just to see these hounds "take 'em in." All are invited

The great dramatic association, made up of home talent, with a cast of 150 characters, is supposed to be the largest combination and the finest talent, and more star performers than any troupe ever exibited before the American people. This grand troupe is now stopping at our place While this is knowledged to be the largest company of home talent on this continent, they have procured their outfit at an enormous expense, and prepared themseves the other evening to present to the American people the great domestic drama entitled "Neighbor Jackwood or the Fugitive's Friend." This company is made up of several nationalities. We add the American talent to it and you will readily see that it makes the kind of material for dramatic purposes, and when used as a beverage is very mild. This combination has all the arts and sciences known to the civilized world. They have trades of all descriptions, painters, photographers, doctors, little postoffices and telegraphers. This troupe, since its organization has had its ups and downs but it has battled againsed the storm and rowed their boat across in safety with their whole crew on board, and gave a performance in our place. All were present but Mother Jackwood, or the telegraph operator, she failed to come to time, but sent a message saying, that after consulting her own fellings, had come to the conclusion that there was too much of her support to play for less than $5. She claimed she was big and hanbsome enough, and being a star player, with her experience, her presence would give character enough to the troupe. Squire Greenwich thought they could get a player to take her part for less money. Neighbor Jackwood thought it would be a hard stroke to lose their star, but they were soon reconciled and played remarkably well.

Original Survey

Butler Township was surveyed in 1829, by David Hillis; Richland, Jackson, Union, Wilmington and Stafford, in 1831, by George W. Harrison; Fairfield, Smithfield, Concord, Franklin and Troy, in 1831, by Edward H. Lytle; Newville in the same year by Thomas Brown.

The government surveyors established section, corners and exterior quarter corners when conveniently accessible. They never established corners in the interior of sections.

The following sections have never been legally subdivided: in Butler, sections 7, 13, 19, 24, 29, 30 and 31; in Fairfield section 18, in Jackson 16, 17, 19, 21, 25, 28 and 32; in Smithfield section 30; in Concord 6, 14, 19, 25 and 31; in Wilmington 4 and 36; in Franklin 3, 7, 9, 18, 31 and 34; Newville sections 9; Stafford 5, 6, 7 and 20; Troy sections 17, 21 and 33.

When the government corners can not be identified it is the duty of the surveyor to establish them equidistant from and upon straight lines between known corners. This may cause hardship to the parties as the original lines were often crooked. As the government corners are fast disappearing these sub-divisons should receive prompt attention.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

SAMUEL F. HERSEY, a member of the present Congress, from Maine, and elected to the next, is dead....Senator Wm. A. Buckingham, of Connecticut, died at Norwich on the 4th inst., aged 71.

IT is reported from New York that one of the jurors in the Tilton-Beecher trial will soon present a physician's certificate to the effect that the juror's lungs will no longer bear the the atmosphere of the crowded court-room, and that death will certainly ensue upon further exposure. His forced withdrawal would, of course, permanently end the present proceedings.

AN accident that occurred near Norwood Station, Long Island, on the Hempstead branch of the Southern road, was caused by the washing away of a part of the track by the heavy rains. Danger being reported from that point, the conductor ordered the train to be run over that part of the line before the arrival of the 7 o'clock express from New York. The train passed safely over, but on the return the whole train was thrown down the embankment, instantly killing Eli Thorpe, road-master; James Scott, engineer; Barney Callahan, fireman; Benjamin Cowan, brakeman; and fatally wounding two others. The men were all old employes of the road and leave families....Daniel Horey, John Sweeney, and James Drew are under arrest in New York, charged with having been concerned in stealing a safe which is said to have contained over $500,000 in bonds and money from the Adams Express Company. The company has been very reticent about this huge robbery, but it is rumored that a considerable amount of the plunder has been recovered.

THE first train passed through the Hoosac tunnel on the 9th inst....Three hundred thousand dollars' worth of property was destroyed by fire in Buffalo on Tuesday last.

A PHILADELPHIA car driver named Benedict was seen to pay no attention to his team, and a collision with another car resulted. It was then ascertained that the man was frozen stiff, was still in a standing posture, with one hand grasping the lines and the other upon the brake. The thermometer indicated but six degrees below zero.

THE WEST.

THE Episcopal Convention for the diocese of Illinois, in session at Chicago last week, elected Rev. Dr. James De Koven, Warden of Racine (Wis.) College, as Bishop of Illinois, to succeed the late Bishop Whitehouse.....The people of Yankton, Dakota, are very indignant because the Supreme Court granted a new trial to Wintermute, the slayer of McCook....Bishoprics in the West go a-begging these days. Rev. Leighton Coleman declines to serve as Bishop of Wisconsin, to which office he was recently elected.

THE lower house of the Ohio Legislature has refused, by a vote of forty-four to forty-two, to pass a bill to abolish capital punishment.

SAN FRANCISCO has just been enjoying one of her periodical earthquake shocks....The Indiana Legislature is going to regulate baggage-smashing and smashers....Chicago elevators, as per official returns, contained on the 10th inst. 3,556,005 bushels of wheat, 1,542,676 bushels of corn, 537,143 bushels of oats, 12,364 bushels of rye, and 284,937 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 5,933,125 bushels, against 6,138,340 bushels at the same period last year.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL WILLIAMS, in behalf of the government, has instituted suit against the Burlington and Missouri River railroad for more than a million acres of land. Patents for these lands—upon which the company has already paid $200,000 in taxes—were, it is claimed, wrongfully issued by Mr. Delano, while Secretary of the Interior....Chicago's death roll for January reached the respectable figure of 568.

THE SOUTH.

JOHN WARD, alias Hall, alias Blakely and Henry Johnson, colored, two of the men implicated in the bold robbery of the express messenger at Memphis a few days ago, have been arrested, and have divulged the names of their associates.

THE Congressional committee has concluded its investigation at New Orleans and returned to Washington....Mardi Gras was celebrated in Louisville, Memphis, Little Rock and many other Southern cities. In New Orleans the day was passed over in silence.

WASHINGTON.

THE Senate Committee on Territories have agreed to report and recommend the passage of a bill to create the Territory of Pembina out of the northern half of Dakota.

THE Commissioner of Internal Revenue is urging upon the Ways and Means Committee an increase of thirty cents on the whisky, and four cents on the tobacco, tax.

THE United States Senate has slaughtered three railroad subsidy bills—the Washington, Cincinnati and St. Louis narrow gauge line, the proposed Dakota and Montana route, and the contemplated road from Lake Erie to the Missouri, on the forty-first parallel....The House has refused to extend the Wheeler & Wilson patent....The system of prepaying postage on newspapers does not bring in so large returns to the department as were expected. There was a serious miscalculation both of the amount of postage annually uncollected and of the printed matter transmitted.... The Committee of Ways and Means have prepared a draft of a Tariff and Tax bill. The 10 per cent. taken from the duties under the second act of June, 1872, will be restored; the articles thus to be affected are manufactured cotton, wools, iron and steel, paper, books, India-rubber gutta-percha, leather, etc. Tea and coffee are to remain free of duty. Sugar and molasses must bear an additional duty of 25 per cent., and tobacco an increase of 4 cents per pound. The committee also decided that matches should be relieved from tax, and that the tax on spirits should be increased 15 cents a gallon, operating upon all now on hand, but that 20 cents should be imposed upon all spirits manufactured after the passage of the bill, and the stamp on bank checks to cease at the end of this year.

THE House Committee on Railways and Canals has favorably reported the bill to aid in the construction of a narrow-gauge railroad from Washington to Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago....It seems to be definitely decided that there is to be an extra session of the Senate to consider the Hawaiian Reciprocity treaty...

POLITICAL.

THE breach in the Louisiana Legislature is as wide as ever. The Democratic members, in caucus, agreed upon a compromise by which they were to receive a majority in the House, provided they would recognize and support Kellogg as the legal Executive, but public feeling was so strong against the proposition that it was dropped....Hon. W. W. Eaton, of Hartford, Senator-elect from Connecticut, has been appointed to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the death of Senator Buckingham....Gov. Campbell, of Wyoming, has been appointed Third Assistant Secretary of State.

THE joint Republican Congressional caucus committee appointed some time ago to devise legislation for the Southern States has completed its work. The following are the points of the measure agreed upon:

First—The re-enactment of the fourth section of the Ku-Klux act, which allows the President to suspend the writ of habeas corpus in certain cases, and gives him full power to use the army to suppress disorder and maintain peace.

Second—The appointment of Deputy United States Marshals and supervisors of elections, with full power to conduct elections, count the ballots, supervise the returns, and arrest persons who attempt to intimidate voters, or to unlawfully interfere with the conduct of the elections.

Third—Requiring the ballots to be counted by the election officers on the night following the day of election, at the place of election, before the officers appointed. Severe penalties are provided for the violation of this provision.

Fourth—To provide for a full and fair registration of legal voters, and to make it unlawful for any of the reconstructed States to impose excessive poll taxes or require the payment of such taxes as qualifications for voting at any Congressional election.

Fifth—Declaring the exhibition or use of deadly weapons on days of registration or election, for the purpose of intimidation or violence, a criminal offense, punishable by fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

TWENTY-FOURTH DAY.—Tilton's cross-examination, with Mr. Evarts as interlocutor, was continued. He persisted in his account, given in his direct testimony, of the occurrences involving Beecher in adultery, and the most thorough cross-questioning failed to involve him in any material contradictions. The whole course of Tilton's vagaries, his political differences with Beecher, his championship of woman's rights, his editorials in the Independent, his letter to Horace Greeley, were run over in rapid review.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.—Tilton still occupied the witness stand, under the questioning of Mr. Evarts. A large part of the day was consumed in reading the gushing correspondence of Theodore and Elizabeth. Tilton testified that when his wife left his home she took only his love and good will, and has it still. The publication of the correspondence between him and his wife in the Chicago Tribune was done at the suggestion of his counsel, Judge Morris, and without his (Tilton's) procurement.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY—This day's session was interesting mainly on account of the contentions between the counsel. There were some sharp passages, in which all the attorneys in the case participated. The cross-examination of Tilton by Evarts was continued, but nothing of importance was elicited from the witness. Much time was consumed in reading the correspondence of Theodore and Elizabeth.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.—Tilton was still on the stand, under the cross-examination of Mr. Evarts. The witness was unusually cross himself, and lost his balance at times. He admitted that the scandal was first published through him. Judge Neilson informed the jury that he had received a note informing him that persons in the rear of the jury-box were in the habit of intentionally discussing the testimony in the hearing of jurors. He warned all such persons that, if they repeated the offense, they would be severely and summarily dealt with.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.—The cross-examination of Tilton was continued by Mr. Evarts. The latter read a letter which was written by the witness explaining the Winsted (Conn.) affair. He said the lady was a protege of his wife's. She was staying at the same hotel, but there being no fire in her room and a stove in his, she had come into his room to share the heat, and sat by the fire, reading to him, while he lay on the bed. He was questioned closely regarding his relations with Victoria Woodhull. He said he never visited her house more than a dozen times, and spent but one night under her roof. The witness stated that among his personal acquaintances was Bishop Gilbert Haven, who was a frequent visitor at his house previous to the commencement of this trouble.

FOREIGN.

THE cable brings news of heavy fighting in Spain on the 4th inst. The Carlists were driven out of Puente la Reina at the bayonet's point. Several other engagements have occurred with like results....Egypt prospers under Ismail Pasha. News comes that Darfour has been annexed....Another royal marriage—Philip, Duke of Saxony, to Louise, eldest daughter of the King of Belgium.

THE British Parliament reassembled on the 5th inst. The Queen, in her message, says the peace of Europe remains unbroken, and she will exert her efforts to have it continue so. Exertions for the suppression of the East African slave-trade continue, and its complete extinction is confidently looked for. In the colonies during the past year there has been general prosperity. Slavery has been abolished on the gold coast, and henceforward there will be freedom there as elsewhere. By providential blessing, the government has been able entirely to avert the loss of life which was apprehended from the famine in India.

ADVICES from Spain report heavy fighting, in which the Carlists have been badly worsted. A committee of Austrian nobles, which has hitherto contributed liberally for the Carlist cause, has advised Don Carlos to conclude a peace with Alfonso.

FULL particulars of the loss of the steamer Japan have been published, and the disaster turns out to have been quite as frightful as the Cospatrick affair. Nearly 500 human beings were either drowned or burned to death.

THE reports from Spain are conflicting and utterly unreliable. One day we hear that the Carlists have been badly whipped, another that they are victorious, and so on. It seems evident that the army of King Alfonso has not been achieving the victories claimed in the Madrid telegrams, and it is more than probable that it has met with a great disaster. The Carlist committee in London claims a great victory, and puts the Spanish loss at 7,000 men killed and wounded. Madrid dispatches admit a "slight" reverse to the advance guard of the left wing.

CIVIL RIGHTS BILL.

Its Passage by the House—Provisions of the Measure.

The lower house of Congress, after a most exciting debate, has passed the Civil Rights bill in a somewhat modified form. The following is the text of the bill minus the preamble:

Resolved, That all persons within jurisdiction of the United States shall be entitled to full and equal enjoyment of accommodations, advantages, facilities, and privileges of inns, public conveyances on land or water, theaters, and other places of public amusement, subject only to conditions and limitations established by law, and applicable alike to citizens of every race and color, regardless of any previous condition of servitude.

SEC. 2. That any person who shall violate the foregoing section by denying to any citizen, except for reasons of law applicable to citizens of every race and color, and regardless of any previous condition of servitude, the full enjoyment of the accommodations, advantages, facilities, or privileges in said section enumerated, or by aiding or inciting such denial, shall for every such offense forfeit and pay the sum of $500 to the person aggrieved thereby, to be recovered in an action of debt, with full costs; and shall also, for every such offense, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, or shall be imprisoned not less than thirty days nor more than one year; Provided, that all persons may elect to sue for the penalty aforesaid, or to proceed under their rights at common law, and by State statutes, and having so elected to proceed in the one mode or other, their right to proceed in other jurisdiction shall be barred. But this proviso shall not apply to criminal proceedings, either under this act or the criminal law of any State; and provided further, that a judgment for the penalty in favor of the party aggrieved, or a judgment upon an indictment, shall be a bar to either prosecution, respectively.

SEC. 3. That District and Circuit Courts of the United States shall have, exclusive of courts of the several States, cognizance of all crimes and offenses against and violations of the provisions of this act, and actions for the penalty given by the preceding section may be prosecuted in Territorial, District, or Circuit Courts of the United States, wherever defendants may be found, without regard to the other party; and the District Attorneys, Marshals, and Deputy Marshals of the United States, and Commissioners appointed by the Circuit and Territorial Courts of the United States, with powers of arresting and imprisoning or bailing offenders against the laws of the United States, are hereby especially authorized and required to institute proceedings against every person who shall violate the provisions of this act, and cause him to be arrested, and imprisoned or bailed, as the case may be, for trial before such Court of the United States, or Territorial Court, as by law has cognizance of the offense, except in respect of right of action accruing to the person aggrieved, and such District Attorneys shall cause such proceedings to be prosecuted to their termination, as in other cases; provided, Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to deny or defeat any right of civil action accruing to any person, whether by reason of this act or otherwise; and any District Attorney who shall willfully fail to institute and prosecute the proceedings herein required shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay the sum of $500 to the person aggrieved thereby, to be recovered by an action of debt, with full costs, and shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and be fined not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000; and, provided further, That a judgment for the penalty in favor of the party aggrieved against any such District Attorney, or a judgment upon an indictment against any such District Attorney, shall be a bar to either prosecution, respectively.

SEC. 4. That no citizen possessing all the other qualifications which are or may be prescribed by law shall be disqualified for service as grand or petit juror in any court of the United States, or of any State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. And any officer or other person charged with any duty in the selection or summoning of jurors who shall exclude or fail to summon any citizen for the cause aforesaid, shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and be fined not more than $5,000.

SEC. 5. That all cases arising under the provisions of this act in the courts of the United States shall be reviewable by the Supreme Court of the United States, without regard to the sum in controversy, under the same provisions and regulations as are now provided by law for the review of other causes in said court.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS.

What Has Been Done and What May be Expected—Both Houses Badly Behind-hand.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The following is a summary of the present condition and prospects of the public business: Congress closes its session three weeks from to-morrow. A comparison of the number of the bills introduced—some 6,000—with the number passed at the first session, and which will probably pass at this session, will be found to be the most remarkable for any Congress in the history of the government. Since the reassembling, Jan. 5, but three important acts—the Civil Rights bill, the Finance bill, and the Little Tariff act have passed either house. This delay has not been the fault of the regular or the special committees. Of the appropriation bills two have finally passed, one is in conference, and nine remain to be acted upon. These must be acted upon or an extra session will be necessary. A large number of bills must fail. As to the Civil Rights measure, each house has passed a separate bill. The variance between them may possibly lead to the defeat of both.

The Louisiana question is in great doubt. The special House committee will return this week, but want of time may negative conclusions. The proposed reconstruction of Arkansas is already settled by the adverse report made by the special committee to the House on Saturday, notwithstanding the President's message.

The transportation question will certainly fail, except in the way of appropriations to continue surveys. The Hennepin Canal scheme, which is regarded most favorably, lacked strength in the House on Saturday. The Texas Pacific and Northern Pacific bills, the Choctaw claim, the cotton-tax refund, the patent sewing-machine extension, reported on adversely;—the Bayfield and St. Croix project, and all of the additional bounty bills, will all fall through. Col. Tom Scott's friends claim that they will be able to put the Texas Pacific bill on an appropriation bill as an amendment. Two States are applying for admission—New Mexico and Colorado—and probably the latter will succeed. Both of these bills have passed the House, and now lie on the Senate calendar. A new Revenue bill, now in the course of preparation by the Ways and Means Committee, is one of the new bills that will not fail. The government calls for nearly $40,000,000 of additional revenue, and Congress will provide for it. This will defeat all the measures pending for the repeal of the stamp tax on checks, matches, etc.

The private calendar in the Senate has received quite a liberal treatment, but in the House very few private bills have passed, and hundreds must fail.

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE.

Senator Morton's Proposed Method of Counting the Votes for President and Vice-President.

Senator Morton has reported a bill to the United States Senate providing for the counting of votes in the Electoral College by both houses of Congress. The object of the bill is to prepare for anticipated double returns in the next Presidential election. It provides that both houses of Congress shall meet together at one o'clock on the last Wednesday in January next succeeding the meeting of the Electoral College, and be presided over by the President of the Senate. One teller shall be appointed by the Senate and two by the House, and they shall receive from the presiding officer the certificates, as they are opened, and, after reading them aloud, shall make a list of the votes, as they appear from the certificates. The result of their count, and the names of the persons, if any, elected, shall then be announced by the President of the Senate. If, however, upon the reading of any of the certificates, any question shall be raised in regard to counting the votes therein certified, the Senate shall withdraw to its chamber, and each house shall decide upon the question raised. No electoral vote or votes from any State, to the counting of which objections have been made, shall be rejected, except by the affirmative votes of the two houses. When the two houses have voted, they shall immediately reassemble, and the presiding officer shall then announce the decision of the question submitted. And any other question pertinent to the object for which the two houses are assembled may be submitted and determined in like manner.

The second section of the bill provides that "if more than one return shall be received by the President of the Senate from any State purporting to be a certificate of electoral votes given at the preceding election for President and Vice-President in such State, all such returns may be opened by him, in presence of the two houses, when assembled to count the votes, and that return shall be counted which the two houses, acting separately, shall decide to be the true and valid return."

The remaining sections of the bill limit each Senator and Representative to ten minutes, in speaking on any one question; provided that, after such debate has lasted two hours, the majority of each house may direct the main question to be put, without debate, and provided that the joint meeting of the two houses shall not be dissolved until the electoral votes are all counted and the result announced; but it shall be competent for either house, acting separately, in the manner hereinbefore provided, to take a recess not beyond 10 o'clock the next morning.

PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE.

President Grant Urges Congress to Take Action in Regard to Arkansas Affairs.

The following is the President's message on Arkansas affairs:

To the Senate of the United States:

Herewith I have the honor to send, in accordance with the resolution of the Senate of the 3d inst., all the information in my possession not heretofore furnished relating to affairs in the State of Arkansas. I will venture to express the opinion that all this testimony shows that in the election of 1872, Joseph Brooks was lawfully elected Governor of that State; that he has been unlawfully deprived of the possession of his office since that time; that in 1874 the Constitution of the State was, by violence, intimidation, and revolutionary proceedings, overthrown, and a new Constitution adopted, and a new State government established. These proceedings, if permitted to stand, practically ignore all the rights of minorities in all other States also. What is there to prevent each of the States recently readmitted to federal relations on certain conditions from changing their Constitutions and violating their pledges if this action in Arkansas is acquiesced in. I respectfully submit whether a precedent so dangerous to the stability of the State government, if not of the national government also, should be recognized by Congress. I earnestly ask that Congress take definite action in this matter to relieve the Executive from acting upon questions which should be decided by the legislative branch of the government. U. S. GRANT.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Feb. 8, 1875.

Washington dispatches state that there is no probability of Congress interfering with the Garland government—that Senators, as a general thing, are averse to such action—and that, apart from whatever the Senate may do, the House will support the report of their committee, recently made, and take no action in the premises.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

THURSDAY, Feb. 4.—Senate—Logan, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back the House bill to provide for the relief of persons suffering from the ravages of grasshoppers, and it was passed....Morton presented the memorial of the Board of Industry of Cannelton, Ind., asking an appropriation for the improvement of the Ohio river.... Ferry, of Michigan, presented the memorial of settlers on the Indian reserve land in Emmet county, Mich., praying Congress to provide measures to secure them in their homesteads.

House—Sener defended his action in opposition to the Civil Rights bill; he was the only Republican member who voted against the motion to suspend the rules....An excited episode occurred during the debate on the passage of the bill, Brown, of Kentucky, paying his respects to Butler, in which he used the following language, speaking of the people of Louisiana: "We have heard it echoed elsewhere that they were thieves and murderers and night riders. The clergy of the State—Jew and Gentile—have denied it. The business men and Northern residents have denied it. A committee of your own House, a majority being Republican, has given it its solemn and emphatic contradiction, and nailed the slander to the counter. Now, what should be said if that accusation should come from one—I speak not of men, but in language within the rules of this House—if that accusation against that people should come from one who is outlawed in his own home from respectable society, whose name is synonymous with falsehood, who is the champion, and has been such on all occasions, of fraud; who is the apologist of thieves; who is such a prodigy of vice and meanness that to describe him imag[illegible] would sicken and invective would exhaust [illegible] years ago, here was a man [illegible], and he earned his livelihood [illegible] victims for gold. He links [illegible] day, throughout th[illegible] ing." The Speaker [illegible] stand the gentleman to be referring to this language to a member of this House? Mr. Brown—No, sir; I am describing a character in my mind's eye. The Speaker—The Chair understood the gentleman to refer to a member of this House. Mr. Brown—No, sir; I call no names. This man's name was linked to his crime, and to-day, throughout the world, it is known as "Burking." If I were to desire to express all that was pusillanimous in war, inhuman in peace, forbidden in morals, and infamous in politics, I should call it "Butlerizing." [Sensation.] The Speaker (interrupting Brown)—The gentleman did not deal in good faith with the Chair. He did not answer in good faith the question addressed to him. Hale offered a resolution that Brown was guilty of prevarication, and that he be publicly censured by the Speaker, which was adopted—yeas 161, nays 79. The Sergeant-at-Arms then escorted Brown to the bar of the House, and the Speaker administered the censure in the following terms: "Mr. John Young Brown, you are arraigned at the bar of the House under its formal resolutions, for having transgressed its rules by disorderly remarks, and having resorted to prevarication when your attention was called to the rules of decorum by the Speaker. For this duplicate offense the House directed that you be publicly censured at its bar. No words from the Chair in performance of this most painful duty could possibly add to the gravity of the occasion or severity of the punishment. It remains only to pronounce, in the name of the House, its censure for the two offenses charged in the resolution."

Mr. Brown—I wish now to state that I intended no evasion or prevarication to the Speaker and no disrespect to the House.

With these remarks Brown returned to his seat, and this exciting incident came to a close.

FRIDAY, Feb. 5.—Senate.—The Senate adjourned immediately after the reading of the journal, as a mark of respect to the memory of Senator Buckingham. Senators Hamlin, Sherman, Stevenson, Fenton, and Washburn were appointed a committee to attend his funeral.

House—The Civil Rights bill was taken up at half-past 10, and uninteresting ten-minute speeches were made until nearly 1 o'clock, when Butler, of Massachusetts, rose to close the debate. The scene presented in the House has rarely been surpassed. Every gallery, including the diplomatic, the ladies', etc., was crowded, and nearly a thousand persons were around the door, endeavoring to obtain admission. A motion to admit ladies to the floor was objected to. After Butler had spoken at some length to the question the House proceeded to vote on the bill and amendments, and it was passed by a vote of 162 to 100. The bill now goes to the Senate as an original House bill, without any relation whatever to the Senate bill already passed....After the transaction of some unimportant miscellaneous business, the House adjourned at 5:40.

SATURDAY, Feb. 6.—Senate—West presented a memorial from P. B. S. Pinchback asking action on his claim to admission as a Senator. Referred. ....Consideration of the bill to organize the Territory of Oklahoma was postponed to the second Monday in December next....Hitchcock introduced a bill for the construction of a bridge across the Missouri river at Decatur, Nebraska....The Steamboat bill was discussed at considerable length and postponed.... Morton, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported back the Senate bill to regulate the counting of votes for President and Vice-President, and asked that the Committee be discharged from further consideration. So ordered....Morton also reported, from the same committee, a bill to provide for and regulate the counting of votes for President and Vice President, and the decision of questions arising therefrom....The Civil Rights bill was read a second time and referred to the Judiciary Committee.

House—The majority and minority reports from the Arkansas Investigating Committee were read and referred....Sawyer introduced a bill for the improvement of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers....The Hennepin Canal bill was discussed at length, and pending a motion to lay it on the table the House adjourned.

MONDAY, Feb. 8.—Senate—By a vote of 23 nays to 13 yeas, the House bill for the relief of John W. March was rejected. This was the sewing-machine patent bill....Chandler presented the resolutions of the Legislature of Michigan, asking an appropriation for the improvement of the harbors at Eagle Harbor, Benton Harbor, New Buffalo, South Haven, New Joseph, and Saugatuck, and for the improvement of the navigation of Pine river....Schurz presented the memorial of citizens of the United States, praying an amendment to the Constitution, to abolish the offices of President and Vice President, and vesting the powers now belonging to them in a council of seven members, to be chosen by the House of Representatives, to which body they shall be responsible.

House—Bills introduced: Providing for a tax on incomes above $2,000; to establish a branch mint at Dayton, O.; to make Ashland, Wis., a port of delivery; to continue the improvement of Racine and Kenosha harbors, Wisconsin....The bill giving bounties to the heirs of soldiers who served less than one year in the army, came up as unfinished business from last Monday, and was passed by a vote of 191 ayes to 20 noes....Sayler, of Indiana, from the Committee on Patents, made an adverse report on the application for extension of sewing-machine patents.

TUESDAY, Feb. 9.—Senate—The Senate, after a brief session, during which nothing of importance transpired, adjourned as a token of respect to the memory of the late Senator Buckingham.

House—The Indian Appropriation bill, omitting the Choctaw claim, was passed....The Hennepin Canal bill was the regular order, but its friends consented to let it be passed over....An effort was made to call up for action the resolution expelling Cannon, the Utah Delegate, for polygamy. Smith said that if the House refused to take up the matter now and act upon it the committee would not consider it their duty to again call it up. Only twenty-two members voted to consider the resolution, so it is practically dead.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 10.—Senate—No business of importance was transacted.

House—The Postoffice Appropriation bill was discussed in committee of the whole; the total amount recommended is less than the estimates therefor by $1,538,173. Various amendments were offered and the committee rose and the House took a recess till 7 o'clock, the evening session to be for debate.

INDIANA NEWS.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

J. P. CROMIE, of the Northern Lake Ice Company, has harvested 6,000 tons of ice near La fayette.

THE Directors of the New Albany Waterworks Company have accepted the charter granted by the City Council, and work will be commenced early in the spring.

TWO FIRMS at Kokomo have each shipped over 60,000 bushels of corn during the past season.

DURING the past month the shipments of coal from the Brazil mines amounted to 3,525 car-loads.

A STARCH-FACTORY at Madison has 75,000 bushels of corn on hand.

A SUPERIOR vein of coal has been discovered near Bickwell Station on the Vincennes railroad in Knox county.

PERSONAL.

A GREAT diversity of tastes is shown among the male members of a family in Pennsylvania. One is studying for the ministry while another has a laudable ambition for the prize-ring, a third is engaged in the mercantile business, and the fourth is endeavoring to become an actor. A fifth is a printer, and the sixth is yet undecided what he shall follow.

DEATHS.

JAS. BROWN, a prisoner twenty-four years of age confined in the Madison jail, committed suicide recently by hanging himself. He had committed a robbery the night before at Montpelier, and had not been in jail an hour before the deed was committed.

RAILROADS.

NOBLE township, Wabash county, has voted $45,000 aid to the Wabash and Kokomo railroad.

CRIME.

THE Supreme Court has refused a new trial in the case of James McCulloch, who was convicted of killing William C. Morgan, of Benton county, and sentenced to imprisonment for life. The murder was committed in 1865.

AN Indianapolis man named Andrews, the proprietor of the Capital House, is charged with the crime of seducing his own daughter, 13 years of age, who bore a child as the fruits of the horrible crime. Andrews has been missing for several days, and it is supposed he has left the city.

JOHN JONES, alias Jordan, who some time ago contracted with Potter, Martin & Co., of Lafayette, to sell them a lot of corn, on which he obtained an advance of $100, has been indicted by the grand jury, and in default of $700 bail was returned to jail.

F. S. KING, agent for the Singer sewing-machine at Columbia City, has been convicted of forgery and sentenced to the Penitentiary for three years.

CASUALTIES.

THE Boston Block at Indianapolis was destroyed by fire recently, involving a loss of $25,000, on which there was an insurance of $10,000.

J. E. MOSES, a of Indianapolis, while inspecting some saw-logs which were being unloaded at Emory's mill, on Ohio street, was crushed in a terrible manner by one of the logs rolling over him. His recovery is doubtful.

HENRY EARL, a young man living at Seymour, died at Greensburg a few nights ago from a dose of aconite administered by F. H. Miller, a druggist, by mistake. An inquest was held and a verdict was rendered in accordance with the above facts.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IN reply to a resolution, the Auditor of State has informed the Senate that his predecessor, who recently retired, had issued during the year ending Dec. 1, 1874, 10,977 certificates to agents of foreign insurance companies, and filed 494 statements. As he omitted to add the amount of fees and salaries received during the same time, his communication was returned, with a request that a fuller answer be given. The purpose of the resolution is to ascertain the Auditor of State's salary, that it may be reduced if too large. The above figures [illegible] over $25,000.

THE Daily Union, established at Indianapolis about a year ago, suspended publication a few days since, and made an assignment in favor of its creditors, who will receive about ten cents on the dollar.

A MUSICAL convention is to be held at Crawfordsville, beginning on the 16th of March.

THE LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Feb. 4.—Senate—Gen. A. F. Burnside, Senator elect from Rhode Island, and Gen. S. B. Buckner, of Kentucky, were invited upon the floor of the Senate, and both gentlemen made short speeches thanking the Senate for the honor conferred....A multitude of new bills were introduced, and the House joint resolution in respect to the memory of the late Hon. Milton Hopkins, Superintendent of Public Instruction, passed on its third reading.

House—The entire day was occupied with the consideration of the two temperance bills reported by the majority and minority of the Committee on Temperance. At the conclusion of the debate the majority report was passed by a strict party vote—ayes 56, noes 36. The bill adopted is what is known as the License law.

FRIDAY, Feb. 5.—Senate—The following resolutions were adopted in committee of the whole:

Resolved, That the committee on fees and salaries be and are hereby instructed to incorporate in any bill on fees and salaries which it may report the following provisions:

1. To give the Secretary, Auditor, and Treasurer of State definite and certain salaries, and to provide by law that individuals or corporations having business performed in said offices shall pay to the State Treasurer the fees now required by law to be paid for such purposes.

2. That the compensation to the officers of prisons, benevolent, charitable, and reformatory institutions, be revised and reduced, and made certain, as nearly as practicable; and that said salaries shall be in proportion to the amount of services rendered.

3. Reduction of the salaries of Judges of the Criminal Court to $1,200 per year.

4. The fees of Clerks and Sheriffs reduced in number, with strict provision against constructive fees, and allowance from the treasury in small counties where the fees allowed are insufficient to command the services of good men for said office.

5. County Auditors and Treasurers given fixed salaries, to which may be added, for Auditors, a schedule of fees for services rendered individuals, and to Treasurers a reasonable per cent. for collecting delinquent taxes, to be paid out of such collections.

6. No fees to be charged against decedents' estates, or in guardianship by clerks; but that such officers be allowed a sum in gross to be paid out of estates, according to the value thereof.

7. That the Governor's salary be fixed at $6,000 per year.

8. That the Attorney General's salary be fixed at $2,000 per annum.

House—Marvin offered an amendment to the bill reducing salaries, that the per diem of members of the Legislature be fixed at $6 per day, and that the bill take effect from and after Jan. 7, ult., which was adopted—70 to 23, and the bill was recommitted with an amendment reducing all salaries from Governor down.... The Committee on Elections reported in favor of Mills Waterman, the sitting member, as Representative from DeKalb, Taylor, the contestant, failing to appear and push the contest. Agreed to.... Bills were passed on a third reading authorizing City Councils to exclude certain plats of ground from corporation limits at their discretion; defining grave-robbing, and providing a penalty of from five to twenty years' imprisonment, upon conviction; for the release of securities on debts, unless judgment is obtained within twelve months.

MONDAY, Feb. 8.—Senate—A bill was passed providing for the improvement of Michigan City harbor....Bills introduced: Providing for the taxation of bank stock in the county where it is owned, instead of where the bank is located; reducing counties to 300 square miles, instead of 400, as at present; and making the Governor, Auditor, Treasurer, and Secretary of State a Board of Commissioners to attend to the public printing, who shall have power to appoint an expert to see that all printing is properly and cheaply done. All printing shall be let to the lowest bidder.

House—It was decided to continue the office of County Superintendent of Schools, with the salary restricted to $400 per annum....Several new bills were introduced; for the prevention of baggage-smashing; consolidating the boards of benevolent institutions; preventing all animals from running at large; for licensing all steam-boilers; and for fixing salaries of Directors of the Northern Prison at $800 per year.

TUESDAY, Feb. 9.—Senate—The Committee on Fees and Salaries made a report fixing the salary of Governor at $6,000; Attorney-General, $2,000; and members of the Legislature, $6 per day and $5 for every twenty-five miles traveled....The Governor submitted a special message in reference to the suit of Jonathan Gahn vs. The Trustees of the Wabash and Erie canal, asking for the sale of the property. Judge Drummond, of the United States Circuit Court, has overruled the demurrer filed by the Trustees, thus deciding H. A. Gahn's bill good in law and equity. It is highly probable that the sale will be ordered. He calls attention to the value of the canal, and favors all reasonable assistance to make it an active competitor for freight.

House—Bills passed: Providing for the reappraisement of property in 1875 and every fifth year thereafter, and allowing Assessors $2 per day; extending the time until the second Monday in June in which Town Trustees may make annual tax levy; striking out the two years' clause from the Divorce law in allegations of failure of husband to make reasonable provision for his family; empowering Judges to issue injunctions and restraining orders during vacation or while absent from the county; and providing for the organization of boards of trade.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 10.—Senate—The day was occupied in consideration of bills on second reading....A long discussion was had on the bill providing for the location of two insane asylums—one at Logansport and one at Evansville.

House—The joint resolution embodying the pending constitutional amendments (seven in number) which aim to put the State Constitution adopted in 1850 in harmony with the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Amendments of the Federal Constitution, was indefinitely postponed.

MRS. LOVIT, of Springfield, Mass., has forced her husband and three grown up sons to take board at a neighbor's, as she finds it impossible to spare time for housework while the Tilton-Beecher trial is going on. She is a slow reader, and gets up at daylight.

"WHERE is Chicago?" plaintively asks the Rochester Democrat. "Ask the insurance companies," unfeelingly replies the Brooklyn Argus; "they bury their dead there."

CURRENT GOSSIP.

A Young Emperor.

The little three-year-old heir to the throne of China is pronounced no longer heir, but Emperor of the vast domain.

Reciprocity.

The Canadian Reciprocity treaty is hopelessly dead. The United States has rejected it by an almost unanimous vote.

A Great Witness.

Frank Moulton will go down in history as the great American witness. A keener, warier, more imperturbable, more thoroughly self-possessed man never sat in front of a jury.

Et Tu, Maine.

The Constitutional Commission of the Maine Legislature has defeated, by a vote of six to two, the proposition to amend the Constitution so that women may be electors, under the same regulations and restrictions as men.

That $5,000 Book.

Much ado has recently been made in the newspapers about a reward of $5,000 being offered for a book purporting to give a minute history of the scandalous passages of the life of George IV., of England. It now transpires that the whole thing is a huge hoax, gotten up for the purpose of advertising a sensational work which a New York publisher has in press. Verily this is an age of humbugs.

Neilson the Just.

A New York letter-writer says that Judge Neilson's rulings are the delight of all impartial men, but they don't always make the interested parties happy. When he decides a point in favor of the defense, the prosecution looks as if it doubted his belief in the immortality of the soul; and when he rules in favor of the prosecution, the defense rolls up its eyes as if to say, "Of what comfort to such a Judge can the hope of a resurrection be?"

Betting on the Result.

The New York gamblers are busy selling pools on the results of the Beecher trial. "On Saturday night of last week," says the Graphic, "$50 were given for the first choice that the jury would disagree; $25 that there would be a verdict; $2 that the verdict would be in favor of Tilton, and $1 that it would be in favor of the defendant. It is thus apparent that the gamblers consider Mr. Beecher's chance of obtaining a verdict exceedingly small."

Snakes by Mail.

Very queer articles sometimes pass through the mails. For instance we read that there was received the other day at the Dead Letter Office in Washington a package containing one-half dozen snakes, two of them dead and the remainder alive. One of them was a copperhead five feelong. The reptiles were inclosed in a tin box, perforated with holes, and were addressed to Germany, but had been stopped at New York on account of over weight, the postage which had been paid on them not being sufficient to secure their transmission to the point to which they were addressed.

Mob Rule in Colorado.

A serious state of affairs exists in Lake county, Colorado. A mob has taken possession of the county and banished the Probate Judge and other judicial officers, and threatens with death any one who may dare oppose them. The local authorities are powerless to cope with the mob, the Governor is absent from the State, the Lieutenant Governor is paralyzed in bed, the Chief-Justice is laid up with a broken limb, and there are not 100 militia in the Territory. It will thus be seen that the Territory is in a very sad plight. The disgraceful difficulty had its origin in the assassinations growing out of the disputed right to the use of irrigating waters.

A Premium on Smuggling.

It may not be generally known that the most reputable business houses of New York city put a premium on smuggling, and buy and sell goods which they know have been smuggled. Yet such, it seems, is the fact. In the trial of a case in the United States Court in that city, the other day, it was sworn that H. B. Claflin & Co., the heavy dry goods house, had bought smuggled silks, knowing them to be such, and had sold them. A Tribune reporter, who applied to Mr. H. B. Claflin for an explanation, was told that the report was true, and that, on the advice of a revenue official, he had bought goods, knowing them to be smuggled. He stated, further, that all large dry goods houses had to do the same, and named houses which so smuggled goods. According to Mr. Claflin, the silk trade is largely in smuggled goods.

Six Millions Burned.

The Secretary of the Treasury, in response to a demand of Congress, has furnished a statement of the amount of money consumed in the car recently burned between Washington and Baltimore. It is as follows: Registered bonds, $308,300; national bank notes, $289,630; United States notes, $248,706; fractional currency, $14,058; incomplete notes, $10,000; coin certificates, $3,000,000. These are numbered from 15,501 to 15,800. There were also incomplete coin certificates of $5,000 each, which were numbered from 12,501 to 13,000, and which amounted to $2,500,000. The total amount destroyed is thus seen to be over $6,000,000. The question, of course, arises, will the Treasury still continue to make contracts with express companies, and allow them to carry enormous sums of money in their iron boxes, which are utterly incapable of withstanding heat.

Appropriations for Public Buildings.

The House Committee on Appropriations has finally agreed to report the following appropriations in the Sundry Civil bill for public buildings at the places named: Charleston, $151,101; Chicago, $750,000; Cincinnati, $600,000; Covington, $25,000; Evansville, $50,000; Fall River, $50,000; Hartford, $100,000; Parkersburg, $18,000; Philadelphia, $750,000; Port Huron, $25,000; Raleigh, $50,000; Rock Island, $20,000; San Francisco, $60,7[illegible]; St. Louis, $70,000; Washington, $25,000 State, War, and Navy Department building, $700,000; jail, District of Columbia, $185,549; in various parts of the United States, $250,000; furniture, $200,000; fuel, etc., $300,000; heating, $200,000; vaults, etc., $100,000; lithographing, etc., $6,732; custodians of buildings, etc., $100,000. Total, $5,416,092.

Gen. Schenck's Work on Poker.

Gen. Schenck, our Minister to England, indignantly denies the story that he has written and published a work on the American game of poker. It appears, however, that there was very strong foundation for the ugly report. The General, according to his explanation of the matter, was visiting a country house in England, and while there initiated the inmates into the mysteries of the fascinating game, the stakes being pennies and sixpences. So captivated were they with the sport, that Gen. S., at the solicitation of the lady of the house, wrote down some of the rules of the game, that they might study them at leisure. These rules were subsequently put in type and printed for private circulation among the friends of the family.

Bishop DeKoven.

Rt. Rev. James DeKoven, the successor of the late Bishop Whitehouse in the Episcopal Bishopric of Illinois, graduated at Columbia College, New York, in 1851, and afterward studied divinity at the General Theological Seminary for three years. He was admitted to the diaconate in 1854, by the Bishop of Connecticut, and advanced to the priesthood in 1855, by the renowned Bishop Kemper, the great missionary apostle of the West. For five years he held the pastorate of Delafield, Wis., and became one of the professors at Nashotah Divinity School, vacating both positions to accept the responsible one of Warden of Racine College, a trust which he has discharged for the extended period of sixteen years with singular ability and fidelity, and to the satisfaction of churchmen throughout the country. The new Bishop is a high churchman, and his election is a triumph of the ritualists.

POLITICAL MEMORANDA.

TENNESSEE papers are already talking of Andy Johnson for Democratic candidate for President.

CONGRESSMAN-ELECT PROF. SEELYE, of Amherst, will not sever his connection with the college.

BROOKLYN Reform ticket for 1876: For President, Judge Neilson; for Vice-President, F. D. Moulton.

THE Boston Transcript sees "more talk and longer sessions" in the election of so many lawyers to Congress.

AFTER mature reflection we have decided that if it is right to have brandy in mince pies, it is riht to have Andy Johnson in the United States Senate.

GLADSTONE, who goes out of English politics, is not as old as Andy Johnson, who re-enters the American. Where now is the boasted superior vigor of the sons of Britannia?

GOVERNOR MCCOOK, of Colorado, who has split the political circles of that Territory into smithereens, must give place to General Routt, who will seek to gather up the fragments and restore peace.

JOSEPH E. MCDONALD, the Senator-elect from Indiana, is fifty-six years old. He was elected Representative of Congress in 1849, and served two years. He was elected Attorney-General of the State in 1856 and in 1858. He was a saddler by trade, and afterwards studied law. He is tall, good-looking, courteous in manner, and has a benevolent countenance.

A WASHINGTON correspondent writes: "It is circulated about the Senate that Andy Johnson, who was in the habit of preserving all his letters from Senators, especially those appealing for patronage, will bring his letter books to Washington when he re-enters on his Senatorial term, and will diversify his speeches, as occasion may require, with appropriate selections therefrom. Andy seems bent upon lively times."

THE Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist recalls the following incident of the Zachary Taylor campaign: "Gov. Wise and a friend were canvassing Virginia, the friend for and the Governor against Taylor. The Governor contemptuously alluded to old Zach., and frequently called him 'Old Ignorance,' whose speeches were written by his son-in-law, Bliss. When the Governor's opponent came to his turn, he simply retorted: 'When Ignorance is Bliss 'tis folly to be wise.'"

Painful Walking for a Wager.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican thinks that if there is one occupation more wickedly foolish than another, it is that of the professional walker, as shown on the stage of Goodrich Hall, in Pittsfield, last week. Waters, it says, literally dragged out his apparently useless existence, during the last two or three days of his 100 hours' walk without rest, lifting his tired and swollen feet with such difficulty and moderation that it seemed to the bystanders as if he were pulling up a hundred pounds with each effort. During the day, Saturday, he frequently became crazy, and once he leaped the ropes on the edge of the stage, and rushed about the room as though his limbs were as well and pliant as ever. He was seized by one of his trainers, who was very fearful that he would throw his ankles out of joint, and being placed on the stage again, he soon came to his senses. He kept in good spirits when rational, but expressed himself as being in great agony. The pain he endured in his feet every time his weight came upon them he declared was worse than the most violent toothache. If the most desperate criminal in our prisons were obliged to perform this feat as a punishment it would stir the sympathies of every heart in the land, and it is a question whether a man ought be allowed to do it voluntarily. If it is true, as Waters said, that he was walking on a wager of $500 with a private citizen of Pittsfield, then the private citizen of Pittsfield is out of pocket, for the young man braved it out and finished his 100 hours Saturday night at 11 o'clock, having been steadily on foot since Tuesday evening at 7, amid the cheers of the crowd gathered in the hall to witness the close of the performance. As soon as he had finished he was treated in the usual way; being taken to his room, he was thoroughly rubbed and put to bed near a hot fire. After sleeping fifteen minutes, he was awakened by main force, rubbed again, and allowed to sleep half an hour. The process was continued, giving him a quarter of an hour more sleep each time until all danger was passed. He had not slept a minute during the previous four days and nights.

The Snow Plains of Asia.

The following description of the snow plains of Central Asia is taken from "Campaigning on the Oxus:" "The days pass—some in wild, fierce storms of snow and sleet, that howl around us as though all the demons of the steppes were up in arms, some in bright sunshine, whose intolerable glare clings and blisters our faces. From time to time we drive down into darksome underground holes, hot and reeking, hover around the steaming samovar, pouring down oceans of boiling tea; then out on the silent steppe again to continue the weary struggle. There are nights when we awake from a half-frozen sleep, and remember we are in the heart of the mysterious regions of Asia, and see nothing but the wide, snowy steppe, silent and ghostly in the spectral moonlight. For miles and miles there is no human habitation, but the bury-like stations somewhere far ahead, buried under the snow, as though crushed into flatness by the grim uniformity above. There is something strangely oppressive and awful in the changeless monotony of these wide, snowy plains, level as a floor, where for days and weeks you see nothing but snow and sky, where you are the moving-center of a horizon-bound plain, that seems to move with you, hang and upon you, and weigh you down like a monstrous millstone. There is the breadth and loneliness of the ocean without its movement, the cold and icy silence of the Arctic region without the glory of the Arctic nights or the grandeur of the Arctic mountains—the silent desolation of an unpeopled world. Those broad, level snow-plains over which the icy winds from Northern Siberia come rushing down in furious blasts, with an uninterrupted sweep of a thousand miles, and drive the snow about in whirlwinds that go scudding over the plain like giant specters; the short days of sunshine, when the glare on the snow dazzles and burns; the long, cold nights, passed in a half-frozen, half-somnolent state, with the tired beast trudging wearily forward—I shiver now at the bare remembrance of it all."

Love and Lucre.

Miss Ross is thirty-one years old, and lives in Chicago. Either of these facts is sufficient in the minds of some evil-disposed persons to debar any wish for further acquaintance. But Miss Ross has not lived long enough in that city of palaces and dens to have her maiden purity tainted, and Ninon de l'Enclos was far older than thirty-one when she brought princes to her feet by the spell of her strange beauty. Miss Ross formerly basked in the ripening suns of the Pacific coast. There she met Fancher. Fancher was a man. He was a man of good figure, a good eye, and a good $300,000. He at once won the young affections of Miss Ross, and the lady had every reason to believe that she had complete sway over the love of Fancher. They decided to bind them selves still more closely together by the holy ties of wedlock. Fancher said lovingly to Ross: "Ross, come feast with me; come to the great city of Chicago, and you shall be my wife, and I shall be your husband forever; and we shall live in a brown-stone, and have silver, and servants, and horses, and perfect happiness." Confiding Ross! She should have known better than to trust a man, especially Fancher, a gay old deceiver. They came to Chicago. Fancher refused to marry the too trusty damsel, and she applied balm to her wounded affections by instituting a suit for breach of promise. The suit has been in the Chicago courts for months, and finally, after innumerable quips, and quirks, and verdicts, and appeals, and new trials enough to discourage any heart but that of an orphan of thirty-one, a final decision was reached a few days ago, which requires Fancher to pay Ross ten thousand dollars. Both parties are to be congratulated—Fancher that he escaped matrimony so cheaply, Ross that she got what she really deserved, in view of that trip from the Pacific coast to Chicago.—Cleveland Leader.

A MYSTERIOUS basket, addressed to the station master at Clapham Junction, in England, on being opened, was found to contain a living child. The station master declining the gift, a porter volunteered to accept it, and took the basket and child. On lifting the child, £800 ($4,000) was found in the basket. The story goes that the station master then demanded the basket and its contents, which the porter very properly refused to give up. One can hardly doubt to which of the two the mother would entrust the child.

When People Think of Suicide.

The influence of age upon suicide is a study of more than speculative interest on account of its practical bearings, and of the ease and precision with which it can be demonstrated. By age is meant the critical periods of life. These periods having many components besides the mere fact of years, it is apparent that what we have to examine is a many-sided phenomenon, including together with it the advance in life, the workings of physiological, mental, and sociological causes. It has been lately examined by Dr. O'Dea, and it appears that the maximum of suicides of both sexes occurs between the ages of 25 and 55. Previously to the 25th year there is a sudden increase from 2 suicides between the ages of 5 and 10 to 136 between 20 and 25. After 55 the tendency to suicides declines, but more gradually than it rose, except to 65, where the number increases from 81 to 83—a rise so slight, however, as to be little worth considering.

There are, therefore, three suicidal periods in life: those of organic and mental growth, of organic and mental completion, and of organic and mental decline. In the first the chart shows 80; in the second, 942, and in the third, 311. Comparing the periods in round numbers, it may be said that they are as 1 for childhood and adolescence to 12 for adult life, and to 4 for the years of bodily and mental decay.

The influence of sex and its attendant circumstances upon suicides at the different periods of life is shown upon the charts. With females, as among males, there is a sudden and abrupt rise until the 25th year is reached. This rise is continued to the 35th year, at which the maximum of suicides occur among women. The period from the 25th to the 35th year corresponds to that of the greatest pressure from domestic troubles and responsibilities, and also with the greatest activity of the maternal functions. The line thence descends abruptly to the 45th year, whence it rises to the 50th, the critical period of mature female life, and then goes down, down, until it reaches the level from which it started.

There are, therefore, two culminating points, and while the line on the male chart is undulating and sustained, that on the female chart is vertical and abrupt. The lower of the male culminating points is the higher of the female, and, contrariwise, the lower of the female is the higher of the male. These charts do not show the relative frequency of suicides among the two sexes. The ratio of suicides to population in the United States is (for the period covered by the last decennial census) 25 to 100,000 among males, and 3 to 100,000 among females. The only periods at which suicides are nearly equal for both sexes is from 15 to 20 years, during which the number of boy suicides was 34, of girl suicides 32. After this the number of suicides among males is much greater than among females.

Reasons for Drinking.

Old Sambo Shute, long since gone across the dark valley, was a worthy man in his way, and genial withal; but Sambo would occasionally get drunk. One day his employer took him to task, and read him a lecture, at the close of which he asked him if he didn't think he could do better for the future.

"Don'o, mas'r," said the darkey, scratching his head.

"But what do you think?"

"Well, mas'r, I's afear'd I tink not.'

"Sambo, what do you mean?" Do you mean that you will not try?"

"'Twouldn't be of no use, mas'r. Fact is, 'twas born in me. Rum is my nat'ral drink. Yer see, afore I was born, my father and mother were boff bought on de coast of Africa, an' paid for in rum.

This is about equal to the excuse of the old fellow in a New Hampshire barroom. It was 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and a number of thirsty ones had entered the tavern for their beverage; and they all offered an excuse for their indulging. One said he had a pain in his side; another had a touch of the colic; another had a severe cold, and so on, and so on. At length a red-faced old Trojan stumped up to the bar, having listened to the excuses of the others, and said he:

"Say, old hoss, give us a glass of old Jamaica, stiff. My old woman's goin' to have codfish for dinner, and salt codfish allers makes me dry!"—New York Ledger.

Scripture on the Grasshoppers.

The plague of grasshoppers that overran the far West last fall seems to have been foretold in the book of Joel, in the following words:

> A fire devoureth before them, and after them a flame burneth; the land is as the Garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.
>
> The appearance of them is as horses, and as horsemen shall they run.
>
> Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap; like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble; as a strong people set in battle array.
>
> Before their face the people shall be much pained; all faces shall gather blackness. They shall run like mighty men; they shall climb the wall like men of war, and they shall march every one on his way, and they shall not break their ranks.
>
> And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker worm, and the caterpillar, and the palmer worm, my great army which I sent among you.

IRON IN THE PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT.—According to the Iron Age, a wedge or plate of iron has been found imbedded in the masonry of the great pyramid in Egypt, the indications being that it must have been wrought in the age of Cheops, placed by some authorities as far back as 5,400 years ago. This makes the use of iron about 2,500 years more ancient than it is supposed to be, and affords opportunity for explaining the cutting of the sharp and well-defined hieroglyphics on porphyry, granite and other hard stones employed in the construction of Egyptian pyramids, temples and tombs. How these could have been cut before the age of iron has been a puzzling question to man. Further investigation may show iron to have been in use 6,000 years ago.

QUEEN OF DIAMONDS.

Minnie Sherman Fitch's Magnificent Bridal Gift from the Khedive of Egypt.

[From the New York Times.]

There is at present stored in this city for safe-keeping—we need not say where—a diamond necklace of such splendor and value that it would be worthy of public notice, even were it not on other considerations. It is a double necklace, and each of these consists of three rows of diamonds, any one of which any lady might with pleasure see upon her finger. But in each necklace, both inner and outer, there is, at intervals of about an inch and a half, a large diamond, so large that no lady could wear it on her finger, and of a size that very few of the fair venture—even if they can afford—to wear as solitaire earrings. In the middle of the inner necklace is a stone of great size, the worth of which must be fully ten thousand dollars, and from the outer one depend seven pear-shaped stones of very unusual size, the middle one, which hangs just below the large one of the inner necklace, being of even greater size and value than that. The necklace is not alone. It is accompanied by earrings of corresponding value and design—a union of round stones above with pear-shaped pendants below, all within borders of smaller stones—which, however, are small by comparison with the great ones to which they are satellites. This magnificent decoration, the value of which cannot be less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and which, if all the stones were of the very first water, would command more nearly two hundred thousand, is merely an addition to the long list of rich presents received by Miss Sherman on her marriage. It is a compliment from the Khedive of Egypt to the soldier who made the great march to the sea.

We believe that Gen. Sherman could not accept this present; but his daughter, as she holds no office of profit or trust under the United States, may do so, although the fact that her husband is in the Federal service might, at least on some old-fashioned grounds, be held to preclude her from receiving such a very valuable gift from a foreign potentate. But apart from this consideration, the question presents itself, what will she do with it? What does any lady, who does not wear a crown, or at least a coronet, when she is in full dress, do with such a stupendous ornament as this? She may keep it locked up, and on rare occasions feast her eyes by looking at it, or provoke the envy of her dearest friends by exhibiting it to them. But think of the anxiety accompanying such a possession! A guard ought to be set over it night and day. As to wearing it, the owner would, if she had any taste or sense of congruity, be utterly at a loss to find any good reason for so doing. We have no occasions here when such ornaments are in place. Even in Europe they are worn very rarely—only on state occasions or at some very grand festivity. The notion that the noble women—the "female markisses," and such like—of the old world go about blazing with diamonds, even in the evening, is as absurd and unfounded as the belief formerly entertained that Kings and Queens wore their crowns as other persons wore their hats. Diamonds or jewels of any kind, except a modest brooch, a seal ring, or something of the kind, are scarcely ever seen upon ladies of rank in Europe, except on full-dress occasions, and then they are not a great deal, although what they do wear is apt to be of the very highest value and quality of its kind. But the diamonds or fine jewels of any kind on other occasions would be regarded among such people as evidences of bad taste, and even inferior breeding.

As True Now as Then.

The following extract from a publication by Noah Webster, the venerable American lexicographer, is as applicable to the present time as it was in 1836, when he wrote it:

"The press, when judiciously managed, is one of the greatest blessings of a civilized people; when abused, it is the most powerful instrument of mischief. Probably no civil privilege in this country is so much perverted and abused. In no country is reputation held so cheap. Slander, like the scythe of death, levels all worth and distinctions; the press, one of the noblest instruments of improvement, is converted into an instrument of deception, and the means of making citizens hate and oppress each other. The moral effect of this abuse is lamentable; for it seems to have become a ruling belief of partisans that a man has a right to defame those who differ from him in opinion.

"If such is to be permanently the effect of popular elections, we shall pay dear for the privilege in the loss of morals. At present, no reputation is safe, especially that of a man in public life, or one who appears before the public for the most laudable purpose. The scrambling for office keeps the public mind in continual agitation; generating evil passions and enmities among citizens, who, even when they are wrong in their opinions, are entitled to the enjoyment of their reputation and their social rights. What a noble improvement in our public prints shall we witness, when facts shall be carefully collected, judiciously selected, and fairly published, without conjectural inference; and when principles shall be discussed with ability, and candor, without assailing character and motives.

"NOAH WEBSTER."

INTERESTING TO RAILROAD TRAVELERS.—A suit was recently brought in England by a railway passenger to recover damages for the failure of a railway company to make connection with another road, over which he had bought a through ticket. The train was behind the time advertised, not in consequence of any unavoidable cause, or accident, but from sheer negligence and carelessness on the part of the officers of the company. Having failed to make the connection the passenger chartered a special train for the remainder of the route, and brought an action against the company for the expense of this special train. The plaintiff recovered the full amount claimed.

BLESS THE BABIES.

BY ELLA WHEELER.

Bless the little babies!
  Ah, they make the home!
Keeping husband evenings,
  When he used to roam.
Boon companions miss him—
  Cards have lost their charms.
There he sits contented,
  Baby in his arms.

Bless the little babies!
  Ah! they strip the heart
Of all false allurements
  By their native art.
Once the belle a mother,
  Fashion, fol-de-sol,
Selfish whims that spoiled her,
  Vanish, one and all.

Bless the little babies!
  Bridging many a breach
'Twixt wife and husband;
  Binding each to each.
Husband stops his growling,
  Warmed by baby's smiles,
[illegible]
  Watching baby's wiles.

Bless the little babies!
  Shame upon the wives,
Ruled by self and fashion,
  Living barren lives.
Out upon the practice!—
  Murder, nothing less—
Of the scores of women
  God had meant to bless.

Bless the little babies!
  Blessings, few or many;
Pity on the household
  Never counting any.
It is like a garden
  Where there are no flowers,
Oh, the pretty blossoms!
  Filling happy bowers.

A Wail from the Oil Region.

Oildom is, we confess, under a sad depression, embarrassed with abundance. Oil that once would have brought six dollars per barrel now brings sixty cents; a well that once would have brought $250,000 lately sold for $15,000—all from the "excessive superabundance" of oil. If one remembers how this business began—at the top—he can imagine how complete is its prostration. All Titusville, the metropolis of oildom, is under the hammer. One man (only a specimen), who had but lately an income of $100,000, is now hardly worth his hat. All is dreary as wintry midnight. Oil is here stored in huge tanks, enough to light the world a while; and still it comes. To strike oil, which once made one's fortune, is a very moderate blessing; nor can our favorite Pennsylvanianism, "protection," help us, for nobody competes with us in supplying the world. So we must suffer from our copiousness, while all make light of the cause of our trouble. It is little comfort that on sea and shore, around the world, we shine, and that Dr. Newman saw us brightening even the Garden of Eden, as long as oil is so dark at home!—Letter in Zion's Herald.

We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. If times are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combined. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; no secret in it, simply purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumers.

Just take teas, for instance: We save our consumers on that article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the inporter.

We save the profit of the jobber, 10 per cent, of the speculator, which is 15 per cent, of the wholesale grocer, which is 10 to 20 per cent, or as much more as he can get. All these profits our customers have the profit of.

We still keep up the reduction of 15 per cent.

Far surpasses that of any other medicine ever placed before the American people. In fact it has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. Wherever it is sold a lively and increasing demand is at once created, and why is it? Our answer is this: It is a remedy that travels on Its Own Merits and always gives Perfect Satisfaction, hence the success. We know whereof we speak and in order to prove this statement we make the following offer: Do not Ever Ask to Buy until you know what you are getting. All we ask of those troubled with consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c, is to go to

Several of our farmers are compelled to drive their stock to the town pumps for water.

The wheat market last Wednesday was the largest of any during the winter, selling at 36 cents.

Miss Ella Chamberlain, of Waterloo is employed in the dressmaking department of H. H. Stamets Fancy store.

There was a whole family trying to "capture" a young lady at the Court House last Saturday.

It is too bad that the ice can't remain on the sidewalks, for it is so much preferable to the disgusting fragments of the rock that are substituted for the sidewalks themselves.

A French writer says that not one American in a hundred has a handsome chain. This is due to the fact that so many of our fellow citizens give nearly all their time to the cultivation of a cheek.

A Philadelphia doctor pronounced it an electric fit;" the coroner's Jury rendered a verdict accordingly, and the poor man went to his grave with that terrible stain on his character,

A Cleveland youth of rather fast prodivities, fell in love with a parson's daughter, and as a claim, said to the reverend gentleman: "I go my bottom dollar on piousness."

The woman who wore her absent lover's kisses on her lips for him to come and take again, survived long enough to bestow them on a responsible third party with good collateral securities.

tlemen came together two well built gen- and had a fight. The object was, to see if one could take "five dollars worth," out of the other. The job was soon completed.

As a certain family were enjoying the good cheer of the breakfast table, a gun dropped from its movings, and its premature discharged not only frightened them nearly into fits, but knocked the fiddle strings out of their favorite cat.

Good Reasons —"Hi! Samuel, has you moved yit?" inquired one colored man of another whom he met at the central market yesterday. "No, Ise still in de old place," was the answer. "But I war, toled dat you war. gwine to git out ob de neighborhood," continued the first. „wall' I did make up my mind to, but you see de family next door, and de family on de corner, and de family ,cross de street have left dare woodpiles out doors, and I doesn't desire to change.

A Canadian farmer thus tells how he preserves eggs: "I take a tub of any size and put a layer of common salt about an inch deep in the bottom. Then grease the eggs with butter and place them in the salt with the small end down, so that they will not touch the wood of the tup nor each other; then fill the vacancies with salt and cover them again about an inch deep, as before: then place another layer of eggs as before; then salt, alternately, till the tub is filled; then cover the tub with salt and put them where they will not freeze. I have kept eggs in this manner from September till April, as good as fresh eggs. The grease on the shell keeps the salt from penetrating, thereby keeping the eggs fresh, while the saving qualities of the salt keep them from becoming putrid This recipe is both cheap and good, as the salt can be fed to cattle afterward.

N. Y. is the city of magnificent hotel But few people know or understand, however, the qualities necessary to the management of a first class hotel in New York. Great tact, rare judgment, fine nerve, and what the Rev. Robert Collyer calls "true grit," all must be displayed in the successful management. Sometimes all these fail, but perhaps the most notable instance of immediate and permanent success is found in the steady and increasing popularity of the Grand Central Hotel, on Broadway, New York. Combined with its management, to a great degree the Grand Central owes fine success to the liberal plan of adjusting its rates according to the location of the room occupied. This with a bill of fare hardly equaled by any hotel table in New York six meals per diem, is secured by the rate of from $3.00 to $4.00 per day, according to choice in selecting the floor desired.

A RACE WITH DEATH.

A story is told of an engineer on the Union Pacific Railroad who ran a race with death at the rate of forty miles an hour, and won by five seconds He was driving a passenger train West and was taken suddenly and seriously ill. He seemed to be aware that death was near, yet the train must reach Cheyenne before he could be relieved. That was the end of his route. He increased the speed of the engine and ran for life. Forty miles an hour saved his distance. He reached Cheyenne ahead of time and when the engineer who was to relieve him stepped in the engine he faintly gasped.—"Take the engine, I'm ready to die now." In five seconds he was a corpse It death had stepped abroad before the other engineer, what would have been the consequence to the passengers? But they did not see the grim specter running the engine like a phantom train.

Your local paper. The N. Y. Times says: You might nearly as well forget your churches, your academies and school houses, as to forget your local paper. It speaks to ten times the audience that your local minister does. It is read eagerly each week from beginning to end. It reaches you all, and if it has a lower spirit and less wisdom than a sermon. it has a thousand times better chance at you. Lying, as it does, on every table in almost ever house, you owe it to yourself to rally liberally to its support, and exact from it as able high-toned characters as you do from any educator in yovr midst. It is in no sense beneath notice and care—unless it is your representative. Indeed in its character it is the compilation of the importance, interest and welfare your own consequence, and you cannot ignore it without miserably depreciating yourselves.

An individual, possessing unmistakable evidence of African extraction was arraigned for larceny. The judge asked with emphasis "are you guilty or not?"

"Sar?"

"Did you steal these clothes?" he repeated.

"Golly boss, I declare I never done it."

"This man says you did."

"He ain't nothin' but white trash."

"And what are you?"

"Me! Why don't you know me? I rid with you in the procession. I helped to lead you home when you got tired that night. Don't yer remember me now?"

There was the "suddenest" not boss, in that darkey's case that judicial annals afford an example of. So much for the advantage of good society.

An Inhuman Monster.

Chicago Times.

Nelson Coleman, a farmer who resides about two and one-half miles north of Canton, Fulton county, this state, is probably the wickedst man in the north-west. One day ten years ago he was trying to lead a colt into an old rickety shed, when the animal became frightened and refused to enter. It was with a good deal of difficulty that he at last got the colt into the shed, and when he had succeeded he was so enraged that he swore that colt should never come out again alive He kept his oath, and the poor beast has been imprisoned all these long ten years in the place about ten feet square Winter and summer it has been the same. The poor hourse has stood at his crib, and never breathed a breath of pure air, nor ate a blade of grass.—The long confinement stunted his growth, so that at the time of his death which occurred a week ago, he was scarcely larger than a yearling. But he was sadly deformed. His hoofs had never received the attention of a blacksmith, and had grown so long that they curled over and back so as to touch the shins. Any one of them must have been eighteen inches longer than hoofs of horses usually are.—The knowledge of the existence of such an object of man's depravity coming to the Illinois humane society in this city, one of its agents. Mr. E. C Hamilton, was sent out to investigate the matter, and prosecute the owner of the poor beast for cruelty to animels. Coleman was arrested and tried on Saturday last, the prosecution being conducted by Mr. Hamilton, assisted by Mr. Abbot, the prosecuting attorney for Fulton county. That this monstrous cruelty should have been allowed to go on from year to year by the Christian people of Canton, a place renowned for its churches and morality, is strange, and is only to be accounted for on the ground that everybody was afraid of Coleman, and no one dared take steps toward prosecuting him.

Shooting Ducks.

"Speaking of shooting ducks," says Dr. F., "puts me in mind of the great storm that occurred when I lived on the island. As you are well aware, our island was near by Casco Bay; an awful storm arose, and was so fierce that it drove all the ducks in the bay into a pond, covering about an acre near my house. In fact, so many ducks crowded into that pond that I could not see a drop of water." "Sho," says Smith, "did ye shute any of em? "That's what I was coming at. I went into the house and got my double barrelled shot-gun and discharged both barrels right in the midst of them but, air, leaving not a solitary duck in the pond!" "Good gracious! ye don't say so!" says Smith; didn't ye hev any shot in your gun, or what in thunder was the trouble!" "Well I was coming to that," said Dr. F: it astonished me at first; but as soon as the ducks rose a few hundred yards in the air and commenced to separate a little, the ducks began to drop, and, whether you believe it or not, I picked up twenty-nine barrels of ducks, and it was a poor season for ducks too. You see the ducks were wedged in so solid in the pond that when they rose they carried the dead ones into the air with them, and when they separate, down came the twenty-nine barrels of dead ones."

EDUCATE THEM.

The number of idle boys on our streets is alarming. They may be found on every corner, smoking cigars chewing tobacco, swearing, listening to obscene stories, and learning all that is bad and demoralizing. They frequent billiard saloons, railroad depts, and, in short every place where they ought not go. These idle habits lead to profligacy, drunkenness and crime. It is impossible for a boy to associate with bad men without imitating their vices. Boys are apt pupils in the school of crime, and they learn to walk in crooked paths with astonishing facility. It is not uncommon to see charge. Who is responsible for county jail, affairs? Parents. What is the remedy? Education. There is no excuse for the father who fails to educate his son. Our schools are free, and books cost a mere pittance. It is not required of him to wear fine clothes. It costs no more to educate a boy than to let him idle his time on the streets, so the question of expence is not to be considered. True, there are parents who require the earnings of ther children to keep the wolf from the door, but idle boys earn nothing.

We are well aware that so much has been said and written on this subject that it is worn threadbare, and while it is not our province to preach or dictate, we can earnestly pray parents to send their boys to school. Give them a chance to grow into sober, industrious useful men. It is criminal to let a boy grow up in idleness or in ignorance While, in the light of recent events, we cannot claim that education is, in all cases. immunity from crime; yet none will deny that it is wise, and has a saultary effect on society. As a rule our prisons are filled with ignorent persons, and these men were idle boys, whose parents assumed the fearful responsibility of letting them grow up in idleness and now share their disgrace.

Some Figuring.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"It's the last time!" exclaimed Anthony Hock, as he was brought out."

"You've decided to quit eh?"

"Yes' your honor—yesterday was my last drunk. I've been counting up the cost, and I've made up my mind to live sober and save money after this."

"Anthony Hock you talk like a man! It does me good to hear a man speak up that way in this day and age. I's like finding a ten dollar bill while one is pawing over the colthes-basket to discover where the hired girl flung his Sunday boots. Stand right up to your resolution sir. I've been figuring a little, and I find that if a man will stop drinking liquor, tea and coffee, go bare footed, steal his wood, get trusted for provisions, cheat the landlord out of his rent, stand up in church to save pew-rent and live economically in other respects, he can save at least $500 per year. Now these, $500 per year for 400 years is $200.000. Just think of that without any effort to speak of you can in time be worth $200,000! You may go home, sir!"

E. Vordermark & sons have the best of stock of boots and shoes in America.—Parties that fail to call on the above firm will only have it to regret in their past history.

—AT THE—

FRUIT HOUSE.

We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. If times are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combined. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; no secret in it, simply purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumers.

Just take teas, for instance: We save our consumers on that article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the importer.

We save the profit of the jobber, 10 per cent, of the speculator, which is 15 per cent, of the wholesale grocer, which is 10 to 20 per cent, or as much more as he can get. All these profits our customers have the benefit of.

We still keep up the reduction of 15 per cent.

The unparalled success invariably attending the introduction of

DR. KING'S

New Discovery for Consumption.

Far surpasses that of any other medicine ever placed before the American people. In fact it has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. Wherever it is sold a lively and increasing demand is at once created, and why is it? Our answer is this: It is a remedy that travels on Its Own Merits and always gives Perfect Satisfaction, hence the success. We know whereof we speak and in order to prove this statement we make the following offer: Do not Ever Ask to Buy until you know what you are getting. All we ask of those troubled with consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c, is to go to

☞The wheat market last Wednesday was the largest of any during the winter, selling at 98 cents.

☞Miss Ella Chamberlain, of Waterloo is employed in the dressmaking department of H. H. Stamets Fancy store.

☞There was a whole family trying to "capture" a young lady at the Court House last Saturday.

It is too bad that the ice can't remain on the sidewalks, for it is so much preferable to the disgusting fragments of the rock that are substituted for the sidewalks themselves.

☞A French writer says that not one American in a hundred has a handsome chain. This is due to the fact that so many of our fellow citizens give nearly all their time to the cultivation of a cheek.

☞A Philadelphia doctor pronounced it an electric fit;" the coroner's Jury rendered a verdict accordingly, and the poor man went to his grave with that terrible stain on his character.

☞A Cleveland youth of rather fast proclivities, fell in love with a parson's daughter, and as a claim, said to the reverend gentleman: "I go my bottom dollar on piousness."

☞The woman who wore her absent lover's kisses on her lips for him to come and take again, survived long enough to bestow them on a responsible third party with good collateral securities.

☞Last Thursday two well built gentlemen came together [illegible] corner and had a fight. The object was, to see if one could take "five dollars worth," out of the other. The job was soon completed.

☞Good Reasons—"Hi! Samuel, has you moved yit?" inquired one colored man of another whom he met at the central market yesterday. "No, Ise still in de old place," was the answer. "But I war, toled dat you war. gwine to git out ob de neighborhood," continued the first. „wall' I did make up my mind to, but you see de family next door, and de family on de corner, and de family 'cross de street have left dare woodpiles out doors, and I doesn't desire to change.

☞A Canadian farmer thus tells how he preserves eggs: "I take a tub of any size and put a layer of common salt about an inch deep in the bottom. Then grease the eggs with butter and place them in the salt with the small end down, so that they will not touch the wood of the tup nor each other; then fill the vacancies with salt and cover them again about an inch deep, as before: then place another layer of eggs as before; then salt, alternately, till the tub is filled; then cover the tub with salt and put them where they will not freeze. I have kept eggs in this manner from September till April, as good as fresh eggs. The grease on the shell keeps the salt from penetrating, thereby keeping the eggs fresh, while the saving qualities of the salt keep them from becoming putrid This recipe is both cheap and good, as the salt can be fed to cattle afterward.

☞N. Y. is the city of magnificent hotel But few people know or understand, however, the qualities necessary to the management of a first class hotel in New York. Great tact, rare judgment, fine nerve, and what the Rev. Robert Collyer calls "true grit," all must be displayed in the successful management. Sometimes all these fail, but perhaps the most notable instance of immediate and premanent success is found in the steady and increasing popularity of the Grand Central Hotel, on Broadway, New York. Combined with its management, to a great degree the Grand Central owes fine success to the liberal plan of adjusting its rates according to the location of the room occupied. This with a bill of fare hardly equaled by any hotel table in New York six meals per diem, is secured by the rate of from $3.00 to $4.00 per day, according to choice in selecting the floor desired.

A RACE WITH DEATH.

A story is told of an engineer on the Union Pacific Railroad who ran a race with death at the rate of forty miles an hour, and won by five seconds He was driving a passenger train West and was taken suddenly and seriously ill. He seemed to be aware that death was near, yet the train must reach Cheyenne before he could be relieved. That was the end of his route. He increased the speed of the engine and ran for life. Forty miles an hour saved his distance. He reached Cheyenne ahead of time and when the engineer who was to relieve him stepped in the engine he faintly gasped,—"Take the engine, I'm ready to die now." In five seconds he was a corpse It death had stepped abroad before the other engineer, what would have been the consequence to the passengers? But they did not see the grim specter running the engine like a phantom train.

Your local paper. The N. Y. Times says: You might nearly as well forget your churches, your academies and school houses, as to forget your local paper. It speaks to ten times the audience that your local minister does. It is read eagerly each week from beginning to end. It reaches you all, and if it has a lower spirit and less wisdom than a sermon, it has a thousand times better chance at you. Lying, as it does, on every table in almost ever house, you owe it to yourself to rally liberally to its support, and exact from it as able high-toned characters as you do from any educator in your midst. It is in no sense beneath notice and care—unless it is your representative. Indeed in its character it is the compilation of the importance, interest and welfare your own consequence, and you cannot ignore it without miserably depreciating yourselves.

☞An individual, possessing unmistakable evidence of African extraction, was arraigned for larceny. The judge [illegible] right, was dignified, one said, [illegible] emphasis-"are you guilty or not?

"Sar?"

"Did you steal these clothes?" he repeated.

"Golly boss, I declare I never done it."

"This man says you did."

"He ain't nothin' but white trash."

"And what are you?"

"Me! Why don't you know me? I rid with you in the procession. I helped to lead you home when you got tired that night. Don't yer remember me now?"

There was the "suddenest" not boss, in that darkey's case that judicial annals afford an example of. So much for the advantage of good society.

An Inhuman Monster.

Chicago Times.

Nelson Coleman, a farmer who resides about two and one-half miles north of Canton, Fulton county, this state, is probably the wickedst man in the north-west. One day ten years ago he was trying to lead a colt into an old rickety shed, when the animal became frightened and refused to enter. It was with a good deal of difficulty that he at last got the colt into the shed, and when he had succeeded he was so enraged that he swore that colt should never come out again alive He kept his oath, and the poor beast has been imprisoned all these long ten years in the place about ten feet square Winter and summer it has been the same. The poor hourse has stood at his crib, and never breathed a breath of pure air, nor ate a blade of grass.—The long confinement stunted his growth so that at the time of his death which occurred a week ago, he was scarcely larger than a yearling. But he was sadly deformed. His hoofs had never received the attention of a blacksmith, and had grown so long that they curled over and back so as to touch the shins. Any one of them must have been eighteen inches longer than hoofs of hoises usually are.—The knowledge of the existence of such an object of man's depravity coming to the Illinois humane society in this city, one of its agents. Mr. E. C Hamilton, was sent out to investigate the matter, and prosecute the owner of the poor beast for cruelty to animels. Coleman was arrested and tried on Saturday last, the prosecution being conducted by Mr. Hamilton, assisted by Mr. Abbot, the prosecuting attorney for Fulton county. That this monstrous cruelty should have been allowed to go on from year to year by the Christian people of Canton, a place renowned for its churches and morality, is strange, and is only to be accounted for on the ground that everybody was afraid of Coleman, and no one dared take steps toward prosecuting him.

Shooting Ducks.

"Speaking of shooting ducks," says Dr. F., "puts me in mind of the great storm that occurred when I lived on the island. As you are well aware, our island was near by Casco Bay; an awful storm arose, and was so fierce that it drove all the ducks in the bay into a pond, covering about an acre near my house. In fact, so many ducks crowded into that pond that I could not see a drop of water." "Sho," says Smith, "did ye shute any of em? "That's what I was coming at. I went into the house and got my double barrelled shot-gun and discharged both barrels right in the midst of them but, sir, leaving not a solitary duck in the pond?" "Good gracious! ye don't say so!" says Smith; didn't ye hev any shot in your gun, or what in thunder was the trouble!" "Well I was coming to that," said Dr. F; it astonished me at first; but as soon as the ducks rose a few hundred yards in the air and commenced to separate a little, the ducks began to drop, and, whether you believe it or not, I picked up twenty-nine barrels of ducks, and it was a poor season for ducks too. You see the ducks were wedged in so solid in the pond that when they rose they carried the dead ones into the air with them, and when they separate, down came the twenty-nine barrels of dead ones."

EDUCATE THEM.

The number of idle boys on our streets is alarming. They may be found on every corner, smoking cigars chewing tobacco, swearing, listening to obscene stories, and learning all that is bad and demoralizing. They frequent billiard saloons, railroad depts, and, in short every place where they ought not go. These idle habits lead to profligacy, drunkenness and crime. It is impossible for a boy to associate with bad men without imitating their vices. Boys are apt pupils in the school of crime, and they learn to walk in crooked paths with astonishing rapidity. It is not uncommon to see boys [illegible] in our county jail, charged with revolting crimes.

Who is responsible for this state of affairs? Parents. What is the remedy? Education. There is no excuse for the father who fails to educate his son. Our schools are free, and books cost a mere pittance. It is not required of him to wear fine clothes. It costs no more to educate a boy than to let him idle his time on the streets, so the question of expence is not to be considered. True, there are parents who require the earnings of ther children to keep the wolf from the door, but idle boys earn nothing.

We are well aware that so much has been said and written on this subject that it is worn threadbare, and while it is not our province to preach or dictate, we can earnestly pray parents to send their boys to school. Give them a chance to grow into sober, industrious useful men. It is criminal to let a boy grow up in idleness or in ignorance While, in the light of recent events, we cannot claim that education is, in all cases, immunity from crime; yet none will deny that it is wise, and has a sanitary effect on society. As a rule our prisons are filled with ignorant persons, and these men were idle boys, whose parents assumed the fearful responsibility of letting them grow up in idleness and now share their disgrace.

Some Figuring.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"It's the last time!" exclaimed Anthony Hock, as he was brought out."

"You've decided to quit eh?"

"Yes' your honor—yesterday was my last drunk. I've been counting up the cost, and I've made up my mind to live sober and save money after this."

"Anthony Hock you talk like a man! It does me good to hear a man speak up that way in this day and age. I's like finding a ten dollar bill while one is pawing over the colthes-basket to discover where the hired girl flung his Sunday boots. Stand right up to your resolution sir. I've been figuring a little, and I find that if a man will stop drinking liquor, tea and coffee, go bare footed, steal his wood, get trusted for provisions, cheat the landlord out of his rent, stand up in church to save pew-rent and live economically in other respects, he can save at least $500 per year. Now these, $500 per year for 400 years is $200,000. Just think of that without any effort to speak of you can in time be worth $300,000! You may go home, sir!"

E. Vordermark & sons have the best of stock of boots and shoes in America.—Parties that fail to call on the above firm will only have it to regret in their past history.

NURSERY RHYMES FOR THE TIMES.

I.

Ladybird, Ladybird, fly from your home;
Whatever the fashion, your right is to roam;
What's the day's woes of wife
To enjoyment of life?—
Thee that humdrum folks bind
To a woman of mind?
Leave your children to servants—an excellent plan—
And your husband to make himself useful as he can;
If you're rich, leave your soul to the guardian of Rome—
But of all things, O Ladybird, fly from your home!

II.

There was a little Maid, and there was a little Man,
And to that little maiden that little spoon began,
"Little Maid, I'm twenty-three,
Not bad looking—as you see—
May I dare hope your accepted, Miss, to be, be, be?"

Rather bored, that little Maid aside her volume laid,
And with this startling query that little man dismayed:
"Query [illegible]—do you know Dutch?"
"Well," he answered, "so—not much."
"Then," she said, "my heart how can you think to [illegible]"

Amazed, that little Man [illegible] that little Maid—
"Do you mean that hearts in Dutch must at ladies' feet be laid?"
"[illegible]," she answered, very glum,
"If not solvable, be dumb—
Dutch, with French, Italian, German, is my minimum, [illegible]!"

"Where are you going, my pretty Maid?"
"I'm going to be lectured to, Sir," she said.

"May I go with you, my pretty Maid?"
"I don't think my Lecturer would please you," she said.

"What is the subject, then, my pretty Maid?"
"Painless extraction of male kind," she said.

"There'll be no one to marry you, my pretty Maid!"
"Advanced girls don't want husbands, Sir," she said.

THE WARNING.

Night had settled down over the dreary sea-coast, and over the throbbing, restless sea. The wind lifted itself with a swelling sound, and roved about a lonely-looking fisherman's cottage that stood on the beach, shaking the doors and windows, ever and anon sinking into low murmurs. Shapeless clouds drifted across the dim, blue firmament. The moon shone at intervals; but its fitful light lent no charm to the dismal scene. There was only one other habitation in sight; and it was a large, old-fashioned mansion, standing far back in the country, yet whose massive frame stood out boldly against the steely blue.

Those dwellings were the only visible token that man had invaded this dreary waste; for, aside from them, nothing met the eye save a sinuous, curving road, great jagged cliffs, and stretches of barren land, broken here and there with patches of gaunt, leafless trees.

A light glowed in the latticed window of the fisherman's dwelling—it looked cheerful.

Before a fire which burned on the hearth of the capacious fireplace within, a young girl sat, listening to the roaring, moaning anthem of the winds. It was a beautiful face that, at times, bent meditatively toward the fire, or gazed out of the window. A pale, yet sweet face, with bright, carmine eyes, and an abundance of soft, dark hair—the face of a young girl scarce past her seventeenth year.

This was Lila Wynde, the only child of an old fisherman, who had dwelt in this cottage on the beach as far back as she could remember. There was something remarkable about the young girl. Looking at her, one would probably call her lovely; but sad, weak and timid. She was weak, truly, as far as physical strength is concerned; but beneath her timidity lurked a firmness of purpose which waited only the proper moment to bring it into life and action.

There were two doors leading from the room in which she sat—one to a sort of closet used as a receptacle for books and various miscellaneous articles; the other into a larger room, which was occupied now by her father and a man in whose hand she had intrusted her happiness.

Carl Connor was a sailor—a firm, true friend of old Casper Wynde; and although Lila felt only an ordinary regard for him, she had, when he asked her to be his wife, obeyed the often-expressed desire of her father, and accepted him. More than once dark whispers regarding Carl's early life came to her, for she had known him but a short time; but these she refused to believe—or, at least, affected incredulity.

They had been engaged at the time we write upward of a year. If they had been married then, the current of her life might have flowed on as smoothly and evenly as ever, without even a ripple marring its placidity. But destiny had decreed it otherwise.

We will not enter into details as to the manner in which Rhoderick Orvis became acquainted with Ella Wynde. Suffice it to say, he resided, with his sister Alice, a beautiful girl about Lila's age, in the capacious mansion on the hill.

They lived in almost rigid seclusion; but Lila, somehow, became a welcome guest beneath their roof; and in this way an intimacy sprang up between her and the young man which daily ripened into deeper feelings—ay, into deep, pure, enduring love.

But Rhoderick hesitated to breathe his passion; and Lila did not know how deep her feelings were enlisted in his favor, until Carl, who had kept a strict surveillance on their actions, broke forth in a storm of passionate jealousy. Then Lila knew she loved Rhoderick Orvis, although her faith was plighted to another.

Her position was pitiable. To appeal to Carl's better nature—to tell him that marriage-vows to him were lies to kill her soul—to ask him to release her—was, she intuitively felt, futile. Instead, therefore, of denying his accusation, she burst into a wild fit of weeping, which fully confirmed his suspicions, while it added fuel to the flames of jealousy smoldering in his heart. His was a nature at once crafty, evil and cunning. So he pretended contrition, asked pardon for doubting her love, professing to believe it was wholly his, and changed the conversation.

His plans were already laid. What they were remains to be seen.

All this, and more, passed through Lila Wynde's mind as she sat there, and had grown weary of listening to the clamor of the winds. The fire died out; the old-fashioned clock in the corner struck twelve. Lila rose, walked to the window, and pushed aside the curtain. The sea shone like molten silver in the dim moonlight, girdled by the weird-looking beach, which stretched away into the shadow of night, along which the incoming tide was breaking with no little tumult. Lila smiled; she was thinking of Rhoderick Orvis. Then a cloud passed over her face as some unpleasant thought came into her mind, and dropping the curtain, she turned away hastily. A bright fire burned in the other room, where her father and Carl sat; but now there was a lull in their conversation, and the silence of death reigned everywhere.

It must have been instinct that prompted Lila to walk to the closet, take a book, matches, and a small lamp from a shelf near the door; as she came out a few words Carl addressed her father fell upon her ears and transfixed her to the spot. She listened breathlessly.

"I tell you he has the money—will bring it from the town to-night," Carl said eagerly. "A thousand pounds are not to be picked up every day."

"No," her father answered; there was a strange hesitation in his voice, she thought.

"[illegible]"

"He may make a desperate resistance. Are we prepared for it?"

For answer, Carl drew out a revolver, and laid it on the table beside him; his eye flashed defiantly, and his face was aglow with very wickedness.

"No, no! not that!" the old fisherman said, hoarsely.

"And why not?" Carl responded, savagely. "Why not, when the money will enable us to live like men? This is my plan; we will get the money—we must not let a life stand in the way. Once in our possession, we will fly the country, Lila and all! It will be too hot to hold us," he added, with a bitter, reckless, ringing laugh.

Her father made some reply which Lila failed to overhear; but she caught these words, after the lapse of some minutes: "In half an hour. 'Twill be after midnight then; and the dark, lonely glen is just the place. No prying eyes there."

All this Lila heard distinctly—heard as one hears in a dream. Long before they ceased speaking, the truth dawned upon her. The man whom they proposed to rob, and, perhaps, murder, was Rhoderick Orvis.

He had lately purchased a tract of land adjoining his own, and the money was to pay the person from whom he bought it. It was an awful moment for the young girl! For an instant she seemed about to lose her senses; the next she grew calm, and her heart rose up proud, defiant and courageous. She would save him!

But she must act quickly; not a minute was to be lost. Carl and her father were making ready to start. To snatch a heavy cloak from the opposite wall, wrap it about her shoulders, and move swiftly across the room to the door, was for Lila the work of scarcely more than a second. She unfastened the door, closed it noiselessly, and found herself in the little yard outside. It was some distance from the house to the glen; but the journey was one of rapid execution. And hardly had she gained the top of the narrow gorge, when the sound of wheels coming swiftly over the rough road fell upon her ears, and presently a phaeton containing Rhoderick and Alice Orvis came in sight.

With a fervent prayer on her white lips, the young girl glided forward as they drew near the spot where she was tremblingly stationed, and the phaeton halted when the occupants observed the dark-robed figure standing in the center of the road, effectually barring further progress. Lila addressed them at once.

"Back, back!" she cried, in sharp, exciting tones. "If you value your lives, turn back! Death lurks in the path you are pursuing!"

A thrill of superstitious awe ran through her listeners. Alice uttered a cry of mingled terror and alarm; but Rhoderick rose up, saying, as he did so, "Who are you?"

"A friend! Do as I bid you, and all will be well," was answered. "Remember, you are warned!" floated back to them on the still night air. And Lila was gone.

There was no mistaking the sincerity of her words. Rhoderick felt this, and, acting upon the impulse of the moment, and the wild entreaties of his sister, he sprang from the vehicle, assisted her to alight, and securing the horse to a tree, turned into a path that led across the fields to their house. It was his intention to return as soon as he had conducted his sister home, take charge of the horse, and, if possible, learn more respecting the night's adventure. Neither recognized the person who gave them the timely warning; and Rhoderick had not the faintest idea that it was gentle Lila Wynde who had saved his life.

Their retreating footsteps had not died away before old Casper Wynde entered the glen, and glancing about him at every step, as though he feared their prey had escaped. What his conjectures were on finding the horse and vehicle there, we cannot say; but a glimmering of the truth must have come to him there; for, after a moment's hesitation, he sprang into the chaise, seized the reins, and drove rapidly down the glen to the spot where Carl was lying in concealment. At the bottom of the vehicle was a large fur cloak, which Rhoderick had worn and forgotten in his hasty departure; and almost unconsciously the old man drew this about his shoulders. Attired thus, a casual observer would have easily mistaken him for Rhoderick Orvis. Their height was almost similar, and their figures were certainly much the same.

By this time he had gained the glen and passed on. A moment after, the report of a pistol rang out, and a bullet whistled along the beach. That shot was a fatal one.

Lila, hurrying breathlessly homeward, heard it and shuddered. She had meant to avoid the spot where she guessed her father and Carl laid in wait for their victim; but now, impelled by a stronger curiosity than she could resist, she ran thither.

It was an open space at the end of the glen, covered almost with huge bowlders, around which the road ran like a great white serpent; and when she reached the place, a strange sight met her eyes.

Carl Connor was standing beside the prostrate form of her father; far down the road she saw a horse and phaeton going at a fearful speed, certes running away. Lila grew pale as the dead. She took a step nearer Carl, and this was but to confirm the fear that suddenly smote her—her father was dead! Yes, dead! and the moonlight streaming about him showed a fatal wound in his breast, from which the blood was oozing in a crimson stream.

When she saw Rhoderick's cloak lying near him—even then she recognized it—her mind grasped the truth. Carl had mistaken her father for Rhoderick Orvis, and shot him dead. And [illegible] the old fisherman rode straight to his doom.

Slowly the horrified girl turned to Carl. His face looked, in the weirdly glimmering moonlight, the color of death itself; a tremor shook him from head to foot; he seemed paralyzed with horror. He moved toward her; but she waved him off.

"Go!" she said slowly, solemnly, sternly. "Go, and never let me look upon your face again. Go, and may the orphan's curse forever follow you!"

Without a word, without daring to cast a glance at the rigid form of his miserable victim, the guilty, terrified villain [illegible] away, never to return! Then Lila Wynde's senses reeled, and, pale [illegible], she sank to the [illegible] beside the dead body of her father.

And thus Rhoderick Orvis found her a few moments later.

It was a year before Lila recovered from the effect of the dreadful shock she received that night, or ceased to think of her father's terrible fate. And when she became Rhoderick's wife, even the limitless love he lavished upon her did not suffice to banish it entirely from her mind.

THE FAILURES OF 1874.

The Number of Houses that Went Under Last Year, and Their Liabilities.

The commercial agency of R. G. Dun & Co. reports the failures of the year 1874, as compared with those of 1873, as follows:

STATES.	1874. No. of failures.	1874. Amount of liabilities.	1873. No. of failures.	1873. Amount of liabilities.

The noticeable feature in the above is that, while the number of failures exceeds that of last year, there is a marked diminution in the amount of liabilities. Two causes are assignable for this, viz: First, that the panic of 1873 caused the failure of an [illegible] houses, thus raising very much the average amount of liabilities over all previous years. Second, that the volume of business had been greatly diminished during 1874, so that, when failures did occur, the liabilities were comparatively light; and, further, that the houses which succumbed during the year were in a great degree a smaller class of traders than those of 1873, and, indeed, we may add, than the average of those of several preceding years.

A Remarkable Editor.

The London Echo of Jan. 11 says: "The career of a French journal is usually a chequered one, and the vicissitudes of the Gazette de France, which, having attained the age of 244 years, has just been sold by auction, would fill a volume. One of its hottest periods, however, was during the monarchy of July. The Gazette was one of the last French journals which employed a dummy as responsible editor, and during the reign of Louis Philippe this post was filled by a worthy man of the name of Aubry Poncault, who had been steward or an upper servant of some sort in the household of his master, M. De Genoude, the real editor and proprietor of the Gazette de France. All he had to do was to sign the editorials with his own name, and it was the delight of young barristers to hear him, on the frequent occasions when the journal came into collision with the press laws, own to the authorship of the incriminated leaders in such ungrammatical French as to leave no doubt that his martyrdom was vicarious. Martyred he certainly was; immense fines were inflicted, at least ostensibly, upon him, and his imprisonments were many and long. When his occupation was at last gone, the good man fell back upon his recollections of the distinguished persons he had seen during his career as a journalist, and loved to recall the fact that Chateaubriand had twice spoken to him. 'Yes,' he would say, 'twice—once he asked me to put his cane in the corner, and the second time, as I was about to show him in to M. De Genoude, he said, "Never mind, Aubry, I will go straight in!" Ah! I shall never forget these words!'"

An Explosive Fish.

A machine has at length been constructed which will travel at a speed of nine knots an hour for 300 yards, and at a lower speed for no less a distance than a mile. It will maintain any direction impressed upon it, and it can be launched either from a boat or an iron-clad, by night or by day. In short, it is a kind of explosive fish, which, in obedience to its masters, will swim for a mile toward any adversary at which it may be directed, and will strike a dangerous, if not a fatal, blow. If ships at a distance of a mile can be struck with certainty by a mechanical fish discharged from a harbor, no anchorage will be safe, and, when two fleets approach one another, each will have to encounter innumerable foes. Every sea and harbor will practically be a mine of torpedoes, and any vessel of light construction must be hopelessly doomed.

THE Danburian, issued under the auspices of C. E. A. McGready, late editor of the News, is out, and is an admirable paper, bright and newsy, and with a flavor of real journalism. Danbury always was a lucky town.

A FROZEN THERMOMETER.

Experiments with Mercury in Montana—A Disgusted Professor.

According to the New Northwest there has been some remarkably cold weather in Silver Bow, Montana. A correspondent of that paper furnishes the following interesting item of news:

"Your favor of the 10th is at hand, and inquiries answered herewith. On the evening of January 8th, several persons being in my store, and the spirit thermometer registering "35 deg. below," the remark was made that quicksilver would congeal at three degrees lower. I requested my clerk, Mr. Stolte, to thoroughly cleanse a tumbler and partially fill it with quicksilver. We then exposed the glass of mercury and the spirit thermometer on the roof of the fire-proof on the north side of the store, giving them as nearly equal exposure as possible. An hour after, the thermometer marked 38 deg. below, but the quicksilver still remained unchanged. At 9:20 p. m. the thermometer stood 40 deg. below; still the quicksilver was live, but terribly cold. At 9:40 p. m. the spirit indicated 41 deg. below; the quicksilver was hardening on the outside. A few minutes later the thermometer stood 42 deg. below. I picked up the tumbler of quicksilver, and to my astonishment found it completely solidified—as hard as a rock. I carried it into the store, and several persons examined it, it remaining in that condition some time before it showed life.

On January 10, at 11 p. m., the thermometer stood 35 deg. below; January 11, at 7 a. m., 44 deg. below; January 11, 9 p. m., 36 deg. below. On the evening of January 8, the evening above mentioned, at 10:30 p. m., the register was 46 deg. below. This is the coldest weather we have had.

Under date of January 14, the correspondent adds the following news, expressed in the peculiar style of the West: "Jack Frost held the best hand last night, and played it as follows: At 9:45 p. m. the thermometer stood 50 deg. below; at 10:30 p. m., 54 deg. below; at 11:30 p. m. 56 deg. below."

The weather locals of the Northwest make up an interesting collection. The following are a few specimen bricks:

As the stage came through Blackfoot on Tuesday evening, nobody could tell how cold it was; all the thermometers were frozen. The Independent, of Thursday, contains an account of the freezing to death of four Chinamen, going down the gulch below town. A couple of gentlemen of this burg intend to procure and place on the summit of Mount Powell, next fall, to remain through the winter, a registered spirit thermometer, graduated down about two feet below zero. The interest of the record would be increased if they could attach to it a self-registering almanac.

The most disgusted man in Deer Lodge this winter is Granville Stuart, Esq., the most careful thermometrical observer in Montana. Anticipating a possible spell of weather that the mercurial thermometers would be inadequate to record, he sent to New York for a fine spirit thermometer, for which he was charged a spirited price. It arrived in good season, but on examining it it was found to be only graduated to thirty degrees below zero. He says it is a good enough summer thermometer, but it isn't "calculated" for this kind of a winter.

The Drought in New England.

For six months the people of the Eastern States have been complaining of want of rain. Mills have been compelled to shorten working hours, farmers have been put to much extra labor to obtain water for their stock, and in many towns water has been sold by the barrel. One farmer in New Hampshire, it is said, has 500 barrels of cider, but no water; and in another town a farmer's house took fire and the flames were extinguished by throwing cider upon them, water not being obtainable. The Boston Herald is inclined to blame the people for this lack. It says: "In the last century New England was pretty well covered with trees, and the rain that fell soaked into the ground, ran slowly down the valleys and finally reached the ocean. Now the land is stripped of trees; the hills, and mountain regions, even, where the sources of our rivers are, have been bared to the scorching rays of the sun, and nearly two-thirds of all the rain that falls evaporates before it reaches the seaboard. This has dried up the streams into brooks, the brooks into mere rivulets, with dusty bottoms, for months. This has ruined many of our trout brooks. This, too, by causing the sudden departure of the snows in spring, causes many destructive freshets. In the thick Maine woods the gradual melting of the snow lasts for weeks and keeps the rivers at a high pitch, while the streams whose head waters flow from a country stripped of trees rise and fall with the suddenness of mountain brooks after a shower. The reckless improvidence, due to cupidity and carelessness, which has made so much of our territory a hideous expanse of ragged, rocky, worthless fields, is the cause of our droughts. Improvidence must bear the blame, not Providence."

How He Saved a Choking Child.

A correspondent, writing from Reno, Nev., to the Sacramento Union, tells how he saved the life of a child. He writes: "I was engaged in hauling wood from a timber ranch to Austin, Reese River, Nev. There was a house over the summit from the above place, where resided two families belonging to the wood-choppers, and on arriving in sight of the house a woman came out and beckoned me to make haste, that something was wrong. I did so, and just in time, for the other woman came out holding a child in her arms, apparently dead. It was black in the face. She told me the child had been eating pine-nuts, and had got a shell in its throat, had choked, and was dying. I immediately got a piece of board about four feet long and placed it across the door-sill. She sat the child on one end and I tipped the other, making a sudden jar, which caused the shell to pass downward, and gave the child immediate relief. No person can imagine how overjoyed that mother was for saving her only child. I know of several cases in which this process has proved successful."

A COLUMBUS doctor has nearly killed his practice by declaring that a child had worms when it had a thimble in its throat; but who of us is infallible?

CAN SUCH THINGS BE?

A Revolting Story from the Land of Wooden Nutmegs.

A horrible story of misery, incest and death comes from Lyme, Connecticut. There is evidently a fine field for missionary civilization there, if half of this disgusting recital is true:

"It has already been stated that by the burning of a house in this town, a few nights since, two of the seven children of the owner—one Daniels—who had to flee for their lives, were frozen to death. But the most horrible part of the story has just come to light. Daniels had forbidden his children, who had suffered in this absence for the necessities of life, to make their condition known to the neighbors, and so deeply were they in awe of [illegible] that they dared not seek refuge in the house of a neighbor, but when the house was burned, huddled in a clump of bushes [illegible]. None of the neighbors knew of the fire till morning, and when they went to the scene they found the body of one girl, 18 years of age, frozen stiff to the ice. Her chemise, her only garment, had been torn off by the younger ones to keep themselves warm. All that remained of the garment on her person was the yoke, and part of this, with portions of the skin and flesh, remained on the ice when the body was removed. Another child was so badly frozen that it has since died.

"A still more terrible part remains to be told. A daughter of Daniels, 17 years old, was one of the party saved, and, with her was found clasped to her bosom, her babe 12 months old. The father of this babe, it is asserted by the town authorities of Lyme, is her own father. Daniels has fled for parts unknown."

Medical Notes.

THE Massachusetts Dental Society has passed resolutions emphatically condemning the use of chloroform as an anæsthetic, and declaring any member administering it liable to expulsion.

A SURE REMEDY FOR A FELON.—This very painful eruption, with all the "remedies" recommended, is seldom arrested until it has run a certain course, after causing great suffering for two or three days and nights. The following remedy is vouched for by the Buffalo Advocate, as a certain thing from its own knowledge: "Take a pint of common soft-soap and stir in air-slacked lime till it is of the consistency of glazier's putty. Make a leather thimble, fill it with this composition, and insert the finger therein, and a cure is certain." This is a domestic application that every house-keeper can apply promptly.

HOW TO CURE A SORE THROAT.—"One who has tried it"—communicates the following seasonable item about curing sore throat: "Let each one of your half million readers buy at any drug store one ounce of camphorated oil and five cents' worth of chloride of potash. Whenever any soreness appears in the throat, put the potash in half a tumbler of water, and with it gargle the throat thoroughly, then rub the neck thoroughly with the camphorated oil at night before going to bed, and also pin around the throat a small strip of woolen flannel. This is a simple, cheap and sure remedy."

The Neck.

Perfect health demands that the clothing about the neck should be very moderate in quantity, and worn so loose, as to prevent the slightest compression. The great error frequently committed in clothing this part of the body consists in wearing such an amount as to overheat and weaken the throat, and thus render it easily susceptible to cold, or in wearing it so tight as to retard the circulation of the blood to and from the head. Great care should be exercised upon this point, as the arteries and veins leading from the heart to the brain are situated so near the surface in the neck that a slight compression there serves to check the flow of the blood. Many cases of congestion of the brain and headache are caused by too tight collars and cravats.

A Hunter's Paradise.

The delights of hunting in Oregon, as described by an old hand: "Going up the mountain side I espied a big buck standing by a fir tree; I leveled my old gun, which carries a half ounce ball; at the crack of the gun, and as soon as the smoke cleared away, I saw my deer lying at the root of the tree; I ran up and cut its windpipe. As I was standing looking at my deer kicking around, I saw honey running out of the tree where my bullet went in. I was in a big hurry to find something to stick in the tree to stop the honey from wasting. I grabbed down to get something, and there was a pheasant; I grabbed its head and wrung it off and stuck its neck in the tree and stopped the honey from wasting. After I had my deer fixed up, I commenced looking out for my pheasant; when I jerked its head off its body went into a band of quail, and killed ten of them."

THE New York Times thus tells how the young man Brown wasted himself on the old man Butler: "The most ridiculous feature of it all is that 'Young Brown' actually wasted all his beautiful eloquence on Ben. Butler, a man who thinks no more of being called hard names than another man does of eating his dinner. To call him a 'thief' and a 'murderer' is like scratching a rhinoceros with a pin. 'Young Brown's' sarcasms, which have doubtless broken sadly upon his midnight slumbers, are all thrown away on the cast-iron hide of the distinguished soldier and statesman, who proudly announced to the country some time ago that his true name was 'Old Cock-eye.' 'Young Brown' might have just as well tried to batter down the dome of the Capitol with a pea-shooter as to make Old Cock-eye wince with a few barbaric phrases, cudgeled out of his own dull brain and flavored with Junius."

CHICAGO Times: "Just as we would be glad to know that the devil had done a decent thing so we are rejoiced that a good word for Butler may sincerely be said. A Washington correspondent, whose journal certainly has no intention to flatter this cross-eyed man of destiny, writes that in domestic life no man could be more charitable, gentle, and pleasing. He is familiar with every branch of literature both grave and fanciful, and his wife, who is skilled as an elocutionist, reads to him a great deal. At home he is courteous in manner, charming in conversation, hospitable to the few favored friends who are welcomed to his home."

HERE is a good story that Rev. Dr. Adams tells on himself. A lady parishionier once remarked to him that his sermons were a little too long. "Don't you think so, Dr. Adams," said she, "just a little?" "Ah, good sister," said he, "I am afraid you don't like 'the sincere milk of the word.'" "Yes, I do," said she; "but you know the fashion nowadays is condensed milk."

A LADY of Washington county, New York, is a mother of a large family of children, and they are all rather diminutive. A few days after the birth of the youngest a little niece of the lady called to see the baby. After looking at the tiny specimen for a few minutes, the little girl said: "Aunt Maria, don't you think it would be better to have less of 'em, and have 'em bigger?"

AN amateur florist's next-door neighbor buried a rat in a flower-pot, leaving the tail protruding from the earth and trained to a stick, and then presented it to him as a rare specimen of cactus. She insisted that, just so surely as he attempted to rearrange the sticks with the tongs he put the fire out. "Mr. Jones," cried his wife, as he reached the door, "come back and take the tongs."

THE Versailles Assembly was elected about four years ago, or February, 1871, and has lived longer than any previous French Legislature born in stormy and revolutionary times. Unwilling to create a republic, powerless to establish a monarchy, it hit upon a new form of government called "Septennat," and which, translated, means "a little of everything" all at once. The members thought they could do that, as the instructions they received at the polls were pieces of snow-white paper. Having made peace, paid the indemnity, and freed the soil and given birth to the Septennat, they don't want to go home until the morning after a night's jolly spree with a couple or so of crowned heads in the stiff old palace of Louis Quatorze, hard by. Some of their constituents are looking on, meanwhile, like enraged sheep; others laugh, and others, again, would like to hold candles at the feast whenever it should come off.

PRYOR.

We are glad to be able to record the name of somebody who has not been injured by his connection with the Beecher-Tilton scandal. It has given Gen. Roger A. Pryor the opportunity of proving that he is a great deal more of a lawyer and an advocate than he has heretofore got credit for in Brooklyn. Pryor has seen a great deal of the world, but he is none the less a very unobtrusive man.

TRACY.

Tilton's counsel objected to Mr. Tracy's appearance among the lawyers on the Beecher side, on the ground that he had been consulted by Tilton and Moulton on the question of how they should deal with what was then termed the "Woodhull scandal." Inasmuch as Mr. Tracy was intrusted with no confidences in which the whole world has not since shared, it is not easy to see what advantage Tracy had over other counsel, or why a rule which should exclude Mr. Tracy would not shut out of the case every lawyer in the land, who had read the multiform "statements" published by Tilton and Moulton.

BEACH.

A good-humored conversation took place last week between the counsel engaged on the respective sides of the great scandal case. A morning paper, it seems, referred to Mr. Evarts as the oldest of the lawyers engaged on either side. Mr. Evarts resented this, good naturedly, and charged Mr. Beach with being eight years his senior. As Mr. Evarts owns up to 63, this would leave Beach 71 years of age. Beach owns up to 65, and, in either case, he is the best preserved man among the lawyers in the case. Fullerton is 55, and he is especially sensitive under any reference to him as "the old man."

MOULTON.

Whatever may be said of Frank Moulton's position in the Beecher case, it cannot be denied that he gained largely in public estimation by his conduct as a witness. His ability, coolness, endurance, courage and courtesy was conceded by both sides. Underneath it all there was evident, no doubt, a direct and deadly purpose to do the worst he could against the man he served, on his own showing, so earnestly and so long. It is reported that Mr. Moulton "dieted" himself for the trying ordeal to which he was to be subjected, after the manner of men who try to win renown in the prize ring. Physically Frank came out of the case in such a condition, that as the Western man said, "he could hold his own with his weight in wild cats."

MRS. TILTON.

Mrs. Tilton is a little lady who weighs about one hundred pounds. She has had five or six children, and the concurrent testimony of all who know her is, that she is the most amiable of women. She is on trial, virtually, on charge of committing adultery. She has sworn that she is innocent. Her husband and half a dozen of the ablest lawyers of the land can succeed, it is pitiful to the think, only by sending her out of the court branded as a perjurer and an adulteress. The age of chivalry surely has returned.

Autographs and Photographs.

Beecher and Tilton receive, on an average, twenty letters a day asking for their autographs and photographs, which are, of course, not sent. Some of the writers want the signatures and pictures of both. They don't want to be partial.

Tracy's Estimate of Moulton.

It is reported that Tracy said privately, at the close of Moulton's testimony, after adjournment of the court, "D—— such a witness! You never know where to find him; how to get at him. There's no getting the advantage of him. He's so confoundedly amiable, too, or appears to be, that he puts you out in spite of yourself. I'd rather examine a hundred ordinary witnesses a week than grapple with Moulton for an hour."

A Nine Months' Wonder.

[Junius Henri Browne's Letter.]

The Plymouth church scandal will prove a nine months' instead of a nine days' wonder. Almost everybody is poring over the reports of the suit. The town across the river has been elevated into national importance. Every Brooklynite feels of unusual consequence. Every person connected with the case, directly or indirectly, has become a notability. Beecher and Tilton's children and distant relatives, not less than their counsel and probable witnesses, are pointed out and gazed after in the street.

The Chambermaid in the Farce.

[Dr. Syntax's Letter.]

The cruelest, the deadliest thrusts at the very heart of Mrs. Tilton's womanhood do not even heighten the blush which has lately enthroned itself upon her cheeks. To-day, with her husband in the witness chair, disclosing the story of her shame, and her alleged lover blindly indifferent to her, staring out of the window, she was as dowdily commonplace as any servant girl arraigned before a Police Justice. Anybody dropping into court, and assisting at the spectacle without comprehending it, would surely mistake her for a lady's maid "in trouble" for the annexation of a silk dress or a diamond ring. Mrs. Beecher looks like the Muse of Tragedy. Mrs. Tilton is, to all appearance, the chambermaid in a farce.

Mr. Beecher's Health.

[From his Statement before the Plymouth Committee, August 13.]

In my letter to Mrs. Tilton I alluded to the fact that I did not expect, when I saw her last, to be alive many days. That statement stands connected with a series of symptoms which I first experienced in 1856. I went through the Fremont campaign, speaking in the open air three hours at a time, three days in the week. On renewing my literary labors, I felt I must have given way. I very seriously thought that I was going to have apoplexy or paralysis, or something of the kind. On two or three occasions, while preaching, I should have fallen in the pulpit, if I had not held on to the table. Very often, I came near falling in the streets. During the last fifteen years I have gone into the pulpit, I suppose, a hundred times, with a very strong impression that I should never come out of it alive. I have preached more sermons than any human being would believe, when I felt all the while that, whatever I had got to say to my people, I must say then, or I never would have another chance to say it.

Scandalous.

The character of the whole proceedings, says the New York Times, is much aggravated by the presence of ladies, who, it would seem, should be the last to voluntarily subject themselves to just that experiment. There has been nothing in this great scandal from the beginning more scandalous—using that word in the sense of an offense against decorum, a shock to the sense of decency—than this voluntary sitting of a woman and wife in a public assembly while her husband and her husband's friend, sitting within a few feet of her, charge her through long days, and with minute detail, with the violation of her marriage vows; and this equally whether she be guilty, or in the peculiar and high-flown phrase of one of those men, as white-souled a woman as ever lived.

Tilton on the Stand.

Tilton, according to the Brooklyn Eagle, "is animated, sonorous and oratorical. 'The waiter complained that Mrs. Siddons stabbed the potatoes.' Probably that actress was not more dramatic or more addicted to dramatic attempt than is Mr. Tilton. He does not call; he 'summons.' He does not answer back; he 'rejoins.' He does not suffer a change; he 'rejoices in it.' He does not say; he 'declares.' The action suits the word. Erect, with flowing coat tightly buttoned, after the style of Phillips and Sumner, with head thrown back and chest inflated with air in order 'to give volume to the vocabulary,' Mr. Tilton's words come with the roundness of practical lyceum utterance, and he lays stress on just such ones as suggest his theory of his case, and as photograph upon the matter stated the personality of him who states it. He swears that he remembers by pictures. It is certain that he thinks by them and revels in them, and that, without any design of reflection upon the merit and power of his mind, it is in its exhibitions, if not in its substance, decidedly spectacular."

More Poetry by Tilton.

During Tilton's cross-examination a copy of the Golden Age was produced, and the annexed copy of the poem, "French Without a Master," by Mr. Tilton, was offered in evidence:

Teach you French? I will, my dear;
Sit down and con your lesson here.
What did Adam say to Eve?
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.*

Don't pronounce the last word long,
Make it short to suit the song;
Rhyme it to your flowing sleeve—
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Sleeve, I said, but what's the harm
If I really meant your arm?
Mine shall twine it by your leave—
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Learning French is full of slips;
Do as I do with the lips;
Here's the right way, you perceive;
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

French is always spoken best
Breathing deeply from the chest;
Darling, does your bosom heave?
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Now, my darling little sprite,
Have I taught your lesson right?
Then, what pay shall I receive?
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Will you think me overbold
If I linger to be told
Whether you yourself believe,
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Pretty pupil, when you say
All this French to me to-day,
Do you mean it or deceive?
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Tell me may I understand
When I press your little hand
That our hearts together cleave?
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Have you in your tresses room
For some orange-buds to bloom?
May I such a garland weave,
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Or, if I presume too much,
Teaching French by sense of touch,
Grant me pardon and reprieve;
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

Sweetheart, no, you cannot go,
Let me sit and hold you so,
Adam did the same to Eve,—
Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre.

*To love, to love, this it is to live.

Theodore's Opinion of Elizabeth.

[From the World.]

Tilton was almost gushingly "sweet" on his wife during the cross-examination. The estimate which he put on the intellectual power of his wife, her position in respect to literature, her companionship with elevated characters, and her discipline of life, was inquired into, and in every respect it was of the most favorable kind. She had, he thought, more than common brain; her education was such as was usually given to a young woman at a female college; she was fond of books, and had read constantly, although he would not say profoundly; and in respect to her association with men of rank, he thought she always took the greatest interest in those who were most necessitous, and that she was ever ready to bend to the lowly. In answer to another of Mr. Evarts' queries, the witness replied, with feeling, "She was a lovely woman," and again he described her as "a liberal catholic-hearted woman," and as a woman who "cared and labored as a wife should." When questioned as to her feminine delicacy and pride in woman's chastity, he replied that he did not think that theme ever became the special subject of her thought. He further described her as a perfect lady, and of the utmost delicacy of behavior. These statements, added to the declaration that he considered his house Elizabeth's residence, begin to create a feeling of apprehension that the trial is actually going to end, as was predicted some time ago, by the estranged couple rushing into each other's arms, and each declaring that the other "hadn't done nothing."

The Defense Foreshadowed.

[Correspondence Chicago Tribune.]

One of Beecher's friends—nay, his principal agent in dealing with the public—has issued what the French would call an official explanation of the case. It is taken from the Plymouth brief, and is virtually an epitome of the defense. I am not responsible even for its phraseology, but I guarantee it to be the authorized synopsis of what Beecher will swear to, and what Evarts will elaborate. The defense will be an entire denial of any wrong against Tilton, but not of an offense, which Tilton could well afford to condone, in 1870, and which the world will willingly and gladly pardon now.

At first, the defense contemplated only a charge of mere blackmail—an attempt to extort money by threatening to submit, for the misinterpretation of the world, a folly which could easily be exaggerated into a crime. But Evarts saw at once that to argue [illegible] to break up his home and [illegible] his wife from his embrace merely to gain $5,000 from Beecher would be to submit a proposition too monstrous for a sane man to consider. So, at his suggestion, the baser motive of envy [illegible] craving to destroy Beecher was assumed as the inspiration of the attack.

The Principals in the Case.

[From the Herald.]

Mr. Tilton's story is one intrinsically sorrowful in any shape, but as a personal narrative it becomes absorbing. The principals in the case are like the great personages in a play; no one of them can eclipse the others. From one point of view, Mr. Beecher is the central figure; from another it is Mr. Tilton, and probably in the profounder sense he is the real hero of the tragedy. Unquestionably this is the true position, if his testimony is accepted, for he is at once the victim and the Nemesis. Mr. Beecher, on the theory of his innocence, is like an angel caught and tortured by malicious creatures; and on the supposition of his guilt, he appears more like the angel of ruin and desolation. From still another standpoint Mrs. Tilton seems the chief sufferer, whether she has wronged Mr. Beecher or is now wronging herself and Mr. Tilton. Yet none of these three figures, now standing "apart like rocks that have been rent asunder," place Mr. Moulton in a secondary position. He is the ambitious Atlas who attempted to carry a world of scandal, but, finding it too heavy, let it fall against his wish, and now stands among the fragments. The direct examination has brought out Mr. Tilton's story in nearly all its details, and those portions ruled out by the court are known to the public by the statements published. It is a long trial, but the extreme importance which is attached to it is displayed in the increasing interest of the public, not merely in the climax of the tragedy, but in the development of the plot, scene by scene and act by act.

Sensation of the Guillotined.

The London Lancet pretends to know how a man feels after his head is cut off. It says: "Our readers may remember that rather less than four years ago we had to refute the theory of Dr. Pinel that Tropmann's head, having lost under the guillotine the sources of common sensation, yet retained hearing, sight and smell, with the whole apparatus of consciousness and intellect. The trunk, he maintained, died quietly and painlessly from hemorrhage in the course of a few minutes; but the brain, shielded by atmospheric pressure, retained its blood, and consequently its life for no fewer than three hours. It is still necessary, it seems, to reassert the fact that while the brain possesses a considerable quantity of blood after decapitation, the blood rapidly becomes venous for want of oxygen, the condition being like that in complete asphyxia, in which consciousness vanishes in ninety seconds. The physical shock sustained from the guillotine would, of itself, moreover, paralyze all nervous function too completely to admit of consciousness taking place during the brief interval necessary for the thorough deoxidation of the blood in the brain. Beyond the momentary impact of the descending knife on the felon's throat, no further sensation can be felt."

Dr. Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters.—Business men, worn by care and sedentary habits, often suffer from constipation of the bowels, until the evil consequences of such a condition are realized in extreme debility, nervousness and prostration of the vital energies of the system. And it may be safely asserted that a majority of the female sex are little better than invalids, from the same cause; but by using Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, this natural aperient and tonic brings back the vigor and buoyancy of sound health and long life. No chronic disease, sores, ulcers, skin eruptions, glandulous swellings, discharges from the ear, sore eyes, sores or cankers in the mouth will ever appear if the blood is pure. To secure this take Dr. Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters. It is the great Blood Purifier and Life-Giving Principle, increasing the power of digestion, and exciting the absorbents into healthy action, whereby all impurities of the system are carried off.

Poisoned to Death.

A healthy liver secretes each day about two and a half pounds of bile, which contains a great amount of waste material taken from the blood. When the liver becomes torpid or congested, it fails to eliminate this vast amount of noxious substance, which, therefore, remains to poison the blood and be conveyed to every part of the system. What must be the condition of the blood when it is receiving and retaining each day two and a half pounds of poison? Nature tries to work off this poison through other channels and organs—the kidneys, lungs, skin, etc.; but these organs become overtaxed in performing this labor, in addition to their natural functions, and cannot long withstand the pressure, but become variously diseased.

The brain, which is the great electrical center of all vitality, is unduly stimulated by the unhealthy blood which passes to it from the heart, and it fails to perform its office healthfully. Hence the symptoms of bile poisoning, which are dullness, headache, incapacity to keep the mind on any subject, impairment of memory, dizzy, sleepy, or nervous feelings, gloomy forebodings, and irritability of temper. The blood itself being diseased, as it forms the sweat upon the surface of the skin, is so irritating and poisonous that it produces discolored brown spots, pimples, blotches and other eruptions, sores, boils, carbuncles, and scrofulous tumors. The stomach, bowels, and other organs spoken of, cannot escape becoming affected, sooner or later, and costiveness, piles, dropsy, dyspepsia, diarrhoea, female weakness, and many other forms of chronic disease, are among the necessary results. As a remedy for all these manifestations of disease, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with small daily doses of his Pleasant Purgative Pellets are positively unequaled. By them the liver and stomach are changed to an active and healthy state, the appetite regulated and restored, the blood and secretions thoroughly purified and enriched, and the whole system renovated and built up anew. If Congress had employed as much scientific skill in the "[illegible] construction policy" at the close of the war as the War Department did in the beginning of the war, in arranging for the manufacture of what was called Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders for the use of the Cavalry horses, no doubt the Union would have been restored long ago.—Exchange.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., FEBRUARY 25, 1875

☞The Indianapolis Sentinel calls Mr. William King the bald headed man of destiny.

☞Tom Scott is encouraged. The House Committee on the Pacific Railroad agreed to report and recommend the passage of the Texas Pacific Railroad Bill.

☞From Mrs. Moulton's testimony it will be inferred that Mr. Beecher was not repulsive to any of the ladies. She confesses to have thrown her arms around him and kissed him on the forehead.

☞The Southern Pacific Railroad people are not without hope. It is believed that they will get a favorable report in the House this week. There will be a general assault all along the line.

☞Hon W. S. King, who got $12-500 of the Pacific Mail subsidy, and for whom search has been by detectives sent out by congress, has at last been found at Montreal, Canada. He has not yet expressed a desire to visit Washington.

☞For that second Louisiana Committee to report that the five men driven out of the Legislature of that State by the army and navy of the United States were legally elected, would be an unpardonable affront to the Administration. Can't a Committee be hired to report in favor of the army.

☞Whether tea and coffee shall be taxed or not is not yet decided, nor can any one tell what the result will be. Mr. Hoar's proposition to tax these articles will probably come up today, and a long discussion is anticipated. If the amendment is adopted. the passage of the entire bill, it is thought, will be jeopardized.

☞It is reported from Washington that an extra session of the senate is almost certain to be called. The principal business of the extra session will be to admit the new senators and fix their political states. The independents—Booth Christiancy and others—are expected to choose whom they shall serve.

☞It is said that Ben Butler will make his exit from congress in a grand tableau with red lights and slow music. He is in many respects the ablest man in the house, and his last grand effort is to be his cyefd' oeuvre, It will be a speech on the Arkansas question, and a special plea for the overthrow of the present state government, and the recognition of Brooks.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

☞The Tilton-Beecher trial has furnished another sensation in the testimony of Mr. Richards, a brother of Mrs. Tilton. He averred with much blushing and protest, that he had seen the great pastor and Elizabeth in such an attitude as to produce an unfavorable impression on his mind. Mr. Beecher and his wife had left the court room just previous to this testimony.

☞Mrs. Moulton's testimony in the Beecher trial is certainly very damaging, but it is very unfortunate that her sympathy for the preacher was so warm as to permit of a paroxysmal salute on one occasion. We are left in wonder at the sort of people of which the congregation of Plymouth church is made up. Are there no wives and mothers who keep their caresses within the home circle?

☞The election of S. J. R. McMillan to the United States senate by the Minnesota legislature, completes the senate with the exception of Louisiana's representation which is still incomplete. The senate now stands republicans 40, democrats and independents, 33. These 5 independents may be considered as democrats, for they will vote with that party on all important questions. There are but 19 democrats in the present senate.

☞It is said that the special committee on Southern affairs will present two reports, and, indeed, the visit of Hoar and his companions to New Orleans, to go over the work at the sub-committee, was made probably with the design of bringing in a minority report to support the policy of the administration. The committee is divided, Phelps. Foster, Potter and Marshall against Hoar, Wheeler and Frye. Congress will undoubtedly act upon the purely partizan representations of the latter gentlemen.

☞The Republican managers in Ohio affect to believe that Old Ben Wade, if nominated for Governer, could beat Governer Allen. It would be a jolly canvass, if nothing else if these bluff old statesmen were pitted against each other. Benjamin, however, declines to run. He is out of politics, and wants to stay out. He might yield it the entire Republican would ask a sacr fice, but the indications now are that the party will have to choose between Succedaneum Dennison and V. B. Horton. Neither of them can beat Allen.

☞Last Friday, the state senate took a tilt at the printing-question, on a motion to publish tax lists in handbill form only, as a matter of economy. An amendment was offered, to the effect that the auditor could post up notices in the several townships, that the list of delinquent lands was on file in his office, and that the sale of all on which the taxes remained unpaid, would take place on the day appointed by law. This being the most economical method proposed, it is a little strange that it was voted down. The better way would be to abolish every form of publication, of entry, name and kind, that the property of debtors and tax-payers may be taken by sharpers, without the knowledge of the public. —Plymouth Democrat.

☞Some of the state papers are discussing a proposition which has been made, looking to the protection of newspapers from libel suits by requiring plaintiffs in such cases to give security for costs. The COURIER is injust the same amount of favor shown to it in this matter as the rest of the world, and no more. Special lesislation to assist newspapers is just as bad as the gag law against them. A liberal suit is the only remedy which people have against a paper, and it must be confessed that that remedy is rarely made use of. Commonly, men who feel agreived at the action of a paper find no satisfaction in going to law, and it is generally the people who have no character to lose that begin libel suits. Owing to these fortunate circumstances papers rarly lose any money in such transactions. On the whole the fear of libel suit is a wholesome restraint upon editors, and, as the law now stands, they are not any too fastidious about the treatment of private characters, while they look upon public characters as their legitimate spoil. The true safety of newspapers lies in popular opinion. So long as they are careful, just and conscientious no juries will be found willing to destroy their usefulness even to punish a single error or avenge some single private injury; but should they grow reckless and malicious it will not be long before jurors will be found who deem it their duty to interpose to protect society against the press, which ought to be its natural guardian.

☞Congress has long agitated the question of cheap transportation. The country needs great railways, and congress in every effort in that direction has had difficulties to encounter, that have perplexed our greatest statesmen. Our congressional history shows, that investments or subsidies by the general government, have uniformly resulted in political immoralities and crimes, demoralization and corruption, as well as large financial losses.—The effect of such subsidies practically is, the use of the peoples money, the increases of the public debt. and consequently heavier taxation of the masses, enormous wealth to the few, and burthens grivcous to be borne to the many. If these great railways can be built by the aid of other interest, and the general government saved from investments or subsidies, what incomparably better results will be achieved.

To say that these essential lines of intercommunications cannot be built without subsidies, or aid from the general government, would be contrary to the facts known to every intelligent citizen.

We have a practical demonstration right here at home, in Auburn.

The capital of the city of Baltimore and her citizens, in connection with other great lines, have recently opened a rout through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, to Chicago the great center of the trade of the North-west. What effect has it produced in cheapening transportation.

The Baltimore & Ohio Company on the opening of this line, fixed the rate between Baltimore and Chicago at thirtyfive cents per hundred pounds.

Previous to the opening of the Baltimore & Chicago line, the average winter rates between Chicago and New York were sixty cents per hundred pounds, it is now reduced to forty cents and even less.

This road alone, has caused a reduction of one-third in the charges for the transportation of the cereals and provisions of the North-west, to the cities on the seaboard.

Examination of Teachers.

After March 1st, 1875, and until further notice, examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday in each month, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month.

JAMES A. BARNS, Co., Supt.

THE South Bend Union man must be a remarkable cuss. After looking over the COURIER, with the aid of a solar microscope, (the boy is slightly cross-eyed) he has discovered that our "proof" is occasionally incorrect. The Union being located at the home of Colfax it is no wonder that the editor is a damphool.

WE notice that D. D. Snyder of the Excelsior Hardware store, is getting on his spring goods, such as rakes, etc.—Dave is a good business manager, and this alone accounts for the popularity of the Excelsior. Next month he will "show up" his machinery in all its different shapes.

WE would advise all our young men never to change cutters while at a country party. We were almost frightened to death, the other day, over the language of a good-looking boy, telling what he'd do. We noticed about fifteen who took it all in—their mouths were opened at enerate. Oh, for a Democratic administration, where peace pleanty may reign.

School opened again on Monday last, after a week's vacation, and begins in a very promising condition. A good number of scholars from abroad are in attendance, and the old building will be "chuck" full. The teacher's are the best in the United States, and we sincerely hope that they will soon have a new and commodious building to perform their labors in.

Try our Job Work.

ELSEWHERE will be found the advertisement of our popular Jewelry dealer, Joe. Abright, Esq. We would call special attention to this business gentleman, far and near, as he is one of the most honest and square dealers within the scope of our knowledge. He has a splendid stock of everything in his line, and actually sells with a small margin.

SPELLING SCHOOL.—A regular old fashioned spelling school will take place at Waterloo at the Presbyterian Chapel, commencing next Tuesday evening, and continuing three nights. The first night McGuffey's spelling book will be used, the second night McGuffey's fifth reader, and the third night a test spelling book will be used. Everybody is invited to attend and participate.

ONE of our young clerks feeling gay and festive over the nice times he was about to have with his "Jennie Jerusa Jane," left the old man in the store and started on an extensive sleighride. When closing up time arrived the old gentleman found that he had no key to fasten the doors, and thinking it not safe to leave the "all vool" in this condition he stood guard until his son returned—"at five o'clock in the morning."

All who are afflicted with coughs, colds asthma, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, or consumption, will find a sure cure in West's Pulmonary Balsam. It will be found a sovereign cure for all throat and lung diseases. Its equal has never yet been discovered as an expectorant, relieving and curing all diseases for which it is recommended. Trial bottle 25 and, 50 cents. Large bottle $1,00. Sold by all druggists.

WE were not in attendance at the calico dance last Monday evening, but were informed that things passed off as usual—Every thing was managed according to the "times," but still a great deal of taste and neatness was displayed, both in the ball and supper rooms. The COURIER took particular pains in recommending it higly through its colums, and willingly gave space for its proceedings, which, by the way, done something toward its success.

Some worthless, trifling boys have been sending us some "nonsense" through the post office, and we want it stopped. We know very well who they are, but in respect for their parents we have so far refrained from publishing their names. We are surprised at boys from 16 to 18 years old meddling in such profound ignorance, in a land of Sunday schools and Bibles. They certainly ought to know that Mr. Mays is not in the city, and if we are annoyed any more we will fill the lads coat-tails full of No 5 boots.

COURT ITEMS.—The litigated cases are being rapidly dispatched. Up to the present writing they have been four jury trials. The case of the state against Andrew Weyht for grand larceny resulted in in the acquittal of the defendent.

In the case of Elias J. Maurer, against Adam McKinley, for bastardy, verdict for the plaintiff.

Theron A. Clark against Jacob Smith, judgment of $40 00 for Clark.

In the case of Warner against Freeburn verdict for the defendent.

The case of the state against Mary Riney for grand larceny is now on trial. Several State and civil cases remain for trial.

A party of merry sleigh-riders took a moonlight ride to Corunna on last Sabbath evening. While the boys were enjoying the good cheer in the Dearborn House office, (occasionally adjourning to look at the moon through an inverted tumbler) some of the Corunna boys slipped into the sitting-room, captured their ladies, and marched off to church. To say that that party looked as lonely as Macauly's fisherman standing on London bridge drying his nett, fails to express it. Our reporter says that when they loaded up and started for home it looked as though somebody was mad, for the driver cracked his whip and started out for "glory and the grave," and in turning a short cornet "on the road to Brighton" we expected to see the whole party ditched, We advise certain young men to give Kendallville a wide berth hereafter

Again it is our painful duty to record the death of an old and esteemed citizen of Fort Wayne.

All that re mained of Thomas Tiger Esq', was deposited in its last resting place on Sabbath last.

The funeral services were very solemn, and impressive; Elder Stone, of the first Baptist church preached the sermon from that short and pathetic text "Jesus Wept"

Mr. Tigar, was an early settler of Fort Wayne, he was a printer and started the Sentinel when Fort Wayne was but a village, and through his influence the city is largely indebted for its rapid growth and prosperity.

He was a practicle writer, an honest and upright man, a kind husband and father, and a citizen esteemed by all with whom he became acquainted.

THERE is quite a rivalry among our gallant young men to secure the company of one of our handsome young ladies at sleighing parties and other popular gatherings. We were surprised the other morning to see a regular skirmish line "around" between our dry goods stores and the residence of said young lady. The thermometer stood about two below, and it was dreadful cold for such carryings on. Just for fun you know, we naturally thought there was some scheme on hand, and so there was. Away down the street we saw a festive cuss slapping his arms and stamping his [illegible] They were all awaiting the appearance of their fair friend to be the first applicant for her company at a proposed sleigh-ride. In this, as in other cases, it was the longest pole that knocked the persimmons.

IN our artical on the new jail, we did not intend to reflect on the commissioners They of course must look to the interest of the whole county, and be as economical in expenditures as possible; but we did expect more interest manifested by the citizens of Auburn, in the location of an institution that in after years will be a source of annoyance and regret.

The editor being absent is not responcible for our views in this matter, neither are the commissioners blamable in this regard, but the citizens who should take a pride in the future prosperity and appearance of our city.

The judicious manner in which the contract for the erection of the building was made, and the superintendance of its construction reflects great credit upon our commissioners, and the citizens of the county may rely upon a permanent, well executed job; but the location in the public square we do most emphaticly object to, and as our town increases the objecton will become more apparent.

Sedan Items.

IN a neighboring village, there is a young man who is in the habit of paying his attention to more than one of the fair sex at a time, and it is said that this young "Gent" is frequently call upon to account for his conduct, in the presence of entire families. Unless he is soon checked in his wild pursuits, he will soon meet with some young lady to whom he cannot attach all the blame Selah.

A very gracious revival spirit has visited the U. B. Church, at Green's Corners It is said by old persons to be the most extensive work of grace ever known in all the past history of the place. Quite a number have been hopefully converted to God, and some of the number are grown-up young men, few of whom are among the best praying men the church has to-day. The church has been wonderfully quickened in faith, while many who were dead and could have been warmed into new life, and "spirit" of salvation is still raising higher. The people flocked to the house of the Lord until the church is too "full" to hold them.

Rumor says "that a certain young "rooster" while visiting his "Ducky Jane" the other night, ramsacked the old ladies cupboard and masticated several pumpkin pies. Since that time he has not returned, and now his "Ducky" is heard to exclaim "I wonder if he is dead.

BUTLER ITEMS.

We are glad to learn that David Och's wife is recovering.

W. E. Seargant is quite sick. He has been confined to his room for the past ten days.

The Butler schools will commence the spring term on Monday, the 8th of March next and continue twelve weeks.

The protracted meeting that has been in progress for the last six weeks at Hoverstock's corners, is still going on with increased energy.

The Disciples organized their Sabbath school at their new church last Sunday at 10 o'clock A. M.. Everything went off nice and smooth with a full house in attendance.

Died January 10th, 1875, in Troy township, A. C. Briant, in the sixty-second year of his age. His funeral was preached last Sunday by Elder Sutton, at McClellan meeting house, on the Bellfountaine road.

Married, on the 17th at the residence of the bride's father, by Elder Snider, Jay Norford to Jeremiah Burl, all of this place. May they row their boat across life's sea without a riffle to contend with, and may peace, happiness and prosperity be their daily visitors through life.

On last Friday night the scenery of our Dramatic troupe was taken out of Ballinger Hall. A reward of $25,00 was offered for the return of the scenery, and any information that would lead to the detection of the thief.—Since writing the above the scenery has been recovered, but nothing as yet has been heard of the thieves The detectives are still on the lookout.

The Circle Fox Hunt on last Saturday was a brilliant failure, owing to some mismanagement on the east line. The other three lines were marshaled well. The west line had the best music by odds. They commenced advancing the lines at 10 o'clock A. M. by signals from the marshals. There was a little confusion on the west line at first, but it was no fault of the men. Their Marshal failed to get his gun off The hunt was successful as to numbers, about four hundred participated.

To the Editor of The Courier.

BUTLER, February 23, 1875.

DEAR SIR: Having seen an article in the Courier, and also in the Republican, under the head of Butler items, slurring to some extent our Dramatic Association at the expense of a certain person, I will say in justice to the lady that it is all uncalled for, and that no person unless of very low breeding would stoop to dable in at the expense or reputation of others. This troupe was first organized in this place for the purpose of playing Ten Night's in a Bar Room under the management and direction of two of the painters spoken of in the Courier article. [illegible] who came here last summer or early in the fall and who have been hanging around here ever since on the verge of nothing, and now are boarding themselves in the paint shop where they do their own cooking, the hotels being all full and chances for boarding at private houses not good, there is also one overcoat and a pair of pants at the Washwoman's that cannot be got until the wash bill is paid up. Well, under their management the Ten Night's in a Bar-room was well played to a full house with general satisfaction. The telegram on Mother Jackwood, spoken of by the correspondent of the Courier, appearing in the character of Mrs. Morgan. The two painters having done well in this, concluded to travel, and so went to work to pursuade the girls to go to Newville and Edgerton, and after promising to pay them and not to take any whisky along, the girls agreed to go. So the troupe went to Newville first, but "Old Slade's" bar-tender having been expelled from school for bad conduct some time before, felt reckless, and the troupe had not been at Newville long before the Telegraph operator got a dispatch that young Slade had Whisky in his carpet sack, and after looking behind the curtain a short time found in said sack two bottles of Trim & Co.'s best, it being understood that Frank was to be a member of the troupe for this purpose, viz: to furnish plenty of good whisky, which I suppose he did as the troupe almost always had it at their rehearsals as well as when they played in public. The telegraph operator to the dismay of young Slade found the contents of the two bottles on the floor, so of course the boys had to play dry as whisky is scarce in Newville and money seemed to be scarce with the troupe. They however raised it through, and afterwards played two night's in Edgerton, and after carefully figuring up the finances of the whole four night's playing, the girls had one dollar apiece, no one could tell what had become of the money. The next play of any consequence was Neighbor Jackwood: this called forth more talent, as there was more characters to represent; so Squire Green who always has one eye on a penny when it don't cost too much, rushed to the rescue, rented the Hall and went in; now Squire Green is a great temperance man but so elated was he with the prospects of success in a financial way that he mixed in with these fellows notwithstanding their habits, and it is said, and I believe truthfully, that on one occasion at a rehearsal, young Slade and Enos was so far overcome that they had to abandon the rehearsal and all go home. This was the situation of this concern just a few nights before they were to appear in public. The night however came at last, and as the high toned literary gentlemen of Butler Items says, she demanded her pay in advance, five dollars, and by the way, I believe there are several accounts in the complaint filed against her that she admits the five dollar business. All this she still claims, but the five dollars she did not get, and as the manager under the lead of Squire Green declared the troupe had become a new concern, and did not propose to pay any old debts, it is thought by some she will never get it, and I believe the company has never been known to pay many new ones. But the energetic manager determined not to be foiled in the attempt to make a mark in the Dramatic world rushed in and got a cheaper hand to take the place of the operator; in this he succeeded well, as I learn the ladies all got 25 cents each, which was a saving of $4.75 to the company. But now commenced the trouble; the troupe all made Enos so excited at the loss of Mother Jackwood that when a lady came in and handed him a 25 cent scrip in place of a ticket that he lost in his pocket and when asked by some one who claimed to have authority had forgot all about it, and finally denied getting it altogether, but he was made to pay dearly for his temerity for having hung his vest up in the dressing room to put on his suit for the performance.—Some one who had access to the room took a one dollar bill out of the pocket, I suppose to get even, but Enos thought it made it more than even. Tom raved terribly, and the most fatal hit that Mother Jackwood got was from him when he said he considered her beneath his notice; this was hard as the old lady admitted it must put her down very low, but Tom is a very promising young man, and if he can be cured of what ails him he may some day become a very useful member of society. This correspondent of the Courier is a man of rare qualifications, and as he has no doubt volunteered this item on the Dramatic Association of this place it will be seen by those who know to what dirty, little low things great men sometimes stoop for the purpose of venting their spite. It is expected of men who are driven to such things to select men for their victims, and not a defenceless woman who in all probability stand higher in the estimation of the community than all the broken down showmen in Butler, and even not excepting the highly cultivated literary gentlemen of the Butler items of the Courier. RENO.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

CONGRESSMAN SAMUEL HOOPER, of the Fourth Massachusetts District, whose death is announced, was one of the wealthiest men in New England, having been largely engaged in manufactures.

THE Pacific Mail Directors have approved the action of Rufus Hatch in ordering the institution of suit against those parties alleged to have received subsidy money. About thirty persons will be involved.

D. B. MELLOTT and wife, living near McConnellsburg, Pa., left their three children locked up in the house one day last week, and on their return from a visit their house was found to be consumed by fire, likewise their children three.... The straw-goods house of Vise & Co., of New York, has suspended. Their indebtedness is placed at about $1,000,000.

THE WEST.

NEAR Helena, Lake county, Col., recently, the vigilantes went to the house of one Gibbs, and, on his refusing to deliver himself to them to be hung, they set fire to the house, in which were Gibbs, two women and several children. Gibbs leaped out through the flames, with a revolver, and shot three of the party dead, and wounded a fourth, when the rest took to their heels and fled. Gibbs had recently been acquitted on a charge of murder, and the vigilantes proposed to take a summary appeal from the decision which set him at liberty.... The Committee on Appropriations has been unusually liberal this year with the Northwest. The amounts appropriated for the improvement of the harbors on Lakes Michigan and Superior are certainly as liberal as could be wished for. By a judicious expenditure of the amounts voted, there need be no trouble about keeping all the harbors in good condition during the coming navigation season.... A careful examination of the peach-buds in the Michigan fruit regions proves that they are not all killed, and a light crop of fruit may be expected.

CHICAGO packers thus far during the present season have handled 1,527,105 hogs, against 1,483,338 last season, and 1,236,378 the season before last.... Dr. James De Koven, of Racine College, Bishop-elect of the Diocese of Illinois, has signified his acceptance of the dignity of the episcopate conferred upon him by the action of the late special convention.

THE SOUTH.

FOUR negroes were recently killed in a fight with a Sheriff's posse in St. James parish, La.... A New Orleans telegram of Feb. 17 gives the particulars of an exciting episode in the Louisiana House of Representatives. Ward, a colored member, became enraged at not being recognized by the Speaker. The Sergeant-at-Arms having been ordered to seat him, Ward declared he would kill him. He attempted to do so, and placed his hands in his breeches pockets in a threatening manner. Capt. Lawler, of the Metropolitan Police, seized Ward, and took from his pocket a revolver at full cock, which he probably intended to fire at the Sergeant-at-Arms without taking it out of his pocket.

WASHINGTON.

THE Senate has concluded to admit Colorado to the sisterhood of States.

IT is now ascertained that the President's message upon Arkansas was prepared without any general consultation with, or knowledge of, his Cabinet, or of any of the members of it.... Congress has refused to investigate Mullett.... Senator Logan is confined to his home with illness.... The investigations ordered by the present Congress have cost $500,000.... The House Committee on Appropriations has agreed to recommend an appropriation of $500,000 to defray the expenses attending the displays of the several departments of the government at the Centennial Exposition.... Congressman Beck, of Kentucky, had his wrist broken by a fall on the ice the other day.

THE Secretary of War has issued orders for the enrollment of all the inhabitants of the grasshopper-afflicted districts, in order that each may receive his share of the $150,000 relief fund voted by Congress.

THE House has passed the bill introduced by Mr. Gunckel, of Ohio, for the equalization of bounties. It provides that there shall be paid to every non-commissioned soldier, musician, artificer, wagoner, and private soldier, including those borne upon the rolls as slaves, who served in the military service of the United States, and were honorably discharged, $8.33⅓ per month for the time of service between April 12, 1861, and May 9, 1865. In case of death the payment is to be made to the widow or minor children, but in the payment of such bounty any former bounty is to be deducted. Substitutes are not included in the benefits of the bill, nor are those discharged from service on their own application. When the amount of bounty under the bill is less than $100 the person entitled to receive it has the option to receive in lieu thereof a warrant, not assignable, for 160 acres of land, the patent, however, to be issued without requiring proof of either residence or settlement.... Rufus Hatch, President of the Pacific Mail Company, appeared before the Ways and Means Committee the other day, and read a lengthy paper relative to the subsidy corruption. He repudiated Irwin and his conduct most emphatically, and sought to create the impression that the company had been victimized by him and Stockwell to a large amount.

THE House Committee on Indian Affairs recommend strongly against the bill to organize a territorial form of government in the Indian Territory.... The Senate Judiciary Committee have given the so-called press gag-law a certificate of good moral character.

ON the afternoon of the 17th inst. an unknown man, about 40 years of age, jumped from the second outside gallery of the dome of the Capitol, and struck head first on the roof of the main building, 150 feet below. Of course he was instantly killed.... Harrison, of Tennessee, from the Committee on Elections, has reported to the House a joint resolution requiring the President and Vice-President to be elected by a direct vote of the people. This measure corresponds to the move of Mr. Morton in the Senate.

POLITICAL.

THE Florida Legislature, after a protracted contest, has elected C. W. Jones, Democrat, of Escambia county, United States Senator.

JONES, the new Senator from Florida, is an Irishman, a lawyer of average ability, and is 45 years old.

THE Connecticut Democrats have nominated all the present State officers for re-election.

THE long Senatorial contest in West Virginia has been brought to an end by the election of Allen T. Caperton, of Monroe county, to succeed Boreman. The new Senator was the colleague of R. M. T. Hunter in the Confederate Senate at Richmond. He is a lawyer.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.—The court-room was densely packed, notwithstanding the terrible condition of the weather. The cross-questioning of Tilton by Evarts was continued, but no fresh developments were made. Counsel occupied most of the time in reading Tilton's "True Story," and calling upon the author to verify each of its allegations. It was a very dull day, the proceedings being wholly unintelligible to the audience, for the most part, and not very interesting, although important as indicating defense's theory concerning Tilton's conduct in the tripartite covenant and the composition of the Bowen letter, which probably will be that he was trying to keep the scandal open for a purpose.

THIRTIETH DAY.—When the court opened at 11 o'clock, it was found that all of defendant's counsel and one juror were absent, being then on the ferry boat which got blockaded in the ice while crossing the East river, and the court adjourned to 2 p. m. On the reassembling of the court, all the parties were present; but as there was danger of their being unable to return to New York, in the present condition of navigation, Mr. Evarts moved to adjourn to Monday, which was concurred in. Just as defendant, as usual, stood still at a particular place, to permit his wife to pass by his side, Mr. Beach came up behind. Defendant took a notion to survey the gallery, as he often does, and on turning around he was face to face with the counsel. With a genial smile the Plymouth pastor seized the learned counsel's hand and warmly shook it. A brief interchange of civilities took place, and as he was passing into his place, Mr. Beach placed his hands on Beecher's hips, in a playful and friendly way.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.—The first cross-examination of Tilton was closed without anything new or sensational being brought out. The letter of resignation which Beecher wrote, but did not publish, was read. Tilton's testimony in his re-direct examination was an endeavor to reconcile the fact of his wife's fall with his theory of her purity. She would have obeyed Beecher if he bade her throw herself under his chariot wheels. Tilton stated that Beecher's lack of courage made him unwittingly the author of his own exposure.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.—The re-direct examination of Tilton by the counsel for the prosecution was continued. His testimony related principally to the "true story," the preparation of which was instigated by Judge Morris. "My object in showing the 'true story' to a select party," said the witness, "was to obtain from them the judgment which I thought the public would give it. My object in its preparation was this: Mrs. Woodhull's publication was proving disastrous to my family, and silence could be no longer safely maintained. I intended to put forth a true statement in order that the people who thought there was some foundation for her story might say, 'well, here we have the true statement, which explains everything.'" The witness showed this story to perhaps twenty or twenty-five persons, including Mr. Beecher and Dr. Storrs. At the conclusion of Tilton's testimony an old employe of the Tilton household, Catherine Cary, was brought on the witness stand, and created a sensation by her evidence. She testified that she had seen Mrs. Tilton on several occasions sitting on Beecher's knee. This act was, perhaps, harmless in itself, but according to Mrs. Cary it was supplemented by frequent visits by Mr. Beecher to Mrs. Tilton's private apartments.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.—The day was one of the dullest since the trial began, being chiefly given over to dry legal arguments, and scarcely marked by noteworthy incident. Tilton was still on the witness stand. The only new testimony of importance offered was a letter from Mrs. Tilton to her husband, dated July 4, 1871, in which she prayed that he might not "need the further discipline of being misled by a good woman as I have been by a good man." The proceedings were brought to a sudden and dramatic termination at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. One of the jurors was seized with an epileptic fit and was obliged to retire from the court-room, whereupon Judge Neilson ordered an adjournment.

GENERAL.

MINISTER WASHBURNE indignantly denies the charge that he placed Fremont's Memphis and El Paso bonds on the Paris market.

THE sale of Pacific Mail property in San Francisco at a ruinous sacrifice to representatives of the Central Pacific railroad is commonly understood to be part of a mutually profitable arrangement between the two companies for exclusive control of the Asiatic carrying trade by way of America.

A CABLE telegram to the New York Freeman's Journal announces that the Rev. James A. Healy, of Boston, has been made a Catholic Bishop of Portland, Me.; the Very Rev. Thomas Galberry, the Augustinian Bishop of Hartford; J. J. Kain, of Harper's Ferry, Bishop of Wheeling; the Rev. Krautbayer, of Milwaukee, Bishop of Green Bay; the Rev. Hurley, of Peoria, Bishop of a see created for that city; the Rev. John Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., Vicar Apostolic of Nebraska; and Abbott Seidenbush, the Benedictine Vicar Apostolic for a part of Minnesota; also, that the Pope has confirmed the promotion of Boston, Philadelphia, Milwaukee and Santa Fe as Archipiscopal sees.

THE National Grange closed its sessions at Charleston, S. C., on the 16th inst. The next meeting will be held in Chicago.

AS A natural result of the rivalry that has existed for some years between the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania Central corporations, the latter company has inaugurated a fight against the Baltimore road by refusing to check baggage or carry freight consigned by the latter railway, through to New York, over that portion of the road between Philadelphia and New York city operated in the interest of the former. President Garrett has published a letter stating that his company will take "such measures in reference to passenger rates and otherwise as will vindicate its ability to maintain its rights," and orders have been given by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for an immense reduction of passenger rates between Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, and the leading Western cities, viz: Between Chicago and Baltimore and Washington, from $19 to $10. Between Cincinnati and Baltimore and Washington, from $16 to $10. Between St. Louis and Baltimore and Washington, $23 to $15. Between Louisville and Baltimore and Washington, from $20 to $12. Between Pittsburgh and Baltimore and Washington, from $8.50 to $6. A similar reduction has also been made between Philadelphia and Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Louisville and Pittsburgh.

THE Governor of West Virginia has refused to veto the bill removing the State capital from Charleston to Wheeling, and on the adjournment of the Legislature the executive office will be removed to the latter place.

FOREIGN.

THE Kahn of Khiva has paid the last installment of his war indemnity to Russia.... Bismarck will not resign.... China is threatened with a civil war.

GERMANY has prohibited the importation of the American potato.... The bill for the creation of a Senate has been defeated in the French Assembly.... THE Irish home rule members propose to withdraw in a body from Parliament unless a resolution to repeal the act of union is adopted.

EX-MARSHAL BAZAINE, on his arrival at Santander to assume an important command in the Spanish royal army, was hissed by the French residents, who had obtained permission to serenade him. The police were obliged to protect him from violence and insult when he departed for Madrid.... M. Achille Fould, the eminent French statesman and financier, formerly Minister under Napoleon III., died in Paris on the 13th.... That troublesome bone of contention, the Manitoba amnesty question, has at last been removed from Canadian politics by the passage of a bill pardoning all engaged in the affair but Riel, Lepine and O'Donoghue.

THE Archbishop of Dublin has written a pastoral letter condemning the mission of the Chicago revivalists, Moody and Sankey.... Major Leach, of the Irish International Rifle Team, has written a letter, stating that the annual match for the "all Ireland" or Leach Challenge Shield, which has been heretofore open to Irish clubs only, is now open to Americans also, but to no other nationality.... The British Foreign Department has instructed its representatives at Madrid to recognize Alfonso as King of Spain. All the other European powers will probably do likewise shortly.

THE Japanese government has called in all the straggling currency of the country, and in May next will fill its place with treasury notes, of the charter of the treasury notes of the United States government.... CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

THURSDAY, Feb. 11.—Senate—McCreery introduced a bill directing the Secretary of War to detail competent medical officers of the army to investigate the report of cholera now raging on the borders of Mexico, and give due notice of the spread of the disease. The bill also provides an appropriation of $5,000 to defray the expenses of such investigation.... The bill to provide a government for the District of Columbia was taken up and discussed, and Sargent had submitted an amendment to provide for the election of a delegate from the District, when the Senate adjourned.

House—There was a long and exciting debate on the amendment to the Postoffice Appropriation bill proposing to restore the franking privilege. The amendment was stricken out and the bill passed.... A bill restricting the hours of labor of the Washington street-car conductors and drivers to ten was passed.... The House went into committee of the whole on the Tariff bill, but without action adjourned.

FRIDAY, Feb. 12.—Senate—The report of the engineer in regard to the cost of extending the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to Pittsburgh was ordered printed.... The credentials of Burnside, Senator-elect from Rhode Island, were read and placed on file.... Clayton moved to take up the President's Arkansas message, but, Edmunds objecting, he withdrew his motion.

House—The House devoted a large portion of the day, in committee of the whole, to the consideration of the Revenue bill.

SATURDAY, Feb. 13.—Senate—The bill for the future government of the District of Columbia occupied nearly the entire time of the Senate without reaching a vote.... Eaton, of Connecticut (successor to W. A. Buckingham), was sworn in and took his seat.... Bills were introduced for the establishment of a mint at Chicago and at St. Louis.... A joint resolution was introduced for the admission free of duty of the diamond necklace presented to Minnie Sherman Fitch by the Khedive of Egypt.

House—The bill making compensation for supplies taken by Union soldiers during the Morgan raid was defeated.... The Pension and Military Academy Appropriation bills and the bill for the equalization of bounties were passed. The provisions of the latter are printed in another column.... Lawrence, from the Committee on Claims, reported a bill to pay the war claims allowed by the Commissioners of Claims.

MONDAY, Feb. 15.—Senate—Anthony was chosen as presiding officer during a temporary absence of Vice-President Wilson.... Edmunds, from the Judiciary Committee, reported back the Civil Rights bill as it came from the House, without amendment, and gave notice that he would move to take it up at the earliest possible moment.... After some desultory arguments on the question of Pinchback's admission to a seat in the Senate from Louisiana, the Senate adjourned as a mark of respect to the memory of Hon. Samuel Hooper, of Massachusetts.

House—The hour for meeting hereafter was fixed at 11 a. m.... A committee was appointed to attend the funeral of Hon. Samuel Hooper, and the House adjourned.

TUESDAY, Feb. 16.—Senate—The credentials of A. S. Paddock, the new Senator from Nebraska, were read and placed on file.... Ferry, of Michigan, from the Committee on Finance, reported, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute, the House bill restricting the funding of customs duties.... The Senate resumed consideration of the resolution for the admission of Pinchback, and Sargent continued his argument.

House—A number of bills, mostly of a private character, were passed, and several new bills introduced.... Considerable time was devoted to the consideration of the bills to pay the awards of the Southern Claims Commission and for the reorganization of the Treasury Department.... The Sundry Civil Service Appropriation bill was reported by Garfield.... The Speaker presented a letter from the Clerk in reference to the resignation of Purman, of Florida, and directed the name of Purman to be stricken from the roll of members.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 17.—Senate—Logan introduced a bill establishing rules and articles for the government of the armies of the United States.... Sargent resumed the floor and concluded his speech on the admission of Pinchback. The Senate adjourned without definite action on the matter.

House—The Tariff bill was discussed in committee of the whole.... When the committee rose a bill was reported to establish certain telegraph lines in the several States and Territories as post roads, and to regulate the transmission of commercial and other intelligence by telegraph, and debate upon this measure occupied the remainder of the session.

BEN BUTLER got off a good one on the Democratic members in a speech on his proposition for a Sunday session: "Scripture says," he remarked, "that if a man's ox or ass shall fall into a pit he may pull it out on the Sabbath, and the only difference between my case and that is, that I want to get seventy-three asses out of a pit."

INDIANA NEWS.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

THE manufactures of South Bend last year amounted to more than $5,000,000, of which more than $1,500,000 was sewing-machines, the same amount wagons, and $500,000 worth of plows. The building improvements cost $500,000.

PERSONAL.

THE Logansport Sun has changed hands, Mr. G. W. Fender having disposed of his interest to Mr. Prior, who assumes entire control.

JAMES D. WOODRUFF, well known as the proprietor of Woodruff Place, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy at Indianapolis, and the schedule shows the aggregate amount of indebtedness to creditors whose claims are secured by mortgages, $473,617.12; uninsured indebtedness, $46,289.72; liabilities on notes or bills discounted, which ought to be paid by drawers or acceptors, $[illegible]; total liabilities, $[illegible]. His realty, with the exception of $5,000 in Wayne county lands, is valued at $596,500, and there is in addition $4,099.35 in personal property. To these Mrs. Woodruff, his wife, transfers, for the benefit of her husband's creditors, $43,000 life insurance on Mr. Woodruff.

RAILROADS.

A MEETING of the Railway Committees of both houses, in conjunction with the representatives of railway lines, held at Hotel Bates on the night of the 15th, and thrown open to members of the Legislature, was largely attended. Only two or three roads in the State were not represented. The questions discussed were the propriety of regulating rates for freight and passengers, and for fencing roads, the side of the railroads being presented at length by President Ingalls, of the Cincinnati road, aided Supt. Woodward of the St. Louis, and Gen. George B. Wright, of the Bloomington and Western. The abuses of shippers were presented by Col. A. D. Streight, a prominent merchant of Indianapolis, and Col. William Foster, of Newton county.

THE sixteen miles necessary to complete the Indiana North and South road from Attica to Carbon, where it will connect with the Indianapolis and St. Louis road, has been put under contract. The prospect of the building of the road to that point has caused the price of real estate to advance twenty-five per cent. in Carbon, as it opens a direct line from their coal fields to Chicago.

WORK on the new shops and round-house of the Indianapolis and Vincennes road at Vincennes is being pushed rapidly. Several Indianapolis stone-masons and bricklayers have gone there to aid in building them.

CASUALTIES.

WHILE three boys, sons of David Davis, of Spencer county, were out gunning last week one of the boys accidentally shot his brother, the entire load taking effect in his face and eyes. His sight is entirely gone from the left eye, and the other is slightly injured.

MISS DOYLE, a young lady living at Indianapolis, was fatally burned a few days ago while coaxing a stubborn fire with kerosene.

DEATHS.

MR. JOSEPH EARLY, a commercial traveler from St. Louis, while at Needersburg, Fountain county, last week, feeling unwell, went to the only drug store in the place to have a simple prescription prepared. Through the ignorance of the clerk a deadly corrosive acid was substituted for boneset, and after taking the dose the traveler was seized with the most violent spasms and died in fifteen minutes. Popular feeling runs high, and it is probable that the law will interfere in the matter.

MR. CHARLES RAPORT, who had been in the employ of the Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago railroad for the past seventeen years, died very suddenly at his residence in Indianapolis last week.

LEGAL.

BEN DEBAR'S wardrobe was attached at Evansville last week to secure the payment of the county license fee of $5. The validity of the License law is to be tested.

THE second trial of Amasa Foulkeat, at Noblesville, for the murder of his wife, has resulted in a verdict of acquittal. On the first trial he was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

THE total cost of the Morrow murder tried in Monroe county amounted to $1,843.

THE grand jury of Henry county during their last session found eighty-four indictments.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN oratorical contest will take place at the chapel of the State University at Bloomington on the evening of the 12th of March, 1875, between representatives from Asbury, Wabash, Northwestern, Christian, Earlham, Franklin and Hanover Colleges and the State University. Ex-M. C. Kerr, of New Albany, has been selected as one of the judges.

AN Indianapolis bigamist has become insane through fear of prosecution for his crimes. He left his first wife in the East, and was married to a second woman in Indianapolis, who only discovered the wrong done her after the man had become insane.

THE Have-Nothings, an organization in New Albany, which for a number of years has celebrated St. Valentine's day with a public parade in disguise, turned out last Monday in the largest procession ever seen at New Albany. A grand ball was given in the evening, all the characters in the procession being present. Everything passed off pleasantly without any accident.

FORTY-THREE barrels of salt were sprinkled on the slippery side-walks at Indianapolis last week.

IT is alleged that the legislative investigating committee appointed to visit the Southern Prison at Jeffersonville discovered irregularities amounting to several thousand dollars. Among others the sum of $1,110, paid for furniture for the Warden's house, was charged to prison repairs.

THE LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Feb. 11.—Senate—The bill providing for two new insane asylums was passed. The bill authorizes the government, during the present session of the General Assembly, to appoint five commissioners of diverse politics, at a salary of $300 per year, who shall locate and conduct two insane asylums, one to be located north of the south line of the counties of Warren, Tippecanoe, Clinton, Tipton, Blackford, and Jay, and one south of the north line of the counties of Sullivan, Owen, Clay, Brown, Bartholomew, and Franklin. For the construction of these asylums $200,000 shall be appropriated for the year 1875, and $300,000 for the year 1876. Not less than 160 acres of land shall be purchased for each asylum.... Bills passed: Empowering Boards of Trustees of incorporated towns to exact licenses from all retail dealers in intoxicating liquors; providing for separate schools for the education of colored children, when practicable, but when there is not a sufficient number to form a school by themselves, entitling them to the privilege of the common or public schools, with white children, but may be seated separately.

House—Bills passed: Providing that property of corporations shall be assessed in the same manner as property of private firms; authorizing the consolidation of the two Boards of Prison Directors, by creating one Board of Control of three Directors for both prisons, with a salary of $600 a year; and providing for regulation of mines and miners, and employing a Mine Inspector at a salary of $1,500 per year. The latter bill also provides for [illegible] engines and escape in each mine, and for proper ventilation. It also prohibits the employment of children in mining.

FRIDAY, Feb. 12.—Senate—Nearly the entire day was passed in consideration of bills on second reading.

House—Bills passed: Giving County Commissioners discretion to refuse incorporation of towns where injustice would be done by such incorporation; punishing commission merchants for failure to account for consignments; appropriating $500 to the State Horticultural Society; fixing the number of grand jurors at seven, and requiring five to find indictments; adding the President of Purdue University to the State Board of Education; providing that at least three of the board of directors of any railroad company chartered under the laws of this State shall be residents of the State; giving the right of action against persons for damages from fire caused by their neglect; and excepting railroad and other mutual aid life insurance companies from paying agents' fees to the Auditor of State.

SATURDAY, Feb. 13.—Senate—The House bill legalizing acts of Auburn, De Kalb county, and the Senate bill repealing the 10th section of the General Assessment law were passed.

House—The Committee on Fees and Salaries reported favorably on the bill fixing the salary of the Governor at $6,000.... The bill for fencing railroads was laid on the table.... An effort was made to pass a bill requiring railroads to be fenced within six years; but the question was postponed.... A bill was introduced to prevent municipal corporations from incurring debts to the amount of more than five per cent. of the tax duplicate.... A resolution asking the Committee on Elections to consider the propriety of so changing the election laws, that boards of elections in cities and towns will not be compelled to labor continuously from twenty to forty hours, was adopted.... A resolution asking the Committee on Roads to inquire into the expediency of exempting honorably discharged soldiers from road work and road tax, was laid on the table.

MONDAY, Feb. 15.—Senate—The Senate occupied the entire evening session considering bills on their second reading.... Beardsley's bill providing that railroad employes living within the State be given the benefit of the Indiana Exemption law, without regard to the laws of other States, was indefinitely postponed by recommendation of the Judiciary Committee.

House—The following House bills were passed on third reading: Exempting real estate and personal property of agricultural societies from taxation, but not such as are organized on the joint stock principle; providing for perfecting titles to lands from the Wabash and Erie land grant; limiting the power of County Commissioners to expend money for public improvements to one-fourth of one per cent. of appraised value of property, without authority of a vote of the people; appropriating $21,168 to pay the debt of the State Normal School; and providing that suits on notes shall begin in the county where the maker, drawer or accepter resides. The House also unanimously passed the joint resolution asking Congress to pass laws for the equalization of bounties to soldiers.

TUESDAY, Feb. 16.—Senate—The entire day was occupied in consideration of the Baxter-Jeffries contested case.

House—Bills were passed providing for the maintenance of streets at public expense; for the incorporation of cemetery associations in cases where the ground is already let out and partly occupied; and continuing the geological survey of the State and appropriating $8,000 per annum therefor.... The Judiciary Committee submitted a report to re-apportion the State for legislative purposes. The following are the Senatorial Districts:

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 17.—Senate—The contested election case of Baxter vs. Jeffries was decided in favor of Baxter by a vote of 26 to 23. Baxter did not vote.

House—The House bill compelling railroads to fence their rights of way came up, and, after a long discussion, was recommitted to the Judiciary Committee, with instructions to prepare a new bill, providing that where residents along the line of any road desire the same to be fenced, they shall give notice to the company and bear one-half the expenses.... The House bill continuing the office of County Superintendent of Schools was amended by fixing the pay at $3 per day.

Joint Convention—The Senate appeared at half-past 10, and the Lieutenant-Governor called the convention to order for the election of certain officers of the State. William T. Pratt, of Allen; H. E. Wadsworth of Laporte; and T. Davenport, of Kosciusko, were nominated by the Democrats for Directors of the State Prison North. The Republicans and Independents, nominated Wm. Raymond, of Henry; John W. Jamison, of Tippecanoe; and Allen Smith, of Wabash. The vote resulted as follows:

Pratt	80	Raymond	68
Wadsworth	80	Jamison	68
Davenport	81	Smith	67

Col. James Keigwin, of Floyd, and William P. Hammond, of Martin, Democrats, received 80 votes each for Directors of the Prison South. Their opponents, Daniel Brewer, of Johnson, and Luke Thomas, of Wayne, received 63 each. Other officers—all Democrats—were elected as follows: Trustee of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Dr. Milton James, of Delaware; Trustee of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home, George Sandford, of Lake; Trustee of the Insane Asylum, J. T. Richardson, of Carroll; State Librarian, Lycurgus Dalton, of Lawrence.

BROOM-CORN was introduced into this country by Dr. Franklin, who accidentally discovered a single seed in an imported corn whisk, which he planted in his garden, and from which the corn was propagated. Illinois is the largest grower of broom-corn at present, Ohio and New York coming next.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCE.

The general money market is quiet, although grain and provision dealers are moderate [illegible] and tendency of rates lower. Interest rates 8@10 per cent. Government bonds firm at 115⅝@116 for 5-20's of '62; 119⅛@119⅜ for 5-20's of '65, 116⅝@117 for 10-40's, and 119⅛@119¼ for currency 6's. Latest gold quotations—New York, 114⅝; Chicago, 114⅝@114¾.

BREADSTUFFS.

The following were the receipts and shipments for the week, as compared with the same time last year:

Articles.	Receipts. 1875.	Receipts. 1874.	Shipments. 1875.	Shipments. 1874.
Flour, brls	36,583	68,997	29,380	62,077

During the first half of the week under review the grain market, one and all, but more especially the leading cereals, wheat and corn, were in a very unsatisfactory condition for sellers and holders. The advices from other points—New York and Liverpool—were of a discouraging tenor, and calculated to destroy the confidence of speculators in the maintenance of prices and to increase the desire to realize, there being an urgent desire to sell both for immediate and future delivery. Under the heavy offerings a general weakness prevailed, and a severe decline in prices was sustained. The stocks in store were larger than could be handled to advantage, and notwithstanding the low prices there was no margin for shipments to New York. Numerous selling orders were received from the interior, and there were but few buyers, aside from the local "short" interest, who were taking advantage of the decline to provide for their contracts. Spring wheat declined 1¼@1½c, selling down to 83⅝c for cash. Corn declined from 63¾c to 61⅞c; oats from 52⅝c to 52c, and barley from $1.14@1.20 to $1.06@1.16. During the last half of the week there was a general reaction, the heavy sales early restoring confidence in a measure, and the lower prices induced a large number of buying orders, while local shorts were buying freely. A considerable portion of the decline was recovered, and the outlook at the close was more favorable. The receipts and shipments for the week show but little increase in the stock in store. Flour is quiet, with something of a scarcity of good to choice fancy grades.

The following were the current quotations at the opening and at the close of the week:

	Opening.	Closing.
No. 2 wheat, cash	85¼	84¼@84⅜
No. 2, seller March	87	85⅝
No. 2, seller April	88¼	86⅛
No. 2 corn, cash	63¾	62¼
No. 2 corn, seller March	64¼	62⅝
No. 2 corn, seller May	71¼	70¼
No. 2 oats, cash	52¼@52⅜	52½@52¾
No. 2 oats, seller March	52⅜	52⅜
No. 2 oats, seller May	56¼	56⅜
No. 2 rye, cash	96½@96	96 @95½
No. 2 barley, cash	$1.14@1.20	$1.06@1.16
No. 2 barley, seller Mar.	1.17	@1.06
No. 3 barley, cash	1.05@1.08	1.00@1.05

PROVISION MARKET.

The movement was only moderately active, speculators not trading so freely as during the preceding week; still a fair aggregate of business was transacted, mainly in the way of transferring trades, however, from this to next month's delivery. Liberal shipments were reported, and more numerous orders were received from the East and from Europe. Prices were irregular, and, on the whole, range a trifle more in buyers' favor. Mess pork closed at $18.35@18.37½, and seller March at $18.40@18.42½. Cash lard closed at $13.52½@13.55; seller March active at $13.40@13.42½. Meats of all kinds firm, closing at 10¾@11c for sweet-pickled hams; 9¼@9⅜c for green hams; 6¾c for shoulders; 9⅝c for short ribs, and 9¼c for long clear.

PRODUCE.

The lighter receipts of all kinds of produce, consequent upon the storm, have caused a general firmer feeling. Butter was strong, but not quotably higher. Good to choice roll, 20@22c; common, 15@18c; packed, 18@30c for common to choice. Beeswax steady at 25@28c for fair to choice yellow. Sweet cider firm at $7.50 per cask of 45 gallons. Cheese was quiet but firm at 16@17c for prime, and 14@15½c for fair to good factory. Cranberries sold at $9.00@11.00 for good to choice cultivated. Dried fruits were firm, holders generally asking higher prices than sellers were willing to pay. Quotations range at 8½@8¾c for Michigan, and 7¼@8¼c for Ohio apples; 8½@9c for halves peaches, and 10@10¼c for blackberries. Dried peas were firm at $1.85@1.95 for sound green, and $1.60@1.65 for marrowfat. Eggs were in fair local and moderate shipping demand at 26@28c for fresh to strictly fresh, and slow for pickled at 10@20c. Feathers were quiet but steady at 45c for prime live geese, and 5c for chicken. Green apples were quiet at $1.00@3.00 for poor to choice. Game was firm and in demand at $2.00@2.25 for prairie chickens; $1.50@1.75 for quail, and $1.25@1.50 for rabbits. Hides steady and in fair demand at 7¾c for green frozen; 8@8½ for heavy, and 9c for light green salted, and 15c for calf. Hops were very quiet and dull at 20@25c for fair, and 35@40c for good to choice new. Honey was dull at 22@24c for comb and 10@14c for strained. Hay opened active, but closed dull; No. 1 timothy, $17.50@18.00; No. 1 prairie, $12.00@13.00; prime, $13.00@14.00. Nuts dull; shell-bark hickory, $2.00; large, $1.00. Potatoes were very quiet, there being only a light demand, wholly from the local trade; Peachblows, 95c@$1.00 for Eastern, and 85@90c for Western; Early Rose, 75@80c; mixed, 70@80c. Poultry in good demand and steady; turkeys, 12@13½c for fair to fancy; chickens, 11@12½c; ducks, 13@14c; geese, 6@9c per lb. Vegetables were in fair demand at $3.25@3.75 for red onions; $4.00@4.50 for yellow; 40@75c for turnips; 60@70c for parsnips; $1.25 per brl for beets; 75c per bu for rutabaga turnips; spinach, $3.00@3.50 per brl. Veal was firm and in demand at 6@10c for poor to choice.

LUMBER, COOPERAGE AND WOOD.

The yard trade in lumber was again quiet, but dealers are firm and prices remain steady at $10.50@11.50 for common boards, joists and scantling, and $12.00@13.00 for fencing; lard tierces scarce and wanted at $1.75; pork barrels $1.15; other cooperage quiet. Wood was in fair demand, and firm at former prices.

AUBURN COURIER

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

A [illegible] [illegible] Topers.

Mr. O'Hair, a Solon from Edgar county, has introduced in the Illinois Legislature a bill to abolish that immemorial and peculiarly American custom of treating. He proposes to do this by imposing a fine of from [illegible] to [illegible] upon any person who asks another to "take a drink" of intoxicating liquors.

Severe Winter in Europe.

The present winter is more severe, if possible, in Europe than in this country. In Austria, during last month, the railroads were blocked with snow and travel virtually suspended for a fortnight at a time. Snow-storms and intense cold are unusually common all over the continent. Even in Southern Europe there is general complaint.

Suits Against the Union Pacific.

A proposition has been made by the Union Pacific Railroad Company to compromise all suits against it on behalf of the government. It offers to pay into the Treasury half a million dollars annually for twenty years, and three-quarters of a million thereafter as a sinking fund to meet bonds and interest. It is believed the government will accept the proposition.

Bazaine to the Front.

Advices from the Spanish capital mention Marshal Bazaine as the coming man there. It is reported that he is to be given a command in the Northern army. If he gain laurels there, he will have a yet higher post. With Bazaine at the head of the War Office, it is thought by the royal family the era of pronunciamentos would be closed in Spain. Like Narvaez, he would make a clean sweep of all malcontents by shooting them.

A Big Bore.

So much has been said about the Hoosac tunnel that it has been a great bore in both senses of the word. It is a relief to know that a train has at last passed through it. The tunnel is 25,080 feet long, a trifle less than five miles. This puts it next to the Mt. Cenis bore on the scale of length. Work on it was begun in 1852. Its cost to date has been $12,000,000. The cost of its entire completion will be $1,000,000 more. Upon the whole, we think Massachusetts has paid pretty dearly for her big bore.

The Massachusetts Silver Mines.

Interest in the Newburyport (Mass.) silver mines is on the increase. A dispatch from there states that a part owner in the Chapman lode has been offered $750,000 for his interest and he refused, demanding $1,000,000. A New York company is investing heavily in land adjacent to the recently discovered veins. They have just purchased one tract for $30,000 and secured the refusal of several others, intending to prospect as soon as the snow is off the ground. It is estimated that with new machinery the mine now being worked will yield $5,000 per day.

Counting the Electoral Votes.

The effort to amend the Constitution so as to provide for electing the President and Vice-President by the people, directly, instead of through the intermediation of electors, seems to have been abandoned in Congress. Senator Morton's proposition was not acceptable, and no other has been presented. The Senate is now confining its attention to a new method of counting the votes and determining questions of legality growing out of them. There are two propositions; one is to have the Supreme Court count the votes and announce the result; the other is to have them counted in joint session, as heretofore, but with the important proviso that the votes of no State shall be rejected unless with the consent of both houses of Congress.

Trouble About the Tiger.

A Washington letter-writer states that the notorious sport, John Chamberlain, who so audaciously opened a gambling-hell in the building recently occupied by the British Legation, was verdant enough to give a dinner to a dozen "gentlemen (?) of the press." They not only enjoyed his fare and drank his wine, but nearly all of them went to their homes and wrote more or less ornate accounts of what they had seen. These have excited the indignation of decent people all over the country, some of whom have written to their friends in Congress and urged that, if existing laws are not sufficient to abolish the nuisance, new ones may be enacted. The Judiciary Committee of the Senate has now the subject under consideration, and it is probable that Mr. Chamberlain will soon find his occupation gone. This is a case where advertising does not pay.

Prices Tumbling

The condition of general trade and the shrinkage of values in this country are well illustrated in the prevailing prices of railroad iron. A contract was recently closed at Cincinnati for 12,000 tons of iron rails for the Cincinnati and Southern railroad at $52.75 per ton, and for 11,000 tons of Bessemer steel rails at $76.75 per ton, delivered. Eighteen months ago these rails would have cost $84 per ton for the iron, and $110 for the steel. The fall in price of iron rails, therefore, has been 60 per cent., and in steel rails 50 per cent. Steel rails are now cheaper than iron rails were in 1873. The fall in the price of pig-iron has been greater still. The same quality of iron that was sold readily, as fast as it could be made, at $54 per ton in 1873, now sells dull at $30—a fall of nearly 100 per cent. It will be seen that the same amount of money will buy twice as much pig-iron as in 1873, 60 per cent. more of iron rails, and 50 per cent. more of steel rails. The same remark applies in a greater or less extent to all other manufactured fabrics; all are cheaper than they were eighteen months ago.

POLITICAL MEMORANDA.

BEN WADE is spoken of as the next Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio.

CARL SCHURZ is going to Europe soon after Congress adjourns, accompanied by his family.

SENATOR MATT CARPENTER, it is reported, will hereafter reside in the East, probably in Washington or New York.

THE Governor of Connecticut has appointed Senator-elect Eaton to the vacancy in the United States Senate created by the death of Mr. Buckingham.

The Cincinnati Commercial says every United States Senator recently elected—with the exception probably of Andy Johnson—is opposed to expansion of the currency.

GOV. CAMPBELL, of Wyoming, who has just been appointed by President Grant Third Assistant Secretary of State, was at the breaking out of the war a compositor on the St. Louis Republican.

BROOKLYN Argus: "Charles Francis Adams has settled down again. He is one of those rare and delicate objects preserved in the cabinet of national esteem, that are only taken out on great occasions, and exist rather for ornament than for use."

SENATOR TIMOTHY HOWE, of Wisconsin, is quoted as saying of Conkling's Louisiana speech in the Senate: "I may change my mind upon further consideration. But as it strikes me now, this speech of Mr. Conkling's is, without any exception whatever, the greatest oratorical effort of which we have any record in English literature."

THE wardrobe of the Speaker pro tem. of the Louisiana House of Representatives is thus described by a New York Times' correspondent: "He presented a very remarkable appearance. His clothes were much too small for him, and had cracked in two or three places. Through these holes a soiled shirt appeared, and in the bosom of this garment a valuable diamond pin was placed. The young man wore a dirty shirt collar and and a flaming red necktie."

MR. ANGUS CAMERON, the new Senator from Wisconsin, as already announced, is a native of New York State. Previous to his removal to Wisconsin, about twelve years ago, he was a banker and broker in Buffalo, and the Courier of that city gives this remembrance of him: "He is remembered in this city as a man of sterling integrity and character, whose genial address and temperament attached to him as personal friends all those who had the pleasure of his acquaintance."

NEW YORK Tribune: "The election of a new Senator to succeed Carpenter will require the election of a new President pro tem. of the Senate for the Forty-fourth Congress. Vice-President Wilson being from the East, it is claimed that the Presidency pro tem. properly belongs to the West. The name of Senator Ferry of Michigan has been prominently brought forward, not only on sectional grounds but because of his qualification for the position, which has been repeatedly shown by his temporary occupancy of the chair."

THE editor of the Flemingsburg (Ky.) Democrat has received a call from Gen. John S. Williams, a Democratic candidate for Governor: "We were surprised," says this candid editor in acknowledging the visit, "to find him so full of enmity toward the members of the Kentucky press, and particularly against those whom he termed the 'kid glove' and 'snobby' portion of it. Gen. Williams is a fluent talker, and our readers can imagine the scoring we received from him. His manner toward us was harsh, and we parted from him in disgust."

A WASHINGTON correspondent says: "The Wisconsin delegation insist that ex-Senator Doolittle should not claim the exclusive credit for having defeated Matt Carpenter. They say that Alexander Mitchell, of Milwaukee, who was in Wisconsin during the entire Senatorial campaign, decided which one of the four names submitted to the Democrats by the eighteen bolters should be United States Senator. It is presumed that the fact that Angus Cameron is of Scotch descent had something to do with Alexander Mitchell's choice."

THE Nashville Banner says of the young man whom the "Essex statesman" lately stirred up: "We are frank to say that we do not admire the attitude which the Hon. John Y. Brown, of Kentucky, occupies in Congress, as a typical Southern representative, so well as that of Lamar, of Mississippi, or Gordon, of Georgia. Somehow the belligerency of our Kentucky politicians—always excepting Beck and Knott—is so much more ostentatious than twelve years ago, that it seems just a little ill-timed. Brown impresses us as a young gentleman of more talent than tact, and less discretion than valor. He certainly got worsted in his little tilt; but we shouldn't mind that but for the fact that in the self-assumed role of the South's David he missed the one-eyed Goliath of Radicalism, and gave the Philistines one more chance to cry 'foul.'"

PROGRESSION is the watchword of the hour, but in Missouri mothers haul their disobedient children over the knee, and strike on the same old spot that the Romans did 3,000 years ago.

FARM AND HOME.

After and Over.

After the shower, the tranquil sun;
Silver stars when the day is done!

After the snow, the emerald leaves!
After the harvest, golden sheaves.

After the clouds, the violet sky!
Quiet woods when the wind goes by.

After the tempest, the lull of waves!
After the battle, peaceful graves.

After the knell, the wedding bells;
Joyful greetings from sad farewells.

After the bud, the radiant rose;
After our weeping, sweet repose.

After the burden, the blissful meed;
After the furrow, the waking seed.

After the flight, the downy nest;
Over the shadowy river—rest.

Barley vs. Wheat.

The Mark Lane Express, in reporting that the best malting barley, for the first time, sells in the British market at a higher rate than the best red wheat, says that "a very remarkable change is about to take place in the history of agriculture, consequent on the change in the value of English wheat and barley." Reckoned by measure, barley is quoted at 48 shillings, and wheat at 46, per quarter; by weight (barley being 7 pounds per bushel lighter than wheat), while 456 pounds of barley bring 48 shillings, 456 pounds of wheat bring only 41.

Size of Barrels.

A President of an agricultural society calls attention to the fact that there are, in a standard legal barrel, only 100 quarts, while the ordinary flour barrel, most in use among farmers in the sale of potatoes and apples, contains nearly one-eighth more. Farmers sell their produce in flour barrels, and merchants transfer the same to standard barrels, making a profit on quantity, as well as on the price. In the sales of 800 barrels of potatoes from a farm, the proprietor loses 100 barrels, worth $250, for which he might as well be paid. The middleman, not the consumer, profits by this. Farmers, see to it that you employ the 100-quart barrels hereafter.—Pacific Rural Press.

A Cause of Horse-Cribbing.

We scarcely take up an agricultural paper that has not some specific for this troublesome practice in horses. A letter from Mississippi to the New York Farmer's Club seems to have found the cause, always an important step towards cure. It is a disease occasioned by whisky. Horses addicted to cribbing have contracted the habit at cross-road drinking establishments, by being tied to posts or fences long after the hours for feeding and becoming impatient at the protracted stay of their masters, who are seen through the cracks of the log-house drinking so frequently. They bite the rail, imitating the gurgling sound of the imbibers, and in the act swallow wind and become fond of it. No cure for cribbing, stump, or wind-sucking.

The Farmer's Son.

Why is it that most of the great and successful men, either in politics, finance or letters, in this country, are the sons of the farm, or of poor parentage? This is a question of fearful import to the wealthy and business men now treading so successfully the paths of wealth. Whence cometh the Lincolns, the Grants, the Wilsons, the Wrights, etc., of the political field? What wealth or royal prestige of parental position bolstered up their early or later struggles? Or where was the education or the surfeited exchequers of the ancestors that laid the financial foundations of Allen, Blair, Stewart, Vanderbilt, and thousands of others scattered all over the country? They were orphans or sons of farmers unknown to fame, and whose signatures were unknown to bank counters. As a general rule, successful business men, (merchants, politicians or bankers), were members of large families. No hot-bed influence of wealth, or the petted training of an only child, dwarfed their early efforts at self-reliance. No extravagant use of unearned money smothered the great lesson of economy, without which no solid foundation of wealth was ever laid. In early life no lessons of caste or exclusiveness of blood chilled their sociability, but their minds were imbued with the idea that true worth made men and women of the first-class.

The farmer's son, raised on the scanty farm, or the half orphan of a poor widow, has no carriage in which to ride, so the son soon learns to walk to fame and fortune. In his youth no wealthy hand reaches out to sustain and steady his steps, so he learns to save himself, and pushes forward with self-reliance and conscious ability to distinction. His father, with his scanty purse, sets an example of economy which clings to the son through life. In this way the poor boy from the farm, removed from the fashionable vices of society, comes to manhood, and strikes out boldly with a determination to hew his own way to character and comfort. Look around you, poor toiling son of the farm, and read the history of those whom the world now worship for their learning, their talents and their purity in the day of trial. In early life they trod the same thorny path you are now trying. Self-reliance is the foundation on which to build, adding industry, honesty and perseverance. How good it is to feel in life's young manhood, with the smiles of Providence, we can enter the arena of conflict, uncontaminated with evil associations, and not enfeebled by an early life of idleness, and be permitted, unaided, to hew out, with a strong and willing heart, a position with our country's true nobility.—Des Moines Register.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

KEEP your canned fruit in a room where it does not freeze; but do not keep it so warm that it will ferment.

CREAM CANDY.—Two cups white sugar; one-half cup water; one tablespoonful vinegar; one-half teaspoonful cream tartar; flavor to taste.

NEW FLANNEL.—Scald flannel before making, as it shrinks in the first washing. This shrinking is usually caused by using too much soap and washing in too cool water. Never use soda for flannels.

CRISP GINGERBREAD.—One pint molasses, two tablespoons butter; boil up twice—cool it. Add one teaspoon saleratus, a tablespoon ginger, salt, flour to roll it out. It should be rolled very thin.

A SIMPLE MOLD.—Wrap any firm, smooth paper about a round stick. Remove it and pour the melted beeswax into the mould. When cold, tear off the paper and you have a smooth, nice stick of wax, to be cut in any length.

METHOD is necessary to a well regulated house. Without it the work drags heavily along from Monday morning till Saturday night. Begin the week properly, keep everything in order as you go along, and the chances are fair that you will find yourself in a fine condition at the end of the week. A judicious manager will never suffer her domestic affairs to become disarranged, because such a contingency involves too great an expenditure of good temper and peace in the family.

PERHAPS the very best dish of prepared apples for the table is to bake slowly, with just heat enough not to break the skin. When done, lay open and remove the core; sprinkle with sugar (granulated is best), and work sugar and pulp together; work to a fine consistency, which a few strokes of the spoon will do; then close the skin upon it and lay away to cool; it ought to be eaten cold. An Esopus Spitzenburg is the best fruit for it, and the best time for it is about the holidays.

A Remarkable Career.

Hezekiah Broughton, with numerous aliases, a confidence man and bigamist, closed a noteworthy career of rascality in the Worcester (Mass.) Superior Court, recently, when he was sentenced to three years in the State Prison for stealing the horses and carriage of Simeon M. Streeter, of Sturbridge. Broughton was recently captured by Major Renne, of Pittsfield, for whom he was "driving cart," after a helter-skelter night chase. He was born at Poultney, Vt., is now about 50 years of age, and has been a church member and professedly very pious at times. He married his first wife at Poultney, and went subsequently to Weston, Vt., where he remained for some time, but finally disappeared when sent by his neighbors with a load of butter and cheese to Boston. He turned up next with his wife at Waukesha, Wis., in search of a farm, which he got, paying $1,500 down; he then borrowed $375, was intrusted to invest the $1,500, which he paid in a Milwaukee bank, and got away just in time to avoid being exposed by some of his old Vermont acquaintances. Pacific City, Iowa, next knew him as Henry Brayton, and here he bought a house, joined the church, married a wife, who soon died, and then took unto himself a widow. He was in time appointed an express agent and messenger, in which capacity he was intrusted with $10,000, with which he departed from wife number three, and returned to number one, living now at Eagle, Wis. He told her that he had made a big sum in taking contracts on the Pacific railroad, got a $1,000 pair of horses and came out as a "swell." This did not last, however, for in about a month the detectives found him and took him to Iowa, where he was sentenced to three years in the State Prison. He served his full term, being so well behaved that he was made an overseer. When let out he left his Western wives and came to Worcester, where he got employment as a teamster; then he went to Sturbridge, where he was known as a man of piety, and married the daughter of Simeon M. Streeter, the ceremony being elaborately celebrated in the Fiskdale church. How he next stole his father-in-law's team, and was captured at Pittsfield, has already been told.—Springfield Republican.

The Penalty of Catching Colds.

We venture to question the necessity of the greater part of the illness that arises from colds. Why should people have colds at all? Unlike many other diseases, it is well understood how they arise; all the conditions and causes that produce colds are continually pointed out by physicians; they are easily measured and recognized, and can as easily be guarded against. All that is required is due forethought and caution—forethought and caution that extend to the condition of the atmosphere in the house, the kind of heat used for warming the rooms, the prevalence of draughts, the clothing worn at home and abroad, the precautions against sudden changes of weather, the maintenance of warm and dry feet, the protection of the lungs and other delicate or susceptible parts of the body; all of which are essentially controllable things with every one possessing the ordinary faculties, and endowed with the average share of good sense. If it were a penal offense to take cold; if a cough arising from thoughtless exposure were punished by a week's imprisonment; if getting sick because of mere incapacity to measure conditions and arrange precautions were always followed by a legal penalty and a loss of respectability—catching cold would soon be among the "lost arts." There is no use of having judgment if we do not exercise it; no use of brains if we cannot employ forethought in so simple a thing as this. In nine colds out of ten the victim has been too stupid to take advantage of former experience, too torpid to understand the nature or necessity of preventive measures, and too dull to detect the palpable circumstances out of which the cold has come. A child learns not to fall downstairs after two or three experiences of the kind; not to burn his fingers in the grate after once testing the quality of hot coals and hot iron; but adults go on getting colds from causes that repeat former blunders with a perversity that is simply amazing.—Appleton's Journal.

IN reviewing Dr. FitzEdward Hall's work on "Abraham," Mr. Richard Grant White says: "His treatment of every one who has undertaken to help others in the study of our common mother-tongue reminds us of the conduct of the shipmaster who came on deck to find that, in his absence, his mate had undertaken to read the burial service over the body of a departed foretopman, and had actually begun the solemn task—'I am,' etc. 'You the resurrection and the life!' broke in the affronted skipper, 'Give me the book—I am the resurrection and the life.'"

FOR demoiselles who admire large earrings a new style just introduced is the head of a stuffed humming-bird with diamond eyes inclosed in a wide hoop of burnished gold. They are rather "over whelming."

THE ORIGIN OF MAN.

After Darwin.

CHAPTER I.

'Twas a lovely summer morning in the year 9001 before Christ. The woods of Senegambia were clothed in the fairest costume; the lovely birds were chirping and singing their morning lays; the sky was one vast sheet of blue. Everything, in short, was full of sweetness and light, except the lovely Lady Adeliza de Chimpanzee. She was in the dumps. Moodily she rubbed her shoulder against a huge palm tree, and while performing that act heaved a vast sigh. Just at that moment her mamma dropped from the tree above her.

"My daughter," said the Duchess de Chimpanzee, "why that sigh?"

"Ah, mamma, look at me," said Lady Adeliza. "See how different I am from the rest of our tribe. See how white I am becoming."

"My daughter," said the Duchess, languidly, as she seated herself on a convenient bowlder, "You should be proud of the difference. We are a higher race."

"I don't know, mamma. See what little caudal appendages we have; all the other folks can hang from trees by their tails, but we are compelled to sit on the limbs."

"We are advancing, my dear. You are whiter than I am; you can talk in your youth; I could not till middle age; your grandmother, as you know, can only grunt it. You are moving to a higher sphere."

"Well, mamma, none of our folks will marry me," said Lady Adeliza, pouting.

"No, my child; it has been decreed that there should be a selection of the fittest in marriage. We have offered you to the Prince d'Orang Outang, who is even whiter than you are, as a wife."

"Oh, mamma," gushed the Lady Adeliza, "that's splendid. Will he come soon?"

"Restrain yourself. People of high blood and short caudal appendages never get excited. He will be here in a short time."

Lady Adeliza went away to look for cocoanuts; the Duchess sat on the rock, and reflectively scratched her head.

CHAPTER II.

The Duke de Chimpanzee was chief of a very large tribe. If he had been in the show business he would have made his everlasting fortune. He had but one child, the Lady Adeliza, and, as she would inherit the live stock over which he ruled, many of the neighboring chiefs desired to marry her. Her parents, however, resolved that she should be, if possible, the fountain head of the new race to which all their traditions taught them they were working up. They determined that she should wed the Prince d'Orang Outang. The Duke proposed the matter to the Prince.

"Aw!" said the Prince, as he adjusted his eye-glass, "Is it nice?"

"She is very beautiful," replied the Duke.

"Aw!" said the Prince, "give it—aw—much stamps?"

"I shall give her all Ethiopia," replied the Duke.

"I will—aw—step down, and—aw—look at it," murmured the Prince, carelessly. "By surprise, you know."

This was agreed upon, and the Duke departed.

The Prince knew his worth; he was quite white, and he was not troubled with the slightest particle of caudal appendage, but Ethiopia was a big prize and he resolved to win it.

One week after the Duke had offered his daughter, the Prince started for Senegambia with the intention of looking at the fair face of Lady Adeliza.

CHAPTER III.

The Prince was wander through the woods of Senegambia, gayly humming

"I'd be a butterfly
Born in a bower,"

when his eyes fell upon a lovely chimpanzee, sitting in a shallow brook, sucking a cocoanut. She was the loveliest creature he had ever seen. His heart was touched at once. He raised his eye-glass and stared at her until his eyes fell in modest confusion.

"Fair chimpanzee," said he, "will you not—aw—tell me your—aw—name?"

"Adeliza," whispered she.

The Duchess de Chimpanzee, who had witnessed the meeting from behind a clump of bushes, chuckled, and slid off on her left ear.

"Adeliza," sighed the Prince, "thou art—aw—beautiful! Wilt thou—aw—marry me?"

The Lady Adeliza threw the remains of her cocoanut at the head of a Chimpanzee who was loafing in a neighboring tree, fell into the arms of the Prince, and gently murmured, "I am all thine."

They were married in great splendor. The Right Rev. Bishop Baboon, assisted by the Rev. Simiadar Ape, performed the ceremony. The choir sang that lovely anthem, "Monkey married the baboon's sister." Lady Adeliza and her parents rubbed noses, and then the bride started on her tour on an elephant with one trunk.

CHAPTER IV.

The seasons changed; summer lapsed into autumn, autumn into winter, and winter into spring. Then there was great rejoicing, for the Lady Adeliza gave the Prince an heir. The child, however was an anomaly in that region; it had no tail, it had flat feet, it had a white skin, it had no hair on its body. All the wise men examined it. It was not an orang-outang, it was not a chimpanzee; evidently it was a new species. Then a family conclave was called.

"What shall we call it?" asked everybody.

The Duchess de Chimpanzee, who was languidly making mud pies, said:

"Let's call it—Man."

JUDGE CHRISTIANCY, the newly elected Senator from Michigan, thus defines his political creed in a recent letter to a friend in Washington: "I was elected as a Republican, with which political organization I have been connected since the days when we were called woolyheads; but I do not feel bound now by partisan ties. Very many of the acts of the President are contrary to the spirit of republican institutions; besides, I have been on the bench so many years that it is impossible that I can be, in my career as Senator, a partisan."

Breadstuffs in the Northwest.

[From the Detroit Tribune.]

Dating the breadstuffs "season" as commencing with Aug. 1, more than six months of the current year have passed. A short comparative statement, therefore, knowing the receipts of flour and grain for that time at Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Toledo and Cleveland, with those for the same period one year since, will be of public interest.

The aggregate receipts of flour for the last half year at the points named amounted to 2,200,000 barrels, and for the same time in 1873-4 to 2,630,000. This shows a falling off in the present season of about 430,000 barrels.

The like receipts of wheat for the present season aggregated 35,325,000 bushels, against 47,150,000 for the same period in 1873-4. This shows a loss for the past six months of nearly 12,000,000 bushels, although the amount is considerably more than were the receipts of the two years preceding this comparative statement. For the same period the yield of 1874 throughout the Northwest was nearly or quite as good as that of 1873. In our own State it was much better. Hence the inference seems fully justified that the crop has not been so freely moved as was the case one year since, and that more of the staple is still back in farmers' hands than there was on Feb. 1, 1874. Other reasons also seem to sustain this view. The demand for the staple has not been so free this season for the export trade as it was in 1873-4 to take away the surplus stock. Prices, too, have ruled so low as to be unsatisfactory to farmers, and they have not been in such haste to part with their wheat. On the other hand, corn, oats and barley have brought better figures, and there has been more disposition to realize for these products. The farmers have sold, however, sufficient wheat to meet all the demand.

The receipts of corn at the Northwestern ports this season have aggregated 19,700,000 bushels, against 26,625,000 bushels one year since—a falling off of about 7,000,000 bushels. The yield of this staple last year was not equal to that of 1873, and this fact, in the main, accounts for the difference in the foregoing figures. Other causes, however, have also operated to promote the same result. The prices of hogs have ruled unusually high, and doubtless much more corn has been fed than was the case one year since. The prospects or the hope of a still further advance in values for corn may have also induced some to withhold their stocks from market.

The receipts of oats at the above-named points for the past six months have aggregated 9,600,000 bushels. One year since for the same months they were 12,000,000—a difference of about 2,400,000 bushels. The supply for the past season in the Northwest was a good one, not being much, if any, less than that of 1873. The movement of barley in this section also shows considerable falling off. The receipts for the past six months—computed as in the above cases—aggregated 3,700,000 bushels, against 5,130,000 in 1874 for the same period—a difference of over 1,400,000 bushels. The fact that the barley market for the past two or three months has been unusually depressed, may explain the state of the trade.

The yield of rye last season was a light one, and the receipts at the lake ports aggregated about 900,000 bushels, which is somewhat below the arrivals for the same period one year since.

The Razor in Russia.

The important fact has just been made known that members of the Russian civil service, with the exception of court officials, are henceforth allowed to wear their beards. In this tardy permission it is hoped no menace will be seen to the liberties of Western Europe. Already the functionaries of the Russian administration showed a commendable fancy in the arrangement of their whiskers, which from variety, if not from luxuriance, might have been compared with those of our barristers, or even of the Anglican clergy. The new order may, no doubt, be viewed as a demonstration in favor of native, as against foreign ideas; and besides a bearded "territorial army," Russia will now have a bearded brigade of civil servants. The chamberlains and the officers and men of the regular army will still continue to keep their chins smooth; but the razor, in Russian official circles, having once been partially discarded, who knows how soon it may be thrown away altogether, so that at last the Emperor himself will cease to shave? "Woe to Europe when the Czar of Russia wears a beard!" said Napoleon, whose St. Helena prophecies, if they possessed no other merit, were generally picturesque. In uttering the prediction just cited, Napoleon did not foresee the obstacles to a Russian invasion of Europe which a beard-wearing chief of Tartar hordes might meet with in the shape of United Germany. Moltke, by the way, wears neither beard, nor whiskers, nor mustaches.—London News.

A Knock-Down Argument in the St. Louis City Council.

[Republican's Report of Council Proceedings.]

Mr. Rogers: Tom, you know this is a piece of malice on your part. That friend of yours is a drunken sot.

Morris: He is no such thing, and any statement to that effect is a lie.

Rogers: Do you mean to intimate, then, that I am a liar?

Morris: If you make that statement, I certainly do.

Rogers: What I want to say, then, is this: You are a dirty——

Mr. Morris' reply caught Mr. Rogers right on the mouth, and he "swapped ends," so to speak, going backward over a chair and falling into a heap with a crash.

The member who was explaining his views thought somebody was making a point of order, and suspended operations in time to allow Mr. Morris to be heard. "Call me a ——— again, will you?" as he stood over the gentleman who had the floor, with evident intention of thumping again.

There was considerable commotion, and several members came to the rescue. Mr. Rogers was set up again and Mr. Morris was set down.

Mr. Turner characterized the action of the two members as disgraceful, and moved that they be severely censured by the Chair.

The motion carried, and the legislators were brought before the bar of the house by the Sergeant-at-Arms, both coming up smiling, and Mr. Rogers with his mouth bleeding.

The Progress of Cremation.

A second act of cremation has been successfully preformed in the same oven at Dresden in which the body of Lady Dilke was consumed. The occurrence took place on the evening of the 9th inst. The body was again that of a lady, the young wife—aged only 23—of a South German physician.—The hall around the furnace was decorated with flowers, and in every other respect the solemnity which should attend so serious a rite was duly observed. No clergyman could, however, be found to take part in the ceremony, and speak a burial address over the dead body, so Herr Seimens, the constructor and proprietor of the oven delivered a brief but impressive speech after which the coffin was committed to the flames. The process of cremation was screened from the eyes of the ladyes friends by an iron door, but a small number of physicians and other scientific men witnessed the operation through a slit in the wall. They describe the spectacle as free from anything offensive either to the senses or the imagination. The current of hot air burning up the body appeared as a transparent flame of a pale reddish hue. There was no smoke, or any unsightly transformation of the body.—When the coffin was consumed the body appeared to its natural state, then red-hot, and at last appeared to be of translucent white From this it crumbled into ashes. Up to the period of its entire consumption by the flames the process was merely a rapid drying up. After seventy-eight minutes all organic matter was gone and nothing remained but a small heap of ashes, which was conveyed away in an urn—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Magruderss' Goat.

Mrs. Magruder's baby is carried out by the nurse now, since the accident to its carriage. Magruder thought it would be a good idea to have a tame goat to pull the coach, and he bought one for the purpose; but one day the goat met another goat that differed from him in politics or religion, or something, and each undertook to convince the other by jamming him in the skull. Everytime Mrgruder's goat would rear up preparatory to making a lunge forward, Magruder's baby would lurch over backward and when Magruder's goat struck the other goat the concussion would shake the milk in the baby's stomach into butter. And sometimes the other goat would aim at Magruder's goat which would dodge, and then the other goat would plunge headformost into the coach, and mash the baby up in the most frightful manner. And in the midst of the contest a couple of dogs joined in, and Magruder's goat backed off and tilted the coach into the gutter and the dogs, biting around kind of generally, would snap at the goat and cause it to whirl the baby around just in time for the bite; until at last the goat got disheartened and sprang through the fense, leaving the coach on the other side, and it struggled frantically to escape, while the other goat crowded up against the baby to order to avoid the dogs, and finally knocked the baby out, and butted the coach to splinters. They say the way Mrs. Margruder eyed Margruder that afternoon, when they brought the baby home mutilated and disheveled, was simply awful to behold; but she didn't speak to him for a whole week and he had to soften her down by buying her an ostrich feather for her winter hat. The goat is still at large Anybody who wants him can have him free of charge. Magruder doesn't recognize him when he meets the animal upon the street—Max Adeler.

Kate Field is the girl for our money. In a recent speech, or article or lecture, or some other utterance, that blessed young lady says: "If I had my way, journalists should be paid better than any other professional men and women." And why should'nt she have her own way, we ask? Every girl should have her own way. That is what girls are made for. And especially, why should a lady of such excellent sentiments, so evidently posted in the affairs of life, be interfered with in any manner? Let her have her own way. She adds "if"—we don't see any use in the "if;" we leave off the "if" as mere surplusage and go on with the substance of her remarks "they are clever and honest; they deserve the best of treatment." Of course we are clever, all of us; if we are not, down go the papers; and—well yes, we are honest. Don't we all say so, and don't we know? Miss Kate is an ornament to her sex and to her profession. When women's rights are established, she shall have our vote for Governor.

PRICES REDUCED

—AT THE—

FRUIT HOUSE.

We never had such an immense stock for the coming holidays. If times are dull and money is scarce our trade is better than ever. We are selling more Teas, Coffees, Sugars and Groceries than all the other groceries combineu. We have no two prices in our business; that is, a price for those who pay the cash, and a different price for those who have it "booked." We have one cash price and keep no books, hence you can easily see why we can undersell all others; no secret in it, simply purchasing at first hands and selling direct to the consumers.

Our teas, for instance. We save our customers on that article alone three profits, as we purchase direct from the importer.

We save the profit of the jobber, 10 per cent, of the speculator, which is 15 per cent, of the wholesale grocer, which 19 to 20 per cent, or as much more as he can get. All these profits our customers have the profit of.

We still keep up the reduction of 15 per cent.

Dr. King's New Discovery!

FOR CONSUMPTION!

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY

The unparalled success invariably attending the introduction of

DR. KING'S

New Discovery for Consumption.

Far surpasses that of any other medicine ever placed before the American people. In fact it has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its proprietors. Wherever it is sold a lively and increasing demand is at once created, and why is it? Our answer is this: It is a remedy that travels on Its Own Merits and always gives Perfect Satisfaction, hence the success. We know whereof we speak and in order to prove this statement we make the following offer: Do not Ever Ask to Buy until you know what you are getting. All we ask of those troubled with consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c., is to go to

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

Drug Store and get a bottle Free of Charge, and give it a trial, then you KNOW just what you are getting before you buy.

☞ Easter is coming, and eggs are scarce.

☞ Put away your sleighs. We're only fooling.

☞ Please go off of the premises. The new law.

☞ Business is tolerable fair. Next month will increase it.

☞ Got spelled down did you, is a common remark on the streets.

☞ The pensioners have depleted Uncle Samuel's wallet the last week.

☞ Now the robbin red breast is among us. Welcome spring.

☞ The store Box loafers are hatching out, on every corner.

☞ Wednesday last was St. Patrick's day "in the morning." Here's to your health.

☞ Parties should remember that the COURIER office has a fine assortment of horse cuts.

☞ Quite a number of our citizens visited Waterloo last Wednesday evening, and attended the hop at Agriculture Hall.

☞ Auburn will soon have a reputation for a fighting town, if some of our sports don't "swear off drinking."

☞ Tom Thum says he shall never engaged in the show business again as he can lend all his money at eleven per cent.

☞ The young men of America who want to hold office are respectfully referred to the Pacific Mail investigation.

☞ "If you wish to prosper and rise do not forget to advertise, and if you fail to advertise, the chances are you'll never rise." Gospel truth.

☞ Soon will our country friends have to go to work and "break themselves in" to the hard duties which always comes with spring.

☞ Women can prevent wars if they will, for they are the mothers and educators of men, and the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

☞ A large sleighing party visited the County seat on Monday evening of last week, taking supper at Swineford House—Waterloo Press.

☞ It has been so cold out west that whiskey was sold by the plug. If a man would chew a plug of Auburn whiskey there wouldn't be enough of him left to bury.

☞ A lady very gently informed her husband the other evening, as he sat smoking his meerschaum, that if the stove made as much smoke in the room as he did, "strong language would be too mild."

☞ An exchange says that if Beecher had lived in the Potiphar family there wouldn't have been such a row kicked up in the house, and Mrs. Potiphar would have had no cause to tell such a lie as she did on Joseph.

☞ The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad made a donation to the Kendallville fire company for service performed at the burning of their wood house at the above place.

Would you know where to go,
To get the cleanest shave;
Go to Pomert's, crowds are whirling
Him around like a slave.
Razors keen, towels clean,
Lather cups the same.
And every time you pay your dime,
You are always glad you came.

☞ An emigrant wagon crossed the Missouri river the other day with the following inscription painted on it:

Good bye Kansas—
Forevermore adieu;
I may emigrate to hell,
But never back to you.

☞ A traveller called for mint sauce at the warm meals house the other day, and the waiters said they had none, adding: "Our cook makes all the mince into pies, not sauce." This is probably the same "traveller" that called for corn bafe ye mane?"

☞ An Auburn boy was rather troubled for fear that he would not know his father when 'they' both reached heaven, but his mother eased him by remarking: "All you have to do is to look for an [illegible] with a red nose on him."

☞ A bereaved husband wanted to lick us, yesterday, because we refused to publish a column and a half of obituary poetry, on the demise of his "sainted wife." We have seen his sainted wife saw wood to often to be hornswogled by half a year of doggerel.—Columbia City Post.

☞ Even in the saloons, opinions upon grave subjects are expressed forcibly. A gentleman slightly under the influence of the intoxicating bowl furnished proof of this fact; a night or two ago. "Whiskey, zur," he said, "hic—brightens the intellect. It ought to be introduced into the public school zur."

☞ The times for holding spring and summer races in the Ohio and Indiana circuit as adopted at Indianapolis on Tuesday is as follows: Peru, Ind., May 18-21; Piqua, O., May 25-28; Cambridge City, Ind., June 1-4; Ft. Wayne, Ind., June 8-11; Dayton, O., June 22-25; Columbus, O., July 1-5; Terre Haute May 11-14; South Bend, June 15-18.

We had a dream the other night,
When everything was still,
We dreamed that each subscriber,
Came up and paid his bill,
Each wore a look of honesty,
And hands us our dues.
We felt an ecstasy of soul,
Quite different from the blues,
But when we woke in consciousness,
And found it all a sham.
We felt as though our dreaming
Had not been worth a clam.

☞ A bill has been passed by the legislature providing that cities of six thousand or more inhabitants may create a police court. This bill contemplates the transfer to such court of cases that have heretofore been tried by the mayor, and gives the judges concurrent jurisdiction with justice of peace in civil cases. Each city shall determine for itself whether it will create such a court, the city council to order an election and people to elect.

☞ A Shultztown man walked into the home of his beloved sister with a goose under his arm, last week, and asked if she couldn't cook it and invite his family to dinner the next day. She readily consented; but when she went to feed her geese the next morning one of them was missing. The affectionate brother had helped himself from her flock. The two families did not dine together that day, and the big brother does not boast of "giving her the goose" any more.

☞ No man should attempt to write locals for a newspaper until he has the following phrases pat: "Laboring under a temporary fit of insanity," "Supposed to be the work of an incendiary" "Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather." "Supposed to have been foully dealt with," "Indulgent husband and affectionate parent" "The table literally groaned under the weight of delicacies." "We are proud to announce" "Greeted by an appreciative audience," "Highly instructive and amusing," "To make room for spring stock." "No reason has been assigned for the rash act."

☞ We wish it distinctly understood that the COURIER office is not a "loafing place" Hereafter no boys will be allowed to enter the composing room without first stating business and obtaining permission from the foreman. Furthermore, as this office is private property, we would inform certain fellows that the back door is open to no one but the employees of this office, and to them only working hours. Now we hope all concerned will bear in mind what we have said for if they do not we will be obliged to "talk to them" on the first transgression of our rules. To our friends who wish to inspect the office, we extend a cordial invitation to come and see us; we will be happy to show them around, but we have put our foot down on "habitual loafing" and we mean to keep it there.

☞ Our "lokel" joins in the offer of $25,000 for the dead body of the man who wrote these lines:

"If I was a lokal editor,
Wouldn't I have a time!
I wouldn't print a cussed word
For less than $ a line."

"I'd get my grub and licker free,
A tickets to the shows
I wouldn't pay for buggy hier
& wouldn't I wear good clothes."

The touching pathos of the above reminds us of the Michigan tramp's idea of running a local newspaper, volunteered at the low price of 25 cents. He said his idea was "to cram it chuck full of paying advertisements and then sell it out for nothing." We told him his services were valuable, but we presumed we were quite full—too full for utterance.

A Horrible Affair.

One of the strangest and most horrible sensational incident took place the other day at Puteaux. A party of children who were playing in the environs discovered floating in the air and partly entangled amid the branches of a tree, a white parcel upborn by means of some twenty or thirty little red toy balloon's which were attached to it. The attention of the police being called to this singular object, it was brought down and the package opened, which proved to contain the corps of a new-born infant. Investigation into the matter brought to light the followings facts:

The child was that of a poor toymaker and his wife, just after the confinement of the latter the husband had died suddenly, and all the household goods and chattels had been seized for rent. The unhaypy woman was driven mad by this accumulation of misfortunes, she killed her infant; and then went out and threw herself into the river, leaving behind her a written paper, in which she declared her intention of committing suicide, and said that she "had gotten her baby all ready to go up to heaven." A sadder tale with a stranger termination it would be hard to fine. The toy balloons evidently had formed a part of the dead husband's stock in trade.—Paris letter.

☞ Merchants if you wish to succeed in business, advertise. A merchant who advertises, can always be told from him who does not. He is generally in a happy mood. His store is constantly thronged with customers, while he who is too stingy to use printer's ink walks disconsolately up and down his stoor room, or else perambulates the streets, looking for the world as if he had lost his last friend. How can you, who do not advertise, expect people from the country to come and deal with you when they read in their county paper that your neighbor is selling goods at the lowest prices of any firm in town? You think advertising don't pay, do you? Why sir, do you not know that most of our farmers take only one or two papers at best, and that every word in those papers is carefully perused each week—advertisements and all? Such is the case, however, who is on the lookout for a good bargain, will not visit you when she sees alluring inducements held out by your more enterprising brethren in trade, who knows by experience the virtue of printer's ink.—Shake off your vain delusions—hug them no more, and make your business known to the people through the medium of the press.

☞ Benson Smith, a Chappaqua farmer, was served with meat by John Kipp, the butcher, until Mr. Kipp became satisfied that Mr. Smith did not intend to pay him, and Mr. Kipp's brother, who drives the meat wagon, became incensed at Mr. Smith's failure to settle the bill. One day last week he met Smith. Young Kipp was on the wagon delivering meat. He stopped Smith and asked him to pay up. In the parley the boy lost his temper and said, "If I was off the wagon I would take it out of you."

Mr. Smith smiled, and invited the boy to get right down and do it. The accommodating boy jumped right down and sailed in, and after he had finished Mr. Smith's countenance was a sight to behold. Young Kipp, unhurt, drove away whistling.

Mr. Smith then went before Justice St. John and sued out a warrant, and when the case was called for trial a jury was demanded. The jury having been completed, Mr. Kipp's lawyer hurriedly asked Mr. Kipp whether he had given Mr. Smith a receipt. "No," he answered in astonishment. "Then give him one." Mr. Kipp quickly complied and Mr. Smith took it in wonder.

"Now if your Honor pleases," said the lawyer, "I wish to call your attention to the fact that the assault complained to was the fulfillment of a contract duly made. The consideration was the amount of the bill, which the boy was to take in his own way out of Smith."

The Justice declined to deal with the knotty point, and turned it over to the jury, and they lost no time in deciding that the complainant had no case.

☞ Josh Billings says, "If you are going to give a man anything give it to him cheerfully and quick, don't make him get down on his knees in front of you and listen to the ten commandments and then give him five cents."

☞ When at Auburn, call at the COURIER office and examine our stock of calling cards.

SANDS OF THE DESERT IN AN HOUR GLASS.

BY H. W. LONGFELLOW.

A handful of sand, from the hot clime
Of Arab deserts brought,
Within this glass becomes the spy of Time,
The minister of Thought.

How many weary centuries has it been
About those deserts blown!
How many strange vicissitudes has seen,
How many histories known!

Perhaps the camels of the Ishmaelite
Trampled and passed it o'er,
When into Egypt from the patriarch's sight
His favorite son they bore.

Perhaps the feet of Moses, burnt and bare,
Crushed it beneath their tread;
Or Pharaoh's flashing wheels into the air
Scattered it as they sped;

Or Mary, with the Christ of Nazareth
Held close in her caress,
Whose pilgrimage of hope and love and faith
Illumined the wilderness;

Or anchorites beneath Engaddi's palms
Pacing the Dead Sea beach,
And singing slow their old Armenian psalms,
In half-articulate speech;

Or caravans, that from Bassora's gate
With westward steps depart;
Or Mecca's pilgrims, confident of fate,
And resolute in heart!

Those have passed over it, or may have passed;
Now in this crystal tower,
Imprisoned by some curious hand at last,
It counts the passing hour.

And as I gaze these narrow walls expand—
Before my dreamy eye
Stretches the desert with its shifting sand,
Its unimpeded sky.

And borne aloft on the sustaining blast,
This little golden thread
Dilates into a column high and vast,
A form of fear and dread.

And onward and across the setting sun,
Across the boundless plain,
The column and its broader shadows run,
Till thought pursues in vain.

The vision vanishes! these walls again
Shut out the lurid sun—
Shut out the hot, immeasurable plain—
The half-hour's sand is run.

JEALOUSY REBUKED.

It is almost impossible to please everybody. Mattie Glenn decided to please herself, and married Charlie Cheviot; and consequently she offended all her relations. And now they were as poor as church mice, and as happy as two babies to whom butchers' bills and house rent are mere dreams; and Providence seemed to have a special eye over them for a while, and both ends were made to meet somehow, until, one bitter winter day, Charlie slipped upon the ice, and fell heavily, breaking his leg and injuring himself, as the doctor thought, internally.

His employers were "very kind." They paid him a month's salary, and promised to keep his place for him; but, after all, that did not help the young couple to live through the long, long time which the doctor prophesied must be passed by Charlie on his back in utter helplessness. Mattie looked very dark; and as the young man drew his wife's head down upon his broad bosom, and whispered that all would end well at last, he did not quite utter his whole heart.

Had Mattie not offended her relatives, things would have been different; but the only one who would have relented—old Grandfather Glenn—was as poor as they were, and dependent on some of his rich children for support.

Alone they must fight it out. Charlie knew that.

Mattie was economical; but there were medicines and delicacies which must be had in sickness, but the little purse grew lighter every day. That thought made Charlie worse. He grew feverish was very weak. His cheeks were hollow, and a cough set in.

"Worry" kills more people than disease; and "worry" was in a fair way of killing him. Not for himself. He was a man every inch of him. He could enjoy luxury, and he could "rough it" equally well. It was for this little wife of his that he grieved and was anxious. So there he lay, bound to the wheel of helplessness, through the long days and the longer nights, and Mattie nursed him. Would she not get weary of him?

Once or twice he missed her for an hour or two in the morning; and once she was gone all the afternoon, on some errand, she said; and foolish as he knew it was, he suspected that she lingered longer than she need on purpose; and he feigned to be asleep when she returned, and felt angry, though her kiss was more tender than ever as she bent over him.

A change of some sort had come to her. Did she care no longer for him?—was she weary of nursing him? He never would have changed to her. That thought once in Charlie's mind, it weighed upon it until it seemed a truth.

Mattie came to him one evening, and said, in a half-abashed whisper, "My dear, you are so much better now, that perhaps you would not mind my leaving you for a little sometimes. I have one or two invitations for evenings, and would like to accept them."

He answered, not so much surprised as hurt, "Go, Mattie; never mind me. A sick man is poor company"—and turned on his pillow with a sigh that had as much bitterness in it as sorrow.

Mattie heard it; but perhaps she did not read its meaning. She went to her wardrobe, and took down her treasured black silk dress, and put it on. She coaxed her hair into bewitching curls upon the temples, and knotted a pink ribbon at her throat. She unfolded from their wrapper her long-hidden wedding gloves. With what a pang Charlie saw that, for they had made a compact to keep them forever. She looked at herself as one looks who wishes to appear well. Then she said, "Good night, Charlie."

He did not answer. She thought him asleep, and only touched his hair softly with her lips. His medicine and cooling drinks were at his hand, and the room was orderly and fresh. Mattie looked back at it with a little sigh, as she went. He did not hear the sigh; and, being very weak and ill, absolutely shed a dozen such tears as amount to a bucketful of those women let fall.

But he was really asleep when Mattie came back, and took off her finery, and donned the plain gray wrapper, and sat beside him until the dawn broke, taking only a few moments' doze in her chair.

He awoke from dreams in which Mattie had been doing a thousand cruel and improper things, angry and hurt, and bitter as ever. Truth and reality seemed mixed inextricably. He had dreamt that she kissed that abominable puppy, Tom Truefit; and, after tying him to a tombstone, danced over it with Capt. Corbet, with whom she had flirted in her girlhood. That seemed as true as her leaving him alone all the evening. He huffed her, an dscowled at her. He refused attentions that he needed. He would not take the cool drink from her hands. He would not let her read to him. Not until two days had passed did he relent a little, on seeing Mattie wipe her eyes by stealth, when he had been unusually cruel to her.

"She is sorry," he thought; "and it was only once, after all. There may have been some reason for it;" and he said, "Mattie, come here, dear, and sit down by me."

Then she came and held his hand in her own, fondling it and patting it, and he called himself, mentally a fool, and was growing very happy, when she said, "I must go out again to-night, dear. I have made an engagement to do so."

It was all to do over again, then. He took his hand out of hers.

"Why apologize?" he said coldly. "If you wish to go, do so."

And she replied, as sweetly as though she had not been making his heart ache, "Yes, darling, it will be as well for me not to talk about going so much, but just to go, if I have to."

And then came the dressing, and the "good-by," just as before.

Only a sick man could suffer as Charlie did that night. The mind seems to have more capacity for agony when the body is worn out.

"She does not love me," he said to himself, and he believed it from his soul. It seemed impossible that a wife, truly attached to her husband, could delight in gayety at such a time.

He was suffering. He was even in some danger—it might be, very easily. That was a night not to be forgotten. In all the time to come, he never did forget it. And Mattie, did she guess what she was doing? It seemed strange that she should not; put perhaps she really was as cold and fickle as he thought. This was but the commencement of the lonely evenings poor helpless Charlie passed upon his sick couch. Two or three times a week she left him, and did not even tell him where she went. He would not ask. Indeed, he did not care. The fact that she could be happy in such conduct was enough for him.

Three weeks had gone by since that first absence, when, lying alone in his room, Charlie heard a rap at the door, and calling, "Come in!" summoned across the threshold their landlady, in a state of excitement which seemed irrepressible. She rubbed her hands, and courtesied, and "hoped Mr. Cheviot was better;" but that was evidently not the object of her visit. That seemed to find difficulty in manifesting itself; but finally she broached the subject in the following terms:

"Your good lady is out again, sir!"

"Yes," said Charlie, shortly.

"She goes out a great deal," said the landlady.

"Yes," said Charlie again, "is that anything to you?"

"Well, sir," said the landlady, "me and the other lodgers in the house, we think it is. She's but young, and you are here on your back; and it ain't what we call proper for her to go to dancin' parties, and go home with beaux at [illegible] and I thought I'd mention it. You see, we follered one night, and we know it's dancin' parties, and that feller with mustaches comes along of her reg'lar; and—"

"Leave the room, if you please," said Charlie. "You are insulting my wife. Of course she must have an escort home when I am unable to go with her."

"Leave the room, indeed!" cried the landlady. "Well done, for them as owes a week's rent! But I won't have no lady as can leave her sick husband, and go gallavantin' with beaux, in my house long. I've got a character to keep, if she ain't."

And away hustled the landlady. As for Charlie, he was more dead than alive. He had fought his wife's battle, but he was enraged beyond expression. Jealousy nipped him fast. He thought for a moment of taking his own life. He lay back panting,

"It was that, then—she had a lover!"

He looked at the clock. She must return soon. He would see this lover with his own eyes, and then——What, he did not say, or even think. Only something horrible.

With pain and labor he got out of bed, and reached the window. There he sat looking down from the dark room into the light street.

People passed, chatting as they went. Every one was active, and well, and happy, but himself, it seemed. He moaned with grief as he sat there. He would have borne everything but the loss of her love—her neglect. An hour passed. Then a figure he knew came up the street, leaning on a tall gentleman's arm. They paused at the door.

"Adieu!" said a foreign voice.

"Good-night!" said Mattie.

"On Monday, I shall meet you again, at the same hour, madam," said the first speaker.

"Yes, I shall be there," said Mattie.

"And again adieu!" said the foreigner; and he lifted his hat, and was gone.

Mattie tripped up-stairs.

"The light out!" she cried. "My dear, are you asleep?"

Then she struck a match and set the lamp burning, and almost screamed, "Up, and at the window! Charlie, you'll kill yourself!"

"If I only do that, thank heaven for it," said Charlie. "Why should I want to live, Mattie?"

"Oh, my darling!" she cried, and came toward him.

He put her back with a wave of his hand.

"Don't feign affection," he said. "But, for all that, listen to me. I am ill and helpless, I know, I cannot command love, but I can command you not to disgrace me. Who is that man?"

"It is only Monsieur!" cried Mattie. "Oh, my dear, it is so kind of him not to let me come alone. Let me tell you——"

"Kind!" cried Charlie. "Woman, am I a fool? Evening after evening you leave me in solitude. Evening after evening you are escorted home by that fellow. I have suffered, I don't deny it. I loved you; I would have been true to you, Mattie, through all change; but you are a woman, and women are all false. But now I cast you off. Go to some of your rich relations. Tell them you have done with me; and that I have done with you. You have proved plainly that you care nothing for me. And why should you, for a miserable fellow like me, who will, probably, go limping through life? Why should you, for you never really cared for me? You——"

But there he paused, and burst into tears, and she would not be kept away any longer. She knelt at his side, and hid her wet eyes upon his arm.

"Dearest Charlie," she said, "listen to me. I did it because we were so poor. I—oh, Charlie, it is only at Madame Leroux—the dancing-school, I mean. She advertised for a lady to play the piano for her evening classes. I went; and I did not tell you lest you should be angry, at first. Besides, how could I know that I would suit? But I do; and to-night she paid me, and we need not suffer, darling, until you are well. She wants me to keep on. And it is only the gentleman who plays the violin—a grandfather, dearest—who sees me home as he passes the doorr I am timid, you know. I meant no harm, and I thought of you all the while; and see how much I have earned. To-night I meant to tell you, and thought you would be glad."

Poor Charlie! He gathered his little wife to his bosom, and they wept together.

"And I may go on?" asked the poor girl. "Just while you are ill, darling?"

Charlie could not answer; a word would have choked him.

"I did go on," said little Mrs. Cheviot, as she told the story. "For a long while my playing at the dancing-school kept the wolf from the door. But Charlie grew better, at last, and was not in the least lame. And there is no need of my playing now, except to please the babies."

And then Charlie kissed her.

British Newspapers.

George Washington Smalley writes from London to the New York Tribune:

The Daily Telegraph came out on Monday "considerably enlarged," as it has for some weeks been promising it would. The enlargement consists in adding one column to each of its pages, and lengthening each page about two and one half inches. This must occasion great distress of mind to the Standard, which has been in the habit of placarding itself all over London as the largest newspaper in the world, by way of retort to the Telegraph announcements of the largest circulation in the world. The two are now of the same size, but though each page is bigger than the Times, neither of them is or ever was, taken as a whole, so big as that leviathan among journals. They print eight pages, the Times usually sixteen. I suppose there is no disputing the Telegraph's assertion about its circulation. An eminent corps of accountants certify that the number of papers printed from Jan. 1 to Oct. 31, 1874, was 45,980,405, showing a daily average of 176,174. Both this and the Standard are now printed on Hoe presses, those of the Telegraph specially manufactured in America, and capable of producing 100,000 copies per hour, which means that they have either eight or ten [illegible] impression being 12,000 copies, per hour, and the average, I suppose, allowing for stoppages, not more than 10,000. The Daily News has quite lately equipped itself with Walter presses. Of the three the press-work on the Standard is the best. The Telegraph presses are either not yet in complete order, or the poor ink or paper is accountable for the blurred look of its pages. There must be economy somewhere when a newspaper of this size is sold at a penny. At that price it was impossible to give as much space as the Times at three-pence does the advertisers, and probably the present change is due partly to their dissatisfaction with the supplement system. Little else than advertisements was printed in the supplements, and everybody threw them away unread.

The Mysterious Circles.

Cut from a card two disks or circular pieces, about two inches in diameter; in the center of one of them make a hole, into which put the tube of a common quill, one end being even with the surface of the card. Make the other piece of card a little convex, and lay its center over the end of the quill, with the concave side of the card downward; the center of the upper card being from one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch above the end of the quill. Attempt to blow off the upper card by blowing through the quill, and it will be found imposible. If, however, the edges of the two pieces of card be made to fit each other accurately, the upper card will be moved, and sometimes it will be thrown off; but when the edges of the card are on two sides sufficiently far apart to permit the air to escape, the loose card will retain its position, even when the current of air sent against it be strong. The experiment will succeed equally well whether the current of air be made from the mouth of a pair of bellows. When the quill fits the card rather loosely, a comparatively light puff of air will throw both cards three or four feet high. When, from the humidity of the breath, the upper surface of the perforated card has a little expanded, and the two opposite sides are somewhat depressed, these depressed sides may be distinctly seen to rise and approach the upper card, directly in proportion to the current of air. Another fact to be shown with this simple apparatus appears equally inexplicable with the former. Lay the loose card upon the hand, with the concave side up, blow forcibly through the tube, and the same time bring the two cards toward each other; when within three-eighths of an inch, if the current of air be strong, the loose card will suddenly rise, and adhere to the perforated card. If the card through which the tube passes have several holes made in it, the loose card may be instantly thrown off by a slight puff of air.

Recently, while a mail from England was being distributed at the Postoffice in Toronto, some of the letters were found to be gnawed, and on investigation a mouse was found in the bag. The little fellow had come by mail across the ocean.

MOURNING AN EMPEROR.

How They Do the Thing in the Flowery Kingdom.

The London Weekly Dispatch has the following:

"The Emperor of China being dead, all his subjects, according to their rank, will be required to mourn his decease. On the proclamation of the Governor of the province, the mandarins under him not only put on mourning, but paint out the decorations on their house walls, and wrap their sedan chairs in black cloth. The common people have to shave their heads, and also to perform certain ceremonies prescribed especially for them; but as for the mandarins and loose gentry, on a second proclamation from the Governor of the province, they meet together on certain appointed days in a particular temple, to 'lift up their lamentations' for the departed monarch, whom most of these mourners never once beheld. The mode of their proceedings is in this wise: The mandarins, gentry and others entitled to take part in the ceremonial, having mustered inside the temple, slowly and silently take up each one the position prescribed for him, according to his rank, on a raised platform previously prepared. This done, a professor of ceremony appears upon the scene. Everything being ready the professor, amid profound silence, calls out in a commanding tone: 'Kneel down!' Immediately one hundred individuals, more or less, being the highest in rank and power in the province, simultaneously fall prostrate. Then the next order comes: 'Knock your heads once on the ground,' which the company immediately do. Again and again the foreheads tap the floor, and yet a third time they are required to knock and knock.

"The professor, while they are still on their hands and knees, now commands them to 'begin their lamentations,' whereupon these adult, rational beings commence to moan and weep in a whimpering, subdued tone of voice. This having been kept up for a minute or so, all are ordered to 'stop their crying,' 'rise up,' and 'disperse from their places,' which, by this time, they seem not unwilling to do. Thus ends the ceremony of 'three bowings and nine knockings.' The funniest thing connected with the whole business is that, until the Emperor's death has been officially announced from Pekin, nobody is supposed to be sorry. A steamer commonly brings the news down to a province long before the Governor's official dispatch arrives, and thus, though the Emperor's decease is perfectly well-known, everybody surprisingly commands his feelings, and goes about his business as usual. It is only when the Governor sends forth his public announcement that the land is convulsed with sudden and universal sorrow. Happy is the monarch whom the people delight to honor."

Lazyness.

Lazyness seems to be az natral az onions, and just about az helthy too.

The lame and the lazy have alwuss been provided for, the world has alwuss waited on them and alwuss will.

Lazy folks are alwuss wanting sumthing, but they ain't alwuss happy when they git it.

I hav studdyed the lazy man klusely, and the the philosophers tell us that lazyness haz ruined more folks than the measles haz, I never knu a lazy man to quite spile yet or loze enny fatt.

Lazyness iz sed to invite deviltry, but mi experience haz been that a lazy raskal kant earn days wages at mischief.

I dont luv lazy folks, I dont even respect them, but I kant help but admire the way they eat.

I never knu a lazy man yet but had a krazy appetight, and if he couldn't git sirloin stake, would take common hash, or kodphish balls for brekfast, and shove hiz plate up the sekond time for sum more.

Lazyness iz one ov the fust laws ov natur, and for that very reason, I suppose, is entitled to some compashun.

Lazy folks are generally fatt, and good natured. I hav seen them so kind, and docile, that they wouldn't even fite flies. —Josh Billings.

An English physician recently removed a section of a patient's liver, placed it on a plate, scraped it carefully, and returned it to its place, fully restored to its normal action. This promises to work a revolution in the treatment of disease, and in a few years we will have an addition to domestic literature something like this: "Husband, I wish you would take John's right lung down to the doctor this morning, and have the middle lung fixed," or, "Will you stop into the doctor's when you come home this noon, and see if he has Mary's liver mended, as she wants to go out to tea this evening." The practice will become so common in time, we are sure, that none of the neighbors will be in any way startled to see a wife, with a veil tied around her head, leaning out of a bedroom window, and shouting to a receding husband; "Jer-e-miah! Tell Dr. Scrapem to send up Willie's right kidney at once, whether it is done or not. He's had it there more'n a week, and the child might as well be without any kidney, and done with it!—Danbury News.

"Old Pomp"—Great Doings Over a Dog.

Few of your readers who have visited Georgetown and stopped at the Barton have not known something of Jim White's splendid, but aged and infirm, Newfoundland "Pomp." In his youth and prime he was a noble animal, full of life and joy, and desperately devoted to his master. It has since been plainly evident that the affection was mutual. But I sat down to tell you that "Pomp" is dead at last. Age, with its infirmities, catches dogs as it does men, and carries them away to the "hereafter" by much the same process.

On Tuesday morning about 8 o'clock he passed away. A handsome casket, silver mounted, was made, and the remains inclosed therein. As he lay in state, stretched out at full length, his head reposing as naturally as life upon his paws, scores of people who had known and loved him came to take their last farewell. At 10 o'clock Thursday morning Mr. S. W. Nott drove up to the Barton with a four-horse sleigh, and the remains were transferred to it. The horses were appropriately adorned with streamers of crape, also the ball-pearers who took charge of the ceremonies. Six large dogs, bearing crape streamers about their shaggy necks, were ranged in double file in rear of the sleigh, as mourners, and the solemn cavalcade moved slowly away to the cemetery. Arriving at the grave the venerable Stephen Decatur made a few touching remarks on the life, character, and nobility of the deceased, and was followed by one of Georgetown's prominent lawyers, Mr. N——r. Messrs. L——, P——e, and B——tt, pall-bearers, then lowered the body to its final rest. The procession then reformed, and marched directly to the Barton House and drank peace to "Old Pompey" in his happy hunting-ground. Thus after nine years of faithful devotion to his master, whose appreciation was always tender and kind, a noble brute went, let us hope, to the highest sphere of dog-heaven. Jim, his owner and friend, is inconsolable.—Georgetown Cor. Colorado Register.

Country-School Oratory.

"Solomon Smith, Jr., step up here."

Smith, a stupid-looking country boy advanced to the platform, tripped on the step, stood up, and began:

When General——

"Make your bow, sir!" interrupted Mr. Whipem.

The boy stopped short, made a jerking inclination, and went on:

When Gen. Jackson climbed the heights,

[Here he raised his feet, as if climbing.

And tore the starry banner down,

[Snatching at the air.]

He caught his foot upon a stump,
And scraped his foot from toe to crown.

During the delivery of the last lines he put on a most painful expression of countenance, and scraped his hands over his whole person.

"Well, done, Solomon," said Mr. Whipem' "go on with the next verse."

"Thar aint no next verse, sir; the moral comes next."

"Well then, give us the moral, sir."

As we rush upward on our way,
Quick hastening o'er the sod,

[Running from one side of the platform to the other.]

Some little trouble stops our way,
And down we fall, by G—d!"

"Solomon," said Whipem, as soon as he had recovered his breath, "did you write that?"

"No, sir," whimpered the boy, "Sam Jones wrote it for me. I gave him two apples for it."

"Thar," exclaimed Mr. Whipem. "I thought Sam Jones did it; he's at the bottom of every piece of mischief in the county; wait till I ketch him."—Schenectady (N. Y.) Star.

How Bar-Room Liquors Are Made.

There may be seen daily, on Chestnut street, says the Philadelphia Bulletin, a man dressed in faultless apparel, with a great diamond upon his breast, vainly endeavoring to outglitter the magnificent solitaire on his finger. In a German university he learned chemistry, and not even Liebig knows it better. His occupation is the mixing and the adulteration of liquors. Give him a dozen casks of deodorized alcohol, and the next day each of them will represent the name of a genuine wine or a popular spirit. He enters a wholesale drug store, bearing a large basket upon his arm. Five pounds of iceland moss are first weighed out to him. To raw liquor this imparts a degree of smoothness and oleaginousness that gives to imitation brandy the glibness of that which is most matured. An astringent called catechu, that would almost close the mouth of a glass inkstand, is next in order. A couple of ounces of strychnine, next called for, are quickly conveyed to the vest pocket, and a pound of white vitriol is as silently placed in the bottom of the basket. The oil of cognac, the sulphuric acid, and other articles that give fire and body to the liquid poison are always kept in store. The mixer buys these things in various quarters. They are staples of the art.

The Other Boy.

Says the New York Herald: The news that the Prince Imperial has left school is very important. We have full accounts of this event in the English papers. Royal boys are in the fashion now. One 18-year old lad has resigned his tops and velocipedes to become King of Spain. Another imperial lad is toddling on to the sacred throne of China. The Spanish boy was born in 1857, and will be eighteen next November. The young Napoleon was born in 1856, and will be nineteen this month. Accordingly, he is a year older than his royal brother, and we are glad to learn that he is number seven in his class, and the head of it in fencing and riding. So that if France wants a sovereign here is a new Emperor ready on the verge of his nineteenth year, who can fence and ride, and who will, if allowed, do as much for France, "by the grace of God," as his royal brother Alfonso is doing for Spain.

OUR FIRST BABY.

Drop from a fountain unfailing!
Into the world here with wailing.
Come at the time of a crisis—
Flickering the light in his eyes is;
Flesh, of a putty consistence;
Eyebrows, of faintest existence;
Nose, just the slightest suspicion;
Body in limpest condition—
This is my boy, and a dear one;
Possibly so, but a queer one.
Had he been larger I'd rather;
Nevertheless, I'm a father.
Pride my whole spirit is filling;
Rapture my body is thrilling—
What makes him wiggle so? Stop him
Look how he twists! You might drop him.

Gown, of the longest and widest;
Lace of the airiest and lightest;
Cap, which they tell me just suits his Features, and socks on his "footsies;"
Ribbons of blue tie his sleeves up—
Bless us! see here how he heaves up!
Surely the terrible glutton
Hasn't a paunch worth a button.
Nurse, take the fellow! He's drowned me!
Odor of fresh milk around me—
See! he has deluged my waistcoat,
Utterly ruined my best coat.
Yiouck! once again—goodness gracious!
That comes of being voracious.
Carry him off to his mother,
Tell her I don't want another.

Stay for a moment, for maybe
I may have been such a baby—
New-comer just such as this is,
Smothered by virginal kisses,
Full as admiringly dandled,
Full as tenderly handled.
Wonder if he will—it might be—
Six feet and one in his height be;
Wonder if he there will marry—
Wonder if to him they'll carry
Just such a baby as this is,
Smothered by young women's kisses,
Baby admiringly dandled,
Mannikin tenderly handled;
Wonder—Oh, stuff! let the thing go!
I am a father, by Jingo!

FARM AND HOME.

Our Little Milk-Maid.

Who's that coming to the snow?
Our little milk-maid; don't you know?
From the valley just below.

See her spray-like ringlets blow;

Watch her catch the falling snow.

What if I might shape her fate!
Would she have a grand estate,
And a famed and lordly mate?

Pearlie such a fortune? No!

All her little sorrows heal—

Such for Pearlie would I crave;
A happy home, an honored grave,
Give our little milk-maid brave.

Minor Farm Topics.

The hog may not be thoroughly posted in arithmetic, but when he comes to a square root he is there—the hog is.

Manures of all kinds, or highly concentrated manures, should be kept in basements or under sheds till drawn to the field.

Three bushels of good sand, mingled with half a bushel of cement, makes an excellent mortar, which is not liable to be dislodged by storms.

In the manufacture of liquid manures, fill a barrel half full of pigeon, hen, or fresh manure from the cow stable, clean from straw; mix in two quarts of salt, and add the water. The salt kills the insects in the manure, and is of benefit as a fertilizer.

Paraffine is recommended in an English journal for waterproofing boots. The writer adds: "Melt thoroughly the paraffine, and having well warmed the boot, apply the paraffine with a brush or piece of flannel before a fire, to allow of the leather absorbing the liquid. I have tried the above, and it answers admirably, resisting snow-water during a week's shooting."

We have some big land-owners in America, but Abd-el-Kader-el-Kerim beats them. He is the richest land-owner in the province of Constantine, and he also owns 2,500 horses, 17,000 mules, 120,000 oxen and sheep. He is a great hunter, and keeps a pack of hounds numbering 250; beside these he has 60 of a fancy breed, which are used in the chase of the gazelle.

The London Omnibus Company have lately made a report which discloses some interesting information not only to farmers but to every owner of a horse. They have in use no less than 6,000 horses; of this number 3,000 had for their feed—bruised oats, 16 pounds; cut hay, 7½ pounds; straw, 2½ pounds; and the others, unbruised oats, 19 pounds, uncut hay, 13 pounds. The horses which were fed on the former, and consumed 26 pounds per day, could do the same work as well, and were kept in as good condition, as those receiving 32 pounds, thereby causing a saving of 6 pounds on each horse, amounting to £60 per day, or $22,300 per annum on the company's 6,000 horses.

Wild castor-beans being suspected as a cause of the loss of several head of stock in Southwestern Kansas, the Legislature is taking the matter in hand, with a view to protecting live stock against it. The committee appointed to investigate the subject referred it to Prof. W. K. Kedzie, chemist of the State Board of Agriculture, for an analysis of the bean. The result is, that it contains no other matters than those common to all castor beans, but that one of these matters is an acrid principle which acts as a powerful cathartic, and sometimes also as an equally powerful emetic, so powerful as to be fatal. Prof. Kedzie had been collecting data upon this point from his students for some time previously, and was ready to give an intelligent answer.

The method employed by professional workers in hair-curling is as follows: Wet the hair to be curled, wrap it smoothly around a cylindrical stick or tube of proper size, tie it in place; then put it in water and boil it two or three hours; remove it from the boiler, wrap it carefully in a newspaper, and bake it in a moderate oven for an hour. Thus treated, it will stay in curl permanently.

Pickled Oysters.—Select one quart of fine large oysters. Put them over the fire in a saucepan, and let them boil two minutes. Then remove the oysters with a fork into a deep dish. Take two teacupfuls of the liquid in the saucepan; add to it one cupful of vinegar, a few blades of mace, a teaspoonful of unground black pepper; the same quantity of allspice. Simmer together over the fire, and pour over the oysters. Serve them cold.

A Laundry Secret.—Take two ounces of fine white gum arabic powder, put it into a pitcher and pour on it a pint or more of water, and then, having covered it, let it stand all night. In the morning, pour it carefully from the dregs into a clean bottle and cork it, and keep it for use. A tablespoonful of gum water in a pint of starch made in the usual manner, will give to lawns, either white or printed, a look of newness, when nothing else can restore them after they have been washed.

A genuine erasive soap that will remove grease and stains from clothing is made as follows: Two pounds of good Castile soap; half a pound of carbonate of potash, dissolved in half a pint of hot water. Cut the soap in thin slices, boil the soap with the potash until it is thick enough to mold in cakes; add alcohol, half an ounce; camphor, half an ounce; hartshorn, half an ounce; color with half an ounce of pulverized charcoal.

As a rule, warm water and a soft cloth are all that is required to keep glass in good condition; but water bottles and wine decanters, in order to keep them bright, must be rinsed out with a little muriatic acid, which is the best substance for removing the "fur" which collects in them. The acid is far better than ashes, sand, or shot; for the ashes and sand scratch the glass, and if any shot is left in by accident, the lead is poisonous. Richly-cut glass must be cleansed and polished with a soft brush, upon which a very little fine chalk or whiting is put; by this means the luster and brilliancy are preserved.

Around the World.

The Wilmington (Del.) Gazette has the following: "Mr. Mark Grason of Richmond, Va., is now in this city training for the prodigious and hitherto unattempted feat of walking around the world. Several weeks ago Mr. Grason, backed by Leon Macarthy, entered into a wager of $25,000 with J. P. Wilkinson and Thomas L. Murdock (the parties being all from Richmond, Va.) that he could walk around the world in 600 days. The distance to be included in the entire route is 19,226 miles, which will make a daily average of a little over thirty-two miles. Under the terms of the agreement, which have been accepted and signed, Grason is to start from the City Hall, New York, on Saturday, April 3, 1875, and to return to the same place Thursday, Nov. 23, 1876. Part of his trip will be on the ocean steamers, during which time he will make up his daily average by walking on ship-board. He will be accompanied by Mr. Macarthy and some persons to be sent out by the other parties to the wager. The exceptions included in the agreement are delays occasioned by assault or unavoidable accidents. Mr. Grason is twenty-eight years old, five feet seven inches high, weighs 136 pounds, and has been known in Richmond in the various capacities of an actor, author and pedestrian. During the excitement occasioned by Weston's walks, he started out in the pedestrian line, and soon accomplished a walk of 100 miles in twenty-four hours. During the Seymour and Blair campaign, in 1868, he walked from Richmond to Omaha, Neb., a distance of about 1,500 miles. He carried the Stars and Stripes, and made 123 Democratic speeches on the way at various places. He now claims to be the champion pedestrian of the world."

The Black Hills—How to Get There.

[From the Sioux City Journal.]

The region known as the Black Hills is situated in Western Dakota, with their southern slope stretching into Wyoming Territory, their southern extremity extending within fifty miles of the northwest corner of Nebraska, and their northern limits touching on Montana Territory. While within the Black Hills proper there is a vast extent of very rich grazing and agricultural lands, abundance of timber and water, to approach them from anywhere in the Eastern States the traveler must pass through a strip of country varying in width, and generally destitute of water and vegetation. Taking Harney's Peak, near which the richest gold discoveries were made by Custer's miners, as our objective point, and measuring the distance as shown by the government maps, we are enabled to furnish the following table of distances from important frontier points:

	Miles.
From Bismarck to Harney's Peak	261
From North Platte, Neb., to Harney's Peak	234
From Fort Pierre, Dak., to Harney's Peak	163
From Cheyenne, Wyoming, to Harney's Peak	201
From Fort Randall, Dak., to Harney's Peak	158
From Brule City, Dak., to Harney's Peak	192

Of the six starting points above named, the route via Brule City, Dak., is the best and is really the only feasible one. Say for example, a Chicago man desires to go to the Black Hills. He must travel by some one of three railroad routes, [illegible]

	Miles.	Fare.
Chicago to Bismarck, Dak	1,000	$40.85
Chicago to Cheyenne, Wyoming	1,100	48.30
Chicago to Yankton, Dak	500	19.65

Probabilities of Population.

There are going to be some disappointments in 1900, if the orators who used to blow about the probability of there being 100,000,000 inhabitants in this country at that epoch survive to see it. It is easy to fall into the error of supposing that the rapid ratio of increase in a new country is going to last forever. The presumption is going the rounds, in connection with the petition for a mint in Chicago, that, as the six States of Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska and Wisconsin have now a population of 5,700,000, and have increased at the rate of 64 per cent. in the last decade, they will therefore have a population of 25,000,000 in 1900. But in the light of the lessons of the census and of the constantly decreasing ratio of growth, we should say that these States will feel very self-congratulatory in 1900 if they have a population then as large as they had in 1870.—Springfield Republican.

The test of time and experience is the only sure guide in selecting an instrument. We advise all sufferers to send to the above company for descriptive circulars, as these trusses are sent to all parts of the country by mail.

American Women.—It is a melancholy fact that American women have degenerated in point of health and physique, until they have become literally a race of invalids. How sad it is to look around us and compare the frail and effeminate-looking lady of to-day with the hale, hearty, and buxom ladies of days gone by. To all such the late discovery of Dr. Walker, of California, which is known as Vinegar Bitters, is a priceless boon indeed. For this class of diseases it is certain and safe, and any lady, old or young, can take it with entire confidence in the result, and thus avoid what to thousands is a stumbling block never overcome, viz.—a consultation with a family physician. 'Tis true there may be cases of years' standing that will necessitate more powerful treatment; but in nine cases out of ten this remedy will reach the disease, and after a little time effect a cure. The number of ladies cured by it are numbered by thousands, and are scattered through every State in the Union. 26

Blood Diseases.

The blood being the source from which our systems are built up and from which we derive our mental as well as physical capabilities, it is important that it should be kept pure. If it contains vile festering poisons all organic functions are weakened thereby. Settling upon important organs, as the lungs, liver or kidneys, the effect is most disastrous. Hence it behooves every one to keep their blood in a perfectly healthy condition, and more especially does this apply at this particular season of the year than at any other. No matter what the exciting cause may be, the real cause of a large proportion of all diseases is bad blood. Now Dr. Pierce does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it, on the contrary there are hundreds of diseases that he acknowledges it will not cure; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden Discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs, or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous Diseases.

[illegible]—HIP JOINT DISEASE CURED.

W. Grove Station, Ia., July 14, 1872.

Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir: My wife first became lame nine years ago. Swellings would appear and disappear on her hip, and she was gradually becoming reduced, and her whole system rotten with disease. In 1871 a swelling broke on her hip, discharging large quantities, and since that time there are several openings. Have had five doctors at an expense of $125, who say nothing will do any good but a surgical operation.

July 16, 1873, he writes thus: My wife has certainly received a great benefit from the use of your Discovery, for she was not able to get off the bed and was not expected to live a week when she commenced using it, a year ago. She has been doing most of her work for over six months. Has used twenty bottles and still using it. Her recovery is considered as almost a miracle, and we attribute it all to the use of your valuable medicine. I can cheerfully [illegible] restorer. J. M. Robinson.

Dr. Wilhoft's Anti-Periodic or Fever and Ague Tonic!—Wilhoft's Tonic has established itself as the real infallible Chill cure. It is universally admitted to be the only reliable and harmless Chill medicine now in use. Its efficacy is confirmed by thousands of certificates of the very best people from all parts of the country. It cures malarious diseases of every type, from the shaking agues of the lakes and valleys to the raging fevers of the torrid zone. Try it! It has never been known to fail. Wheelock, Finlay & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans. For sale by all druggists.

It is a rare thing that physicians give any countenance to a medicine the manufacture of which is a secret. About the only exception we know of is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. This, we believe, all indorse, and many of them use it in their practice with great success.

Persons requiring purgatives or pills should be careful what they buy. Some pills not only cause griping pains, but leave the bowels in a torpid, costive state. Parsons' Purgative Pills will relieve the bowels and cleanse the blood without injury to the system.

Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA MARCH 18, 1875

☞The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate run up a bill of $4,687 90 in burying Sumner. Mr. French, it is feared, put a portion of that sum in his pocket.

☞The Beecher-Tilton trial still progresses with no particular interesting developments. When this most disgusting scandal shall have been removed from the world's stage, angels in heaven will rejoice.

☞Andy Johnson did not make that Pinchback speech, If he will show whether or not Pinchback has been a citizen of the United States more than seven years, he will settle a question now in shadow.

☞The people who have been prosecuting Mr. Tilton in a Brooklyn Court discover now that they have been hunting up the questionable record of a Theo. H. Tilton who has not brought suit against Mr. Beecher.

☞Casey—brother-in-law Casey—should be yanked up for violation of the Civil rights law. He declines the seat in the senate which Pinchback cannot obtain, on general principle that it is disgraceful for a Caucasian to take a "nigger's leavin's."

☞The Ohio Grangers have petitioned the Legislature to enact the bill cutting down official salaries of all kinds. The Grangers mean business but they are in a fair way to make themselves obnoxious—to office holders.

☞That $7,000 which "old subsidy" Pomeroy put in the hands of a henchman to start a bank with, but which one Yorke alleged was used in an attempt to bribe him to vote for "old subsidy," has at last been returned to the owner. It was a queer transaction.

☞Brother Marine was a trifle premature, yesterday, in his congratulations of Providence for the marvellous preservation of the Baxter law.—The counsels of the ungodly have prevailed, it appears, and the flow of lager will not be interrupted by the stern hand of law.

☞The preparation for the municipal elections in Indianapolis are already in a state of gratifying forwardness, and promise a goodly amount of excitement for the approaching canvass. Municipal elections are usually of the utmost importance to the immediate community, and engender more bitter animosities than a heated presidential contest.

☞A compromise temperance bill was passed at the close of the extra session, after being kicked from one house to the other during the regular session. Three republicans coming to its support, and advocating it with a great deal of ability. Local option was defeated, its advocates wrangled and clamored for an adjournment to kill time, but the anti-locals would call for the ayes and noes and thwart them. We will publish the law entire in our next weeks issue, so that our subscribers by preserving the paper can refer to it at any time.

☞The Ohio Senate, on Friday last, passed a bill repealing the law which gives to municipal authorities the power to prohibit the sale of ale, beer and wine. Under the law, made in contravention of existing State law, village Councils were able to adopt what is known as the McConnellsville ordinance. The State bill to which we refer takes away the power of Councils to prohibit, but gives them the power to regulate the traffic in ale, beer and wine. It is to be hoped that the bill will pass the House.

☞As we predicted, those republican roosters were trotted out a trifle prematurely. New Hampshire has not given so signal a victory to that party as one might have been led to expect by what was said about it.—The governor has not been elected, and who it is to be will depend entirely upon the political complexion of the new legislature. As this is still unsettled, there is still doubt as to the final result. It is pretty certain that two of the three congressmen are democrats, which is a gain of one, over the last election. As far as one is able to determine by the evidence at this time accessible, there seems to have been no very decided reaction in public opin

☞In a late number of the Indianapolis Globe we notice an editorial paragraph in which the word "infernal" does not occur. We should at once infer that the gifted editor was ill if it were not that he presents his readers with a vigorous editorial endorsement of the work of the Cleveland idiots. So long as the Globe is consistent in its advocacy of a paper money, based on nothing no one need anticipate a lucid interval.

☞The demoralized Republican party of Cincinnati has attempted to seduce Messrs. Moses F. Wilson and Fred Johnson into accepting a nomination for Public Court Judge on their hybrid ticket. But these gentlemen, having submitted their claims to the Democratic Convention, have too much self-respect and principle to lend themselves to such a scheme. Overtures of the same description have been made to Judge Saffen, an old Democrat, and a true one. He will not aid the common enemy to divide and distract the party with which he has been identified for so many years.

☞If the constitutionality of the new civil rights bill is not speedily put to the test of the courts, it will certainly not be for the want of test cases.—Almost every city, town and village in the country has its civil rights cases As if by a concerted movement, the negroes have everywhere attempted to reap the new and wonderful benefits conferred by the act. They have besieged the theatres, saloons, hotels, and railroad coaches. They have interposed their sable features in the barber shop under the hallucination that the tonsorial artists therein would embark in wood clipping. In a majority of these cases, the blacks have been defeated and of course they have demanded redress. The new law will probably be decided to be unconstitutional.

☞Yesterday evening a "poor lone widow" accompanied by a "wee bairn with a cough suggestive of being manufactured for the occasion, came into the Sentinel office. The woman carried a book in which it was stated that she had been induced to come to America by friends here, [illegible] husband running off left her with one child to provide for. Being sick she was obliged to hire a wet nurse, and the latter had so depleted her purse that now she was obliged to rely on the cold charity of a cold world, etc., etc. Yet in face of this, were subscriptions on the book for almost fabulous sums, as it were. Among the most prominent was one from President Grant, who in the fullness of his heart had actually given her, out and out, the princely sum of ten cents—in delapidated currency. Thus is that generous man kept impoverished, and his $50,000 salary won't go far, you may be sure. Not to be outdone, the woman departed richer by $0,000.25 than when she came.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

☞We have refrained from giving any expression in regard to the Brooklyn scandal, expecting that the defense would produce evidence, somewhat in proportion to the reputation of the defendant. A man that has labored in a church for twenty-seven years, surrounded by a great brother-hood with not even a breath of suspicion on his fair name, and during all those years not even a deacon's meeting being called to settle any trouble in the church he calls his child; one that he has reared to giant proportions, and loved as a father loves his children and through his talents and kindness has secured the great love of all these people; coming into court with this great influence one would naturally suppose he would bring evidence with him, sufficent to crush all opposition to the purity and holiness of his character; but the main thing in the defence thus far, has been to prove that Tilton has been guilty of the same thing charged against the defendant. How the plaintiff's shortcomings can establish innocence of defendant lawyers as well as common sense, people fail to perceive. If Tilton was a profligate man, and that his wife was unhappy on that account, would it not strengthen the case, in its probabilities, against the defendent? Men versed in human nature, and Judges of courts know the fact, that the greatest danger to a womans fidelity, is the belief in her husbands infidelity. Under the precedent in other cases, the learned council for the defence, are probably reserving their most important testimony to close up with. Should the Albany Legislature pass an act making the wife's testimony admissible, it is more than likely, that the public will have another long and tedious recital from Mrs. Tilton, and Beecher, as a fresh and final conclusion of the testimony in this case. Verily the end cometh not yet.

WE fear that some of our readers are not aware of the fact, we want to say that there was a very severe snow storm last Tuesday.

If the old saying is true, about the coming in, and going out of March, we hope it will make its lamb-like exit pretty soon

Wash McConnell, Esq., of Angola, gave us a call yesterday, while on his way to the Chicago Junction over the "rattling" B. & O.

SEVERAL signs took a down-fall last Monday night. The wind was strong, with a light rain, and a clap of thunder every now and then.

Geo. Patterson, worked hard last Monday, to keep the water out of his cellar. The most miserable ditch in the city lies in front of his residence.

As moonlight nights and warm weather will soon be with us, we would suggest to the young ladies that they have the front gates in good order.

WE neglected to say, last week, that our citizens sent to the Kansas sufferer, Mr. Plummer, twenty-five dollars in money and large quantities of meat, &c.

A team belonging to Mr. Rowly ran away last week, attached to a pair of bob sleds, on South Main street. We did not learn how much damage was done.

THE house formerly occupied by Mrs Fair is now vacant, and will be moved from its present location, to make room for the store building of Albright and Eaton.

THE editor left last Monday for an excursion trip South. He was quite sick when he started, but would have gone if he knew he had to return on a "shutter."

SPRING becoming ashamed of having winter linger in her lap so long, has given the hoary-headed fellow a push, and sent him to his own proper resting place.

A careless driver came very near getting killed crossing the Eel River road, one day last week. People should be more careful, especially when the train is but a few rods away.

THE Ligonier Banner came out with a supplement last week. J. B. is a first-class newspaper man, and the Banner is acknowledged everywhere as being the leading paper in Noble county.

SAID she: "How long are you going to stand before that glass?" Said he: "Until I see how my ulster hangs. But that's just the way; a woman never takes any interest in her husband's dress after she's been married a year."

Sol, Barney, of Spencerville, that good natured, funny Sol, gave our city a glimps of his phiz last week. He reports things on the move at Spencerville, and anticipates a large dry goods trade the coming season.

Mr. Knour, with Loomis & Co, in the dry goods and grocery business at Corunna, is now conducting one of the finest trades in Northern Indiana. It is a self-made business and is bound to "stand the storm."

Miller & Casebeer are renovating their store room, varnishing and fixing up generally. If all of our merchants had the same "get-up" about them that this firm has we could double our present trade in one months time.

OUR lively and energetic young townsman, Frank Benedict, is furnishing up his store room for the purpose of opening out a confectionery store. Frank is one of those lively jovial kind of chaps, and we are certain of his success.

Thos. Scott, so long in the employ of Wm. Richmond, of this place, has sailed to Milford in Kosciusco county, to conduct a dry goods house, for the above gentleman He will be missed to some extent among his associates.

LOST.—We will pay a fair reward for a newfoundland dog, that was lost near Butler, this county, some time ago. Call at the COURIER office. The owner will look for him in a short time, and we give this notice so that no trouble will be had

WE notice quite a number of improvements going on, such as barns, woodsheds &c., on the different streets. If it is possible, we will try and write up all the buildings, as fast as they are erected during the coming season.

Miss Sally Shaw, informs us that the spring trade for millinery work looks quite promising. Miss Orpha Bodine and and her employees are very busy in the dress making department, and a lively feeling prevails among the ladies in H. H. Stamets fancy store.

Examination of Teachers.

After March 1st, 1875, and until further notice, examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday in each month, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month.

A large number of our citizens could be seen strolling up and down the streets on Sunday last. We will wager a nickel that not one woman, who had a new rig on stayed in the house twenty-five minutes during the day, leaving out meal hours. What do you say?

OUR old hard working neighbor, Isaac Roth, Esq., is hauling brick for a new residence. We are glad to see such industrious men push ahead, and in their old days have a commodious and comfortable home to enjoy themselves in.

THERE is a rumor afloat that the Presbyterians are preparing to change ministers. We have heard nothing said about the present pastor except in his favor. But a change of pasture, &c., you know.

WE learn from the Steuben Republican that the Rev. Mr. Lamport, formerly of our place, received a donation from the citizens of Angola. The occasion was a grand one, and the young people added much to the success of the entertainment.

LAST Monday, the editorial (?) excursion destined for the everglades of Florida, the bayous of Louisiana, and the cotton fields of Mississippi, started from Indianapolis. The manager of the exploring expedition is Mr. Ainsworth superintendent of the house of refuge—not to mention the ubiquitous Tom Mays. The excursionists will be gone about two weeks. Ft. Wayne Sentinel.

WE dropped into our enterprising neighbors, Messrs. Miller & Casebeer, the other evening and were shown some of the finest clothing that ever was spread over any counter in Auburn before. They are simply handsome, and very cheap. We would advise all our readers to call on this firm before buying their spring clothing.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Mays, editor of the Courier, was made the recipient of a handsome diamond pin valued at $175, by the clerks of his department in the House of Representatives, on Monday evening of last week. The affair took place at the Hotel Bates, and James E. Baker, of Vincennes, made the presentation speech.

Our friend Ed. Eldridge, of the Central Grocery, is receiving a fresh line of groceries and wooden and willow-ware for the spring trade; also canned goods in abundance. Give Ed. a call.

THE ladies social of the Presbyterian church, will meet next Wednesday after noon and evening, with Mrs. J. L. Davis These socials are highly entertaining and enjoyable, and it is desired to have a full attendance on this occasion. Everybody and their friends is cordially invited to be present.

WE learn that a little confab was had at Mr. Metz's boarding house on Main street the other day, wherein a lady of the name of Mrs. Jones was accidentally kicked on the wrist and badly injured. The person that done the kicking made off at a rapid rate, and has not been seen or heard of since.

MR. JAMES H. CULBERTSON, formerly of Ligonier, Ind., has opened out a restaurant and boarding house at Kendallville, and is doing a paying business. While one of Captain Idding's "boys" in the Provost office, at that place, during the war, the writer had occasion to make the acquaintance of Mr. C. "May he live long and prosper."

THE enterprising Baker Bros., on Eighth street, are now running a delivery wagon, and persons buying goods at this house will have them delivered free of charge. During the summer they will pass their bread around to each house in the city that wish to buy of them. Step by step we are moving on in the way of enterprise and improvement, and ere long Auburn will be the "boss."

CONSTABLE Rosenberry tried to sell a team of horses, wagon and harness, last Saturday, supposed to belong to Samuel Puffenberger, and the harness was bid off at $1.50, horses $9 a piece, and the wagon at $9.75. If there had been nine months credit on the rig it would have brought about two hundred and fifty dollars. It was not disposed of however to the bidder.

Mr. Johnny Young, in the employ of Wm. Richmond, of this place, scooped the Waterloo chaps in the spelling contest, last Tuesday evening. He was the only person from our place who went to Waterloo, but still he done just as well as a thousand, he put 'em all down. They refused the prize for some reason or other, but Johnny has stumped them for another "spell," and the dictionary will be cheap at two trials.

Now as spring is open and many of our citizens are contemplating building, we would advise them to secure good, substantial men to perform the work. Wm. Sherlock is one of our leading contractors and builders, and is now prepared to do any kind of work in the carpenter and joiner line with satisfaction guaranteed. Parties who intend to build should call on this gentleman and learn his style and prices for doing work before letting the same.

Rev. David Tatum, of Cleveland, Ohio, will address the people of Auburn on the subject of temperance at the M. E. Church on Tuesday evening, March 23d. Rev. Mr. Tatum was formerly superintendent of the Home of the Friendless, but for the last five years has been lecturing upon temperance. Ministers of all denominations unite in recommending him as an earnest, zealous, logical and instructive speaker. Our citizens are assured of a rare entertainment and are cordially invited to be present.

MORTON is still laboring for the admission of Pinchback, but it is believed without hope. It is stated that Pinchback was once offered a bribe of $30,000 if he would stand by the McEnery government, but he refused, prefering to be Senator in Congress under the Kelloggites as they had promised. The President's choice was for brother-in-law, and Grant has been scheming to keep the ebony Louisianian out, and work brother-in-law in. Why should not Morton run him for President in 1876.

As the season for croup is now at hand —that is when it is most prevalent—we give the following receipe, which we clip from an exchange. There is no harm in trying it: "Croup can be cured in one minute, and the remedy is simply alum and sugar. The way to accomplish the deed is to take a knife, or grater, and shave off in small particles about a teaspoonfull of alum and mix it with twice its quantity of sugar, to make it palitable and administer it as quick as possible. Almost instaneous relief will follow.

WE hope that our citizens will all turn out to-day at the Methodist dinner and supper. The arrangements, if carried out, will make it a fine affair. Our merchants should all patronize this enterprise, not only in donating something, but by going to the hall and getting their meals. The object of this is to aid Mr. Welch, their minister, and as this is the first time our Methodist people have had a donation for a long time, we think that everybody should take hold of the matter and make it one long to be remembered. The young ladies who canvassed the town to see what our citizens "was made off" gave credit to their undertaking, and every family in the place was visited sometime during the fore part of the week.

OLD FASHIONED SPELLING SCHOOL.

A Lively Time at Ensley's Hall!

A Large Crowd in Attendance.

AUBURN SPELLERS AHEAD!

THE spelling school epidemic broke out in Auburn last Saturday evening at Ensley's Hall, and was the occasion of a large gathering of all classes of our citizens. W. L. Penfield, Esq., called the meeting to order, announced the programme, and stated that the business of the evening would now begin. Two captains having been previously appointed by a committee of arrangements, took their places and chose sides for the conflict. After an hour of amateur spelling, and a short recess, the contest for the prizes commenced with about fifty combatants. A few rounds brought down the poor spellers, and then the interest deepened, and under excitement many good spellers dropt down on easy words. At half-past eleven o'clock seven contestants were on the floor, determination and victory stamped upon every lineament of the countenance, and as our polite and good looking pronouncer took in the situation very properly suggested an adjournment, rather than violate the Sabbath, which was granted until the following Monday evening.

Passing over the spiritual manifestations, such as the moving of chairs, etc., which was exhibited before the hall was left desolate, we would remark that the spelling school is a good place in which to study human nature. The person who rises to spell has his measure taken by his auditors. He may be a pompous man in community, a sharp talker, and a business man, but he dreads the exposure of bad spelling. A person may be polite, and move in society with that easy grace and refinement that would convey the idea of scholarship and lofty attainments, but let him stand up to spell and go down on an easy word, and his prestige departs, and all his easy assurance deserts him, and he passes current at a very much depreciated value. To pass through the ordeal of a spelling school successfully requires that nerve, calmness and self assurance, that few possess.

The contest was renewed on Monday evening, and the seven combatants arranged themselves nearly facing each other, and awaited with breathless interest the opening of the spelling book.—Gradually the battle narrowed down to two spellers. The one, slow, careful and deliberate, the other, more excitable, but professionally schooled in opposition, keen, resolute and fearless. At first, they eyed each other with savage fierceness, as if the contest was to be decided by physical strength, but that expression soon gone, gave place to timidity, and it was evident that each was afraid of the other. The hour becoming late, the one on whom our hopes were centered purposely missed a word, which left his antagonist the victor, who marched off in triumph with the key that unlocks the great storehouse of knowledge on one arm, and something more beautiful and priceless on the other, of which we could not do justice in describing. While his friend that made him the recipient of the first prize, contented himself with the prize of all prizes —the key that opens the portals of a better and a brighter world.

1st prize, - - C. D. Hare,
2d " - - - H. C. Peterson,
3d " - - - Mrs. Casebeer.

Books, Books, Good Books, and Cheap Books!

All those that are fond of reading good and interesting books, be sure and call on W. M. Boughan, who is now canvassing the county for one of the most interesting books now published. It should and does interest all mankind, the title of which is the Second Coming of Christ, or the Restitution of all Things, which should receive the candid and serious thought of all christendom, as we are most assuredly living in the latter days and the most momentous period of the world.

The Event of the Season.

The Athenaeum Company are now preparing to produce the beautiful picture of love and life in New York city, entitled "Under the Gaslight," introducing the grand Pier Scene, also the terrific Railroad Scene, with a train of cars crossing the stage at lightning speed. They have been to considerable expense for new scenery, properties, wardrobe and printing, making it the event of the season. The scenery was painted expressly for them by an artist of ability, and everything to make it a success procured. We hope the people will appreciate their efforts to please. Remember the time and place for playing, March 25th and 26th, at Ensley's Hall.

LAST week Dutcher's household goods performed the wonderful feat of turning somersaults through the front door. He had taken possession of Mr. Brandon's house without consent of the owner, and when Geo. found it thus he done as any man would, gave him a "set out." The evidence was given in favor of Mr. B. throughout the testimony of the different witnesses, but the jury assessed his fine at 25 cents. It looks kind o' funny how this comes thus, but the law has crooks and turns that the devil couldn't figure out on a twenty foot blackboard.

THE last Waterloo Press feels jubilant over the New Hampshire election, and exhibits the rooster bravely; but the final returns do not show much cause for rejoicing. The Democracy carried the State by five or six hundred majority on the popular vote, elected two Congressmen out of three, being a gain of one, and rendered it certain that if the election goes to the House of Representatives that New Hampshire will vote for the Democratic candidate for president. That must have been a Butler rooster,—it can't crow worth a cent.

A long and severely cold winter has passed away, and an early and favorable spring is anticipated by all who observe the signs of the times. Yet many of our people feel a little despondency, particularly over the continued hard times and apathy in all branches of productive industries. Farmers in this vicinity complain that the prospect for an average crop of wheat is extremely doubtful. The excessive drought last season that continued till very late in the fall, prevented farmers from sowing the average number of acres of wheat, and what was sown did not obtain sufficient root to warrant an abundant growth. Many say they despair of raising hardly wheat enough for their own use. Yet in other localities the crop appears promising and gives evidence of a large yield. This is in localities in the county where the soil is of such quality as to resist the effects of a drought.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable outlook as to a wheat crop, farmers have been generally prosperous. Produce of all sorts has commanded fair prices, and butter, eggs, potatoes, wool, etc., have been in active demand and have sold at war rates. The very great fall of snow during the past winter is regarded with favor by agriculturists. Snow is looked upon as a valuable fertilizer, and in general as advantageous to winter crops. In our city the manufacturing industries are assuming new life, and nearly all the establishments are making preparations to increase their capacity for doing business, and many have already resumed work on full time. Our merchants and dealers are generally prosperous. Very few failures have occurred during the hard times, and those dealers who have weathered the storm are doing a largely increased business. The price of real estate has declined a trifle, and rents are not so excessive as one year ago, all of which renders the outlook much more favorable to the laboring man and mechanic, upon whose prosperity depend the wealth and growth of any city or country.

Preparations are in rapid progress in our city to erect a much larger number of dwellings and business houses than usual, and our capitalists are investing their money in local industries. On the whole, the outlook is regarded as furnishing unmistakable evidences that the crisis has passed, and a general revival of all branches of industries has already commenced in our city and county.

Laws of Health.

BY JOHN M. SHUTT, M. D.

We are far from desiring a return to those days of patriarchial simplicity, or to this pythagorian diet so opposite to our present condition, our manners and our elements.

The complicated organization of man requires a variety of nourishing and restorative aliments. An uncomplete diet only sustains a part of the organs, and if it is continued other organs will be injured. But will our meals be less savory when their natural qualities have not been destroyed by aromatics? Will our existence be less agreeable when we disengage ourselves from everything that may injure or shorten our lives? If we do not exercise those tumultuous pleasures, those insatiate joys, those consuming passions which torment the multitude, we will no longer have their low spirits, their grief, anguish, distastes for life, nor the diseases which consume them. On the contrary, we will possess vigor, health; we will experience pure pleasures, noble emotions, elevation of self, power of mind, friendship and devotion. Qualities which were so common with the ancients, but are so rare with us. Life is a treasure in our hands, it depends upon ourselves to preserve it, or to quickly consume it. A long life, exempt from infirmities, is generally the price of a simple and natural course of regimen. The mind, also, has its necessities, and the more it is cultivated the greater and more numerous became their necessities. Thus assemblies, diversions, recreations, the fine arts, music, everything which responds to our legitimate aspirations without injury to the tranquil mind or to the health, is not prohibited. Hygiene, like morality, only condemns errors and excesses. We cannot shun death, but it is easy to extend the bounds of life. It is better to prevent disease than to cure it. We should live without fearing death. To fear death is never to enjoy life, but to be always dying; it is more frightful to be always anticipating it than to receive it.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

A DISPATCH from St. Johns, N. F., says: "Tuesday, March 2, the ship Violetta, from France to St. Pierre, laden with salt and sugar, was abandoned in the ice in St. Mary's bay. The captain and crew were saved. People from the shore then went to save the ship, but a northeast gale scattered the ice, and twenty of them were lost, and twenty-two others are still missing."....The Italian bark Giovanna, was recently wrecked off Cape Cod, and all on board, with the exception of the steward (fifteen persons) perished....The Newbury (Mass.) silver mines are yielding at the rate of 200 ounces of silver to the ton.

THE Governor of little Rhode Island is highly indignant because a United States Marshal interfered with the State Constabulary for the seizure of some liquors, and says if such things are to be tolerated the State Judiciary and Executive "may as well resign their offices and leave the control and direction of State affairs to subordinates of the United States government."

THE English steamship lines running to New York have agreed to an advance of $5 on their steerage passage rates. The advance will affect those taking passage to or from this country.

A SHOCKING tragedy is reported from Seymour, Connecticut. A Mrs. Evans cut the throats of her two children, aged three and six years, and then cut her own throat.

THE WEST.

THE tide of emigration to the West and Southwest has commenced early this season. A recent dispatch from Sedalia, Mo., says: "Col. Thomas Dorwin, General Passenger Agent of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, brought a special train of thirteen cars of freight and eighty-five passengers from Hannibal, Mo., en route to Southern Kansas, where they will settle. They are from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other States, and were provided with stock, farming implements, etc."....Live hogs are selling for $8 per hundred pounds in Chicago....The Indiana Legislature has passed a bill making railway "ticket scalping" illegal.

A LAWYER of Ironton, O., has discovered a specimen of ore which proved to be an agglomeration of pure diamonds, weighing twenty ounces, and worth about $400,000....A woful tale of Indian barbarity comes from the West. The 16,000 Indians, headed by Stone Calf, who recently surrendered at the Cheyenne Agency, were accompanied by Ella and Lizzie Germain, survivors of the Smoky Hill massacre, where their parents and one sister were killed by the Indians. They tell a pitiable tale of suffering and terrible treatment. Gray Beard took Ella, aged 17, and Stone Calf had Lizzie, aged 11. Ella, who is enciente, says she can identify all who took part in the killing. They were dressed in Indian costume, and were nearly starved.

THE amount of wheat remaining unshipped in Minnesota is stated at 2,844,740 bushels, against 5,053,779 bushels at this time in 1874.

CHICAGO elevators contained on the 10th inst. 3,882,509 bushels of wheat, 1,795,848 bushels of corn, 539,096 bushels of oats, 14,314 bushels of rye, and 215,763 bushels of barley, making a total of 6,447,590 bushels, against 7,448,738 bushels at the same period last year....Buell, the correspondent who was arrested at St. Louis under the "Poland gag-law" for libeling Senator Chandler, has been discharged on account of a defect in the indictment.

LARGE numbers of strangers are concentrating at Sioux City, Ia., with the intention of joining the first expedition to the Black Hills.

THE annual report of the packing business of Chicago, printed in the papers of that city, shows that the total number of hogs received, alive and dressed, during the season, was 2,362,974, against 2,243,212 for the season of 1873-4. The average price of the season just closed has been $6.02¼ against $4.80 last year. Trade has been peculiarly active, and the season has been generally profitable to packers....Washington dispatches state that President Grant has sent strict orders for the employment of such military force as may be necessary to check the Black Hills expedition now organizing at Yankton and Sioux City....By order of Judge McKean, of the United States Court, at Salt Lake, Brigham Young has been fined $25 and imprisoned in the penitentiary for one day, for contempt of court.

THE SOUTH.

THE first lawsuit under the Civil Rights bill occurred in Wilmington, N. C., where a colored citizen brought an action against a saloon-keeper for refusing to sell him a drink. The court scrutinized the new law closely, and decided that it didn't apply to bar-rooms....The Alabama Legislature has expelled one of its colored members for the trifling matter of having offered to sell his vote for $300.

A BILL has been introduced in the Virginia Legislature to punish parties creating disturbances in hotels, theaters, and other places of amusement. It provides that persons who create disturbance in hotels by boisterous demands for accommodation, after the proprietor or his agent has declined to entertain them for want of room or other reasonable specified causes, shall be punished by fine and imprisonment. In case of theaters, managers are to have the right to issue reserved seat tickets stamped "not transferable," and when a party, not the original purchaser, demands admittance, the door-keeper can refuse him, but the price of the ticket must be refunded, and if he refuses to take the money, and thereby creates disturbance, he is liable to arrest and fine. In both cases half the fine goes to the hotel-keeper or manager, as the case may be. There are similar provisions regarding steamboats and railroads.

POLITICAL.

HON. GEO. G. WRIGHT, United States Senator from Iowa, announces that he will not be a candidate for re-election. He has determined to withdraw altogether from the political arena and resume the practice of his profession—the legal....Howard Knowles has been appointed Collector for the Fifth District of Illinois, vice R. H. Whiting, elected to Congress, and ex-Congressman Ransier (colored) has been appointed Collector for the Second District of South Carolina.

THE President has nominated to the Senate Hon. Godlove S. Orth, of Indiana, for Minister to Austria....The 20th of March has been set apart by Gov. Garland, of Arkansas, as a day of thanksgiving to the Almighty for the action of Congress in adopting the Poland report.

THE following is a list of the Chairmen of the new standing committees of the United States Senate: Privileges and Elections, Morton; Foreign Relations, Cameron of Pennsylvania; Finance, Sherman; Appropriations, Morrill of Maine; Commerce, Conkling; Manufactures, Robertson; Agriculture, Frelinghuysen; Military Affairs, Logan; Naval Affairs, Cragin; Judiciary, Edmunds; Postoffices and Post Roads, Hamlin; Public Lands, Oglesby; Private Land Claims, Thurman; Indian Affairs, Allison; Pensions, Ingalls; Revolutionary Claims, Stevenson; Claims, Wright; District of Columbia, Spencer; Patents, Ferry of Connecticut; Public Buildings and Grounds, Morrill of Vermont; Territories, Hitchcock; Railroads, West; Mines and Mining, Sargent; Revision of the Laws, Boutwell; Education and Labor, Patterson; Civil Service Retrenchment, Clayton; to Audit and Control Contingent Expenses of the Senate, Jones of Nevada; Printing, Anthony; Library, Howe; Rules, Ferry of Michigan; Engrossed Bills, Bayard; Enrolled Bills, Conover; Transportation Routes to the Seaboard, Windom; on Levees of the Mississippi River, Alcorn.

THE National Industrial Convention assembled at Cleveland on the 11th inst. Sixty delegates, representing twelve States, were present. Permanent organization was effected by the election of Prof. Hooton, of Illinois, Chairman; J. T. Campbell, Illinois; C. W. Campbell (colored), Virginia; and R. J. Trevellick, Vice-Presidents; A. Cameron, Secretary. Stirring speeches in favor of greenbacks and an independent political party were made, and resolutions to the same effect adopted....The President has decided to recognize Garland as Governor of Arkansas.

WASHINGTON.

HORACE MAYNARD has been appointed Minister to Turkey.

DOUBT is expressed as to the possibility of a reorganization of the Treasury Department, owing to the alleged discovery of a clerical error in engrossment....The President will soon issue an order abolishing the Civil-Service rules in the Executive Department....Bill King arrived at Washington the other day, and of course has been interviewed. He said: "So help me God, I did not make any improper use of one dollar of the money." He was glad to say that the committee, as he put it, vindicated him on that subject. He will claim his seat in the next Congress; will not resign; will boldly meet all charges. He says he can fully explain the apparent discrepancies as to his testimony, and can disprove the pack of lies told against him.

OPINIONS differ as to the length of the extra session of the Senate—some Senators believing that the discussion of the resolution recognizing the Kellogg government, and admitting Pinchback, will prolong the session to six or eight weeks; while others are sure that the session will end within a month.

RETURNS received at the Internal Revenue Bureau show that the manufacture of whisky has not diminished any since the passage of the law increasing the tax....The totals of the appropriation bills passed by the last Congress foot up $171,294,766.

PRESIDENT GRANT has directed the abandonment of the civil-service reform, Congress having failed to make the needed appropriation to carry it on....The total amount of legal-tender currency now outstanding is $380,714,900.

THE Washington Postoffice is completely clogged by the vast amount of public matter which is now being franked....The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a call for $30,000,000 bonds on account of the sinking fund. The amounts contemplated are: Coupon bonds, $24,063,750; registered, $5,936,250. They are under the act of Feb. 20, 1862. The coupon bonds are of the fourth series. Coupon bonds: $50, No. 10,001 to No. 15,500, both inclusive; $100, No. 27,501 to No. 40,000, both inclusive; $500, No. 13,001 to No. 20,000, both inclusive; $1,000, No. 39,001 to No. 66,000, both inclusive. Total, $24,063,750. Registered bonds: $50, No. 2,001 to No. 2,125, both inclusive; $100, No. 15,551 to No. 16,743, both inclusive; $500, No. 8,651 to No. 9,154, both inclusive; $1,000, No. 35,701 to No. 38,073, both inclusive; $5,000, No. 11,601 to No. 12,320, both inclusive; $10,000, No. 15,501 to No. 19,341, both inclusive; total, $5,936,250; grand total, $30,000,000.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

FORTY-FOURTH DAY.—Jeffreys, the juror who had been indisposed, was well enough to be in his seat, though it is feared his poor health will lead to an abrupt termination of the trial. Bessie Turner was in court, and is to be a witness for the defendant. By order of Judge Neilson, all tickets of admission are taken up and the holders excluded, after the seats are full, thus clearing away hundreds of idlers. Lunching in the court is no longer tolerated, and the ventilation is much improved. Mrs. S. B. C. Putnam and a Mrs. Moore testified as to their knowledge of Mrs. Tilton's domestic grievances.

FORTY-FIFTH DAY—Several witnesses were examined for the defense. The most important testimony elicited was that of St. Clair McElway, a journalist, and Samuel E. Belcher, a deacon of Plymouth Church, which went to show that Tilton's original charge against Beecher was only solicitation, not actual crime. Upon the whole, the testimony of the day was largely prejudicial to the prosecution, and Mr. Beecher's friends were in high glee.

FORTY-SIXTH DAY.—The new witnesses examined were Oliver Johnson, assistant editor of the Christian Union, and a Miss Oakley, a friend of the family. A good portion of Johnson's testimony related to his religious belief, and a letter was read from Miss Oakley to Florence Tilton urging her not to be a witness against her mother. The fight is being carried on with increasing bitterness, as the trial progresses, and to-day there were sundry rough-and-tumble legal encounters, with hard hitting on both sides. That the bitterness and hostility were not assumed, was apparent as well from the sharp and sometimes contemptuous observations interchanged, as from the flushed faces, angry tones, flashing eyes, and excited gestures of the learned and distinguished counsel.

FORTY-SEVENTH DAY.—Charles Cowley, a lawyer of Lowell, Mass., was called as the next witness. Tilton swore that he had never seen this witness, yet he (Cowley) testified that he had been present at a number of interviews between Tilton and Victoria Woodhull, in which the subjects of marriage, divorce, and the relations of the sexes were freely discussed. He said that he had noticed "amorous glances" pass between the two, and that he had also noticed a degree of fondness in the intonations of their voices when they addressed each other. His evidence is regarded as very important, as it contradicts Tilton's, and tends to break down his credibility, and at the same time helps to sustain the theory of a conspiracy.

GENERAL.

THE Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company combination has resulted in a prompt advance in the rate of transcontinental freight of from 50 to 100 per cent.

RECENT deaths: At Fall River, Mass., Hon. James Buffinton, Representative of the First Congressional District of that State, aged 58 years; he had been in ill health for some time, and it is believed that his death was hastened by the fatigue attendant upon the protracted session of the House over the Civil Rights bill; in London, Arthur Helps, the celebrated English author, essayist, etc., aged 55 years; in London, Lieut.-Gov. James Hope Grant, the celebrated English commander, aged 67.

THE war between the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads is still carried on with unrelenting vigor and energy. President Garrett, of the Baltimore and Ohio, refuses to budge from the firm stand he has taken, and it is generally believed that he will make the present low rates to the East permanent, and thus compel the other trunk lines to come down. It is the universal belief that Mr. Tom Scott, the great railway potentate, has for once met more than his match....Western farmers and shippers will be rejoiced to learn that Erie canal tolls the coming season will be nearly 50 per cent. lower than heretofore....Under the decision of the Postmaster-General, no third-class matter will hereafter be sent through the mails, unless its regular rate of one cent per ounce is prepaid. The following section in the law enumerates the matter included in the third class:

"SECTION 133. That mailable matter of the third class shall embrace all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, magazines, handbills, posters, unsealed circulars, prospectuses, books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, corrected proof-sheets, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples of merchandise not exceeding 12 ounces in weight, sample cards, photographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes and wrappers, cards, plain and ornamental paper, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and all other matter which may declared mailable by law, and all other articles not above the weight prescribed by law, which are not, from their form and nature, liable to destroy, deface, or otherwise injure the contents of the mail-bag, or the person of any one engaged in the postal service. All liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials and obscene books shall be excluded from the mails."

IT is almost certain that Gen. Schenck will shortly retire from the English mission. He has long had such a step in contemplation. In a recent letter to a friend in Washington he says: "I am beginning to loathe the burdens of public service, they being no compensative reward for the peace and comfort sacrificed."

FOREIGN.

A LONDON telegram states that several cases of insanity have resulted from the revival meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey, the American evangelists....There are rumors of another war in India.

THE famine in Asia Minor has decimated some districts to the extent of two-fifths of their population....Fighting still continues in Cuba.

THE convention between Spain and the United States for the settlement of the Virginius affair has been signed....The Alfonsists and Carlists are exchanging prisoners....A dispatch from St. John's, Newfoundland, states that the bodies of over forty persons who died there during the past winter have been temporarily interred in the snow, which lies in such immense quantities in the cemeteries as to prevent the opening of the graves.

A ROME special announces that the Pope has conferred a cardinal's hat upon Archbishop McCloskey, of New York. He is the first cardinal ever appointed in American. It is said that the Pope is in favor of designating two more cardinals for the Western world.

A NEW French Ministry has been formed, with Dufaure and Buffet as its chiefs....The report that Prince Gortschakoff had requested the recall of Wm. Schuyler, United States Charge d'Affaires at St. Petersburg, is untrue.... A Berlin dispatch states that Germany has asked Italy whether she will continue to exempt the Pope from the obligations of the law, and complains that he is now abusing the liberty given him for the purpose of fomenting rebellion in Germany.

FULL accounts of the fire at Port au Prince last month have been received. Four hundred buildings were burned, involving a loss of $2,000,000....President MacMahon is accused of leaning toward Bonapartism....John Mitchel has again been returned to Parliament from Tipperary....The new Captain-General of Cuba has arrived at Havana. Being accompanied by a reinforcement of 1,000 Spanish troops, he was well received....It is said Germany is very much irritated at the conduct of Spain in the Gustav affair, and at the clerical leaning of King Alfonso's ministers.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Senate—Extra Session.

FRIDAY, March 5.—Vice-President Wilson called the Senate to order at 12 o'clock, and, after the reading of the proclamation of the President, the oath was administered to the new Senators. As Andrew Johnson advanced to the Clerk's desk to take the oath, there was great applause in the galleries, which was soon checked by the Vice-President. After he was sworn in, a large bouquet was handed him by a page, and he was escorted to his seat by Mr. Bogy....All the new Senators having been sworn, Morton offered a resolution acknowledging the Kellogg government in Louisiana, which was laid over at his request. He then offered a resolution to admit Pinchback as a Senator from Louisiana....Adjourned till Monday, March 8.

MONDAY, March 8.—Mr. Clayton submitted a resolution to send a special committee to the Indian country to investigate into the condition of affairs and report to the next session. Objection being made, the matter went over....Mr. Morton then called up the resolution admitting Pinchback, and proceeded to make an elaborate speech in support thereof, after which the Senate went into executive session, and soon after adjourned.

TUESDAY, March 9.—The Senate elected Ferry, of Michigan, President pro tem....The standing committees were announced, after which Morton concluded his support of Pinchback's claims. He was followed by Merrimon, who opposed the admission of Pinchback....After a short executive session the Senate adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, March 10.—Merrimon resumed his speech against the admission of Pinchback, and concluded at 2 o'clock, whereupon the Senate went into executive session, and subsequently adjourned.

THURSDAY, March 11.—Clayton's resolution to appoint a committee to go to the Indian country during the summer months was killed by a vote of 29 to 22, after which the Senate went into executive session.

TWO MEDICAL societies met in Portland the other day. A car-load of grave-stones also arrived during the day. It is not often that the eternal fitness of things sticks out in this manner.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Weekly Review of the Chicago Market.

FINANCE.

Nothing new to note in financial circles. The demand for favors is not urgent, but the indications are favorable for a firmer market. Interest rates, 8@10 per cent., according to security offered. Bonds firm and steady at 116¼@116⅝ for U. S. 5-20's of '62, and 119⅝@119⅞ for 5-20's of '68; 10-40's, 113⅝@113⅞; U. S. currency 6's, 118⅝@118⅞. The movement in the grain markets was rather light during the past week, the only cereal which attracted any particular attention being spring wheat, the other markets ruling comparatively quiet. Local speculators were the principal operators, the orders received from interior points and other markets being very light. During the greater part of the week, spring wheat was firm, several financially strong operators bulling the market, and aided by favorable advices from Liverpool and more encouraging New York reports, they succeeded in establishing an advance of 1½@2c per bu. Shorts were alarmed and anxious to provide for their contracts. However, the market has again been weak, and values receded to inside prices. The decline was due partially to less favorable advices and the increasing stock in store, the receipts last week being about 134,000 bu in excess of the shipments. The main reason for the weakness was the absence of the "bull" movement, speculators showing but little confidence in the future of the trade, and allowing values to gradually recede. Corn, oats, rye and barley were dull and easy throughout, the offerings, although not particularly large, being in excess of the demand. Receipts invariably in excess of shipments. The outlook for the future of the grain trade is very uncertain, and speculators are more than usually cautious in trading, showing a disposition to hold off and await future developments.

PROVISIONS.

The packing season having closed the interest in the provision market was less marked, and only a moderate business was reported. Values have declined materially, mess pork ruling 20@35c lower, and lard ⅛@¼c off, but closed firmer. Mess pork closed at $18.10@18.12½ cash and seller March, and $18.27½ seller May. Lard closed at $13.20 cash, $13.27½ seller April, and $13.50 seller May. Meats steady.

LIVE STOCK.

Under favorable Eastern advices and light receipts both the cattle and hog markets have ruled firmer and higher. Cattle advanced about 15@25c per 100 lbs, closing firm at $4.75@5.70 for fair to good, and $5.75@6.25 choice steers; extra, $6.50@7.00; common, dull, $2.75@3.75; medium grades, $4.00@4.75; stock cattle, $2.75@4.25. Hogs 20@25c higher; closing steady at $6.20@6.90 poor to choice; Yorkers, $6.60@7.40 poor to choice heavy weights; bulk of sales at $6.50@6.75 for Yorkers, and $6.75@7.25 for heavy; extra, $7.75@8.00. Sheep active and higher; sales at $4.00@6.00 poor to choice.

DRESSED HOGS, SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

Dressed hogs were in good request, and prices ruled firm. The receipts were light, and the market closed with about all sold, at $7.30 for light, and at $8.25@8.30 for heavy weights. Seeds were in large supply, and the market ruled dull, particularly for timothy. The market closed at $2.40@2.50 for good to prime timothy; $6.25@6.30 for medium clover; $1.95@2.00 for flax; 80@85c for Hungarian, and 80@95c for millet. Highwines were quiet, with buyers and sellers apart in their views, and values nominal at $1.08@1.10.

PRODUCE.

The movement in butter continues light, and a rather weak feeling prevails. Sales for the week ranged at 16@20c for poor to fair, and at 22@25c for good to choice fresh roll. Broom-corn was in good demand and firm at 11@13c for No. 1 and extra. Beeswax remains quiet but steady at 26@28c for good to prime yellow. Eastern beans were in good demand and prices were firm at $1.85@2.00, according to quality. There was a fair local and shipping demand for cheese, and prices under light stocks were firm at 15½@18c for good to prime Western. Cider was quiet at about $6.00 for choice sweet. Cranberries closed with a slight improvement in the demand, at $9.50@11.50 for good to choice cultivated. Choice sound dried peas sold readily at $2.00@2.20 for choice green, and $1.90@2.00 for marrowfat. Eggs were scarce and prices very irregular; closed at 35c for fresh, and 12½@22c for common to choice pickled. Feathers steady at 48@52c for live geese; 25@30 for coarse turkey, and 5c for chicken. Apples met with a fair inquiry at $2.50@3.00 per brl for good to choice in lots, and retail sales were made at $3.50. Hides were unchanged; 7½@7¾ for green frozen; 8@8½c for heavy salted, 9c for light do, and 10@11c for kip. Hops remain quiet at 33@40c for good to choice new. Hay was firm and prices ruled 50c@$1.00 per ton higher; closed $18.00@19.00 for No. 1 timothy. Poultry was in good demand, with only a moderate supply on the market; prices were higher; closed at 14@15c per lb for turkeys, 12@13c for chickens, and 8@10c for geese. Potatoes under light offerings were firm and higher; closed at $1.05@1.15 for peachblows and 95@$1.00 for early rose. Tallow was firm at 8¾c per lb for cake and 8½c for solid. Vegetables remain steady at $3.75@4.25 for red onions, and $4.50@4.75 for choice yellow; turnips firm at 80c@$1.00 for rutabaga; celery 50@65c, and cabbage 75c@$1.00. Veal sold at 4@10c for common to choice.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOL.

The demand was fair, but the offerings were considerably larger and prices were a shade easier; the market closed at $1.00 for pork barrels, and $1.30 for lard tierces, and at $1.90@2.20 for whisky barrels. Lumber quiet and steady; fencing, $12.00@13.00; common boards, $11.00@12.00. Wool was quiet and unchanged; tub washed, 48@55c; fine and medium fleece, 45@48c; and fine to medium unwashed, 30@33c, according to quality.

Spring Styles.

NARROW SKIRTS.

The general characteristics of the feminine toilet just now are closely clinging skirts and extreme length and narrowness of train. An ultra fashionable lady of the present day presents the exact image of a leader of fashion of the epoch of the Directory—revers waist, enormous cravats of white muslin and lace, and scanty, clinging skirts with an immense narrow train. All this will be very uncomfortable to wear during the coming summer; but before that time Dame Fashion, who is well-disposed at heart, and who likes nothing better than to vary the toilet by manifold changes, will doubtless effect a compromise between trains a yard and three-quarters long and the exigencies of the locomotion of modern life.

THE SPRING BONNETS

are composed for the most part of a hoop, entirely open in the middle, and leaving the hair uncovered, the hoop being covered with flowers. Of course, this will not be the only bonnet of the season, for there are now as many kinds of bonnets as there are wearers; all, however, tend to increase in size, so as to shade the face rather more than they have done for some years past. What are called opera bonnets are mere head-dresses, composed in general of a simple torsade of faille and white tulle ruches, ideally light, and a wreath of flowers terminating behind in a large cluster. The street bonnets have a prominent brim, from beneath which peep forth one or three roses. On the crown of the bonnets almost always is curled a large feather of a color to match. Besides the street bonnets for morning and afternoon, there is devised for the coming season, which is also that of full-dress concerts and day receptions, what may be called the fancy bonnet; this is made of tulle embroidered with beads, and trimmed with feathers mixed with gold or beads, according to the nature of the embroidery used. Many black Neapolitan street bonnets, embroidered with jet and lined with light blue, pink, or vert-de-gris velvet, are in preparation for spring wear.

A Sheep War in Colorado.

A Denver correspondent says: There being no law to protect them against the sheep which nibble off their pastures, the cattle owners have been obliged to take the law in their own hands, and a law as bloody as those of Draco they have made for the poor seeep. A particularly notorious case is that of a sheep-grazer named Childs, who, about a year ago, took up his residence in Huerfano county, and when certain cattle-owners, policemen-like, ordered him to "move on," under penalty of harm to his sheep, said he had a magazine of Winchester rifles ready for all who tried on that little game.

The cattle-men, however, bided their time, and one fine day, when they knew Childs was away and there was no one to man his Winchester battery, rode to his ranch and quietly cut the throats of 600 sheep, more or less, including a number of fine Merino bucks, worth $125 each. For this Childs as yet has had no reparation; nor is it likely that he soon will.

The next largest massacre of the innocents took place last month, when a party by the name of Pollock, also living in Huerfano county, had 600 sheep poisoned, one night, when it was so cold that all his watch-dogs had been driven in doors. One hundred and twenty-five of the sheep had died before morning. The hides were saved through the sheep-owners turning in aiding their unfortunate associate in skinning them. Besides these notorious cases, there have been a number of minor massacres, resulting in the slaying of between 2,000 and 3,000 sheep.

To remedy this state of affairs, the Stock Growers' Association prepared a resolution deprecating further progress of this barbarous sort of hostilities, recognizing the right of the sheep to the public domain, and proposing that the two interests should co-operate and unite for the suppression of what was a mutual injury of both.

Ingenuity of a Rogue.

A capillary correspondence was recently attempted between a notorious Parisian in durance vile and his comrades outside. The prisoner was sent a letter from his fiancee, containing a lock of hair wrapped in the leaf of a book. The jailer did not consider the souvenir important enough to be delivered, but after a few days came a similar inclosure, and yet another. This aroused suspicion, and the governor took the matter in hand. He examined the leaf of the the book; it was only that of a common novel, twenty-six lines on a page. Then he studied the hair, and noticed the small quantity of the gift. Counting the hairs he found them of equal length, and twenty-six in number, the same as the lines of the page. Struck with the coincidence, he laid the hairs along the lines of the page which they respectively reached, beginning at the top with the smallest hair. After some trouble, he found that the end of each hair pointed to a different letter, and that these letters combined formed a slang sentence, which informed the prisoner that his friends were on the watch, and that the next time he left the prison to be examined an attempt would be made to rescue him. The Governor laid his plans accordingly, the attempt at rescue was made, but the rescuers fell into their own trap.

MATTHEW HALE SMITH, "Burleigh" of the Boston Journal, thus describes Judge Neilson: "He wears a wig, is lame, and dresses in a very homespun manner, but he has got the grit in him. He holds the ribbons with consummate skill. He is rigidly impartial, has the decisions at his finger ends, is perfectly fearless, rules imperiously, like one who knows what he is about, and holds council and audience in awe."

He Was Through.

Saturday morning, at 1 o'clock, the police found a horse and cutter coming in from the country on the Pontiac road, with the driver so nearly frozen that he was lopped over on the seat and unconscious. He was taken to the station, and they thawed him out after an hour or so. When he could speak, he asked:

"Sargeant, will I live?"

"Oh, yes, I guess so," was the answer.

"Well, I'm sorry," mused the young man. "I wanted to die, so that they could put on my tombstone: 'Here lies one who was fool enough to ride twenty-six miles to spark a red-headed girl.'"—Detroit Free Press.

A HEROINE BY MISTAKE.—One dark night not long ago, a burglar entered a private residence on Broadway. On ascending one flight of stairs he observed a light in a chamber, and, while deliberating what to do, a large woman suddenly descended upon him, seized him by the throat, pushed him down through the hall and forced him into the street before he had time to think. "Heroic Repulse of a Burglar by a Woman" was the way the story was told the next day. As friends called and congratulated her upon her courage, she exclaimed, "Good gracious, I didn't know it was a burglar. If I had I should have been frightened to death. I thought it was my husband come home drunk, and I was determined he shouldn't stay in the house in that condition."—Lexington (Ky.) Gazette.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

The Franking Privilege.

Speeches, seeds, documents, and nobody can tell what else, are to be carried at government expense again, the only condition being that the franks of members of Congress shall be written by themselves.

Punishment of Kidnappers.

Kidnapping children in Pennsylvania will hereafter prove a very serious business. The Legislature has just passed a law subjecting those guilty of such offenses to a penalty of fifteen years' imprisonment in the penitentiary and a fine of $10,000. This extraordinary law has its origin, undoubtedly, in the Charley Ross abduction case.

A Famous Town.

Perhaps you haven't much of an opinion of Greenville, Tennessee, but, unless the local paper lies like a hero, the first abolition paper in America was published there, Andrew Johnson lives there, John H. Morgan was killed there, it had the cholera in 1873, was the only Southern town with the crusade, and is the home of Betsy Ward.

The Centennial Abroad.

The King of Belgium has appointed a commitee of experts to look after Belgian interests at the Philedelphia Centennial. France still demurs, as a government, on the ground that objects of art taken out of the national museums and shipped across the Atlantic might possibly get broken, and also because the Centennial, after all, is not a government affair, but the speculation of a lot of private Philadelphians, who are probably a mob.

Important Decision.

The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, in a test case taken from Michigan to that tribunal, that a State has a right to tax land-grant lands while they are still in the possession of the railroad companies, will have universal interest, as it will place upon the tax-list thousands if not millions of acres in States where the State itself has not formally exempted the land it has granted to the roads from taxation.

Pedestrianism Extraordinary.

A Richmond (Va.) pedestrian named Mark Grayson, is backed for $25,000 to walk round the world—a distance of 19,226 miles by his route—in 600 days, which makes his average 32 miles a day. During his ship-board travels he will walk his distance regularly. He is 28 years old, 5 feet 7 inches high, and weighs 139 pounds. He starts from the City Hall, New York, April 3, 1875, and agrees to walk back to it Nov. 23, 1876.

The French Armies.

Four large armies are to be formed out of the nineteen corps now scattered over the territory which Prussia was pleased to leave France; they are to be commanded by Gens. Lebrune, D'Aumale, Bourbaki and Chanzy. So far the plan of this organization has only been put down on paper, subject to change, according to the usage of Gen. Moltke with his army. Another point copied a la Prusse. When people do go to imitating, they imitate.

A Crushing Rejoinder.

Mr. Leroy Gantt, a pert young writer, runs a paper at Lexington, Georgia, under the eaves of the railroad water-tank. This circumstance has led Mr. Christy, of the Athens Watchman, to allude to the paper as "The Water-Tank Gazette." To which the vivacious Gantt replies: "I considered for a long time as to whether I would run my paper by a water-tank or a whisky faucet, but having seen Mr. Christy fail after trying the latter, I determined to try the former."

A Bad Case of Lunacy.

A reporter for the New York World chronicles this thrilling episode of the Brooklyn scandal trial: "Judge Neilson asked Mr. Beach: 'Did I borrow a pencil of you the other day?' Mr. Beach told the Court to keep the pencil, and the Court said it was a nice pencil, being sharp on both ends." We would suggest to the World the propriety of caging this young reporter before his mild symptoms develop into a violent case of insanity, or else somebody may get hurt.

Regulating Railroads.

The Legislature of Minnesota has passed a Railroad bill modifying materially the rigorous nature of previous legislation on the same subject. The measure provides that "no company shall charge, demand, or receive from any person, etc., for transporting person or property a greater sum than it shall at the same time charge, demand, or receive from another person, etc., for like service from the same place, and upon like conditions and circumstances. All concessions of rates, drawbacks, and contracts for special rates shall be open to all persons, etc., alike, under similar circumstances."

Postal-Cards.

The new postal-cards will be ready for delivery about the middle of April. We read in an Eastern paper that the new cards will be unlike those now in use. The color will be violet-blue. The border, and all directions as to where and how to write name and address, will be dispensed with. A monogram, formed of the letters "U. S." will be printed on the card in black ink. This will be on the upper left-hand corner, across which will be the words "Postal-Card." The vignette—Liberty, with her luxuriant tresses hanging down her back, and confined by a cap—adorns the lower left-hand corner. The cards will be identical in size with the old ones.

Pacific Mail.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company has turned another of those remarkable somersaults for which it is famous, and now comes up with the notorious Jay Gould as the figure-head of the concern. The present arrangement seems to be a consolidation of the interests of the Pacific Mail steamers with the Union Pacific, Central Pacific, and Panama roads, Jay Gould owning a controlling interest in the Union Pacific and 100,000 shares of the Pacific Mail. Such a consolidation will increase the revenues all round, and give these companies a monopoly of the business of the Pacific coast.

A Picture of Poverty.

A Utica (N. Y.) paper describes a fearful scene of poverty and suffering that was recently witnessed in a hovel on one of the streets of that city. In a small apartment, a dark bedroom, warmed by a charcoal fire, there were thirteen persons. Some were standing, some sitting or kneeling on the floor. In the middle of the gathering there was lying upon the floor a rusty tin dish, containing an assortment of garbage recently collected from the ash-barrels of the streets. There were pieces of potatoes, frozen or partially diseased; potato peelings, bits of decayed cabbage leaves and of turnips that had been frostbitten, and there were crusts of bread smeared with filth. Picking from the dish, diving in greedily with soiled, thin, bony hands, and eating of its contents ravenously, were these thirteen human creatures. There was but little that is terrible remaining for these poor beings. They must have suffered much before they came to the pass when they could eat greedily of so horrible a mess. They could not have been mendicants, for professional beggars live sumptuously. They were surely no thieves, for property to the value of millions was gathered up in the buildings near them. What and who were they? God knows. They had come out of the shadow up from the depths, and they wanted to live, that was all.

POLITICAL MEMORANDA.

Henry R. Pease, late United States Senator from Mississippi, has been appointed Postmaster at Vicksburg.

Vice-President Wilson is making a tour of the Southern States.

Ohio Republicans talk strongly of pitting Ben Wade against Gov. Allen in the coming gubernatorial race.

The Pennsylvania Republicans will hold their State convention at Harrisburg on the 26th of May.

The Democrats of Pennsylvania have decided to hold their State Convention at Erie on the 8th of September.

There are said to be thirty contested seats in the next House of Representatives. The following is a partial list of them:

State.	Seat.	Contested by
Alabama	Haralson, R.	F. G. Bromberg, D.
Alabama	Williams, D.	J. T. Rapier, C. R.
Alabama	Hays, R.	J. T. Jones, D.
Florida	Purman, R.	J. A. Henderson, D.
Florida	Walls, C. R.	J. J. Finley, D.
Georgia	Hartridge, D.	John E. Bryant, R.
Georgia	Smith, D.	R. H. Whiteley, R.
Illinois	Farwell, R.	J. V. Le Moyne, D.
Illinois	Whiting, R.	Leonard F. Ross, D.
Indiana	Hunter, R.	H. J. Rice, D.
Indiana	Baker, R.	Freeman Kelley, D.
Kentucky	White, R.	Harrison Cockrill, D.
Louisiana	Morey, R.	W. B. Spencer, D.
Maryland	Walsh, D.	Lloyd Lowndes, D.
Massachusetts	Frost, R.	Josiah G. Abbott, D.
Minnesota	Strait, R.	E. St. Julien Cox, D.
Pennsylvania	Freeman, R.	T. B. Florence, D.
Pennsylvania	Egbert, D.	Carlton B. Curtis, R.
South Carolina	Hoge, R.	Benj. H. McGowan, D.
South Carolina	Wallace, R.	J. B. Kershaw, D.
Virginia	Goode, D.	J. H. Pratt, Jr., R.

To the above number of twenty-one contested seats may possibly be added others of which we have no present knowledge. Some of the above, also, may not be brought before the House at all. Two hitherto reported contests, viz.: Ward vs. Harrison, in Illinois, and McDill vs. Cate, in Wisconsin, have been formally abandoned. The seat for Delegate of Idaho Territory is contested by Samuel S. Fenn, Democrat.

A Washington dispatch to the Chicago Tribune says: "Andy Johnson arrived here last night. He is little changed in personal appearance, and is still earnest in expounding and defending the Constitution and 'my policy.' His friends assert that he will not attack President Grant personally in his coming speeches, but that he will be very severe on most of the Southern policy of the administration."

The Michigan Association at the national capital called in a body on the new Michigan Senator, Judge Christiancy, on the last day of the session of Congress, and tendered their congratulations. The Senator made a speech in reply, which is thus reported by the Chicago Tribune's correspondent:

"He stated that he had been called on by the editor of a Detroit paper to define his position, whether Administration or Independent Republican. He said he did not agree with the President in some respects, especially as to Louisiana. He believed in a policy of conciliation and generosity toward the South, and that the general government should keep its hands off State governments. He did not believe in the caucus system, and would not be bound by caucus action, but should vote according to the dictates of his conscience, and to the best of his judgment. He did not believe in the theory of dispensing patronage entertained by his predecessor, and should look after the interests of the State and nation without being influenced by partisan considerations."

INDIANA NEWS.

PERSONAL.

Martin Van Buren is an inmate of the Marion county jail.

Rev. E. F. Hasty, of Knightstown, has a library containing about three thousand volumes.

Prof. E. T. Cox, State Geologist, was lately presented with a large collection of relics from Palestine, including specimens of stone from under Jerusalem, clay from Zarthan, fossil shells and iron-stone from Lebanon, a piece of spar from the walls of Bethlehem, prophyry from Mt. Sinai, tessera from the mosaic pavement at Mt. Zion, granite, from Basalt, a piece of the oldest glass in the world, from Tyre, etc.

A party of railway engineers at Terre Haute own the half of a ticket which drew $1,300 in the Louisville lottery.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

The Terre Haute Journal says: "A young man who was in the city a few days ago reported a strange tale from Brazil. It was that Mr. B. F. Masten, one of the principal coal miners and operators, on rising in the morning of day before yesterday found a large coffin-box on his front-door step, on which was inscribed, 'Eighty-five cents or we'll put you in it.' The report further states that the next day the miners at Masten's mines were set to work again at eighty-five cents, the figure demanded."

CASUALTIES.

A premature blast in Sellers' coal mine, near Harmony, Clay county, blew off one man's head and the leg of another.

DEATHS.

A double tenement house at Jeffersonville took fire from a defective flue, a few nights ago, and was totally destroyed, involving a loss of $3,000. Three hundred dollars' worth of furniture and wearing apparel was badly damaged by water.

Wharton Lyman, a prominent bridge contractor, who constructed all the bridges on the Pan Handle road between Richmond and Indianapolis, died very suddenly of heart disease at his residence in Centerville last week.

CRIME.

Fred. Sullivan, bookkeeper for the Adams Express Company, at Fort Wayne, disappeared a few nights ago, appropriating $300 belonging to the company.

Miss Rebecca Boyer, a young lady 22 year of age, suicided at Indianapolis, a few days ago, by taking arsenic. She had been suffering from an internal cancer, and had once before, in a fit of morbid despondency, attempted to take her life.

The trial of Clark, an accomplice in the murder of the man who was tied to the railroad track, near Henryville, a few months since, and was killed by the cars, was concluded at Charlestown, Clarke county, last week. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and Clark was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. From the testimony adduced during the trial it is evident that several others were engaged in the affair, it being their intention, if the engineer had seen the man tied to the track and stopped the train, to have seized and robbed the express safe.

Syracuse came near being the scene of a murder last week. Two neighbors, Robert Cory and Noah Razor got into a dispute about some road-scrapers, which finally resulted in a pitched battle. Cory, being the larger man, soon overpowered Razor, but after a short struggle, Razor succeeded in escaping, and fled into his house; seizing an old rifle, which he heavily loaded and pointed toward the door, fearing another attack from Cory. Cory came, and Razor blazed away with the rifle, and the contents of the piece perforated Cory's head. The injured man, although dangerously wounded, will recover. Both parties are well known in that quiet village, and the excitement was intense.

LEGAL.

Merritt Braxton and Sandy Wakefield (both colored), have brought suit against Manager McCarthy, of the Metropolitan Theater, for damages in being refused admittance on account of their color. The case will not be tried till the May term.

POLITICAL.

The Governor has signed and approved the following Senate bills: Requiring officers of certain corporations to make annual statements; regulating issuing and taking up tickets and coupons by common carriers; authorizing cities to construct harbors; creating the Forty-first Judicial Circuit; requiring County Auditors to publish statements of allowances made by County Commissioners; providing for trial of certain causes where change of venue is granted. His Excellency also returned without his signature the House bill authorizing Boards of County Commissioners to levy taxes and make provisions to purchase, contract, or repair roads.

MISCELLANEOUS.

While Judge Smith, of Logansport, was making out a commitment for Peter Lawson, a few days ago, the prisoner quietly left the room and has not since been heard from.

A great religious revival is in progress at Salem, Washington county, over 200 having already united with the church. Meetings are held morning and evening every day in the week.

There was a spelling-school at the Indianapolis Academy of Music, a few nights ago, which drew a very large audience. The three prizes of a Webster and a Worcester dictionary and a ton of coal, were taken by Mr. Joe Long, Mr. J. S. Kingsbury, of the Indiana Farmer, and Prof. Bell.

The following are the most important laws enacted by the Legislature during the session just adjourned: Requiring suits on promissory notes to be brought in the county where the maker resides; incorporating the State Horticultural Society; for assessment of corporate property at the same rate as the property of private firms; continuing the office of County Superintendent; for the appointment of official court reporters; for one insane asylum at Indianapolis; repealing the gravel road assessment law; continuing the State geological survey; for the organization of State and District Granges; extending the time for railroads to complete their lines, in cases where aid has been voted, to five years; for the removal of county officials for intoxication; reducing the price of the Supreme Court Report to $3 per volume; for appeal in cases of suits for appointment of receivers; limiting the power of Township Trustees to contract debts without the authority of Commissioners; allowing Criminal Judges to issue writs of habeas corpus.

The following are the main portions of Gov. Hendricks' message convening the Legislature in extra session:

"Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives: You have been called in special session by virtue of a provision of the Constitution which so authorizes when the Governor shall be of opinion that the public welfare requires it. It is your duty to provide for the exigency which has involved the public welfare. When that work is completed, the occasion for the special session will have ceased, and an adjournment should immediately follow. At the close of the recent session there was a disagreement between the Senate and House of Representatives upon some general bills which were important, if not essential, to the public welfare. Among these were the Revenue and General Appropriation bills, bills regulating the fees and salaries of public officers, and a bill regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors. These should be put in shape that the judgment of the two houses may harmonize upon them. By virtue of the act of Dec. 6, 1872, they stand upon the files for your action as if the two sessions had been one. The Revenue bill should provide for the ordinary expenditures and for the State indebtedness. Such appropriations have been agreed upon aggregating about $900,000 each year. Under the new appraisement, as provided for, taxable property in the State may not exceed $850,000,000 in valuation. The poll-tax will be about $20,000. I anticipate a delinquency of 20 per centum upon both during the year 1875 and 1876. Extraordinary expenditures will be required for additional insane asylums; $350,000 for the payment of bonds; $36,000 to meet the loan of $910,000. I do not think good policy requires that these be provided for by extra taxation. I recommend that authority to make a loan conferred by the act of March 10, 1873, be continued. As I suggested in my January message, all construction fees and charges should be made impossible, but compensation should be sufficient to command efficient and reliable service. Public officers accept positions, understanding that fees and salaries are under legislative control, except when otherwise provided for by the Constitution, but they have the right to expect that after the election compensation shall not be unreasonably reduced.

"We are without any efficient law regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors. Society should not be left in that condition. The judgment of the people has been expressed in favor of a carefully-guarded license law. The Supreme Court has decided that under the existing law there is no restraint upon the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday, or at night time, or on election days, except in cases where the liquor is drank upon the premises.

"I trust harmony will characterize your proceedings, and that by a successful and prompt dispatch of public business you may have the gratification of an early adjournment."

The contract for feeding the Vermillion county paupers has been let for $25 per head per year.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Friday, March 5.—Senate—The Senate passed the House bill making illegal the provision to pay attorneys' fees in promissory notes; also the joint resolution to amend the Constitution for general elections, making them in November instead of October.... The House Temperance bill was amended so as to allow no license where remonstrance was presented signed by a majority of the voters of wards and townships; also, allowing the right of action in case of damages arising from the sale of liquor.

House—The House spent the morning on the Specific Appropriation bill.... Bills passed: Authorizing the organization of stockyard associations; requiring railroad companies, steamboat owners, or other carriers of passengers to repurchase their unused tickets or coupons, and making it a misdemeanor for any one to resell except persons actually purchasing; providing for the election of six Trustees of Purdue University, instead of eight; compelling gravel-road corporations to publish sworn statements of their financial condition; authorizing Circuit Courts to change the names of corporations; requiring County Auditors to publish all items of expense allowed by Commissioners.

Saturday, March 6.—Senate—Much of the morning was passed in an effort to suspend the constitutional rules and pass the bill cutting down the fees of the Auditor of State, which had been stolen from the House files, and, owing to failure to agree by the two houses on the Fee and Salary bill, the House conference committee refusing to accept any offers of compromise, the session expired without the passage of the Revenue or Appropriation bills.

House—The regular session terminated at 12 o'clock, and, as there was much unfinished business, the Governor called an extra session to meet on Tuesday, March 9, at 11 o'clock.

Tuesday, March 9.—Senate—The Senate convened in special session this morning, and organized by re-electing its old officers.... Gov. Hendricks read a short message, recommending the passage of a Revenue bill, general and specific Appropriation bills, Fee and Salary and Per Diem bills, and a Temperance law.... The Per Diem bill fixing the pay of members at $6, and mileage at twenty cents; of the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate at $10, and of the other officers at from $6 to $2; also cutting down the fees of the Auditor of the State from $2,000 to $1,200 per year was taken up.

House—The House took up the Revenue bill proposed by the conference committee, levying a tax of 13 cents and a poll of 50 cents, and authorizing State officers to make a temporary loan to pay off the loan made in 1873, and it was ordered engrossed.... A resolution fixing the date of the adjournment of the special session on next Tuesday was passed.

Wednesday, March 10.—Senate—Considerable time was consumed in discussing the following language of the Governor's message, delivered yesterday: "As the act of Dec. 29, 1872, provides mileage for travel actually performed, I have advised the Auditor of State that any claim for mileage that might be made must necessarily be for constructive travel, and that it would not be allowed." Mr. Steeth maintained that this language was a direct insult to the honesty and honor of the members of the General Assembly, and reflected as well upon the good judgment of their constituents. He therefore introduced the following resolution: "That it is the sense of this Senate that the above portion of the message, so far as it relates to members of this Senate, is an unjust and unwarrantable assumption of dishonesty and unfaithfulness in the discharge of public duty upon our part, and an unmerited reflection on the honor of every member of this Senate, and on the good judgment of our constituents who sent us here." A lively discussion ensued, pending which the question was postponed.

House—Conference committees were appointed to confer upon the Appropriation and Temperance bills, but no compromise was effected, and the Temperance committee was discharged. The House refused to concur in the Senate's amendments to the Per Diem bill so far as the reduction of State Auditor's fees is concerned.

Thursday, March 11.—Senate—The conference committee upon fees and salaries reported a bill giving the Auditor of State a salary of $15,000, with $3,000 for clerk hire, and 23 per cent. of fees paid by foreign insurance companies, aggregating about $8,500 per year. County Treasurers have a fixed salary of $1,000, 1 per cent on each $100,000 collected, ½ of 1 per cent on all subsequent collections, 5 per cent. on delinquent taxes, and 6 per cent. for collection of the same by levy. County Auditors have a fixed salary of $1,500, $125 for every 1,000 inhabitants over 15,000, and 1 per cent. for controlling the school fund; also, $1,000 for making reports to the Auditor of State. Clerks' fees are reduced fully 50 per cent., Sheriffs' fees 20 per cent., Justices of the Peace fees 10 per cent., Constables' fees 10 per ct. Those of Recorders, Surveyors, Prosecuting Attorneys and Coroners remain unchanged. County Commissioners are reduced from $5 to $4 per day; road viewers from $2.50 to $1.50; jurors from $2.50 to $1.50; Township Trustees from $3 to $2.50, and Assessors' fees from $3 to $2.50. The bill passed both houses. So also did the General Appropriation bill, and those cutting down the State Auditor's fees, and authorizing the Governor, Auditor, and Treasurer of State to borrow money to pay debts heretofore contracted by loan.

House—A resolution was passed, thanking the Governor for inserting in his special message the paragraph in relation to constructive mileage.... The Senate and House temperance conference committee have agreed upon a compromise measure, in which local option is stricken out, and the personal liability clause retained. The license fee is fixed at $100, to go to the school fund of the county where the license is issued.

To polish tins, first rub your tins with a damp cloth; then take dry flour and rub it on with your hands; and afterward take an old newspaper and rub the flour off, and the tins will shine as well as if half an hour had been spent in rubbing them with brick-dust or powder, which spoils the hands.

The State of Trade.

It is two years and four months since the collapse of 1872 precipitated its gathered effects on the country, and there has been no marked progress made in revival from those effects yet. The event was called a panic, and it was believed by many that the country would recover its old position as soon as the pang had passed away; that credit would be restored; that a new confidence would be diffused through the avenues of trade; that prices would rise again; that demand would be strengthened; that the colossal fabric of debt which had been accumulating for twelve years would be tided over, in one way or another, and that the country would enter anew on that career of prosperity which had been marked by dividends of 10, 15 and 30 per cent. on all sorts of well-managed investments. That these things have not taken place—that there has been no general restoration of confidence and credit; no general rise in prices; no speculative demand for products; no embarkation of money in new enterprises, and no return of what we took to be an era of prosperity—is a fact known to all. The shock of 1872 has passed, but the prostration which followed it continues. What was supposed to be a passing panic proves to have been a general collapse; and, though we have done something in the way of recovering from it, the process appears slow to our impatient people, and they wonder when the old condition of things will be restored.

It certainly would be a pleasant thing to see Western farmers getting $1.25 for wheat, 50 cents for corn, and $10, all around, for tobacco; to see new railroads being built; to see the iron furnaces of Pennsylvania, Ohio and other States reopened in full blast; to see the coal miners' strikes ended, and the strikers industriously and cheerfully at work at good wages; to see the thousands of suffering male and female operatives in New England busy once more, amid humming spindles—and idlers in all parts of the country brought into active employment; and in due time we shall see all this. But there is a preliminary process to be gone through before the picture is possible—and that process we are now experiencing. The collapse of 1872 was as inevitable a result of the turgid prosperity that preceded it as debt-paying is of going in debt. If a universal going in debt makes prosperity, the era that ended in the fall of 1872 was certainly a prosperous one—the most strikingly prosperous era, perhaps, that has ever been seen in this country. On the other hand if, as unromantic economists declare, a time of paying debts and squaring up generally is an era of health, our condition just now is one of surpassing salubrity. One is the result of the other, and the two together make up that cycle of business which young men engaged in trade rarely think of, and our experienced business men are apt to lose sight of.—St. Louis Republican.

Western Pork.

A correspondent of the Chicago Times at Aurora, Ill., has been interviewing Daniel Valentine, the great hog-buyer, who threw out some suggestions about pork which may be of value to hog-raisers in this section: "When I first came west, over twenty years ago," said Mr. Valentine, "I bought hogs and sent them to the Eastern markets. I knew the flesh was hard and fine, for the hogs had been fed on corn, and the product must be superior to the swill-fed hogs of the Eastern States. Notwithstanding, when the returns came, I found it was selling for one cent a pound less than the Eastern product. Satisfied that this was all wrong, and that the pork was being sold on its name, Western, without reference to its real quality, I went East and brought the matter earnestly to the attention of the buyers, demonstrating the difference of the texture, but producing little effect. It was Western, and that name was enough to condemn it, as it did butter and cheese, in those days. Resolving to go to the root of the matter, and have this pork question tested on its merits, I had a quantity of my Western shipments of pork laid away until the dog-days, the time when the keeping qualities of all provisions would be most severely tested. When the hot weather approached, barrels of this, together with barrels of Eastern raising, were sent out together, and the duplicate orders were for my brand. The best tests were the Dutch retailers, who sold the pork for frying, and who gave the solid, close-grained, corn-fed Western pork the preference, as there was some substance remaining after it was fried, while the softer Eastern product shriveled over the fire to mere nothing." After much exertion, during his fourth year in the West, he got $1 per 100 pounds more for his pork than the swill and slop-fed pork of the East brought. That prestige was long maintained, but he now complains that the quality of pork hereabout is deteriorating. The fine-boned, fine-grained Chester White, Suffolk, and grass breeds are being superseded by the larger, coarser Berkshire and Poland Chinas. The farmers are sacrificing quality to quantity, and losing in the end. Mr. Valentine says the farmers here are waking up to the knowledge that they have been in error for a few years past, and are trying to return to the standard when hogs of fine skin, firm flesh, small bone, and weighing from 300 to 350, were the rule; and he also says they must again attain to that standard, if they would obtain the most money for their pork.

A Memorable January.

"Old Zero" had everything his own way clear across the continent, during the month of January. Several interesting facts are given in the monthly weather review from the Signal Service office. A table of averages, by districts, comparing the average for January, 1875, with the average for the same month during a number of years, shows that in the St. Lawrence valley the average this year was six degrees below that of a number of years; in New England, seven and one-tenth below; in the Middle Atlantic States, seven and three-tenths below; in the South Atlantic States, six-tenths below; in the Gulf States, two and seven-tenths below; in the lower lake region, nine and five-tenths below; in the upper lake region, nine and seven-tenths below; in the Ohio valley and Tennessee, five and five-tenths below; in the Upper Mississippi valley, eleven and six-tenths below; in the Lower Missouri valley, nine and five-tenths below, and in Minnesota, thirteen and one-tenth below. And February is of the same piece! Never was the thermometer so utterly demoralized as it has been for nearly two months.—Syracuse (N. Y.) Journal.

The Spring Trade.

The New York Daily Bulletin of March 4 has an article giving the result of its inquiries as to the prospects of the spring trade in New York. It says:

Appearances leave no room for question that the worst point of depression has been reached, and that we are now fairly on the way towards a healthy condition of business. The degree of recovery varies in the different branches of trade. The dry goods and grocery trades are most hopeful; while those trades which furnish goods less necessary to subsistence or comfort are naturally later in exhibiting the symptoms of recovery.

The South is in a condition of extreme mercantile depression. The merchants of that section can do little without credit from New York, and a pretty liberal one, as to time; and yet, under the threatening uncertainties that surround the cotton States, our merchants are disposed to contract such credits very severely. A large amount of population dependent on the iron trade and upon the various ramifications of the railroad interest have as yet found no relief from the prostration that has fallen upon them with greater severity than upon any other class. And, again, the extraordinary severity of the winter has, in a very marked degree, checked travel and the forwarding of products over nearly the whole populated area of the country.

We have this substantial fact to rely upon: that the agricultural population, the main stay of our commerce, have suffered comparatively little from the panic. They have had abundant crops; the condition of the foreign markets suggests the probability of better prices for the surplus remaining from the harvest of 1874; and there is, therefore, every reason to expect they will require an average quantity of goods, and the more so as the late decline in prices has virtually increased their purchasing power. So far as respects a majority of the trades, we seem to have reached a condition in which a fair show of activity would greatly strengthen confidence and create a marked revival of business.

A Richly Endowed Road.

In the matter of real estate, Tom Scott's Southern Pacific road has an amount given it equal in size to Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

The State of Texas gave it a subsidy of $10,000 a mile for 600 miles, or 13,376,000 acres of land, provided the Constitution was changed. The change was made; the road, therefore, gets nearly thirteen and a half millions of acres of land in Texas—land that is to-day valuable, and is yearly becoming more valuable.

It should be understood that the United States owns no land in Texas.

Outside of Texas, beyond the line in the Territories and California, the government has given the company 17,843,200 acres of land.

So we see this corporation starting out with 31,219,200 acres of land.

With these lands for a basis, and we should remember that nearly all of the Texas grant is salable, to say nothing of the rest, we understand what inducements there are to go ahead. This land can not be placed in market until the road is built, or partially so, hence the great pressure upon Congress to indorse the bonds and give the enterprise the send off of its credit.—Dr. Redfield, in Cincinnati Commercial.

A Horse-Loving Clergyman.

A Massachusetts man vouches for the following anecdote of old Priest Williams, fifty years ago the pastor of the Congregational Church, he having overheard the transaction when a boy: The pastor was "particularly fond" of a good horse, and always kept his "pacer." One of his parishioners, Jeremiah Shumway, owned a fine animal which the clergyman desired to possess, and one Sunday morning Mr. Shumway drove up to the church door in fine style, just as the minister was about dismounting from his carriage, a few steps away. The preacher and his parishioner entered the church door together. The former drew him aside a moment. "Jerry," said the good man, familiarly, "when I get to preaching you slip out and take a few turns up the road with my mare, and after meeting is over, tell me how you will trade." And they traded on Monday morning.

A Singular Sentence.

The following sentence reads the same backward as forward:

"Sator arepo tenet opera rotas."

The first letter of each word spells the first word.

The second letter of each word spells the second word.

The third letter of each word spells the third word.

The fourth letter of each word spells the fourth word.

The fifth letter of each word spells the fifth word.

A curious cemetery exists in Paris. Nothing human is interred therein, yet it has its tombstones, its dead celebrities, its graves sought by the multitude that remember the occupants, the Yoricks who have delighted them in life. This graveyard is almost a parody on the solemn sleepers who have had Christian burial. This is the official cemetery of the Jardin des Plantes. Over 700 bodies of animals that have died are buried in it. The favorite elephant, Chevrette; the first giraffe ever seen in Paris, and lately the huge rhinoceros, are buried there. The rhinoceros was one of the best known of all the animals in the Jardin, having been in captivity nearly thirty years.

Bruyere once said: "An inconsistent woman is one who is no longer in love; a false woman is one who is already in love with another person; a fickle woman is one who neither knows whom she loves nor whether she loves or not, and the indifferent woman one who does not love at all."

The Rev. Phillips Brooks, of Boston, has been chosen President of the Massachusetts Art Teachers' Association.

A WATER FINDER.

A New Hampshire correspondent says that Captain John S. Godfrey, of Hamshire Falls, who has gone to locate wells, never fails in his "manifestations," as to where water can be found. He works thus: With nothing in his hands, he walks over the ground until the water, if any exists, is approached, when he is affected with a nervous twitching in the limbs, which increases as the water is neared, he all the time acting very much like a person with the bars of a magnetic battery in his hands, and following the course of the spring or stream, whichever way it may lead, regardless of walls, fences or other obstacles, and seeming to be controlled by some power which he is unable to resist.—Captain Godfrey claims no supernatural power in the accomplishment of his work, but declares it to be simply a sensitive organism or powerful current of electricity in himself, so powerful as to attract him irresistibly to living streams and mineral deposits beneath the surface. During the late war he located all the wells for use of the army under Gen. Howard's command.

Full Text of the Act to Regulate the Sale of Liquor.

The following is the full text of the new liquor law as it passed both houses of the General Assembly:

AN ACT to regulate and license the sale of spiritous, vinous and malt and other intoxicating liquors, to limit the license fee to be charged by cities and towns, and to repeal all former laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, and all laws and parts of laws coming in conflict with the provisions of this act, prescribing penalties for the violation thereof, and declaring an emergency.

SECTION 1.—Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Indiana. That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to directly or indirectly sell, barter, vinous, or malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, without first procuring from the board of commissioners of the county in which such liquor or liquors are to be sold a license, as hereinafter provided, nor shall any person, without having first procured such license, sell or barter any intoxicating liquor to be drank or suffered to be drank in his house, out-house, yard, garden, the appertenances thereto belonging.

SEC 2.—The words "intoxicating liquors" shall apply to any spiritous vinous, or malt liquors, or to any intoxicating liquors whatever, which is used or may be used as a beverage.

SEC 3.—Any male inhabitant over the age of twenty one years desiring to obtain license to sell intoxicating liquors, shall give notice to the citizens of the township, town, city, or ward in which he desires to sell, by publishing in a weekly newspaper in the county a notice, stating in the notice the precise location of the premises in which he desires to sell, and the kind of liquor, whether only vinous and malt liquors, or malt liquors only, or spiritous vinous, and malt liquors, or vinous liquors only, at least twenty days before the meeting of the board at which the applicant intents to apply for a license, or in case there is no such paper published in the county then by posting up written or printed notices in three of the most public places of the township in which he desires to sell, at least (20) days before the meeting of such board. And it shall be the privilege of any voter of said township to remonstrate against the granting of such license to any applicant on account of immorality or other unfitness (as is specified in this act).

SEC 4.—The board of County Commissioners, at such term, shall grant a license to such applicant upon his giving bond to the State of Indiana, with at least two forehold sureties resident within said county, to be approved by the County Auditor, in the sum of $2,000, conditioned that he will keep an orderly and peaceable house, and that he will pay all fines and costs that may be assessed against him for any violations of the provisions of this act, and for the payment of all judgments of civil damages growing out of unlawful sales, as provided for in this act, which bond shall be filed with the Auditor of said county, provided said applicant be a fit person to be entrusted with the sale of intoxicating liquors, and if he be not in the habit of becoming intoxicated. But in no case shall a license be granted to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated Provided. That no appeal taken by any person from the order of the board granting such license shall operate to estop the person receiving such licenses from selling intoxicating liquors thereunder until the close of the next term of court in which such appeal is pending at which such cause might be lawfully tried, and he shall not be liable as a seller without license for sales made during the pendency of such appeal. But he shall be liable for the violation of any of the provisions of this act during such time the same as if regularly licensed.

SEC 5.—If said applicant desire to sell spiritous, vinous, and malt liquors in quantities of less than a quart at a time, he shall pay to the treasure of said county one hundred dollars as a license fee for one year before license shall issue to him, and if he desire to sell only vinous or malt liquors, or both in quantities less than a quart at a time, he shall pay to the treasurer of said county fifty dollars as a license fee for one year before license shall issue to him, such fee to be paid into the school fund of the county in which said license is obtained, and applied and expended for common school purposes in the same manner in which the revenue of the common school funds are now expended.

SEC 6.—No city or incoprorated town shall charge any person who may obtain a license under the provisions of this act more than the following sums for license to sell within their incorporated limits; cities may charge one hundered dollars, and incorporated towns one hundred dollars, in addition to the sum provied for hereinbefore.

SEC 7.—Upon the execution of the bond is required in the forth section of this act, and the presentation of the order of the board of commissioners granting him license, and the county treasurer's receipt for fifty dollars, if the application be for vinous and malt liquors only, or a receipt for one hundred dollars, if the application be for the sale of spiritous, vinous and malt liquors as aforesaid, the county auditor shall issue a license to the applicant for the sale of such liquors as he applied for, in less quantities that a quart at a time, with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank in the premise, as stated in the aforesaid notice, which license shall specify the name of the applicant, the place of sale, and the period of time for which such license is granted.

SEC 8.—No license as herein provided shall be granted for a greater or less time than one year.

SEC 9.—A license granted under the provisions of this act shall not authorize the person to licensed to sell or barter any intoxing, vinous or malt liquors on Sunday, nor upon any legal holiday, nor upon the day of any State, county, township, or municipal election in the township, town or city where the same may be holden, nor between the hours of 11 p. m. and 5 a. m. and upon the conviction thereof he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more that fifty dollars, and for the second conviction he shall forfeit his license, which shall be a part of the judgment of the court trying the same.

SEC 10.—Every person who shall directly or indirectly, sell, barter, or give away any intoxicating, spiritous vinous or malt liquors to any person who is in the habit of being intoxicated after notice shall have been given him in writing by the wife, child, parent, brother or sister of such person, or by the trustee of the township where he resides, that such person is in the habit of being intoxicated shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $50.

SEC 10½.—Any person of sound mind found in any public place in a state of intoxication shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be fined in any sum not less than $2 nor more than $5 for each effence.

SEC 11.—Any person not being licensed according to the provisions of this act, who shall sell or barter directly or indirectly, any spiritous vinous or malt liquors in less quantity than a quart at a time or who shall sell or barter any spiritous vinous, or malt liquors to be drank or suffered to be drank in his house, out house, yard garden, or the appertenances thereto belonging, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than twenty nor more than one hundred dollars, to which the court or jury trying the case may add imprisonment in the county jail of not less than thirty days nor more than six months.

SEC 12.—If any person shall sell barter or give away, directly or indirectly, any spiritous, vinous or malt liquors to any person under the age of twenty-one years, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.

SEC 13.—If any person under the age of twenty-one years shall misrepresent his age and state himself to be over twenty-one years of age, in order to purchase spiritous, vinous or malt liquors, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.

SEC 14.—Any person who shall sell, barter or give away any spiritous vinous or malt liquors to any person at the time in a state of intoxication, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.

SEC 15.—Any person who shall adulterate, or who shall sell or offer for sale any spiritous vinous or malt liquors which have been adulterated by the admixture of any deleterious substance therewith, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, to which the court or jury trying the same may add imprisonment in the county jail of not less than thirty days nor more than six months.

SEC 16.—Every place, house, arbor, room or shed, wherein spiritous, vinous or malt liquors are sold, bartered, or given away, or suffered to be drank, if kept in a disorderly manner, shall be deemed a common nuisance, and the keeper thereof, upon conviction, shall forfeit his license, and be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars; provided that no prosecution shall be instituted or maintained against any person for any violations of the provisions of this act occurring between the time when it shall take effect and the close of the first regular session of the board of commissioners of the proper county, the beginning of which session not taking place in less time than four weeks after this act shall have taken effect.

SEC 17.—Criminal Circuit Courts and Circuit Courts within their respective jurisdiction shall have power to hear and determine all complaints for the violation of any of the provisions of this act, and the grand juries of the several courts shall have, and it is hereby made their duty to take cognizance of offenses against its provisions as in case of felonies.

SEC 18.—Justices of the peace within their respective counties, shall have jurisdiction to try and determine all cases arising under the provisions of this act, except as provided in section 16 of this act; provided, that if in the opinion of the justice or jury having any such case a fee of twenty-five dollars shall be in indacequate punishment for such violation, then the justice in such case shall recognize the party in sufficient bond and surety to appear at the next term of the Criminal Circuit court, or Circuit Court of the proper county to answer said charges.

SEC 19.—All former laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, and all *laws and parts of laws coming in con*flict with any of the provisions of this act be and same are hereby repealed. Every person who shall sell, barter, or give away any intoxicating liquors in violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be personally liable, and also liable on his bond filed in the auditor's office as required by section four of this act, to any person who shall sustain any injury or damage to their person or property or means of support on account of the use of such intoxicating liquors as sold as aforesaid to be enforced by appropriate action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

SEC 20.—It is hereby declared that an emergency exists for the immediate taking effect of this act, it shall therefore be in force from and after its passage; provided however, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to affect in any way suits or indictments now pending in any of the courts in this State under the provisions of any of the laws hereby repealed, and the same shall be tried and determined as though this act had not been passed.

☞ The following hints by an exchange will do as well for this locality as any other, and those who think they know how a newspaper should be run, can put this in their pipe and smoke it: "Almost every body has an idea of their own how a local newspaper should be conducted, but however much they may differ on other items they almost invariably coincide in the opinion that a newspaper should be mostly made up of local items. They do not think that a local editor is not omnipotent; nor that the proprietor cannot afford to keep a local on every street corner, nor that he cannot be poking his nose into other people's business all the time, asking questions for which he feels he should have his nose pulled. To effect the grand result desired by everybody in a local paper, each member of the community should be under obligations to contribute his or her mite of news, with the understanding that every other member do the same."

☞ A special from Ft. Wayne to the Chicago Times gives this account of a horrible accident in the adjoining county of Huntington: "A terrible casuality occurred a few days since in the extreme north-west corner of Jackson township, Huntington county A son of Ms. Ackerman, aged 11 years left his mother and went to the barn yard to play with a pet calf. He was attacted by a bull which tossed and gored him in a fearful manner. Mrs. Ackerman went in search of the lad, and seeing him tossed by the bull rushed in and drove the animal off, but too late. The child was dead, his head being crushed, his left arm torn off, and the body fearfully gored.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1875.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

The fishing schooner Sarah H. Cressy, of Gloucester, left on a halibut trip to the Grand Bank upward of eleven weeks ago, and has not since been heard from, and in all probability has been lost. She had a crew of twelve men. This makes the fourth vessel, engaged in the fishery from this port, lost in January and February, with a total loss of forty-three lives. ....The Davis House, at Gloucester, Mass., has been destroyed by fire. Much of the furniture and personal effects of the boarders were burned, and so rapid was the spread of the flames that the occupants of the building escaped with great difficulty. Julia Kelley, an employe, was taken from the second story, but was dead when found, or died soon after. The charred remains of the bodies of Hector Skinner and C. Smith, boarders, and Margaret Walton, an employe, were found in the ruins.

As the down morning express train on the North railway was passing between Grafton and Danbury, N. H., one day last week, one of the passengers, William L. Gordon, of Balton, Vt., shot himself in the head, dying instantly. He was known to have been insane. On the same train a passenger named Jesse Thayer, a well-known merchant of Toronto, feeling faint at the incident, went out on the platform and fell off, receiving fatal injuries.

According to a new law in Connecticut a prisoner can elect whether he will be tried by a Judge and twelve jurymen or two Judges and no jurymen....Mr. Evarts' bill, intended to permit Mrs. Tilton to testify in the pending Beecher trial, has been killed in the New York Legislature, the Judiciary Committee having reported against it.

New York has decided that after Jan. 1, 1879, all obligations payable in that State must be paid in gold.

THE WEST.

Gen. Sherman has been interviewed, and says that expeditions will be prevented from entering the Black Hills country, or if they get in, they will be driven out....Five colored men in Chicago have brought suit against the St. Elmo restaurant for violation of the Civil Rights law in refusing them entertainment....The chief occupation of the Chicago grand jury seems to be the finding of indictments against the editor of the Times. Four fresh ones were returned last week, three for libel and one for obscene publication.

The reports of gold in the Black Hills country are vigorously denied by a correspondent now in the Hills....Yankton has organized a Black Hills transportation company....A second woman's crusade has broken out Chicago.

A Chicago courtesan named Hannah Kelley, who had been confined in the lock-up for some misdemeanor, committed suicide by taking an overdose of morphine. She left a note which stated that she had taken this step to "beat Boyden (the Police Justice) out of a fee."

A powder explosion about five miles from Cleveland last week gave that city a very clear idea of what a good square earthquake is. The concussion was so great as to thoroughly alarm the whole city, besides doing no inconsiderable damage in the way of partial and complete destruction. Three men were killed.

The Illinois Senate has defeated a bill to repeal the existing license law....An amendment to the State Constitution of Illinois has been offered in the Legislature, providing for the election of Justices of the Peace by the people, taking from the Governor the power of appointing, as at present.

The following order fully explains itself. It vitally concerns those who may be afflicted with the Black Hills fever:

To Brig.-Gens. Alfred Terry, St. Paul, Minn., and E. O. C. Ord, Omaha, Neb.:

Should the companies now organizing at Sioux City and Yankton trespass on the Sioux Indian reservation, you are hereby directed to use the force at your command to burn the wagon trains, destroy the outfit and arrest the leaders, confining them at the nearest military post in the Indian country. Should they succeed in reaching the interior, you are directed to send such force of cavalry in pursuit as will accomplish the purpose above named.

Should Congress open up the country for settlement by extinguishing the treaty-rights of the Indians, the undersigned will give a cordial support to the settlement of the Black Hills.

(Signed) P. H. Sheridan,
Lieutenant-General.

By command of Lieut.-Gen. Sheridan:
R. C. Drum,
Assistant Adjutant-General.

Andrew Egner, the leading spirit in the Cincinnati tan-yard horror of last November, in which Herman Schilling lost his life, and was burned in a furnace, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree.

THE SOUTH.

The steamer R. B. Hart was recently sunk in the Mississippi river about thirty miles from New Orleans, caused by running against some drift-wood. Hardy Hendrew, the clerk, jumped overboard and was drowned. Ten or fifteen negro deck passengers are supposed to be lost.

The action of the Louisiana committee in session in New York gives the Republicans a majority of two on joint ballot in the Legislature.

Further discussion of the resolution to admit Pinchback to a seat in the Senate from Louisiana has been postponed till next December.

Atlanta, Ga., was recently visited by a destructive conflagration, a large manufacturing establishment, a liquor warehouse and other buildings being consumed; total loss, $130,000.

WASHINGTON.

The Hon. William S. King, a somewhat distinguished member-of-Congress-elect from Minnesota, has been making himself conspicuous in a new way: In a recent interview with Postmaster-General Jewell, he insisted on his right to control the patronage of his district. As a beginning, he wished the present Postmaster of Minneapolis to be removed, and a friend of his appointed to the place.

It is stated that personal unpopularity and arbitrary conduct on the part of Chief Justice McKean, of Utah, prevented him from being reappointed upon the expiration of his commission. Hon. Isaac C. Parker, who succeeds him, was a Representative in the last Congress, from Missouri....Ex-Congressman Lowe, of Kansas, has been appointed Commissioner of Patents, vice Baker, sent to Minnesota as Surveyor-General.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

Forty-eighth Day.—And a very bad day for Tilton. Samuel Wilkeson, an ex-editor of the New York Tribune, formerly Secretary of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and one of the owners of the Christian Union, was called to the stand, and furnished the most valuable testimony the defense has yet produced. Wilkeson was a party to the drawing up of the famous tripartite covenant, and was Beecher's chief instrument in hushing up the scandal at that time. It was into Wilkeson's ear that Tilton poured his grievances, which, in 1872, were financial and not connubial. The witness swore that Tilton complained because Beecher did not help him out of his difficulties, and expressly declared that there was not a word of truth in the story of adultery. Rev. Edward Eggleston was called, and testified to the views of Tilton in regard to marriage and religion.

Forty-ninth Day.—Four witnesses were sworn for the defense—John W. Harman, dry goods merchant; Jackson S. Schultz, leather merchant; Chas. S. Judson, merchant, and Archibald Black. The testimony went to prove that Tilton was a morbid and egotistical man; that he had not at first charged Beecher with adultery, and that he was on terms of intimacy with Woodhull and other woman's rights women. The trial was enlivened by a protest from Judge Neilson against the further introduction of frivolous and irregular testimony by the defense. The immediate occasion of the Judge's remarks was a dispute between counsel as to whether the testimony of a witness who had heard Tilton say he had lost faith in mankind was admissible. The Judge said, somewhat testily: "Let it stand; it will do no more harm than a lamp-post in the street." Upon this, Mr. Evarts rose and took exception to the remark of the court, and stated that before they were through they would show the materiality of this evidence.

Fiftieth Day.—Six witnesses testified to unimportant facts. One, an ex-reporter of the New York Sun, told of Tilton's anxiety to give the scandal to the public, and other testimony was brought out with the object of proving a conspiracy between Tilton, Woodhull and Moulton. Pastor Halliday was on the stand when the court adjourned. He was telling what took place at a meeting of the Plymouth deacons when objections were made by plaintiff's counsel, they maintaining that the official record of the meeting, and not Mr. Halliday's recollection of it, was what was wanted. This objection was sustained by the court.

Fifty-first Day.—Nothing new or sensational was developed. An old nurse of the Tilton family testified as to Beecher's visits to the house at the time the retraction is supposed to have been obtained, and as to Theodore's conduct at the time of his dismissal from the Brooklyn Union and the Independent. A clergyman from Bloomington, Indiana, who heard Tilton's lecture on "Marriage and Divorce," testified as to some of the sentiments it contained, but there was nothing startling throughout the day.

Fifty-second Day.—The testimony elicited was of more importance than usual. It was proved that Woodhull's Steinway Hall speech was mailed as a Golden Age pamphlet, and Tilton paid the postage on it. The old story of Moulton's many prevarications—wherein he said that "If Beecher's long life wouldn't refute Woodhull nothing would"—was dilated upon at length. Just previous to adjournment an amusing quarrel took place among counsel over the possession of the Plymouth Deacons' book of records. Shearman did not want the names of the "poor of the church" revealed to outsiders; but the other side were curious to see if Mrs. Tilton's name was among the list of pensioners. A number of pretty girls attended, who were probably never in a court of justice before, and at times they seemed alarmed lest the wrangling counsel should proceed from hot words to fisticuffs.

POLITICAL.

The members of the Pennsylvania Legislature are as boisterous as Congressmen. At a recent session of the House, about half the number of seats were vacant, and the majority of those present crowded in front of the Speaker's desk, and in their eagerness to attract the Speaker's attention, held up their hands and hats like bidders at an auction. This conduct was continued until an adjournment was carried for want of a quorum.

John Robinson, the showman, has been nominated for the Mayoralty by the Republicans of Cincinnati.

GENERAL.

The veterans of all the armies that took part in the war of the rebellion will meet in mass convention in Chicago on the 12th, 13th and 14th days of May. The occasion will bring together the largest gathering of ex-soldiers that has assembled since the close of the war.

The Illinois Legislature has defeated a bill which contemplated the placing of non-resident and resident money-loaners upon an equal footing as regards the power to enforce the payment of interest and principal by the usual course of judgment, foreclosure, and sale; thus shutting out a large amount of foreign capital from investment in that State....While indulging in a promenade on the crowded streets of Washington the other day, President Grant and Senator Andrew Johnson accidentally collided. They looked all the contempt imaginable at each other, but did not exchange salutations.

Destructive freshets are reported on the Tennessee, the Delaware and the Susquehanna rivers. Port Jervis, N. Y., had a narrow escape from destruction, 300 houses being submerged. No lives were lost. Two bridges were carried away by moving ice at Pittston, Pa., and the total loss at that point by flood and obstruction of railroad trains will not fall short of a million dollars.

FOREIGN.

Buffet, in defining the policy of the new French Ministry, states that it will be conservative, and opposed to factious intrigues....The Prince Imperial (or Napoleon IV.) will assume a position on the staff of the Duke of Cambridge.

Considerable disorder prevailed in Tipperary because of the refusal of some of the residents to illuminate their dwellings in honor of the second election of John Mitchel to Parliament. Several houses which were not illuminated were attacked by a mob and sacked. ....A large consignment of horses, purchased by French dealers in East Prussia, was recently stopped in transitu, at the Berlin depot.

Six new Roman Catholic Cardinals have been formally appointed....Moody and Sankey are drawing larger crowds than ever in London.... The Duke d'Audiffret Pasquier has been elected President of the French Assembly....The star of young Alphonso is already on the wane. Instead of annihilating Carlism and restoring peace to the country, his accession to the throne has been signalized by new reverses to the national armies of the North.

Germany has interdicted the exportation of horses to France....The French Assembly has passed the Military Reorganization bill....A confidential interchange of views respecting the successor of Pio Nono is said to be going on between Italy and Germany.

Gen. Cabrera, one of the foremost officers of the Carlist army, has pronounced in favor of Alfonso, and appeals to his comrades in arms to give in their adhesion to the new King before it shall be too late....The London mercantile house of Sicrdett & Co. has suspended payment, with liabilities at $2,000,000. The suspension was caused by the failure of Imthurn & Co. Other suspensions are said to be imminent.

The main clauses of the bill withdrawing state grants to Romish bishops have been passed in the German Landtag. The debate was exceedingly bitter....Don Carlos has a brother Alfonso, who is now in Austria, and is "wanted" at Madrid upon consolidated charges of murder, arson and rape.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Senate—Extra Session.

Friday, March 12.—The Senate resumed the discussion of Pinchback's claims, McCreery, Saulsbury and Christiancy speaking against his admission. The latter held that no legal government existed in Louisiana, and that consequently the Legislature had no power to elect and give Pinchback credentials entitling him to a seat in the Senate. There was no de facto government in Louisiana, and the recognition of Kellogg by the President did not make one....Vice-President Wilson presented the memorial of the heirs of William K. Sebastian, Senator from Arkansas in 1861, asking that the resolution expelling him from the Senate be rescinded. Referred.

Saturday, March 13.—The Senate spent the open portion of its session debating the Pinchback case. The discussion was participated in by Morton, Thurman and Whyte. No conclusion wa reached.

Monday, March 15.—Senate—Ingalls introduced a resolution requesting the President to transmit to the Senate, if not incompatible with the public interest, any information in his possession in regard to the promised emigration to the Black Hills country, held by the Sioux Indians under the treaty of Feb. 24, 1869; whether said emigration is with the consent of the Indians holding said country, and, if not, what measures will be taken in reference to the same. Agreed to....Consideration of the resolution for the admission of Pinchback as Senator from Louisiana was then resumed, and Mr. Ferry (Ct.) addressed the Senate.

Tuesday, March 16.—The Vice President laid before the Senate the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture for 1874, and on motion of Anthony it was ordered that 1,250 additional copies be printed for the use of the Senate....Consideration of the resolution for the admission of Pinchback was then resumed, and Alcorn addressed the Senate. After short speeches by Logan and Morton, further consideration of the resolution was postponed until the second Monday in December next, which was agreed to—yeas 33, nays 30....Adjourned.

Wednesday, March 17.—Senate—The Hawaiian treaty was considered in executive session.

Thursday, March 18.—Senate—Boutwell called of his resolution authorizing a special committee to examine the several branches of the Civil Service, with a view to the reorganization of the several departments thereof, to sit during the recess. Stevenson raised a point of order that it was a matter looking to legislation, and out of order. Pending the discussion, the Senate went into executive session, and was occupied four hours on the Hawaiian treaty, which was finally ratified by the decisive vote of 51 to 12—the following Senators voting in the negative: McCreery, Whyte, Withers, Democrats; Booth, Independent; Morrill (Vt.), Hamilton (Texas), Sherman, Edmunds, Ferry (Mich.), Howe, Robertson, and Alcorn, Republicans.

The Independent Platform.

The following is the platform of principles adopted by the Independents at their recent national convention in Cleveland:

Our government is founded solely upon the consent of the people, and its powers are subject to their control. The evils we now live under have resulted from the acts of unfaithful representatives, who have worked in the interests of party above those of the people. These evils are chiefly displayed in our monetary system, and the monopolies which it has engendered. This system being monarchical in its principles and subversive of republican government, and as experience demonstrates that we can have no hope of reform from existing political parties, it becomes our imperative duty to organize a new party, to the end that we may resist the encroachments of the money power upon the rights of the people, stay the tide of corruption and extravagance which overflows the land, and place the control of the resources and finances of the country in the hands of the people. We therefore establish the Independent party, and declare its principles to be as follows:

1. It is the duty of the government to establish a monetary system based upon the faith and resources of the nation, in harmony with the genius of this government, and adapted to the industrial and commercial needs of the country. To this end the notes of all national and State banks should be withdrawn from circulation, and a paper money issued by the government directly to the people, in payment of government obligations, without the intervention of any system of banking corporations, which money shall be a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, duties on imports included, except that portion of the interest and principal of the present public debt that is by the express terms of the law creating it made payable in metallic money. This money to be interchangeable at the option of the holders for registered government bonds bearing a rate of interest not exceeding 3.65 per cent.

2. This system of finance will be stimulating to our industries and commerce, and soon make the United States the depository of the precious metals of the world.

3. The adoption of this system by furnishing sufficient money at low interest will solve the question of cheap transportation, because it will enable railroads and the carrying trade to relieve themselves of their loads of debt, and lower their rates, and enable the people to construct additional lines whenever internal commerce may require.

4. It is the duty of the government in all its legislation to keep in view the full development of the agricultural and mineral resources of our country, and also its manufacturing interests.

5. That the great interests of productive industry claim their just recognition at the hands of the government of the people, and that through the monetary system here proposed all those interests can be fully secured.

6. That as the public domain is the rightful heritage of the people, it should not be distributed to speculators or corporations, but reserved for actual settlers.

7. That it is the duty of the government to equalize the bounties of soldiers, and to bring to a speedy settlement all other just claims arising from the late war.

8. All rights, privileges and immunities recognized by the government should be based upon the fact of citizenship, equal rights before the law being secured by the Constitution.

9. That we insist upon and demand severe retrenchment and economy in all branches of public affairs.

10. The rivers and harbors, being under the jurisdiction of the government, should be by it improved when necessary to the commerce of the people.

11. Through the monetary system herein proposed there will be established between the citizens of this country, East, West, North and South, a firm and lasting bond of union, by giving them a common interest in a common government, and bringing peace and prosperity to each and all of its inhabitants.

Strong in Death.

Mrs. Lowden, who died recently in College avenue, New York, made a singular request on her death-bed. She was passionately fond of dancing, and her death was hastened by an over-indulgence in that amusement. When she realized that she was about to die, she requested that her remains might be laid out on a board instead of in a coffin, and that she should be dressed in her new ball dress of flesh-colored satin, with white slippers. She also asked that a fashionable hair-dresser should be employed to dress her hair in the latest style, and that her face should be turned to one side after death, to show the hair to advantage. Her request was complied with, excepting that a basket was substituted for the board. After the remains were arrayed for the grave, the corpse was placed in a chair, the head turned to one side in a life-like position, and the picture was perpetrated in a photograph. The circumstances of her making such a request drew a large number of curiosity-seekers to the funeral in addition to the mourners.

INDIANA NEWS.

FEE AND SALARY BILL.

The following is a synopsis of the more important provisions of the bill passed by the Legislature revising and remodeling the fees of State and county officers:

Clerk of the Supreme Court, fees on all business.

Auditor of the State, $1,500 and $3,000 for assistants—to be paid quarterly.

Secretary of State, $2,000 and fees, with $1,000 for Deputy—to be paid quarterly.

Clerks of Superior and Criminal Courts, fees on the amount of business.

In estates of $500, taken by widows, no tax on collection.

Clerk, allowed $3 per day for attending court—to be paid by the county.

County Auditor, $1,500, and fees on business.

County Treasurer, $1,000 and fees.

County Sheriffs, fees on business.

[illegible]

County Surveyors, fees on amount of work.

County Commissioners, $3 per day.

Road viewers, $1.50 per day.

Prosecuting Attorneys, fees on amount of work, $7 for convictions, etc.

Justices of the Peace, fees on amount of work.

Jurors, $2 per day and mileage.

Witnesses, $1.25 per day and mileage.

Notary Public, fees on amount of work.

PROMISSORY NOTES.

The following is the full text of the bill regarding promissory notes, approved by the Governor, and consequently a law:

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana that section 16 of an act entitled an act concerning promissory notes, bills of exchange, bonds, or other instruments in writing, signed by any person who promises to pay money, or acknowledges money to be due, or on the delivery of any specific article, or to convey property, or to perform any stipulation therein mentioned, and repealing all laws coming in conflict therewith, approved March 11, 1861, be, and the same is, hereby amended, so as to read as follows, viz.: The holder of any note or bill of exchange negotiable by mercantile law, or by the laws of this State, may institute one suit against the whole, or any number of the parties liable to such holder, but shall not at the same term of court institute more than one suit on such note or bill; provided, that no judgment shall be rendered in such against any maker of such note, drawer or acceptor of such bill, unless suit is brought in the county where one or more of such makers, drawers or acceptors reside at the time such suit is begun.

Sec. 2. The emergency clause.

PERSONAL.

The nomination of John P. Early, of Laporte county, as Trustee of the House of Refuge, vice Amos S. Evans, of Fort Wayne, whose term has expired, has been confirmed.

Hon. D. M. Voorhees will deliver an oration at the next commencement of the Asbury University.

Mr. J. P. Thomas, of Tipton county, has a sword of historic interest. The sword in question is an antiquated blade, and was made at Valley Forge (as is shown by the stamp) during the terrible winter passed there by the Continental army. The sword was carried by Philip Lewis during the latter days of the Revolution, and descended from him to his son, Col. Thomas Lewis, who used it during the war of 1812. From him it came to Thomas J. Lewis, the father of Mrs. J. P. Thomas, who dying without a male descendant, bequeathed it to our townsman, James B. Thomas, Esq. The blade of the sword is of good steel, but is roughly made, as is the grip, which is very rude. It was evidently made for actual service and not for parade duty.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

There are fourteen mines in operation in the mining districts of Clay county.

The Denham Organ Company was organized at Indianapolis last week with a capital stock of $100,000.

CASUALTIES.

A terrible casualty occurred a few days since in Huntington county. A son of Mr. Ackerman, aged eleven years, left his mother and went to the barn-yard to play with a pet calf. He was attacked by a bull, which tossed and gored him in a fearful manner. Mrs. Ackerman went in search of the lad, and seeing him tossed by the bull, rushed in and drove the animal off, but too late. The child was dead, his head being crushed, his left arm torn off, and the body fearfully gored.

DEATHS.

The chimney of the Capital City rolling-mills, in Indianapolis, was blown down a few nights since. The chimney was twelve feet square at the base, and thirty-six feet high. It was supposed that a number of tramps, who were in the habit of sleeping near the boilers of the mill were crushed by the fall; but so far as is known, one man only was killed. On his person was found a letter from England, directed to Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Smith, of Indianapolis, conveying news of a Mrs. Polter, and from this it is surmised that he recently came from Jackson, Mich., and is named Polter.

CRIME.

Burglars broke into the depot of the Chicago, Ridgeville and Fort Wayne railroad at Ridgeville, last week, and bursting open several trunks carried off a large amount of clothing, etc. They were making strong efforts to open the ticket case when they were frightened away.

An attempt at incendiarism was made at Lafayette a few nights since in the carpenter shop of Morris & Hallowell. A keg was discovered on fire containing shavings and kindling wood, but was extinguished before any serious damage was done.

Ex-Township Trustee E. H. Seidenridge, of Fayette township, Vigo county, heretofore a highly respected citizen, is undergoing trial for forging signatures to vouchers and for altering figures in the same.

Fred Zeele, a German employed in a tannery, at Fort Wayne, was arrested a few days since, on a requisition from the government and taken to Erie, Pa., to answer the charge of forgery. He stoutly asserted his innocence, and claimed to be able to prove it.

RAILROADS.

Articles of incorporation of the Kokomo and Marion Railway Company have been filed with the Secretary of State, the capital stock being $500,000. The line of the road is through Howard and Grant counties, and is twenty-seven miles long.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The following are among the important House bills that have become laws, having been approved by the Governor: Relative to savings banks; relative to practice and pleading; relative to cities and towns selling bonds with which to complete unfinished school buildings. Also the following Senate bills:—Regulating the sale of county property and the letting of contracts for building of bridges and fences; relating to manual labor schools; authorizing the sale and conveyance of certain lands belonging to the State; relative to the settlement of claims against decendants' estates; relative to orders issued by cities upon their treasury; relative to intoxication of public officers and providing for their removal; relating to Supervisors of Highways; relating to the Spanish cattle fever; concerning alienation of real property; relating to building, loan funds and savings associations.

The new directory of Indianapolis gives that city a population of 105,000.

The Township Trustees of Lagrange county have paid during the past year $696.71 on account of sheep killed by dogs.

Parties who have been engaged boring for coal at Oaktown, Knox county, on the line of the E. and C. railroad, have abandoned the work. They penetrated to the depth of 470 odd feet, where they struck a vein of coal of inferior quality, two feet and seven inches in thickness. They did not think it would pay to work it, and have abandoned the enterprise.

The third annual convention of the Ancient [illegible] of the United States met at Indianapolis last week, and was called to order by S. M. W. R. D. Handy. The following officers were present: S. P. M. W., W. W. Walker; S. M. W., R. D. Handy; S. Guide, H. N. Berry; S. Recorder, W. Martindale; S. Recorder, L. C. Squires; S. Watchman, S. B. Lowenstein.

A game of chess, by means of postal cards, has been going on for the last seven months between H. C. Dodge, of Elkhart, and Don C. Rogers, President of the Detroit Chess Club. The game was decided a few days since by Mr. Rogers withdrawing and acknowledging himself beaten, after forty-one moves had been made. As the latter is considered one of the best chess-players in the country, the Elkhart man thinks that he has won a very important victory. Mr. Rogers now has twenty-seven games on hand with players in different parts of the United States, some of which are conducted through the agency of the telegraph and others by postal cards. It is said that he rarely loses a game.

A party will shortly start to the Black Hills from Evansville.

According to the new fee and salary bill, the State Auditor is to have a salary of $1,500, an allowance of $3,000 for clerk hire, and 25 per cent. of all fees paid by insurance companies. This will make his personal salary between $5,000 and $6,000 a year.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Friday, March 12.—Senate—The Per Diem bill was passed; it fixes the pay of members at $6 and $5 for every twenty-five miles traveled....It was agreed to adjourn sine die on Monday evening, March 15....Bills passed: Authorizing County Commissioners to grant rights of way upon gravel roads connecting cities of 40,000 inhabitants with their suburbs, to companies proposing to build railroads between cities and suburbs, upon the petition of three-fourths of the property-owners along the line; defining grave-robbing, and providing punishment by fine of from $100 to $1,000, and imprisonment from five to twenty-five years; and providing for the protection of pop, beer, and patent medicine manufacturers in their trade-marks.

House—The following bills were passed on third reading: Providing for service of process upon representatives of steamboat companies while within the jurisdiction of the State; making stockholders of manufacturing corporations liable for debts of corporations only to the extent of their stock, except for payment of employes; providing that the statute of limitations shall not cease in its effects by temporary removal from the State of the debtor, in case he returns again; providing for the redemption of personal property within thirty days, when sold for taxes; providing for the letting of the State printing to the lowest bidder, and the appointment of an expert to see that all work is properly done; making the drawing of deadly weapons in a threatening manner, except in self-defense, a misdemeanor; providing for six grand jurors instead of twelve; providing that whenever a Judge of the Supreme Court has been counsel in a case under consideration, and the court stands two to three upon decision, the decision of the lower court shall be affirmed after the case has laid over one term; and the bill reported above, authorizing the building of railroads along public highways.

Saturday, March 13.—Senate—The passage of the Temperance bill as amended by the free conference committee and agreed to by the House, was the occasion of an exciting contest in the Senate. Parliamentary rule was exhausted at half-past 3 o'clock, when a final vote was reached, resulting ayes 25, noes 22. The measure that will thus become a law as soon as the Governor signs it, is the House bill so amended that drunkenness is made a misdemeanor, and requiring $50 to be paid for license to sell malt and vinous liquors, and $100 for the sale of spirituous liquors. The bill also provides for civil damages and for no sale on Sabbaths or legal holidays....Following the passage of the Temperance bill, the Specific Appropriation bill, as reported from the free conference committee, was agreed to, after which the following bills were passed on their third reading: Refunding to Adams county $56,977, wrongfully paid into the State Treasury in 1869 upon illegal acts of the Board of Equalization; authorizing any County Treasurer to sell lands or lots returned delinquent for seven consecutive years, the deed to be made two years after sale, and if not sold shall be forfeited to the State....The Governor returned the Senate bill declaring it felony to abstract a bill from the files of the Legislature with his veto, deeming its emergency clause out of place. The Senate immediately passed it again by a vote of 29 to 13.

House—The House passed the following important Senate bills on third reading: Authorizing conveyance of lands by the State to the United States for light-house purposes; suppressing itinerant gamblers; making proclamation days and Sundays holidays so far as commercial paper is concerned; allowing townships to vote aid to railroads, and repealing the law allowing counties to do so....Both houses adjourned at 5 p. m., at which time the special session practically closed, as no business could be transacted after that hour, according to a resolution heretofore adopted.

Monday, March 15.—Senate—The Lieutenant-Governor made his farewell speech, and the Senate adjourned sine die.

House—Resolutions were passed providing for the pay of employes of the House, and the extra session ended.

Revelations from the Polar World.

At Park City, in Salt Lake Valley, the other evening, the spirits of Sir John Franklin and Dr. Kane, of arctic fame, introduced themselves through a medium named Dr. McNally. Dr. Kane made the following extraordinary statement:

"There is an open polar sea at the North and a temperate zone beyond. It is a beautiful open country, extensive and prolific, inhabited by a race of beings simple in their habits, yet superior in mind and physique. The earth is 750 miles longer than geographers have supposed, and solid at the poles. The sun never shines in the northern land; light and heat are produced by electric currents, caused by the earth's revolution.

"I think there will eventually be communication between the inhabited portions of the earth now known and this northern land, although the passage is a dangerous one, and the region is 1,200 miles further than any explorer has yet reached.

"When once there, very few would leave that land for your temperate zone. The proper passage to this northern land is by way of Behring's Straits, sailing northeast.

"The contemplated British expedition should choose the younger commander, and start in the fall, as by spring they would reach the most dangerous part of the passage. With proper management, three years should be long enough to make the round trip."

The movement in the grain markets has been quite active from the opening until the close, and tendency of values was invariably to a higher range, a material advance being established on the leading grains. The attendance of speculators was large, and the principal trading was on speculative account. The speculative element showed more confidence in the future of the trade than has characterized their movements for some time past, there being a marked increase in the demand, with a corresponding decrease in the pressure to sell. Shorts were somewhat alarmed at the evident firmness of the market, and were anxious to provide for their outstanding contracts, evidently fearing a further advance in values. The advices from Liverpool and New York were of a more favorable tenor, and encouraged holders and sellers in their demands for higher prices. In the wheat market there was a strong bull movement, and, aided by the favorable influences above noted, an advance of about 4@5c per bu was established. Corn sympathized with the advance, and ruled 1½@1¾c higher. Oats were quiet, but at the same time firm at ¼c advance. Rye and barley quiet and easy.

The following table shows the current quotations at the opening and at the close:

PROVISIONS.

The demand on speculative account has been active, and the leading speculative articles—pork and lard—were materially higher, closing at $18.80@18.85 for cash, and $18.95 for seller April pork; $13.62½ for cash, and $13.62½@13.65 for March lard. Meats steady and firm.

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle market was active and firm, and the market closed with all sold at $2.00@4.00 for poor to common, and $4.50@6.25 for medium to choice; extra, $6.50@7.00. Hogs active and strong at higher prices. Yorkers, $6.50@7.00; extra, $7.10@7.15; heavy, $6.80@7.60. Sheep quiet and easy at $3.50@6.25 for poor to very choice.

DRESSED HOGS, SEEDS AND HIGHWINES.

The offerings of dressed hogs were light, and prices under a fair demand ruled firm and a shade higher. The market closed at $8@8.35 for good lots dividing on 200 lbs. Timothy seed was lower; closed at $2.30@2.35 for prime, and $2.40@2.45 for choice. Clover was scarce and firm at $6.40@6.50. Flax steady at $1.90@2.00; Hungarian, 80@90c, and millet, 90c@$1.00. Highwines quiet but steady at $1.11.

PRODUCE.

The movement in butter was light, but prices remain steady at 19@24c for fair to choice, and 22@30c for good to extra. There was a good demand for broom corn, and prices were firm at 11@13c for No. 1 to extra hurl. Beeswax steady but quiet at 26@28c. Beans were in good demand at $1.90@2.00 for choice Eastern medium. Cheese was steady and in fair demand at 15½@16c for good to prime factory. Cider remains quiet at about $6.00 per brl for choice sweet. Cranberries more steady at $10@11.50 for good to choice cultivated. Dried peas were wanted at $2.20@2.25 for choice sound green. Eggs were unsettled; closed at 28c for fresh and 15@18c for pickled. Feathers quiet at 48@52c for prime live geese, and firm at 35@40c for choice turkey tail feathers. Apples in good request at $2.50@3.25. Hides were dull and weak: green frozen, 7@7½c; heavy salted, 8@8¼c, and light do 9c; kip about 10@11c. Hops quiet at 33@40c for good to choice new. Hay opened active, but closed easier; No. 1 timothy, $18.00@19.00, and upland prairie $15.00@16.00. Poultry was in fair demand at 12@15c per lb for turkeys, and 10@14c for chickens. Potatoes closed easier; peach-blows, $1.00@1.15; and early rose, 90c@1.05—inside for car lots and outside from store. Tallow, 8½c per lb for solid, and 8¾c for cake. Vegetables were steady at 60c@$1.00 for turnips, but weak and lower for onions; red about $3.75 per brl, and yellow at $4.00@4.25. Veal sold at 4@9c, according to quality.

COOPERAGE, LUMBER AND WOOD.

The packing season having about closed, cooperage was quiet at $1.10@1.12½ for pork barrels, and $1.30@1.35 for lard tierces. Lumber was quiet at $28.00@33.00 for A and B stock boards, and $11.00@12.00 for common joists; scantling $11.00@12.00, and fencing $12.00@13.00. Wood firm at $7.50 per cord for hickory, and $7.00 for maple.

Winter Sunshine.

How delightful and joy-inspiring is sunshine in winter! It gives new life to everything animate and inanimate. It stirs the blood; it warms the heart; it cheers the mind. Under its inspiring influence one thinks of nothing but life, health, joy, beauty and splendor. It is God's smile, lighting and cheering the world, and in the glow of its effulgence there seems no fitting place for grief, or gloom, or death.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

A New Idea.

Make the Presidential term six years, render the incumbent ineligible for re-election, but at the expiration of his service as Chief Magistrate retire him as a Senator-at-large for life, is the New York Tribune's idea of it.

The Virginius Indemnity.

A dispatch from Minister Cushing, at Madrid, received at the State Department, gives the information that the papers containing the final settlement in the Virginius indemnity case have been signed. The same terms are granted this government as were given Great Britain.

Cheaper Transportation.

The Commissioners of the Erie canal have concluded to reduce the tolls on grain and merchandise for the season of 1876. A reduction of 33⅓ per cent. is made on grain; 30 per cent. on lumber; and 50 per cent. on general merchandise goods from tide-water. This concession in rates will be fully appreciated by Western shippers.

A Mighty Warrior.

Some newspapers accuses Gen. Tracy, of counsel for defense in the Beecher case, with being unready for battle during the war. The Graphic defends him against the insinuation, declaring that he has charged at the head of his column on many bloody fields, and after the battle has often been seen sitting under a tree combing the cannon balls out of his hair.

Declaration of Independence.

The original copy of the Declaration of Independence, which has been in the Patent Office for years, has faded so that the signatures are scarcely visible, and a resolution has passed the House providing for their restoration. It is the intention to have a skilled penman go over the documents with the aid of a strong microscope and retrace all the signatures so as to make them distinct and legible.

Civil Rights.

A colored man the other day entered a Richmond (Va.) hotel, and demanded to be served with dinner. The proprietor treated him with great politeness, conducted him to a table in the dining-room, and put three waiters to serve him. The darkey w " so surprised and outflanked that he ate with small appetite and left the hotel (still attended with every courtesy) a crestfallen and disappointed man.

A Slight Difference.

It is astonishing what a wide difference of opinion sometimes exists between men regarding trifling matters. Here we have B. F. Allen, the suspended Chicago banker, claiming that his New York partners are indebted to him in the sum of nine millions of dollars. On the other hand, the New York gentlemen maintain with equal vehemence that Mr. Allen owes them the trifle of exactly nine millions.

The Spelling Mania.

The enthusiasm of the West is now showing itself in a very fierce encounter with the spelling-book and a fixed design to crush the demon of bad spelling at once and forever. Everywhere in the West "spelling bees" are held by full-grown men and women, whose only ambition is to spell each other down. A "Test Spelling Book for Advanced Classes" has been published, containing such words as few people in the West ever heard of before or could by any possibility use in real life. The cause is a good one, however, and everybody will say, at least for a spell, "speed the write."

War Claims.

The following is the list of war-claims finally allowed by Congress at the late session. This bill as originally reported from the Committee on War Claims made appropriations covering 1,168 cases, the amount appropriated being $748,296.39. As reported by the Commissioners of Claims, their allowances were distributed among the twelve States over which the Commissioners had jurisdiction, as follows:

Alabama	$ 71,671.82
Arkansas	96,501.00
Florida	12,475.00
Georgia	42,535.83
Louisiana	96,737.00
Mississippi	143,128.00
North Carolina	35,889.57
South Carolina	5,930.25
Tennessee	87,400.80
Texas	1,300.00
Virginia	139,145.42
West Virginia	8,605.00
Total	$750,409.72

Death of Civil Service Reform.

The departments at Washington have issued circulars announcing the abolition of the civil service reform rules governing their respective departments wherever operative, and announcing a return to the former method of the appointment of employes, as provided for by section 164 of the Revised Statutes, enacted June 22, 1874, which is that "no clerk shall be appointed to any department in any of four classes until he has been examined and found qualified by a board of three examiners, to consist of the chief of the bureau or office into which such clerk is to be appointed, and the other clerks to be selected by the head of a department." All the sub-boards of the civil service reform throughout the country are abolished by these orders.

A Timely Suggestion.

The Chicago Tribune declares that the National Constitution should be so amended as to require the call of the roll on the final passage of every measure. It also adds the suggestion that this amendment should be accompanied by another, to wit: That the final vote on no bill shall be taken until the bill, with all its amendments, and in the form in which it is to pass, shall have been printed. Such a system of managing legislation would secure something like the proper consideration of individual measures, would greatly impede the progress of "jobs," and would abolish the present ridiculous method of transacting the public business, under which a whole session is devoted to "playing" at work, and almost all the important lawmaking is done in the last two days.

POLITICAL MEMORANDA.

SCHUMAKER, of Pacific Mail note, is resting in Europe.

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.) considers Bill King's property worth over half a million dollars.

SENATOR CONKLING and Speaker Blaine seem to the Albany Express to be the men who stand the best chance at present for the Republican nomination for the Presidency.

BRUCE, the colored Mississippi Senator, is of swarthy complexion, not very dark. His hair, though curly, is not kinky. He looks very much in face and figure like King Kalakaua.

WHY should not every claim against the government be adjudicated by some United States court before it is presented to Congress? So salutary a reform is emphatically suggested by the tricky manner in which fraudulent bills against the government are often passed in the last hours of the session of Congress.

IT was the fortune of war that the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts (colored) should lose their colors during the war. They fell into the hands of a Confederate officer, who resolved to hold them until Massachusetts should elect a Democratic Governor. The Bay State (with a view, perhaps, to the return of the colors of the colored), having chosen such an Executive, the flag was duly forwarded, and Gov. Gaston now informs the Legislature of his willingness to transmit it to that body whenever it may be pleased to receive it.

PARSON BROWNLOW, of Tennessee, who has just left the United States Senate and gone back to his old vocation of journalism, says, commenting on the remark that he is the only unreturned Senator who is not indulging in lamentations and regrets or ill-natured comments on his ill-luck in ceasing to be a member of Congress, "that he is getting up in the world; he is promoted; he is now in a position of far more power and respectability than being a member of Congress. Small men, with plenty of money and no brains, may crawl into the Senate as the snail crawled to the top of the pyramid, but such a fellow can't run a great newspaper."

THE New York Tribune's Washington correspondent has sent that paper a report of a lengthy interview with Andy Johnson. This is what he said: "I can give no pledge of my future course; I cannot say that I will act with one party or the other. We have too much of party, and I propose to bind myself in advance to no theory of party policy. I have not done so in the past, and I do not intend to do so in the future. I shall support such measures as appear, in my judgment, best for the country, caring not whether it is a Democratic measure or whether it is supported by Republicans. I will never place myself in a position where I must do a thing because it is a party measure, or oppose a thing at a party's dictation. I place the country above party."

THE Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune gossips thus concerning the Speakership: "The Southern and Western Democrats, before adjournment, held several informal caucuses relative to the Speakership of the next House. There was manifested a desire for unity. The result of this caucusing is, that, of the candidates mentioned, the contest is between Sam Randall, of Pennsylvania, and Kerr, of Indiana. Fernando Wood and Sunset Cox seem ruled out—the former on account of his record, the latter because he is too funny. Some of the Southern members insisted that it would be well to vote for Fernando because he could entertain like a prince. Some Western Democrats replied that that was the very reason they did not want him. Randall's greatest difficulty will be his high-tariff views."

SENATOR McDONALD of Indiana has been giving his views on the Presidential question to a reporter of the Louisville Courier-Journal. Here is what he said: "I am satisfied that the nominee this time, to be successful, must come from the West. We cannot elect a man from the North, for the West is tired of voting for extreme Eastern men. The last three Presidential Democratic nominations have come from New York—McClellan, Seymour, and Greeley. The next time we must have a Western man. I think the duty of Indiana is plain. It should bring out Mr. Hendricks and earnestly press his claims. Kentucky ought to go with Indiana for Hendricks, and I think Southern Ohio will. The South will support Mr. Hendricks, I think. I don't think William Allen will run. He ought not to. If Ohio has a man it will be Senator Thurman. The Vice-President ought to come from the North. But then it doesn't make much difference. If he were a Southern man he would have to be a very conservative one. Gordon would not be a bad selection. We could not afford to take a man less conservative than Gordon. Hendricks and Gordon would be a ticket that would sweep the country."

FARM AND HOME.

To Spring.

"Oh, thou with dewy locks, who lookest down
Through the clear windows of the morning, turn
Thine angel eyes upon our western isle,
Which in full choir hails thy approach, O spring!

"The hills tell each other, and the listening
Valleys hear: all our longing eyes are turned
Up to thy bright pavilion; issue forth
And let thy holy feet visit our clime.

"Come o'er the eastern hills, and let our winds
Kiss thy perfumed garments; let us taste
Thy morn and evening breath; scatter thy pearls
Upon our lovesick land that mourns for thee.

"Oh, deck her forth with thy fair fingers; pour
Thy soft kisses on her brow; and put
Thy golden crown upon her languished head,
Whose modest tresses were bound up for thee."

Preserving Eggs.

A lady writer in the Journal of Horticulture says that she has used the following recipe for preserving eggs for several years and finds it successful. She says:

We have preserved eggs in dry salt, in jars or boxes, placing the eggs in layers, always allowing the salt to completely cover the first layer. They must be kept in a dry place. We found they kept best in a kitchen cupboard, a cellar being too damp. The eggs, with very few exceptions, were fresh and good when boiled or poached. I have heard that bran or sand will answer the same purpose, but have not tried these.

Hedges.

An Illinois farmers' club, located where a good deal of hedge grows, and a great deal of experimental farming has been done, is reported as thus crystalizing the experience of the hedge-growers in a resolution: "That, in our opinion, to be successful in making a good and lasting hedge fence, we should set the plants eight inches apart, cultivate well for three years or until the canes are at least one inch in diameter, then plash, leaving the canes standing above on an angle of forty degrees." Laying close to the ground and twisting or interweaving the plants were both condemned as unsuccessful. Observation has taught that that the method indicated above is the cheapest and surest way to secure an efficient hedge of Osage orange in the shortest time.

Dressing Black Hogs.

The principal objection to the Essex and Berkshire breed of hogs I find to be their color. Now, as Youatt justly observes, this is not "skin deep." The coloring matter will be found to be secreted between the true skin and the epidermis, or outer skin. If care is taken in scalding black hogs, they can be dressed as white as any white hog. It is a well-known principle that all black substances absorb heat. Hence, in dressing black hogs, the water should not be so hot as in scalding white ones. If this simple rule be observed, there will be no difficulty in dressing black hogs. Instead of this color being an objection, I consider it an advantage, for the skin of a black hog will always be found to be smooth and glossy, free from cutaneous eruptions, and always clean.—Cor. Michigan Farmer.

How to Raise Plums.

There is a secret about plum-raising. We have discovered it in traveling over the country. We never visited a large plum orchard in our life that we did not find plenty of fruit. And we never visited any place with eight or ten trees, and found a good crop of this fruit. Now, these facts set us to thinking; and the result of our thoughts is this: that it is very easy to have all the plums you want to eat and sell. The secret connected with plum-raising is to plant plenty of trees, so as to give fruit to the curculio and to yourself also. If you plant fifty or a hundred trees, you will have fruit enough for everybody. Every such orchard that we ever visited had plenty of ripe fruit. Some even complained that the curculio did not thin out the fruit enough—that the trees were overloaded. So we say to our readers, if you plant plums at all, plant fifty or one hundred trees—then you will be sure to have all the fruit you want, and it is one of the most profitable crops raised.—Annual of Phrenology and Physiognomy for 1875.

Work for Horses.

A writer in the Country Gentleman thinks that there should be employment provided for farm teams for the whole year. He pronounces it as being very poor economy to keep horses 365 days, to get perhaps sixty days' work from them; and this is one of the most serious leaks in the farmer's purse. Any business man would consider it a great blunder to keep his productive capital unemployed three-fourths or even one-half of the time. The farmer ought to be the most successful of business men. Nature never tires in his service; tree and crops grow by night as well as day—when he sleeps as well as when he wakes. But he neutralizes these advantages if, through miscalculation, he fails to provide work for (as nearly as possible) every working day in the year. Rest is good; but to make rest profitable a man must have something to do whenever he chooses to abandon recreation and go to work. Every measure which tends to extend the time of productive industry over a longer period, even though much of that industry may be misdirected, is promotive of civilization.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

DROP CAKE.—Put six well beaten eggs into a pint of thick cream add a little salt, and make into a thick batter with flour. Bake in small cups fifteen or twenty minutes.

SODA CAKE.—Two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of sweet milk, with one teaspoonful of soda disolved into it; four cupfuls of flour, and two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar.

COTTAGE PUDDING.—One-half cup of sugar; one egg; one cuful of cream; one pint of flour; one heping teaspoonful of Taylor's cream yast. Bake in a cake-pan. To be eaten with a hot, sweet sauce, or with cold cream.

BAKED CUSTARDS.—One pint of cream; four eggs; cinnamon almond flavor and three ounces of sugar. Boil the cream with a piece of cinnamon; pour it into a basin, and when cold add the eggs, well beaten and stained, the sugar powdered, and a few drops of almond flavor. Bake in small cups, in a cool oven.

FROZEN EGGS.—It often happens that eggs get frozen so as to crack the shells in severe cold weater; but if they are kept frozen until needed for use, and then brought into a warm room and boiling water poured over them, then left till cool, they will be uninjured, and will beat as nicely as if they had not been chilled, and be just as good for any use. After being once thawed they should be used immediately.

ABOUT COFFEE.—Being a powerful absorbent as well as disinfectant, roasted coffee should always be browned over in order to throw off the grocery taint that it has acquired by exposure to the foul air. The heating, which should make it a shade darker, will also develop strength. It should be kept in a well-corked bottle or jar, or, what is better, brown as you want to use, thus having it fresh and strong and better flavored.

A NOVEL INVENTION.—A useful novelty is a frame of gutta-percha, with a pin attached for holding cravat and sash-bows. The ribbon is passed between the bars of the frame and is formed into well-shaped bows without being crushed or defaced by pins. The pin at the back then fastens it to the dress as in an ordinary brooch. To those who cannot tie bows tastefully this will be particularly welcome, and will be valued for keeping children's sashes securely and properly tied.

Combats of the Ocean.

Among the extraordinary spectacles sometimes witnessed by those "who go down to the sea in ships," none are more impressive than a combat for supremacy between the monsters of the deep. The battles of the sword-fish and the whale are desribed as Homeric in grandeur. The sword-fish go in schools like whales, and the attacks are regular sea-fights. When the two troops meet, as soon as the sword-fish have betrayed their presence by a few bounds in the air, the whales draw together and close up their ranks. The sword-fish always endeavors to take the whale in the flank, either because its cruel instinct has revealed to it the defect in the carcass—for there exists near the brachial fins of the whale a spot where wounds are moral—or because the flank presents a wider surface to its blow. The sword-fish recoils to secure a greater impetus. If the movement escape the keen eye of his adversary, the whale is lost, for it receives the blow of the enemy, and dies almost instantly. But if the whale perceives the sword-fish at the instant of the rush, by a spontaneous bound it springs clear of the water its entire length, and falls on its flank with a crash that resounds for many leagues and whitens the sea with boiling foam. The gigantic animal has only its tail for the defense. It tries to strike its enemy and finish him at a single blow. But if the active sword-fish avoid the fatal tail, the battle becomes more terrible. The aggressor springs from the water in his turn falls upon the whale, and attempts, not to pierce, but to saw it with the teeth that garnish its weapon. The sea is stained with blood; the fury of the whale is boundless. The sword-fish harasses him, strikes him on every side, kills him and flies to other victories. Often the sword-fish has not time to avoid the fall of the whale, and contents itself with presenting its sharp saw to the flank of the gigantic animal which is about to crush it. It then dies like Maccabæus, smothered beneath the weight of the elephant of the ocean. Finally the whale gives a few last bounds in the air, dragging its assassin in its flight, and perishes as it kills the monster of which it was the victim.

"Making Money."

"Fay," writing to the Louisville Courier-Journal of how money is made at the Treasury Department, says: "Take a dollar treasury note and look at it. There is a fine steel engraving of Washington—the man, not the city, in the middle of the note. In the left-hand corner there is 'The Landing of Columbus.' There is fine lace-work for the denomination, and the note has a lace-work border. Different artisans make these designs. It is not all the work of one engraver, for each one has his speciality. No engraver can make two plates exactly alike, no more than the same man can paint two portraits so alike but what there will be some little shade or line in one that does not exist in the other. So, after the engravers make designs for the notes and the Secretary has accepted the design, the plate being of hard metal is subjected to a cylinder of solid steel, the metal of which is softer than the plate. The cylinder is laid on the plate and subjected to a pressure of from one to twenty tons. As the plate is depressed so are the figures and characters raised on the cylinder, which then undergoes a hardening process, and the plates for the notes are taken from the cylinder. From these all our notes are printed. By this process every note printed is exactly alike and counterfeits can be easily detected. These plates and cylinders can be used constantly for three months, when the plates are retouched by skilful workmen, who have an apartment especially devoted to their branch of work. In this room there are many beautiful specimens of fine steel engravings, for our country took the prize at Vienna for such work."

A Free Horse at Rest.

During the pioneer days of Ionia, Mich., the town had an editor who was patient and long suffering. Some of the members of the church got him to give $20 toward securing a minister; then they wanted their religious notices inserted free; then he was asked for $25 toward helping to build a parsonage, and he finally found he was giving the church more than he gave his family. He nevertheless "hung on" for a time longer, until one evening he went to prayer-meeting and was asked to leave his office for a week and go and help clear the grounds for a camp-meeting. That was the last straw, and he arose up and said: "Gentlemen, I'd like to go to heaven with you. I know you all. You are clever and obliging, and kind and tender, and it would be nice for us all, as a congregation, to go in together, but I've concluded to leave you and dodge in along with somebody from Detroit, Lapeer or Grand Rapids. It's money, money all the time, and I've given this church until, if my wife should die, she'd have to go to heaven barefooted."

The congregation seemed to realize that a free horse was being rode to death. They let up on the editor, and pacified him. He even had a special tent assigned at the camp-meeting, and all was well.

"GOING TO MARIA."

A Man Who Had Evidently Traveled.

(From the St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald.)

Just at this time there is a lively competition among railroad ticket agents to secure travel over their respective lines. Rates East have been cut, travel has increased in consequence, and each Western road wants to have its full share.

Yesterday a portly, pleasant-looking old gentleman came in on the train from the north, and started up Francis street, carpet-sack in hand. He was evidently a farmer, and probably belonged to the Grangers. At this precise juncture L. M. Dunn, Ticket Agent of the St. Louis, Kansas City and Northern Line, happened to be glancing out of his window, and saw the traveler and his carpet-sack. He met him half-way between Long Branch and the Pacific, and commenced as follows:

"Going East, sir?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"Ah! Step right up to the Union Ticket Office. Great through line, sir. Land you in New York sixteen hours in advance of any other route. Finest sleeping and dining cars in the world. Chickens three times a day, and beds free from vermin. Butter on two plates, and molasses all over the table. Come right along, sir."

The innocent countryman walked along a few steps, when Maj. J. B. Laughlin, Ticket Agent of the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad, greeted him affectionately with:

"Going East, sir?"

"Yes," again.

"Glad to meet you. Step right into the office. Shortest line by thirty-three miles and a half to New York—put you there nine hours ahead of any other line. Finest eating-houses in the world. Soup three times a day, and fleas expelled from the sleepers daily. Come in, sir."

Before the astonished countryman could recover from his bewilderment at these sudden and unexpected manifestations of interest in his welfare, Dan Mountain, of the Kansas City, St. Joseph and Council Bluffs, tackled him with:

"Going East, sir?"

"D—n it, yes!" (rather curtly).

"I'm just the man you want to see. Come along with me. Office 'not on the corner.' Best and shortest route by a long shot to any point. Put you through in a jiffy. Splendid sleepers, and cod-fish balls for breakfast. Conductors all of pious and respectable parentage, and fires kept up constantly. Come along, sir."

The unfortunate man was completely dumbfounded, and before he could recover Laughlin had him by one arm, Mountain by the other, while Dunn clung tightly to the coat-tail, and he was hustled into the Hannibal and St. Joe office, where another parley took place.

"What point are you going to?" was asked by three disinterested individuals simultaneously.

"Goin' to Maria."

Instantly three railroad maps were jerked out, and for full fifteen minutes three pairs of eyes inspected them closely. Then each of said pairs of eyes looked at the other, and finally all centered on the gentleman from the rural districts. Then the question was asked by three persons:

"Where is Maria?"

"Where's Maria? Why, I spose she's tu hum. Maria's my wife, and lives six miles east of town, and if I didn't want to go to her, where the h—ll would I want to go to?"

Three railroad maps were put up quicker than lightning, and in less than two minutes' time Dunn was seated in his office consulting an abominable old pipe, Dan Mountain was busily engaged in admiring Lou Thompson's magnificent new four-story plug hat, and Maj. Laughlin was calmly contemplating the prospective arrival of the next street car.

The man bound fur "Maria" left in one of Fish & Hutchinson's sleighs.

STEEL RAILS.—The Railroad Gazette presents an engraving of a section of steel rail laid down in 1865 on the single main track on Clark street, in this city, where nearly all the trains of the Chicago Rock Island and Pacific and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railways passed over, and where engines were constantly switching. In the same position the iron rails were changed as often as once in six months, or in other words the steel rails have outworn sixteen iron rails.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The Man Who Made the Spelling-Book and Dictionary.

The record of the life and labors of Noah Webster is an entertaining tale, as all narratives of the struggles of American republicans during the infancy of the republic are to us to-day; and it is certainly as instructive at any one of the fables in the old spelling books. It is entertaining, because it recalls vividly to the reader's mind the exciting and picturesque times of the Revolutionary war and the succeeding years of confusion; and it is instructive because it teaches quite as forcibly as any work of fiction with an appended moral, that perseverance, sobriety, courage and education are the conditions of honest success.

Noah Webster was a representative American republican. While he was a growing boy he was imbued with the principles which governed the founders of our country. While he was at college the war of the Revolution was begun. He left his books and shouldered a musket. When he had done what he could as a soldier, he returned to his studies, and completed his college education as the smoke of battle rolled away from the field and discovered to the astonished world the young republic victorious. He was not rich, and he had to earn the money to pay for his tuition. All these things combined to make Webster a democrat of a rigid stamp. He had helped to throw off from his countrymen the chains of British rule. When he left college he looked about him for some useful occupation, and it occurred to him that he could make America still more independent. Perhaps he was too democratic in this. Some people thought that, in counseling the disuse of English books and English methods of education, Webster was advising his countrymen to cut off their noses to spite their faces, as a good old proverb (of the kind that Dr. Franklin liked) says so forcibly. Talking of Dr. Franklin reminds us that that cheery old republican was one of Webster's truest friends and strongest supporters. In 1783, when the echo of the last gun of the Revolution had scarcely died away, Webster's Spelling-Book was given to the public. Who does not know Webster's Spelling-Book? When we consider that 50,000,000 of copies of it have been sold, and that it is now selling at the rate of a million copies a year, it seems probable that every one knows it. Unfortunately, the chief merit of Webster's Spelling-Book, in the opinion of a great many sensible persons, was its author's originality and industry. The spelling book, they thought, taught persons how not to spell. Most of the boys and girls who studied it had to unlearn a part of it taught them, when they became men and women. But whether or not we spell theater—t-e-r, ter we must revere the memory of the man who made the spelling-book and afterwards gave his life to the dictionary. We need not accept Webster's peculiar opinions of orthography and lexicography to appreciate his character as a man and his indomitable energy. We still look upon the old spelling-book with reverence. When, together with the English reader, an arithmetic, and an exceedingly small geography, it constituted our whole school library, there was a feeling of awe mingled with our reverence for it. Many a man's spelling lesson was the greatest stumbling block of the daily journey during the early years of his life's pilgrimage. Then the uncompromising morality of the reading matter in Webster's Spelling-Book made him feel prematurely that he was very wicked. He can look back now into the old school-room, through the open window that faced the lane, and see the master at his desk with his ferule beside him, and the diminutive lad standing in a corner, the target for furtive volleys of paper pellets from his schoolmates, with the dog-eared spelling-book in his hands and weeping over his task.—New York Evening Post.

The Wife of the Little Giant.

Among some of the noteworthy persons who have occupied positions under the government, first and foremost stands the handsome face and figure of Mrs. Stephen A. Douglas, wife of the "Little Giant," of whose memory Illinois has always been proud. When the system of employing women was in its infancy, Mrs. Douglas, who was too high spirited and independent too receive charity, and yet who was in great need of an income, accepted a clerkship at $750 per annum. I recollect being introduced to her on one occasion at a Catholic fair, over which she presided as Lady Superior. She was a trifle too gross in outlines at that time to come strictly under the head of beautiful, yet I could see how strickingly handsome she must have been when Douglas wooed her for his bride. Her neck and arms were fit for a sculptor, so marvelously white and round and dimpled were they, and the skin was so fine that the veins shone through like glimpses of blue sky. Her hair was dark and naturally wavy, and she wore it swept back from her low, broad, smooth brow, and wound in a sumptuous coil low down on the back of her head, thus preserving its classical outlines.

The evening in question, a gentleman stepped up to the table over which she had suzerainty, and purchased some articles, valued at perhaps five dollars, and handed her a large bill in payment. Mrs. Douglas talked in the bright, witty, fascinating manner for which she was so celebrated, but no change was forthcoming. After a prolonged tete-a-tete, the gentleman remarked carelessly: "By the way, Mrs. Douglas, that was a fifty dollar bill I handed you!" "I know it," the lady replied naively, "but you haven't observed the by-laws adopted at our table," and reaching forth a beautiful hand, dimpled and rosy-tipped and jeweled, she pushed away some cover which had been accidentally (!) placed over a placard, on which in large letters were the words "No change given at this table." "Oh!" said the gentleman ruefully, "Ah!" cried the lady gleefully, "this is in support of your argument the other evening, in which you advocated the end justifying the means. The funds raised are for the church, and the poor, a praiseworthy undertaking, and the using of your means in a justifiable measure. Thank you, my friend, now you can indorse your sentiments from practical illustration." The gentleman walked away.—Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.

CASTOR OIL is an excellent thing to soften leather.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, MARCH 25, 1875

☞Ben Butler is fishing for the Attorney Generalship, and Landalet Williams wants to supercede Poker Schenck.

☞Another Theodore Tilton has turned up in New York. It was this Tilton who fooled Anna Dickison and other dear creatures, but it was the original Theodore who dandled Susan B. on his little knee.

☞The New York Legislature is not of the opinion that it ought to enact a special law to enable Mrs. Tilton to fulfill her promise to lie to save Beecher.

☞The President has renominated Bill King's Postmaster at Minneapolis but Republicans telegraph over the country the statement that it was not done at Bill King's request.

☞The interior departmedt will dispatch a geologist to the Black Hills to ascertain whether it will be worth while to defraud the Indians of their rights in that reservation.

☞The telegraph tells us that Messrs. Moody and Sankey contemplate inviting prominent preachers in America to attend and participate in their great London revival. Beecher is, no doubt, anxiously awaiting a call.

☞The hard freeze since the thaw of last week has made the farmers feel rather gloomy. It is feared that the ice and water will smother the wheat and there is but little doubt that considerable damage has been done.

☞The striking miners of Brazil, Indiana, have an unpleasantly practical way of conveying a threat. One of their employers recently opened his front door one morning, to find on the topmost step a large coffin box, labeled "Eighty five cents or we'll put you in it!"

☞The defense in the Tilton-Beecher case have innumerable grounds of iustification. One of the most recent is that Beecher was entitled to commit adultery with Mrs. Tilton because Theodore violated some postal regulations. If that defense is decided to be competent all postal laws will become as cobwebs before a flood.

☞When Bessie Turner went into the witness stand the old-fashioned judge remarked: "The reporters would do well to look down at their papers now and look less at the witness." He wantd to spare Bessie's blushes, but testimony must have convinced her testimony must have convinced his honor that his own modesty was in more danger than hers.

The B. & O. Company should provide for storing freight at this station in a better manner than at the present. The business is so brisk that at times the depot building is crowded full and articles are obliged to be kept on the platform, exposed to the weather. The accommodating agent, Mr. Burke, does the best he can, but he has not proper storage room for his business—Defiance Democrat.

☞The appropriations for 1875 made by Congress, in round numbers, are: Twenty-eight millions of dollars for the Army seventeen millions of dollars for the Navy; total, forty-five million dollars. This is nearly all thrown away. We need no army or navy. What stands for them is a fraud The army that is employed against the Indians on the Western frontiers should be selected from the Western States and Territories contiguous to any probable point of attack. They understand the Indian and his mode of assault. The regular soldier recruited in Germany or Ireland does not. In the event of a war with the savages he is easily beaten, where an experienced frontiersman would certainly obtain the advantage. In other respects, the army could be dispensed with. It may be said that we need it to garrison forts and to preserve public property. This is unnecessary. One or two old sergeants and veterans in the late war could be appointed to take charge of the public military property, and see that it suffered no deterioration. Our standing army is useless in every respect. No nation in Europe will ever propose to invade us. Does any one suppose that Canada or Mexico will invade us? And they are the only nations on this Continent who can do so, ☞Strange as it may seem there are positions in Washington which the present incumbents would fain resign, and for which there are no applicants. Reference is had to the commissioners of the Freedman's Saving Bank. The attorney general decides that the secretary of the treasury can not accept the resignation of the commissioners of that bank, such resignation having been recently tendered and referred to the department of justice for an opinion. The parties who want to resign have a consuming desire to be relieved of responsibility for the official peculations of that institution. This opinion of the attorney general would indicate that they will be required to meet their responsibility in a business like way.

☞Sheridan has made the discovery that within the past three weeks there has been a remarkable change for the better in Louisiana. Sheridan can find out more with less information, than any other man in United States. On the 4th of January, after fifteen minutes residence, and four or five cocktails, in New Orleans, he announced the fact that 4,000 carpet-baggers had been killed, and that the people were banditti. And all this without making any enquiry whatever. He has been out of Louisiana about three weeks; and he now informs the President that within that time the people have been transformed from banditi into respectable, law abiding citizens. Does it occur to Gen. Sheridan that there has been a change in the constituent parts of his cocktails during the past three weeks? That the ice was a little better frozen, for instance?

☞Our republican friends seem considerably elated over the New Hampshire election, and harber the forlorn hope that the tidal wave has returned in their favor. But there are circumstances of a local character to be considered. The republican party of New Hampshire adopted a platform of their own, which was not in harmony with the record of the national party. They pronounced for equal rights and an honest ballot for all citizens under the constitution and laws. They condemned the use of the military power of the nation for any purpose not clearly defined in the constitution, and denounced armed organizations in the Southern states as the chief source of trouble; pronounced against a third term, Salary grabbing, and all subsidies, favored free banking, and a return to specie payments as early as possible; and earnestly desired the same protection, peace and prosperity for the people of the South that they themselves enjoy. They condemned all rapacity and maladministration on the part of Republican officials, and called upon Congress to give peace and a republican form of government to Louisiana without delay; proclaimed uncompromising hostility to every form of venality and corruption, favored home industry, enterprise, temperance, and free education. Although party platforms are promises not always redeemed, these were the professions made by the Republicans of New Hampshire at the beginning of their campaign, and any success they may have achieved was attributable to their platform and professions thus made. Had they have been silent upon the third term, and had they applauded everything that has been done in Louisiana, demanded a Civil Rights, and a Force Bill, their defeat would have been overwhelming. They had waited long and patiently for some line of party policy from the leaders in Congress, and had confidently hoped that the bugle call would have sounded from the House of Representatives, and that the eloquent speaker would have come down to the floor and in a speech plainly drawn the line. But not being favored with any thing of the kind, they boldly struck out for themselves, and declared against Butlerism and a carpet bag leadership. To say that the New Hampshire platform will unite the national republican party and assure them success in 1876 is credulous in the extreme; it may be the germ of a new organization, but it can never defeat the democrats. If the victory in New Hampshire as our republican friends term it, inspires them with hope and courage for the future, it must be of that kind obtained, as the Waterloo Press recently remarked by "whistling going through a grave yard."

☞An ice gorge has formed in the Delaware, above Port Jervis, and another inundation is imminent.

Fruit House Prices.

Granger Headquarters!

NO MIDDLE MEN with us; this is the secret of our immense trade. We buy at first hands and sell direct to the consumer; hence, we save our customers the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale merchants. These profits amount to from 10 to 20 per cent. Our customers get the benefit of them. Take Teas, for instance, the profits on that article are so great that the price is often doubled before it reaches the consumer. Every time it changes hands there is 10 to 20c. per pound added to it. This, of course, the consumer has to pay. Of course the retailer will endeavor to persuade you that his Teas are worth the money, that they cost him so and so. Well, this is all true but the trouble is he has paid too much in the first place and can't help himself. He purchases from the wholesale grocer, and the wholesale grocer has to add his 20c. All these extra profits our customers get the benefit of, and it is just the same as Coffees, Sugars, Spices, Canned Goods, Oysters, &c., as on Teas. No Middle Men with us. They would starve to death if they had to live on the profits they make of us.

PIGEONS are beginning to fly northward.

NEXT Sunday is Easter. Don't go in too heavy.

J. W. McKay, has returned from a short visit to York State.

THE livery men had a good run last Sunday—their horses we mean.

THERE are more rumors afloat about another new billiard room.

THE sugar bush will be courted assiduously during the next few weeks.

Louie Vordermark drawed the gold watch at Prof. Slates entertainment.

Andy Johnson gave the Senate a dose of constitutional bitters the other day.

Wesley Johnson, an old Auburn boy, is again among his associates in this place.

Mart Dawson, of Fort Wayne, called on his friends in our place several days this week.

THE Methodist dinner and supper last Thursday "panned out" quite well financially.

Perry Alling, has moved from Corunna, to our place, and will make this his future home.

THE civil engineer on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Mr. Pratt is located in our city.

SPORTSMEN are scouring up their shot guns ready for the unsuspecting duck as he passes northward.

FRANK Britton, of Corunna, was in the city last week on his way home from the Buckeye state.

Geo. McCord, formerly of our place, was here last Tuesday, and thinks some of locating here again.

THE Presbyterian social yesterday, at the residence of John L. Davis, Esq., was a complete success

IF that Brooklyn Court would finish trying Tilton and resume the trial of Beecher, it would look better.

Mike Long, Jr., has done his work with the Sheriff to his credit, and will now have a rest until court sets again.

Jacob Stamets has been suffering for the past few days with erysipelas in the face. It must be a disagreeable dose.

J. A. Smith has recovered from the "downfall" he took last week, and is again on duty at the Excelsior hardware store.

Mr. Lauferty, proprietor of the Pioneer Clothing House, has moved his stock to the building next to Beuret's Hardware store.

ONE of our farmers, living north west of the city a couple of miles had the bells and horns, make music for the family, one night last week.

SEVERAL new comers have been here within the last week, and all of them look ing up a location for a saloon. Two many new, gentlemen.

OUR goodnatured and lively townsman, Louie Swineford, of the Swineford House has returned home again after quite a lengthly visit to Ohio.

J. W. Kester, a Warsaw gentleman, was in the city yesterday, looking up a location for a firstclass boarding house, to be conducted by himself.

THE ladies social of the M. E. church will meet at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon and evening March 31st 1875. All are invited to attend.

THE Fort Wayne Fruit House comes out this week in a new advertisement. The Capt. sells at Granger prices, which accounts for his immense trade.

BUSINESS rooms are almost as scarce as dwelling houses in this town. During the past week several parties were here prospecting, but could not find rooms.

WE guess the jail will not be located in the public square.

Who has store boxes to have a bon fire with?

Prof. Chas. Schwartz, and family, and Miss Marry Vordermark of Fort Wayne, were the guests of Louie Vordermark, of this city, the four part of the week.

THE past winter has been a most severe one on bees. But few persons owning hives in this vicinity escaped without losing some if not all of their swarms.

NEXT Monday night the Old Folk's Hop comes off, and is expected to be visited by a large number of ladies and gentlemen from our neighboring towns and villages.

The little pigs, as they perambulate the streets, curl their tails with satisfaction at the approach of spring.

Joseph Philips, formerly of this city, has been appointed foreman of the B. & O blacksmith shop. Joe is a model machinest and understands his business.

Our readers will do well to call at Messrs Miller & Casebeer's store and inspect the new line of paper goods which are being opened at this popular house.

THE blue birds announced their first appearance last Saturday morning by a general serenade. These harbingers of Spring are very welcome after their long and weary absence.

THESE showmen are becoming pestiferous. Dan Rice has just quit running for the Presidency, and now Barnum is talked of for Mayor of Bridgeport, Connecticut. There's nothing like advertising.

Davenport sells Wall paper very cheap this spring. He has just received 2000 rolls, all new patterns. Also Window curtains and fixtures cheaper than ever. Call and look at his patterns.

REALLY, ain't men an unreasonable set. Only the other day, we observed a fellow refuse to step from the sidewalk into the mud to accommodate four young ladies who were walking side by side.

Andy Daily was bound over to Court last week, for carrying on a nuisance. From what we can see we don't think his establishment is any more of a nuisance than several others of a similar character.

BOTH the newly-elected Senators from California, claimed as an Independent, advertises that he will vote with the Democrats on all party questions. This is another of the Democratic losses (?)

Theodore Sargeut, of the Eel River House, at Butler, gave us a call last Thursday. Theo. is one of those high-lived, jovial sort of chaps, who we are always glad to see.

Hiram Raseley, our wide-awake harness dealer, informs us that his trade has been more than he expected during the winter. He does a fair and honorable business, and, of course, holds a good thriving trade.

AN Indiana editor bemoans the calamities of 1874, in the following touching strain: "First, that Beecher business, then the grasshoppers, and now an increased tax on whisky. What is this poor country coming to?"

THE heavy body of snow mostly melted away last Saturday and Sunday. It went off gradually under the genial rays of the sun and the body of snow was so heavy that considerable damage was done by the flood which it caused.

Mr. Wm. Simons, of Toledo, Ohio, is looking after the interest of his boarders, in raising meat for their use. He has a pig only six months old that gave birth to a litter of eight little porkers, and it was not much of a day for pork either.

Two neat looking frame dwellings have been built opposite Mr. Berry's residence one of them is now occupied, and the other is almost finished. Mr. B. has also made new improvements in the way of building lately.

AN exchange says the butter crop of the United States is more valuable than the wheat crop. The butter produced last year is estimated at $400,000. The consumption in this country averages nearly thirty-five pounds to each inhabitant.

OUR good-looking, clever friend, of Fort Wayne Mace Long, Esq., was about town yesterday. The firm who owns the new billiard hall are talking of disposing of the "shebang," and of course Mace is the man to do the talking in this line.

MANY of our citizens are not aware of the fact that H. Wolf is conducting a well arranged meat market at the lower part of the city. He don't buy nothing but the best of bovines, and all who patronize him will get the worth of their money.

G. L. Greenwalt, Esq., is now canvassing our city for the sale of a new History of Indiana. It is a good work for our young men to study, and gives a great deal of valuable information to all.

"MAMMA, where do the cows get the milk?" asked Willie, looking up from the foaming pan of milk, which he had been intently regarding. "Where do you get your tears?" was the answer. After a thoughtful silence, he again broke out: "Do the cows have to be spanked?"

Samuel Weaver and "Hebel's Fred" had a fight one day last week. Fred had a third party take Sam off saying that he didn't want to hurt him. Sam was just getting huffy, and in a few minutes more would have shown the gent what kind of a coffee-mill he was.

Mr. Philip Grube and Mr. James Griswold came near having a "one, two three" in Beard's grocery, last Saturday, and all that "sheesed" it was that the gentlemen are not of a fighting character. There were several words used that generally start musses.

WE notice that F. N. Wright & Co. have completed a large building wherein to shelter their lumber from the storm. This firm goes right a head in the line of improvements, and eventually will be a great help to our place.

"Under the Gass Light" at Ensley's Hall to-night.

Tom Mays will go to his northern home on two passenger trains, and bewilder his granger constituents with a diamond cluster on his "open back" shirt front corresponding in value to fifteen loads of timothy hay.—Indianapolis Herald.

And the envious editor of the Herald will please retire to his sanctum, and report the market value of cabbage.

THOSE mischievous individuals who are in the habit of removing and defacing signs denoting a person's occupation, will return the bulletin board taken from the stairway leading to A. J. Little's office or be made acquainted with the statute in such cases made and provided.

A few friends dined at the residence of Wm. Sheffer and lady last Friday afternoon, and spent a few hours very pleasantly. At six o'clock they were called into the dining room where they gazed on a table covered with all the delicacies of the season. Every thing, to say the least, was splendid, and if there are any more such arrangements in contemplation, "we don't care if we do."

Dr. Sheffner, of Ohio, was a guest of H. C. Peterson, Esq., last week. The Dr. has made up his mind to locate among us about the first of May next, and from a personal acquaintance we find him one of those well posted, go-ahead kind of gentlemen, who are always useful in every community.

OUR Marshal had a little dispute about the weight of a "rooter," and after a few words the other party says "I'll bet you five dollars." "All right," says the marshal. The pig was put on the scales, and without any squealing—on the part of the looser—Jack marched off in triumph with the V.

THERE are several frames already for the siding, and one or two new houses about completed, on the commons South of Hub and Spoke factory. Most of the dwellings to be erected the coming season will be located near the above point. There are a large quantity of choice building lots in all parts of our place, and we call especial attention to parties who have any idea of moving to give our town the first call.

WE attended the rehearsal, last evening, at Ensley's hall, and can honestly say to our readers that it will be one of the best performances ever given in our city. The scenery is grand, and all of the performers are well up in their parts. The company has certainly been to a great expence in putting "Under the Gass Light," on the stage, and we hope their efforts will not be in vain. To night and to-morrow night.

THE slight-of-hand business is about spieled. Slate performed this wonderful feat at Ensley's Hall last Monday evening to a good house. The performance was old, tiresome, and not a darn bit interesting. One fellow in the "box seats" had a bad desease in or about his toes, so much so that the oder, from this point, lessened the light of the hall very much, and it was thought at one time that all would be left in the dark. We'll pass.

Problem.

Two wheels of ten (10) and seven and one half (7½) inches in diameter, are connected by a shaft eighteen (18) inches long. Upon a plane surface these wheels are caused to revolve in concentric circles thirty-seven (37) times per minute. Question. At this rate how much farther will the larger wheel travel in ten (10) hours than the smaller? Answer requested.

Notice to Stockholders.

Notice is hereby given to the stockholders of the Auburn Building, Loan and Saving Association that there will be a meeting of said stockholders, to be held at the office of Geo. Plum, in Auburn, Ind., on Saturday, April 3d, 1875, at half-past 7 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of electing nine Directors of said Association to serve for ensuing year, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the Association.

By order of the President.

Attest: A. [illegible], Sec'y.
Auburn, March 18th, 1875.

MANY of our readers will remember the "Immortal J. N." an eccentric character who is known throughout the country, and who has been in Auburn on several occasions. He finally succumbed to the pressure, and paid in his checks. The Wyandotte (O.) Register says: "The immortal J. N. has at last yielded to the pressure he so stoutly resisted so many years. His death from heart disease occurred at Upper Sandusky, last Sunday night. The immortal's true name was J. N. Free. He was known to almost everybody in Ohio and India, and to many people of other states."

SALOON keepers should carefully read the new temperance law which we publish in another place. It will be seen by the 11th Section that if a man sells without license he is not only liable to be fined but he may be imprisoned not less than thirty days nor more than six months. The law will soon be in force and it means business. The temperance people will soon discover that it is a better law to correct the evils of intemperance than ever the Baxter law was, but at the same time they will find that if liquor dealers comply with it there will be no chance for vindictive prosecution.

[illegible] Wyandott Co., Ohio,
March 12th, 1875.

Mr. T. D. GROSS,
Auburn, Ind.,

Dear Sir: The Mass Meeting spoken of in regard to our Railroad enterprise, will be held in Dunkirk, Ohio, on the 9th of April, 1875. There will be important business to be transacted then and there. All interested are invited to be present. The enterprise is growing. Come out and let us have a grand time.

Yours truly, G. W. KEMP, M. D.
General Manager.

We hope that our citizens will take hold of this matter, and represent Auburn with one of its most enterprising citizens.

OUR lively reporter, Joe. Loveland, and Barney Dearborn, of Corunna, took a trip around the horn last Sunday, and our readers can prepare for a grand time before the liquor law changes again. We have it from good authority. The girl is very handsome and smart, but Joe was too anxious. In the next scene the lady was holding open the parlor door with her fore finger in her mouth, and her head going right, left, &c., and Barney was in search of a telegraph office so that he could inform his relatives that he had swallowed a steam boat, and that a brass cannon was all that would save him. They finally pulled up at Phil Grube's and squared themselves on the out-side of about a pint of boiled sider. Well, Joe is all hunky to-day, and says his eyes lacked grip, and the face had a kind of par-boiled pain in it.

THE temperance lecture by Rev. Tatum on Tuesday evening, last, was well attended considering the inclemency of the weather, and was listened to with marked attention. While some of his views were extremely radical, prompted no doubt by his earnest zeal in the cause, his lecture in the main was good and well received. His advise to young men was eloquent, and worthy of all commendation. At the close of the meeting the collector's were so long in counting the stamps, that the speaker arose, and addressed the ladies, rubbing together his hands and speaking in his happiest vein in anticipation of a big fee. He praised the ladies in all their efforts, and stated that they could do more for the cause of tepemrance than all the preachers and speakers combined After recommending the following motto for the adoption by young ladies,

"Lips that touch wine, Cannot touch mine."

he sat down with a joyful countenance radient with smiles, to receive the result of the collection, which after being announced, joys and smiles departed, as did the audience.

THE following specimen of a "model composition" should be studied by all our scholars here who are anxious to learn to write understandingly, plainly, and well. The boy that wrote it was youthful, to be sure, but his style is unique: "In a dingy room sat an old man writing with a Roman nose and a tall hat. Not far from him, a broken back chair supported his daughter with rickety legs, and cracked rings. In the same room was an old woman blowing the fire with a lean cat under the stove, being the wife of the old man writing with the Roman nose. In a corner might be seen a hungry boy eating onions with bow legs and red hair from a table which he swallowed without chewing. The whole scene was overlooked by an old clock, ornamented with Pocahontas saving John Smith, three legs covered with cobwebs and wound up every eight days by an old man with a brass key. Ever and anon the door was rattled by a cold dog without any hinges nor knob. Through the broken window might be seen a woman cutting cabbage with a baby on her arm through the shattered panes of which daylight feebly shone Another window looked out upon the street where stood a little man wipping the sweat from his face, with a hand organ carrying a monkey on top, by grinding which, he had thought, in vain, to get a few cents from the old writer with a tall hat. Such were the lodgings of the miser, being the old man writing with the Roman nose so squalid and miserable that it looked as if no thrifty broom had even entered there."

BUTLER ITEMS.

The front of Hoverstock's brick block is being repaired. This is a good move to prevent a disaster.

Our school bids fair for being a successful term. Every department is well represented.

Our friend James Barkley and lady, from Richland township, were the guest of Franklin Runnels, near this place.

Mr. McKinan, from Bryan, Ohio, has rented the Sargeant House at this place. He appears to understand his business, and if his better half can't dish up a No. 1 meal then I am no judge.

W. A. Hull, formerly one of the clerk's in the Freight department at the Railroad, has been promoted to Ticket agent. Mr. H. is one of those kind of men that never neglects business for pleasure.

Steifle & Ochs are taking an invoice of their old stock, and getting ready to receive their new goods. They have the largest stock of goods on the way ever brought to DeKalb county. Look out for business.

David Fay of this place has purchased one-half of the steam Grist Mill of Mr. Egnew, and intends renting the other half. With Mr. F. for proprietor and Mr. Mock for miller, the public may expect good flour.

The Stock express train, going east last Saturday, on the Lake Shore railroad, while taking water at Swanton st., the second section ran into them causing a total wreck of both trains. No mails passed over the road that day in consequence of it; no lives lost with the exception of stock.

Our warm weather has catched cold, and the snow is flying and wind blowing at a fearful rate at this writing. The bluebirds and robbins are all dried up this morning, and the ground hog has gone in and pulled the hole in after him.

We are called upon to record three deaths since our last letter, as follows: On the 10th Ephram Handy, Wilmington township, of Asthma. On the 11th Henry Hook, Stafford township, of brain fever. On the 15th Mrs. Hermin Tomlinson of this place, of an effection of the brain.

Last Monday our Livery man started for Hamilton with a runner and two trunks on board. They got out about three miles when they discovered that one of their wagon wheels wasn't properly braced. They started for home and when in one mile of town, she went down. You "orter" seen that "runner" hoofing it through the mud and swearing. At this writing the livery man is soaking him, but it is supposed he is so full of mud that he can't recover

For THE COURIER.

Laws of Health.

BY JOHN M. SHUTT, M. D.

Man is a two-fold being, moral and physical. He is so well constituted that harmony reigns between his two existences. A derangement of the one almost that of the other. Like the year man has his four seasons; in his spring time there is superabundance, and in his winter there is privation; in the one he condences and is not perfect; in the other he is completed, and is in penury, and in both requires the same management and watchfulness. In both of the extremeties of life man is weak and unsteady. Old men should receive the same care as children. We cannot be too lavish with our attentions to the old age of him who was all perfection to our infancy. Shower upon him comforts, and diversions for old age has especial need of them, and has also more than infancy the remembrance of them. Women sustains and guides the first steps of man, and at the close of his career we still find the tender and delicate cares of women. The destinies of each sex are the consequences of their physical constitution. These differences between men and women, as regards health, indicate upon what principles the direction of their physical, intellectual and moral education should be based. Women, being in general weaker than man, ought to guard herself more closely, for excesses will prove more fatal to her. The whiteness and softness of her complexion, and the beauty of her form are due to the relaxation of her cellular tissue, which relaxation should impress upon her how much she has to fear from the influences of the seasons, variations of atmosphere, etc. Nature, in imposing upon females the great and fearful functions of maturity, seems to free young women from the fatigue of abstract things of severe studies, of serious occupations, which exercise the memory only at the expense of the judgement. Their instruction should not commence until at the eighth year, and should continue to twenty; then the education of teachers should cease, and that of the world commence. The violence to which the farmer makes nature submit is but imperfectly recovered from. Few talented women embellish the days of their husbands and children. Among children growth is the exclusive aim of nature; the organs of nutrition and of the digestive aparatus should occupy our attention, we may almost always augment the action of glances and lymphatic vessels by times. The cradle life of the infant claims all our solicitude. Mothers should carefully govern their conduct toward them, because upon their cares and attention will depend the future existence of the being to whom they may give life. The constitutional differences of infants are less apparent, the first month of their existence. The lymphatic system generally predominates over all the other vascular systems, and this predominance is especially marked in the cellular tissue; the amount of fluids are also in greater relative proportion than the solids. Let them breathe a pure air; do not confine them in tight-fighting clothes, which so painfully compress their delicate limbs. Be not too anxious to produce the same effect upon them as the sap produces on flowers, which, blooming before their time, are ephemeral, [illegible] and inodorous. Children have no past, no future; but happier than adults, as they enjoy the present.

THE last visit of our County Commissioners to our growing city, was looked upon with a great deal of interest by our citizens. It was evident that they had been reconsidering the location of the jail building. Although they expressed no opinion, they had evidently given the subject considerable reflection. After priceing lots in differant localities they invariably fall back on Baldock's corner which in the judgment of all unbiased minds is the place for it; and we are satisfied that the expence is the only objection to the locality in the minds of the Commissioners. Having conversed with a large number of citizens from all parts of the county they all without exception declare in favor of that corner. Now would not the Commissioners be sustained in the purchase, and would it not be in the end the cheapest and best for the county? Mr. Baldock offers the whole square 132 feet front, by 142 deep, for $4000, and agrees to remove all buildings; by building the jail on the north side occupying forty-four feet front there would be left eighty-eight feet or four business lots, leaveing ample room in the rear for an alley, and other buildings necessary for the jail. It would be fair to presume under the present demand for real estate so near the public square, that these lots would be worth $600, each; total $2400, and the two lots already purchased $800, total $3200, so the county would be the owner of valuable business property worth $3200, and have a lot for the jail costing only $800. It should be borne in mind that the location of this property is such, that it would be in demand for business purposes. While it would be obnoxious to have a private dwelling on the same square with the jail no such objection would attach to business blocks, as they would in a great measure relieve the gloomy surroundings of the prison, and add to, instead of diminishing its beauty. Besides the Commissioners would have room to extend the grounds for the jail should after considerations demand, and in the sale of the ballance of the square, they could control the buildings to be erected, so as not to be injurous to the county property. We do not expect to control the Commissioners in the matter, but mention these facts honestly and candidly believing, that a large majority of the citizens of the county would sustain them in the purchase of the only convenient and desirable place for that institution.

Examination of Teachers.

After March 1st, 1875, and until further notice, examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday in each month, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month.

Marriages

TRAXTER—LAKE—Married, in this place, March 22d, by Rev. Mr. Long, Mr. WILLIAM TRAXTER and Miss ROSIE R. LAKE.

DEATHS.

MOTT—Died, March 19th, 1875, DENTON little and only son of J. Grenville and Rua Mott, of Michigan City, and grand son of Mrs. Mary Mott, of Auburn, aged 2 months and 20 days. It was brought here and laid in the family burying ground. It was their only child and many a hope is blasted in the little grave.

SHEETS—Died, March 20th, 1875 at his residence near Auburn, Indiana, MICHAEL SHEETS, aged 47 years, 11 months and eight days. He was born in Wayne county, Ohio, and was brought up in Ashland county, Ohio, and came to this county about 24 years ago, first settling three miles south west of town, but eight years ago purchased his present home. The funeral was held at the Baptist church in the presence of a very large congregation.

THE WAY TO WOO.

Don't be in too great a hurry;
  Hurries never pay.
Take your time; a wary general
  Always feels his way.
Do not pull your line too quickly;
  Rather give it play.

Take her sometimes to a concert—
  Sometimes to a ball;
Sometimes spend a pleasant evening—
  Sometimes only call;
Sometimes 'twill be far the wisest
  Not to go at all!

Do not meet your would-be-rivals
  With a jealous frown;
Show her that you don't care twopence
  For any man in town.
Praise her other beaux; then surely
  She will run them down.

Send her presents—not too costly,
  Trifles light as air;
Dainty fruits to please her palate;
  Flowers for her hair—
Something that will show you chose it
  Fairest for the fair.

Vex her sometimes—constant sunshine
  Is so very tame;
Just a little dash of water
  Brightens up a flame;
Love that doesn't fizz and splutter
  Isn't worth the name.

Then, at last, some quiet evening
  (Moonlit nights are stale),
Drop into her cosy parlor,
  Looking rather pale.
Strive to hide your woe unuttered,
  But be sure to fail.

Just hint a distant journey
  As a secret half-confessed,
Darkly speak of hidden sorrow,
  That forbids you rest;
Whisper that 'tis hard to leave her,
  But perhaps 'tis best.

Then if she should blush and tremble
  With a shy surprise—
If there is no roguish sparkle
  Twinkling in her eyes—
Then—then tell the old, old story
  Told first 'neath Eden's skies.

REDEEMED.

The fact is, we were both too young to marry. She was eighteen, I was barely in my majority; but she was a poor desolate little orphan sent out into the cold world to do the best she could for herself as a governess; I was madly in love with her, and I was my own master; we had no wiser heads to advise us and no more experienced hands to guide us—so we took our own way, as was but natural, and married on my clerkship of three hundred a year. I need scarcely say we were happy. For the first two years indeed it seemed to me as if I had never really lived until now. Our pretty little home at Kilburn was bright and cheerful. Edith was always affectionate, always good-tempered, and like Annabel Lee seemed to live "with no other thought than to love and be loved by me." My work sat on me easily; and being young people of moderate tastes, we had money enough for all we wanted. There was not a flaw anywhere, and the days were scarcely long enough for the joy that filled them with sunshine from beginning to end.

All this continued for two years, and then my wife became a mother.

This was the first break in our manner of life, the first shadow cast over the brightness of our happy love. It changed the whole order of things, and the change told heavily against me. Edith was no longer my companion as she had been. The baby was delicate, and her health also gave way. She was obliged to go to her own room quite early in the evening, sometimes at seven o'clock or so, and even when she was well she was up in the morning with the child, and the evenings hung on me heavy and long. I was no student in those days. I was social, and if not inordinately yet undoubtedly fond of amusement; hence, sitting alone for all those hours after my solitary dinner—for Edith dined early by the doctor's orders—was dreary work for me, and I grew daily more fretted by the dulness of my once sunshiny home.

I tell the story just as it was; not to excuse myself, but to explain.

Also, too, the desire for more experience natural to my age began to make itself felt, and more than once I found myself confessing "We married too young." Yet I did not wish for dissipation; I was not conscious of a reserve of wild oats that I was longing to sow, but I did want a little change from the dead monotony of my spoiled home. I was yearning for the society of men of my own age and standing, and naturally the boy, though I loved him well enough—for all that I thought him the ugliest and oddest little imp I had ever seen—was not to me what he was to his mother. To her indeed he was everything. The mother had superseded the wife, and the husband was nowhere in comparison with the child. Edith was angry, too, that I did not, as she phrased it, "take to him more," and I was angry that she took to him so much. May be that I was jealous. On looking back I should say that I was.

Just when Bertie was three months old a fellow in our office introduced me to Jack Langhorne. Handsome, well-mannered, rich, gay, good-tempered, generous, Jack was just the man to fascinate a comparatively raw lad, as I still was. He knew everything, being one of the kind who start at seventeen as men, and "see life" systematically from that time. There was not an accomplishment in which he was not a proficient; not a game he could not play, giving long odds and winning. He was lavish of his money, and a gambler by inbred instinct. He was always staking his fate on chance, and hitherto chance had been his friend. He used often to say that he had been too lucky, and that he should have to pay for it before he had done. Nevertheless the day of payment gave no sign of dawning, and Jack went on staking and landing, backing the right color and the winning horse as if he had a private Nostrodamus at his elbow, and could read the future as other men could read the past.

I dare say many of my readers will laugh at me for the confession, but I had never seen a race until Jack Langhorne took me down to the Derby on his drag. It was a day both of great enjoyment and great excitement to me, for under his auspices I netted fifty pounds, and I felt a millionaire. I was wild with pleasure; perhaps, too, the champagne counted for something in my hilarity, as I took home to Edith a sixth of my yearly income, made in fewer hours than it took me to earn my paltry diurnal guinea. Visions of fortune, golden and bright, passed before my eyes, and already I saw Edith queening it in the park with her high-stepping bays and faultless turn-out. She should have everything money could command. Whatever else my visions showed me she was always foremost in my thoughts and highest in my hopes.

But when I gave her the money she turned away from me coldly, and a minute after had buried her face in the pillow of the sofa where she was lying and was sobbing. I was a good deal surprised, a little shocked, and greatly hurt—I had better use the harsher word and say vexed—at this outburst. I did not see the good of it, and I did not understand it. Besides, it chills a man so painfully to be received with coldness and tears after such a day as I had spent! It makes the contrast between life inside and outside the home too sharp, and only sends him further off instead of drawing him nearer. However, tears were too scarce yet for me to disregard or withstand them, so I kissed my wife and did my best to soothe her, and by degrees brought her round so far that she left off crying and began to kiss the baby, as if it was something quite new and she had never kissed it before.

Though I was sorry to see her cry, this vexed me again. She had not seen me all the day, and she had had the boy. I thought she might have paid a little attention to the one who had been absent, to put it on no other ground.

But when I remonstrated, she only answered, "I know, George, you do not care for baby. You never have cared for him, and if it were not for me he might die of neglect."

I began to laugh at this. It struck me as too comical that a wife should reproach her husband for not taking care of the baby; for surely if there is such a thing as "woman's work" in the world, and they are not meant by nature and the eternal fitness of things to be soldiers and sailors and lawyers and doctors and the Lord knows what besides, that work is to be found in the home and the nursery. But she was angry when I laughed, and raising herself on her elbow drew a picture of the infamy, ruin, and degradation that was to follow on my taking to bad courses, founded on my not caring for baby and my having won fifty pounds at the Derby, that I seemed to be listening to a maniac, not the Edith I had left in the morning and had loved for so long. Perhaps I was too impatient, and ought to have remembered that if I found my life dull hers was not too gay; I ought to have made allowance for the morbid nervousness and brooding fancies of a woman left alone for the whole day; but I was younger then than I am now, and the thing ended by our having our first grave quarrel, wherein we were both silly, both unjust, and neither of us would give way.

The bad blood made between us to-night grew worse as time went on; and the circle we were in was a vicious one. I kept away more and more from home, because my wife made it too miserable for me by her coldness, her tears, her complaints, her ill-humor; and the more I kept away the more she resented it. She took an almost insane hatred and suspicion of my friends and my actions, and did not scruple to accuse me and them of vices and crimes because I was often late, from no worse cause than playing pool and billiards. Her reproaches first wearied and then hardened me; and by degrees a kind of fierce feeling took possession of me—a kind of revengeful determination that I would be what she imagined me to be, and give her cause to denounce me as she did.

Harmless amusement became amusement not so harmless, petty little stakes of half-a-crown and a shilling grew to gold; the glass of beer became the glass of brandy—and more than one; and the facilis descensus had one more self-directed victim on its slippery way. Work was intolerable to me. What I did I did badly, and I shirked all I could. I was often late, I as often too early; and my employers were really good and lenient. As it was, however, I wearied out their patience, and they remonstrated with me firmly but kindly.

This sobered me for a moment; but I had gone too far to retreat; until I came out at the onther side I must go on.

The fortune which had so long befriended Jack Langhorne deserted him now, and with his fortune his nerve. Where he had staked with judgment he now backed wildly, recklessly, and the more he lost the more recklessly he staked. His fortune seemed to influence mine. Hitherto I had been immensely successful; now the luck ran dead against me, and I lost more than I could pay, and so came face to face with ruin.

During all this time the estrangment between Edith and myself grew daily wider. She took the wrong method with me, and being a woman she kept to it. She thought to dragoon me back to the quiet of my former life, and made my private actions personal to herself, seeking to force me into rendering an account of all my doings, and of every item of expenditure, then taking it as an affront when I refused to answer questions. But now there was no hope for it. I must perforce confess. With that writ out against me it was useless to attempt concealment, and if marriage is not feminine superiority, yet it is partnership.

You may be sure it was a bitter moment for me when I had to tell my wife that all her worst anticipations were realized; that she had been right throughout, and I wrong; and that the destruction she had prophesied had overtaken us. In her temper of so many months now, it was doubly hard. But it seems that I knew as little of women as she of men, and had miscalculated the depth of her goodness underneath all her wrong-headedness, just as she had miscalculated my power of will and truth of love when fairly pulled up.

She heard me out to the end without making a sigh. There was no interruption, no angry expression, no scornful look. I saw the hand with which she held the child tighten round his body—the one playing with his curls tremble. But that was all.

When I had finished she looked up, and said quietly: "It is better to know the worst, George, for then we can meet it. Now that I know the worst I know what to do."

"And you do not reproach me, Edith?" I asked.

She rose from her seat and came over to me. Her eyes were full of tears; her lips were quivering, and yet there was more love, more softness in her face through its sorrow than there had been for all these long, bad, dreary months, passing now into years. She slid the boy from her arms and pressed them round my neck.

"Why should I reproach you?" she said. "Is not your burden heavy enough without that? While I thought I could help to keep you straight I tried—if clumsily and to no good, yet loyally. Now I know that all is over, I have only to try and help you, both by my work and my love."

Something seemed to choke me while she spoke. I could have been hard enough if she had been angry, but this sudden return to the old love—this unexpected magnanimity—was too much for me. Still, I am thankful to say, I did not break down. I was man enough for that.

"Will you trust me, Edith?" said I, in a tone so rough and husky I scarcely recognized it as my own. "Love me as you used, be to me what you were, and I swear you shall never have cause to reproach me again. I am young, I can work, I can be resolute. I have bought my experience of life, and I find the taste too bitter in my mouth. A man may be a man, and yet not be ashamed to think of his wife as well as of his pleasures, and I will think of you now."

She sighed and then she smiled.

"You come back to what you left," she said, in a tender, caressing kind of way that seemed as if it buried now forever all that had gone wrong between us.

Of course the struggle was a tremendous one. I lost my clerkship and every sixpence I possessed, both in goods and money. My wife had to give lessons, and I had to accept anything that would keep us from starvation; but we pulled through in time, and the suffering we had encountered was perhaps a good thing in the end. It taught us to value each other in a deeper and truer manner than ever before; and it gave us a friend. For dear old Jack's luck turned with his uncle's death, and he used his influence to get me a situation that began at five hundred a year, and has steps upward in the future. Things have gone well with me since then. Edith's health has come back and my boy is at the head of his class. I have traveled a good deal, and lately I have taken up chemistry as a study. Edith declares I will blow the house up some day, but I have not done so yet, and I think I am on the track of a discovery that will do a great deal of good—make me a name, and bring in a lot of money. I find that as one grows older work is a more satisfying thing than pleasure, and knowledge goes further than excitement; and Edith finds that a wife's influence is greatest when least visibly exerted, and that when a woman abandons the persuasion of love for authoritative command and tenderness for ill temper, she loses her power and only deepens the unhappiness she aims at preventing.

Utilities.

Frosted feet may be relieved of soreness by bathing in a weak solution of alum.

Frozen potatoes may be cured by soaking in water three days before cooking.

To give a fine gloss to oak wainscot, boil two quarts of strong beer, a bit of beeswax as large as a walnut, and a large spoonful of sugar. Wet the wainscot all over with this mixture by means of a large brush; and when dry rub it till bright. If greasy, the wainscot should be previously washed with warm beer.

The following is a convenient table for sign-painters, or others who have occasion to make lettering: Supposing the height of the capital letters to be ten, the widths are as follows: B, F, P, ten; A, C, D, E, G, H, K, N, O, Q, R, T, V, X and Y, eleven; I, five; J, eight; S and L, nine; M and W, seventeen; Z and &, twelve. Numerals: 1 equals 5; 2, 3, 5, 7, 8, nine; 4, eleven; 6, 9, 0, ten. Lower case letters (height six and a half): Width: a, b, d, k, p, q, x and z, seven and a half; c, e, o, s, seven; f, i, j, l, t, three; g, h, n, u, eight; m, thirteen; r, v, y, six; w, ten.

Smoky Chimneys.—To know the cause of a smoky chimney is half its cure. In most cases it may be ascertained without difficulty, and a very simple remedy will be efficacious. Where the draught is sluggish, it may be accelerated by introducing cold air immediately in front of the fire. Say for example, through a hole in the hearth-stone, about six or eight inches in diameter; covered by a ventilator and protected from cinders and ashes by a fender. Generally speaking, the air from underneath the floor will be sufficient; but if not, a greater supply can be obtained by constructing an air-drain, communicating with a passage with the external air. The plan has succeeded perfectly in curing smoky chimneys, which previously were unbearable, unless the door was ajar.

Growth of the West.

Of the extent to which sectional strength in Congress has been changed within the last twenty years, the following returns will bear witness: In 1854 the members of the Senate from New England and the Middle States comprised more than one-third of the whole number; in 1874 they comprised less than one-fourth. In 1854 the House was made up of 76 members from the South, 59 from the West, and 99 from the Middle States and New England; total 214. In 1874 the House was made up of 86 from the South, 104 from the West, and 102 from the Middle States and New England; total, 292. The Western States have nearly doubled their membership; the New England States have lost one member, and the Middle States have gained four; the South (counting West Virginia as a Southern State) has gained ten members. If Colorado and New Mexico should be admitted as States, the relative strength of the West, specially in the Senate, will be still further increased. The ruling power of the country is thus passing away from the "old thirteen" and their neighbors, and is being absorbed by the more rapidly growing population of the West. But this change involves no more danger of sectional legislation than existed when New England and the Middle States held the ruling power. It may be expected, however, to somewhat influence the general drift of legislation.—Philadelphia Ledger.

There was an explosion of gas in a street sewer, at Boston, one day recently, which occurred while two men were examining the pipes with lighted matches. A hole, twenty by fifty feet, was made in the street, and the men, who were thrown a considerable distance, were so badly injured that their recovery is doubtful.

'HOPPERS.

He Had Them the Worst Kind—A Relief Agent Meets With a Sympathizer.

[From the St. Louis Democrat.]

He was from Douglas county. He had eaten nothing but grasshoppers since the 4th of July, 1874, and his stomach was in an awful condition—it was full of grasshoppers! He could feel them jumping about trying to find their way out, but their toe-nails scratched his alimentary canal, and a spasmodic movement of the muscles of his thorax forced them back into the cavity before they reached the root of his tongue. He had left a wife and nine famished children at home, and had gone to Lawrence to collect funds to save his neighbors from starvation. He had not been successful—perhaps because his credentials were not strong enough. And now, if the barkeeper would accommodate him with a spoonful of whisky—it was the only thing which would keep the grasshoppers quiet in his stomach; it kinder stupefied them and caused them to lie dormant for several hours, but as soon as they sobered up they became as lively as crickets, and played leapfrog in the pit of his stomach. He had killed a great many of them with whisky, but their eggs were all the time hatching, and he believed there were at least 10,000 live ones occupying the space designed by nature for the laboratory of bread and meat and such things. He had no money, but if the barkeeper would trust him for a few drops of crow-foot, he would remunerate him out of his first collection for the sufferers. By adding a little peppermint and a few grains of sugar to the liquor, the medicine would be made more potent; or if there was no peppermint handy, a drop of ginger would do as well.

The barkeeper deeply symyathized with the grasshopper-stricken people of Kansas. He pitied any man who had grasshoppers in his stomach. If whisky, and pepperment, and ginger, or anything else his bar afforded, would relieve him, he was welcome to partake. He could accept thanks for so small a favor; he was only sorry he didn't have whisky and peppermint enough to destroy all the grasshoppers in Kansas.

The barkeeper poured two tablespoonfuls of the essence of Jamaica ginger into a tumbler, added an equal quantity of pepper-sauce, shook in a thimbleful of Cayenne pepper, emptied a small vial of sulphuric acid on top, and then sprinkled a few drops of tanglefoot over the mixture, and handing the tumbler to the man, told him to "swallow it quick." The grasshopper-plagued stranger waited for no second invitation, but poured the decoction down his throat at one fell swallow.

"How did you like it?" asked the bar-keeper.

The grasshoppered individual made no reply. His eyes rolled in their sockets, and the tears ran out of them in streams. His mouth was open wide enough to swallow the barkeeper and all his decanters. He placed both hands over his stomach and cast an imploring glance toward the water pitcher.

"Do you feel 'em crawl?" asked the barkeeper in the anxious tone of a sick nurse.

The stranger made no reply, but continued to press his stomach and water the floor with his tears.

"Take some of this horse-radish," said the barkeeper; "it will do you good."

The stranger still made no reply, but gradually his mouth grew smaller, his lips contracted, and the air rushed into his throat with a whistling sound, like the winter wind through a broken window pane. At last the barkeeper took compassion upon his writhing customer and gave him a glass of ice-water to cool his throat. When the stranger was able to speak he looked reproachfully at the "medicine man," and said:

"See here, stranger, if that's the kind of stuff you give a man for grasshoppers, I'd like to know what in hell you'd give a feller if he had a tape-worm?"

Origin of Great Men.

It is not among the pampered children of luxury that we must oftenest look for the seeds of intellect which ripen in the manhood of greatness. The grandest characters known in art, literature, and useful inventions have risen from the humbler walks of life, showing that genius ignores all class and social barriers. Let us glance in corroboration of this statement at such characters in modern history as most readily present themselves to the mind. In general literature look at Defoe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," one of the greatest writers of prose fiction that ever lived. He began life as a simple hosier, and was wholly self-taught. William Cobbett, the great master of Saxon English, was a common soldier and a farmer's boy. Izaak Walton, the biographer, was a linen draper.

Thomas Simpson, the famous mathematician, was a journeyman weaver half his life. Capt. Cook, one of the most scientific of sailors and a pleasing writer, was self-taught. His father and mother could neither read nor write. Sir Richard Arkwright, inventor of the cotton spinning machine, was a poor man, and commenced life as a barber. Herschel, the great astronomer, was an humble musician in a military band. Chantry, the sculptor, was a milk and dairy boy, his first efforts in art being molded in butter. Sir Thomas Lawrence was an innkeeper's boy, and entirely self-taught. John Opie was a wood-sawyer. Hogarth commenced in the humblest manner as an engraver of cheap show bills. Gifford, afterward the famous editor of the Quarterly, served an apprenticeship as a shoemaker; and Bloomfield, the charming English poet, was also a cordwainer, better known as the English Burns.

James Brindly, the great English engineer, was an humble miller for years. Ben Jonson—"rare Ben Jonson"—was in early life a bricklayer, and was often seen with a trowel in one hand and a book in the other. Shakespeare was a poor man's son. Doctor Isaac Millers, afterward Dean of Carlisle, well-known also as an author, commenced life as a weaver. Doctor Prideaux, Bishop of Worcester, got his education by entering Oxford as a kitchen boy. John Bunyan, the great master of allegory, and who is said to be the author of the second best book ever written, was a tinker. So we might go on scanning the history of the past to illustrate our remark at the commencement of this brief article.

But if the history of the past is crowded with evidence that mainly among the million and not among the favored few we are to look for such illustrious examples of those to whom the world accords the meed of greatness, much more do our own day and generation illustrate the same fact. Let our readers pursue this line of thought as connected with the history of America during the last century, and see to what remarkable results and interesting facts it will inevitably lead.

Heroism of a Mississippi Boatman.

A "Boatman" sends the following to the St. Louis Democrat: "John Johnston was only a keel-boatman, born in Giles county, Tenn. Poverty and inclination drove him to keel-boating. During the spring of 1873 he and the writer of this sketch were engaged in keel-boating on the Big Black river. About the last of May the boating season ended, and we were preparing to start for Tennessee river, when the steamer Ben. Sherrod came down and landed at Grand Gulf. We went on her, as we knew all hands, and she was to return to the Tennessee. While we were in New Orleans we hired as deck-hands on her. We had but one trunk in common, in which were deposited our earnings, some $200, and our clothing. The Ben. Sherrod left New Orleans, with over 400 passengers, and proceeded on her trip. Wooding in Raccounsee bend, we took on forty cords of dry willow wood. This was piled in the usual way, alongside and close to the boilers. Johnston and I went off watch at 12 o'clock at night, and lay out on the guard, as the inside of the boat was very warm. About 1 o'clock we were aroused by the cry of fire, and found the smoke suffocating. In a few seconds the after guards were crowded with deck passengers, and in a few minutes the flames burst through the roof, and we saw that the pilot had lost all control of the boat and she was circling around. Occasionally as the boat swung round near the shore, passengers would jump overboard, and very soon the lower guard was comparatively empty. A passenger on the upper guard swung two children, about four and six years old, down by the arms, and begged for some one to take them while he went back for his wife and youngest child. Johnston took them. The father went back, and never returned. I began to consider that it was about time to get away, and said to Johnston, 'Let us get our trunk away and save it.' His answer was, 'Save the devil! If we save anything, it must be the children.' I replied that I did not believe we could, but thought it might be fatal to us. He said, with an oath, 'It will be a glorious death to die a-trying.' We did try, and succeeded. Since then I have seen, heard, and read of heroes, but never of any more genuine act of heroism than that performed by John Johnston on the night of the burning of the Ben. Sherrod. Over 250 lives were lost.

A Woman's Adventure With a Mouse.

A Keokuk woman immortalized herself and wants a crown of glory of which very few of the sex are worthy. She is not afraid of a mouse. She proved she was mistress of the situation in the very face of the mouse himself. The lady while pursuing her domestic duties, cornered a mouse in a flour-barrel. He had been there before. The lady had been hankering after him. She slammed down the lid, plugged up a hole with the butt-end of a flour-scoop, and the ravenous animal was nicely caught in his own trap. Now ninety-nine women in a hundred would have taken refuge in the garret or cellar, as most convenient, uttering piercing shrieks that would have alarmed the whole vicinity, like cries of "murder" or "fire." The Keokuk heroine in her adventure with a mouse did no such thing. She stood her ground manfully. She summoned the hired man. He came and a council of war was held in the store-room. The man, according to the settled plan of the campaign, got a shot-gun and stationed a big, clumsy bull-dog in a commanding position. Every thing being ready for the attack, the lid was lifted and the lady vigorously punched the flour-barrel with a pole. Soon the mouse started across the floor—the dog in hot pursuit. The man fired; the dog dropped dead. The lady fainted and fell down-stairs. The frightened hired man, thinking the woman was dead and he would be arrested for murder, dropped the gun ran away from the house and has not been seen since. The mouse escaped unhurt, but very much scared, and that lady walks proudly over her victorious field. There's nothing so noble as pluck in women.—St. Louis Republican.

Bavarian Beggars.

On a day fixed, order being previously given, the police of Munich seize every beggar of every kind in the streets, and convey all, bodily, to a large manufactory, the character of which is, in fact, that of a workhouse, with, however, the valuable addition of military discipline. Once secured within the new military workhouse, the beggars are washed, dressed, and fed; given free permission to stay or go, as they please; but to eat the excellent dinner provided at the workhouse, they must do the work for which alone that dinner is the recompense. As a proof of the success of the system, it may be mentioned that in five years' time the institution was realizing nearly £1,000 per annum. But what was that? The real glory lay in the fact that a vicious, idle race of beings, who were numbered by thousands, even in so small a city as Munich, were gradually converted into honest workmen; were instructed in religion, and raised in moral character; while the citizens were relieved of what had been a tax on their purses and tempers alike.

A Woman's Reason.

Over and over again it has been said that a woman's only reason for anything is "Because." This theory is borne out by the way the girls operate with counterfeit notes which come under their hand in the Treasury Department. Gen. Spinner, who has had twelve years' experience in the work, says they are worth ten times as much as the men for such business. "A man always has a reason for a counterfeit," says the General, "forty, may be, but he is wrong half the time. A woman never has a reason. She says 'tis a counterfeit because it is counterfeit, and she is always right—though she could not tell how she found out if she were to be hung for it."

"AM I FAIR?"

Tell me, tell me, am I fair?
  Does my mirror show me true?
Sweet of face and [illegible]
  Tell me—is that so to you?
Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

Gray-blue eyes and eyelids thin,
Clear-cut nose and rounded chin,
Slender throat, neck long and white—
  Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

Long arms on my molded breast,
With long fingers, lie at rest,
Tall and slender is my height;
  Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

Little feet so smooth and round,
Deftly sandaled, touch the ground;
Blithe and happy do I sing;
  Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

Mantles have I, fur and gold,
Robes of satin, new and old;
I have many a precious thing;
  Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

Brave and proud and happy he,
Who my love may win, shall be,
[illegible] e'er so sweet a maid!
  Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

And my faith, a woman's word,
Pledged as though by Heaven heard,
Never shall be falsely played;
  Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

If my lover gentle prove,
Knightly, brave, and true to love,
Slave and servant will I be,
  Tell me, tell me, am I fair?

The difference between the sexes may be stated thus: "A man gives forty cents for a twenty-five cent thing he wants, and a woman gives twenty-five cents for a forty-cent thing she does not want."

A prominent Detroit Universalist, some months ago, married a red-headed widow with four children, and last week he remarked to a friend, "I was blind when I believed there was no hell. I see now!"

A bashful young clergyman, recently, rising to preach for the first time, made a terrible mix of it, and announced his text in this wise: "And immediately the cock wept, and Peter went out and crew bitterly."

A young man out West married a deaf and dumb girl. Recently, however, she recovered both speech and hearing, and he has applied for a divorce. He says it is the most outrageous swindle he ever heard of, and we think he is right.

Perhaps one ought not to mention such things, but it's hard to keep from thinking how different the history of this country might have been if Ulysses S. Grant, Benjamin F. Butler and Henry Ward Beecher had been born girls.—Courier-Journal.

A boy about twelve years old knocked at the door of a house on Second street, yesterday, and, when the lady appeared, said: "There'll be a boy round here pretty soon to clean your walk, but don't give him the job. We go to Sunday-school, never sass our mothers, and we're going to give half the money to the grasshopper-sufferers." The job was saved for him.—Detroit Free Press.

A Southern paper relates the following: "One of our country friends relates a story of one of the intelligent fifteenth amendment recruits attempting to steal a goose, but a dog raised an objection, and Sambo retired. The next night, during a thunder shower, he attempted it again, and just as he was on the point of getting away with his bird, the lightning struck close by. Dropping the goose, he started away, muttering: 'Pears to me dar am a mighty lot of fuss made 'bout a common goose.'"

MAN'S A FOOL.

Man's a fool!
When it's hot he wants it cool;
When it's cold he wants it hot—
Ne'er contented with his lot.

When it's dry
He for showers is heard to sigh;
When—to meet his wish—it rains,
Of the wet the fool complains.

Hot or cold, dry or wet,
Nothing suits that he can get;
I consider, as a rule,
Man's a fool.

The Destruction of Theaters by Fire.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The Theater Royal of Edinburgh has been again destroyed by fire. The event can hardly be called unexpected, for it has on two former occasions met with a similar fate. Theatrical property appears to be of a very combustible nature, to judge by the number of theaters which have been burned down in London alone since the commencement of the present century. In 1809 Drury Lane Theater was destroyed by fire, following the example of Covent Garden Theater, which met with a like accident in 1808, and which was again burned down in 1856. The Lyceum was burned down in 1830. The Surrey Theater has been twice burned down, once in 1805 and again in 1865. Astley's, also, has been the victim of two conflagrations, being destroyed in 1803 and 1841. The Olympic fell by fire in 1849; the Pavilion, in 1856; the Standard, Shoreditch, in 1866, and the Italian Opera House in 1867.

Five Children in One Cradle.—The Montgomery (Va.) Messenger has this paragraph: "Some two years ago, Mrs. Morgan, who lives on Wolf creek, in Giles county, gave birth to five male children at one time. They are still living, and are not the slightest deformed, are of good constitution, and as sprightly as well-fed kittens. Mr. Morgan is a laborer, and quite poor. The neighbors frequently visit this family, and never without taking supplies of some kind. We are sorry we cannot give the names of these two-year-olds, but will hereafter. Dr. Miller, of Mechanicsburg, Bland county, was the attending physician."

Dances of the Olden Times.

There were dances of the court and dances of the people. The Morrisdance, which seems to have been an invention of the Moors, had firmly established itself in England in the sixteenth century. The country dance was even of earlier date. The old Roundel or Roundelay has been described by ancient authorities as an air appropriate to dancing, and would indicate little more than a circular dance with the hands joined. Among the nobler and statelier dances in vogue at the court of the Tudors were the Pavan (from pavo, a peacock), with the Galliard, a lighter measure, which was probably to the Pavan what in later years the Gavotte was to the Minuet, the Passamezzo, the Courant, and the Saraband. Sir John Elyot, who published in 1531 his book called the "Governor," wherein he avers that dancing by persons of both sexes is a mystical representation of matrimony, mentions other dances, such as Bargenettes and Turgyons, concerning which no explanation can be offered, except perhaps that the former may be derived from Berger, and be something of a shepherd's dance.

Dancing, however, had degenerated in King Charles' time. In his Table Talk, Selden writes of the matter in very quaint terms: "The court in England is much altered. At a solemn dancing, first you had the grave measures, then the Corantos and the Galliards, and this kept up with ceremony; and at length to Trenchmore and the cushion dance; then all the company dances, lord and groom, lady and kitchen-maid, no distinction. So in our court in Queen Elizabeth's time gravity and state were kept up. In King James' time things were pretty well. But in King Charles' time there has been nothing but Trenchmore and the cushion dance, omnium gatherum, tolly polly, hoite cum toite." The Trenchmore was a lively dance, mention of which may be found in the "Pilgrim" and "Island Princess" of Beaumont and Fletcher, and in the "Rehearsal" of the Duke of Buckingham. The last editor of Selden, it may be noted, by altering the word to "French-more," has considerably obscured the author's meaning.

In former times men of the gravest profession did not disdain to dance. Even the Judges, in compliance with ancient custom, long continued to dance annually on Candlemas-day in the hall of Sergeants' Inn, Chancery lane. Lincoln's Inn, too, had its revels—four in each year—with a master duly elected of the society to direct the pastimes. Nor were these "exercises of dancing," as Dugdale calls them, merely tolerated; they were held to be "very necessary, and much conducing to the making of gentlemen more fit for their books at other times." Indeed, it appears that, by an order made in James I.'s time, the junior bar was severely dealt with for declining to dance; "the under barristers were by decimation put out of commons for example's sake, because the whole bar offended by not dancing on Candlemas-day preceding, according to the ancient order of this society, when the Judges were present; with this, that if the like fault were committed afterward they should be fined or disbarred." —Belgravia.

Interviewing a Burglar.

Constant practice is improving our burglar, and he really bids fair to make his mark some time in the profession of his choice. An odd job of his, recently, was a bit of fine art. He called casually at the residence of Mrs. Nancy Poole, just north of the Hooker school-house, and after chatting pleasantly with the inmates of the house and rummaging around to his heart's content, took his departure without doing any damage. He did this because there wasn't anything valuable enough to lug off in the house. He entered by a cellar window, and first went into the second story, which was occupied by three boarders. He entered the room of one of the men, who, thinking that it was a mate of his, said, "Is that you, Bill?" to which the burglar pleasantly said, "Yes." Then our burglar went down stairs, and taking a box of letters, etc., from the bureau in Mrs. Poole's room, carried it into the kitchen and looked it over leisurely by his dark lantern. The lady heard him, and supposing it was one of the boarders who intended to start off early, asked what time it was, and the man replied, "Three o'clock." He continued to stumble around the room adjoining her chamber until Mrs. Poole's suspicions were aroused, but he told her in answer to her inquiries that he was "Bill." He then coolly went up to the room which he had first entered, got a bunch of keys from the pocket of some clothes on a chair, opened a chest, and examined its contents, looked in a valise and scrutinized a closet. The man in bed suggested to him, when he was about half through, still thinking it was one of the other boarders, that the burglar had better light the lamp, which the visitant did, and continued his search. Finally he went down stairs in disgust at finding nobody, and out by the cellar which he entered. And the boarders know that it was our burglar, for there are the tracks in the snow.—Springfield Republican.

Profitable Boys.—The Waverly (Iowa) Republican tells how W. W. Bailey, of that place, has fallen heir to $2,000,000 by the death of his uncle, Joshua Bailey, of Cohoes Falls, N. Y. He had but one child, a son, at whose majority the old gentleman gave $30,000. A few weeks afterward the young man died, leaving him childless. He adopted an orphan girl, and at her marriage gave her $40,000 and a check for $5,000 to take a trip to Europe. He had one brother who had three sons, of whom W. W. Bailey is one—and to these nephews he said he would will his property, and to the one raising the largest number of boys, two-thirds of it, in order that the name might be preserved. It was W. W. Bailey's good fortune to have five boys; in consequence he receives, according to the will, two-thirds of the estate, the whole of which is valued at $3,000,000. W. W. Bailey, adds the Republican, has been a resident of Waverly for ten years. He has followed painting for a living, or doing any job he could find. He has a little home near the depot, which is about all the property he owns. His large family of boys has kept him busy to feed, clothe, and educate them, but he has worked faithfully and earnestly to do so.

Medical Advertising.—The medical profession are outspoken in their denunciation of the system of medical advertising, and declare that any medicine that is advertised is a fraud. How thoroughly inconsistent and unfair is such an argument. The men who are so loud in their criticisms are those who advertise themselves as medical savants by ostentatious display; splendid residences with massive door plates; fast horses and costly carriages. Dr. J. Walker, of California, an old practitioner, respected alike for his skill and conscientious independence, dares to differ, and having discovered in his Vinegar Bitters a purely herbalistic medicine, free from all spirituous poisons, a wonderful specific for numerous disorders, advertises the same for the relief of his fellow man, and is borne out in his declarations of its many virtues by thousands of invalids, who are being cured of disease by its use. 27

John Barnet, of Albany, gave a house warming recently. Some whisky was procured, and all partook freely thereof. A teacupful of whisky was given by some of the family to a little boy 7 years old, son of Barnet. The boy died the next day.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co. have completed and now occupy their new factories in Cambridgeport, Mass., in which they have introduced machinery to an extent never before employed in the manufacture of organs. By the aid of this they not only produce the best organs, but with greatest economy. Twice as many organs can be produced, in proportion to the number of men employed, as would be possible with ordinary facilities, and this is the reason not only for such admirable instruments, but also for such low prices.

It is announced that a gentleman of New York has signified his intention to establish and endow in his lifetime an American College of Music, to be dedicated to the daughters of America.

Strong Arguments.—Webster's Unabridged Dictionary contains a hundred and fourteen thousand words, and three thousand pictures. Jones says when he came home late the other night, in the space of fifteen minutes his wife applied all the words to him, beside some extra ones and the fire shovel, suggesting to his mind the picture of the Ducking Stool on the 418th page of the Dictionary.

Died Suddenly of Heart Disease.

How common is the announcement. Thousands are suddenly swept into eternity by this fatal malady. This disease generally has its origin in impure blood filled with irritating, poisonous materials, which circulating through the heart, irritate its delicate tissues. Though the irritation may at first be only slight, producing a little palpitation, or irregular action, or dull, heavy, or sharp darting pains, yet by and by the disease becomes firmly seated, and inflammation, or hypertrophy, or thickening of the lining membrane or of the valves, is produced. How wise to give early attention to a case of this kind. Unnatural throbbing or pain in the region of the heart should admonish one that all is not right, and if you would preserve it from further disease, you must help it to beat rightly by the use of such a remedy as will remove the cause of the trouble. Use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery before the disease has become too seated, and it will, by its great blood purifying and wonderful regulating properties, effect a perfect cure. It contains medicinal properties which act specifically upon the tissues of the heart, bringing about a healthy action. Sold by all first-class druggists.

HEART DISEASE CURED.

Rockport, Spencer Co., Ind., Feb. 1st, 1874.

Dr R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:

About two years ago I was afflicted with a disease of the heart, which at times created a pressure around it, almost causing suffocation. I saw an advertisement of your Golden Medical Discovery, recommending the same as a cure for disease of the heart. I then bought half a dozen bottles of it, and after using three bottles I was entirely relieved and am now enjoying good health. Gratefully yours,

Vitus Killian.

Deaths by Consumption.—It is estimated that 100,000 die yearly in the United States with Consumption. When Consumption first appears there is pain in the chest and oppression, attended with difficulty of breathing. Soon there will be a cough, if this irritation is not healed, and the effort to raise will still add fuel to the fire. Allen's Lung Balsam will at once allay the pain and irritated parts, stop the cough, and prevent what would be Consumption. It is making cures of diseased lungs which were considered incurable. For sale by all medicine dealers.

We have seen it stated in various papers throughout the country that agents for the sale of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders were authorized to refund the money to any person who should use them and not be satisfied with the result. We doubted this at first, but the proprietors authorize us to say that it is true.
